"corporation incorporated in Canada" includes any corporation incorporated in any region of Canada before or after it became part of Canada;

"cost amount" to a taxpayer of any property at any time means

(a) in the case of depreciable property of a prescribed class, the amount that would be that proportion of the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of property of that class at that time that the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property is of the capital cost to the taxpayer of all property of that class that has not been disposed of by the taxpayer before that time if section 99 were read without reference to paragraph d.1 thereof and if paragraph b and subparagraph i of paragraph d of that section were read as follows:

"(b) subject to section 284, where a taxpayer, having acquired property for some other purpose, begins at a particular time to use it to gain income, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired it at that particular time at a capital cost to the taxpayer equal to the fair market value of the property at that time;";

"i. where the proportion of the use made of the property to gain income has increased at a particular time, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired at that time depreciable property of that class at a capital cost equal to the proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the amount of the increase in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property to gain income is of the whole of the use made of it;";

(b) in the case of capital property, other than depreciable property, of the taxpayer, its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer at that time;

(c) in the case of property described in an inventory of the taxpayer, its value at that time as determined for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income;

(c.1*)* where the taxpayer is a financial institution, within the meaning assigned by section 851.22.1, in its taxation year that includes that time and the property is mark-to-market property, within the meaning assigned by that section, for the year, the cost to the taxpayer of the property;

(d.1) where the property was a loan or lending asset, other than a net income stabilization account, a farm income stabilization account or a property in respect of which any of paragraphs b to c.1 and d.2 applies, the amortized cost of the property to the taxpayer at that time;

(d.2) where the taxpayer is a financial institution within the meaning assigned by section 851.22.1 in its taxation year that includes that time and the property is a specified debt obligation within the meaning assigned by that section, other than a mark-to-market property within the meaning assigned by that section for the year, the tax basis, within the meaning assigned by section 851.22.7, of the property to the taxpayer at that time;

(e) where the property was a right of the taxpayer to receive an amount, other than property that is a debt the amount of which was deducted under section 141 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ended before that time, a net income stabilization account, a farm income stabilization account, a right in respect of which any of paragraphs b to c.1, d.1 and d.2 applies, or a right to receive production, as defined in section 158.1, to which a matchable expenditure, as defined in section 158.1, relates, the amount the taxpayer has a right to receive;

(e.1) in the case of a policy loan, within the meaning assigned by subparagraph h of the first paragraph of section 835, of an insurer or an interest of a beneficiary under an environmental trust, an amount equal to zero;

(f) in any other case, the cost to the taxpayer of the property as determined for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income, except to the extent that that cost has been deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year ending before that time;

"death benefit" has the meaning assigned by section 3;

"deferred amount" at the end of a taxation year under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of an individual has the meaning assigned by section 47.17;

"deferred profit sharing plan" has the meaning assigned by section 870;

"depreciable property" has the meaning assigned by subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 93;

"derivative forward agreement", of a taxpayer, means an agreement entered into by the taxpayer to purchase or sell a capital property if

(a) the term of the agreement exceeds 180 days or the agreement is part of a series of agreements with a term that exceeds 180 days;

(b) in the case of a purchase agreement, the difference between the fair market value of the property delivered on settlement, including partial settlement, of the agreement and the amount paid for the property is attributable, in whole or in part, to an underlying interest (including a value, price, rate, variable, index, event, probability or thing) other than

i. revenue, income or cash flow in respect of the property over the term of the agreement, changes in the fair market value of the property over the term of the agreement, or any similar criteria in respect of the property unless

(1) the property is a Canadian security, within the meaning of section 250.2, or an interest in a partnership the fair market value of which is derived, in whole or in part, from a Canadian security,

(2) the agreement is an agreement to acquire property from a tax-indifferent investor or a financial institution, within the meaning of section 851.22.1, and

(3) it can reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of the series of transactions or events, or of a transaction or event in the series, of which the agreement is part is for all or any portion of the capital gain on a disposition (other than a disposition by the seller to the taxpayer under the agreement) of a Canadian security referred to in subparagraph 1—as part of the same series of transactions or events—to be attributable to amounts paid or payable on the Canadian security by the issuer of the Canadian security during the term of the agreement as interest, dividends or income of a trust other than income paid out of the taxable capital gains of the trust,

ii. if the purchase price is denominated in the currency of a country other than Canada, changes in the value of the Canadian currency relative to that other currency; or

iii. an underlying interest that relates to a purchase of currency, if it can reasonably be considered that the purchase is agreed to by the taxpayer in order to reduce the risk to the taxpayer of fluctuations in the value of the currency from which a capital property of the taxpayer derives its value or in which a purchase or sale by the taxpayer of a capital property, or an obligation that is a capital property of the taxpayer, is denominated; and

(c) in the case of a sale agreement,

i. the difference between the sale price of the property and the fair market value of the property at the time the agreement is entered into by the taxpayer is attributable, in whole or in part, to an underlying interest (including a value, price, rate, variable, index, event, probability or thing) other than

(1) revenue, income or cash flow in respect of the property over the term of the agreement, changes in the fair market value of the property over the term of the agreement, or any similar criteria in respect of the property,

(2) if the sale price is denominated in the currency of a country other than Canada, changes in the value of the Canadian currency relative to that other currency, or

(3) an underlying interest that relates to a sale of currency, if it can reasonably be considered that the sale is agreed to by the taxpayer in order to reduce the risk to the taxpayer of fluctuations in the value of the currency from which a capital property of the taxpayer derives its value or in which a purchase or sale by the taxpayer of a capital property, or an obligation that is a capital property of the taxpayer, is denominated, and

ii. the agreement is part of an arrangement that has the effect–or would have the effect if the agreements that are part of the arrangement and that were entered into by persons or partnerships not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer were entered into by the taxpayer instead of those non-arm's length persons or partnerships–of eliminating a majority of the taxpayer's risk of loss and opportunity for profit or gain in respect of the property for a period of more than 180 days;

"designated insurance property" has the meaning assigned by section 818;

"dividend rental arrangement" of a person or a partnership (in this definition referred to as the "person") means

(a) any arrangement entered into by the person where it can reasonably be considered that

i. the main reason for the person entering into the arrangement is to enable the person to receive a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, other than a dividend on a prescribed share or on a share described in section 21.6.1 or an amount deemed, by reason of the first paragraph of section 119, to be received as a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation, and

ii. under the arrangement another person or partnership bears the risk of loss or enjoys the opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the share in any material respect;

(b) any arrangement under which

i. a corporation at any time receives on a particular share a taxable dividend that would, but for section 740.4.1, be deductible in computing its taxable income for the taxation year that includes that time, and

ii. the corporation or a partnership of which the corporation is a member is obligated to pay to another person or partnership an amount as compensation for each of the following dividends that, if paid, would be deemed under section 21.32 to have been received by that other person or partnership, as the case may be, as a taxable dividend:

(1) the dividend described in subparagraph i,

(2) a dividend on a share that is identical to the particular share, or

(3) a dividend on a share that, during the term of the arrangement, can reasonably be expected to provide to a holder of the share the same or substantially the same proportionate risk of loss or opportunity for gain or profit as the particular share;

(c) any synthetic equity arrangement in respect of a dividend rental arrangement share of the person; or

(d) one or more arrangements (other than arrangements described in paragraph c) entered into by the person, the connected person referred to in paragraph a of the definition of "synthetic equity arrangement" or by any combination of the person and connected persons, if

i. the arrangements have the effect, or would have the effect if each arrangement entered into by a connected person were entered into by the person, of eliminating all or substantially all of the risk of loss and opportunity for gain or profit in respect of a dividend rental arrangement share of the person,

ii. as part of a series of transactions that includes these arrangements, a tax-indifferent investor, or a group of tax-indifferent investors each member of which is affiliated with every other member, obtains all or substantially all of the risk of loss and opportunity for gain or profit in respect of the dividend rental arrangement share or an identical share, within the meaning of section 745.3, and

iii. it is reasonable to conclude that one of the purposes of the series of transactions is to obtain the result described in subparagraph ii;

"dividend rental arrangement share" of a person or partnership means a share

(a) that is owned by the person or partnership;

(b) in respect of which the person or partnership is deemed to have received a dividend under section 21.32 and is provided with all or substantially all of the risk of loss and opportunity for gain or profit under an arrangement;

(c) that is held by a trust under which the person or partnership is a beneficiary and in respect of which the person or partnership is deemed to have received a dividend as a result of a designation by the trust under section 666;

(d) in respect of which the person or partnership is deemed to have received a dividend under section 498; or

1.0.1. In this Act and the regulations, where a provision applies in a common law context, the following rules apply:

(a) a reference to movable property or immovable property must be read, with the necessary modifications, as including a reference to personal property or real property, respectively;

(b) a reference to corporeal property or incorporeal property must be read, with the necessary modifications, as including a reference to tangible property or intangible property, respectively; and

(c) a reference to a right in a property must be read, with the necessary modifications, as including a reference to an interest in a property and a reference to a right in or to a property as including a reference to an interest or a right in a property.

1.1. In this Act and the regulations, a real right in an immovable property includes a lease on such property, and for common law purposes, a leasehold interest in immovable property, but does not include a right, as security only, derived by virtue of a hypothecary claim, mortgage, agreement of sale or other similar obligation.

1.2. For the purposes of this Part, other than paragraph a of section 618, the following rules apply:

(a) if property is acquired in substitution for a particular property that is disposed of or exchanged and if subsequently, by one or more transactions, other property is acquired in substitution for that property or for property already acquired in substitution, any property so acquired is deemed to have been substituted for the particular property; and

(b) any share received as a stock dividend on another share of the capital stock of a corporation is deemed to be property substituted for that other share.

1.3. For the purposes of this Part, where a corporation issues shares of a class of its capital stock in one or more series, a reference to the class shall be read, with the necessary modifications, as a reference to a series of the class.

1984, c. 15, s. 2; 1987, c. 21, s. 8; 1990, c. 59, s. 4; 1995, c. 63, s. 261; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2017, c. 29, s. 16.

1.4. (Repealed).

1.5. For the purposes of this Part, where there is a reference to a series of transactions or events, the series is deemed to include any related transactions or events completed in contemplation of the series.

1.6. Except as otherwise provided in this Part, property is considered to have become available for use for the purposes of this Part at the time at which it has, or would have if it were depreciable property, become available for use for the purposes of section 93.6.

1993, c. 16, s. 2.

1.7. In this Act and the regulations, a legal person, whether or not established for pecuniary gain, is designated by the word "corporation".

1997, c. 3, s. 14.

1.8. In this Act and the regulations, "agreed proportion", in respect of a member of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership, means the proportion that the member's share of the income or loss of the partnership for the partnership's fiscal period is of the partnership's income or loss for that fiscal period, on the assumption that, if the income and loss of the partnership for that fiscal period are nil, the partnership's income for that fiscal period is equal to $1,000,000.

2009, c. 5, s. 7.

TITLE II

RULES OF GENERAL APPLICATION

1972, c. 23.

CHAPTER I

GENERALITIES

1972, c. 23.

2. Unless the context indicates otherwise, for the purposes of this Part and the regulations, words referring to the father or mother of a taxpayer include a person whose child the taxpayer is, a person whose child the taxpayer had previously been within the meaning of paragraph b of the definition of "child" in section 1, or a person who is the father or mother of the taxpayer's spouse.

2.1. In this Act and the regulations, unless otherwise provided, where the ownership of a property is indeterminate owing to a matrimonial regime, the following rules apply:

(a) where the property was, immediately before the regime was entered into, the property of one of the spouses subject to the regime, it is deemed to remain the property of that spouse; and

(b) in other cases, the property is deemed to be the property of the spouse who administers it under the regime.

2.1.1. For the purposes of this Part and subject to sections 2.1, 2.1.2, 2.1.3 and 456.1, where at any time a property owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition, the following rules apply, notwithstanding any retroactive or declaratory effect of such partition:

(a) each such person who had a right in the property immediately before that time is deemed not to have disposed at that time of that proportion, not exceeding 1, of the right that the fair market value of that person's right in the property immediately after that time is of the fair market value of that person's right in the property immediately before that time;

(b) each such person who has a right in the property immediately after that time is deemed not to have acquired at that time that proportion of the right that the fair market value of that person's right in the property immediately before that time is of the fair market value of that person's right in the property immediately after that time;

(c) each such person who had a right in the property immediately before that time is deemed to have had until that time, and to have disposed at that time of, that proportion of the person's right to which subparagraph a does not apply;

(d) each such person who has a right in the property immediately after that time is deemed not to have had before that time, and to have acquired at that time, that proportion of the person's right to which subparagraph b does not apply; and

(e) subparagraphs a to d do not apply where the right of the person is a right in fungible corporeal property described in that person's inventory.

For the purposes of this section, where a right in the property is an undivided right, the fair market value of the right at any time is deemed to be equal to that proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the right is of all the undivided rights in the property.

2.1.2. Where a property owned by two or more persons is the subject of a partition among such persons and, as a consequence thereof, each such person has, in the property, a new right the fair market value of which immediately after the partition, expressed as a percentage of the fair market value of all the rights in the property immediately after the partition, is equal to the fair market value of that person's undivided right immediately before the partition, expressed as a percentage of the fair market value of all the undivided rights in the property immediately before the partition, the following rules apply:

(a) section 2.1.1 does not apply to the property, and

(b) the new right of each such person is deemed to be a continuation of that person's undivided right in the property immediately before the partition.

For the purposes of this section, the following rules apply:

(a) subdivisions of a building or of a parcel of land that are established in the course of, or in contemplation of, a partition and that are co-owned by the same persons who co-owned the building or the parcel of land, or by their assignees, shall be regarded as one property; and

(b) where a right in the property is or includes an undivided right, the fair market value of the right must be determined without regard to any discount or premium that may apply to a minority or majority right in the property.

2.1.3. For the purposes of this Part and the regulations, where, as a consequence of the laws of a province relating to spouses' interests in respect of property as a result of marriage, property is, after the death of an individual,

(a) transferred or distributed to a person who was the individual's spouse at the time of the death, or acquired by that person, the property is deemed to have been so transferred, distributed or acquired, as the case may be, as a consequence of the death; or

(b) transferred or distributed to the individual's succession, or acquired by the individual's succession, the property is deemed to have been so transferred, distributed or acquired, as the case may be, immediately before the time that is immediately before the death.

2.2. For the purposes of the definitions of "joint spousal trust" and "post-1971 spousal trust" in section 1, sections 2.1, 312.3, 312.4, 313 to 313.0.5, 336.0.2, 336.0.3, 336.0.6 to 336.4, 440 to 441.2, 454, 454.1, 456.1, 462.0.1, 462.0.2 and 651, the definition of "pre-1972 spousal trust" in section 652.1, sections 653, 656.3, 656.3.1, 657, 660, 890.0.1 and 913, subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 961.17, sections 965.0.9 and 965.0.11, Titles VI.0.2 and VI.0.3 of Book VII, sections 971.2 and 971.3 and Division II.11.7.2 of Chapter III.1 of Title III of Book IX, "spouse" and "former spouse" of a particular individual include another individual who is a party to an annulled or annullable marriage, as the case may be, with the particular individual.

1984, c. 15, s. 3; 1986, c. 15, s. 32; 1991, c. 25, s. 3; 1993, c. 16, s. 4; 1993, c. 19, s. 14; 1994, c. 22, s. 43; 1998, c. 16, s. 6; 2002, c. 6, s. 141; 2003, c. 2, s. 3; 2004, c. 21, s. 38; 2005, c. 38, s. 45; 2011, c. 1, s. 11; 2011, c. 34, s. 12; 2015, c. 21, s. 93; 2021, c. 14, s. 16; 2022, c. 23, s. 29.

2.2.1. In this Act and the regulations,

(a) words referring to a spouse at any time of a taxpayer include the person of the opposite or the same sex who cohabits at that time with the taxpayer in a conjugal relationship and has so cohabited with the taxpayer throughout a 12-month period ending at that time, or would be the father or mother of a child of whom the taxpayer would be the father or mother if the definition of "child" in section 1 were read without reference to paragraph c thereof and section 2 were read without reference to the words "or a person who is the father or mother of the taxpayer's spouse";

(b) references to marriage shall be read as if a conjugal relationship between two individuals who are, because of subparagraph a or of a civil union, spouses of each other were a marriage;

(c) provisions that apply to a person who is married apply to a person who is, because of subparagraph a or of a civil union, a spouse of a taxpayer; and

(d) provisions that apply to a person who is unmarried do not apply to a person who is, because of subparagraph a or of a civil union, a spouse of a taxpayer;

(e) references to a matrimonial regime include a civil union regime.

For the purposes of subparagraph a of the first paragraph, where at any time the taxpayer and the person referred to in that subparagraph cohabit in a conjugal relationship, they are deemed to be so cohabiting at any particular time after that time, unless they were not cohabiting at the particular time for a period of at least 90 days that includes the particular time because of a breakdown of their conjugal relationship.

Subparagraph a of the first paragraph, as amended by section 14 of the Act to amend various legislative provisions concerning de facto spouses (1999, chapter 14), applies, notwithstanding section 40 of that Act, from a particular time of the taxation year 1998 or the part of the taxation year 1999 preceding 16 June, to a taxpayer and a person of the same sex that would have been the person's spouse at that time if the Act to amend various legislative provisions concerning de facto spouses had then been in force, where the taxpayer and the person made jointly a valid election under section 144 of the Modernization of Benefits and Obligations Act (Statutes of Canada, 2000, chapter 12) for the taxation year that includes the particular time.

A copy of every document sent to the Minister of National Revenue in connection with the election referred to in the third paragraph must be filed with the Minister on or before the taxpayer's and the person's filing-due date for the taxation year that includes 21 October 2015.

Notwithstanding sections 1010 to 1011, the Minister shall make such assessments, reassessments or additional assessments of tax, interest and penalties and such determinations and redeterminations as are necessary for any taxation year to take into account the application of the third paragraph.

1994, c. 22, s. 44; 1995, c. 1, s. 13; 1995, c. 49, s. 4; 1999, c. 14, s. 14; 2000, c. 5, s. 5; 2001, c. 53, s. 2; 2002, c. 6, s. 142; 2015, c. 21, s. 94.

2.2.2. (Repealed).

2.3. Where a document has been issued or a contract has been entered into before 31 July 1997 purporting to create, to establish, to extinguish or to be in substitution for, a taxpayer's right to an amount or amounts, immediately or in the future, out of or under a pension plan, the following rules apply:

(a) where the rights provided for in the document or contract are rights provided for by the pension plan or are rights to a payment or payments out of the pension plan, and the taxpayer acquired an interest under the document or contract before that date, any payment under the document or contract is deemed to be a payment out of or under the pension plan and the taxpayer is deemed not to have received, on the issuance of the document or the entering into the contract, an amount out of or under a pension plan; and

(b) where the rights created or established by the document or contract are not rights provided for by the pension plan or rights to a payment or payments out of the pension plan, the taxpayer is deemed to have received an amount out of or under the pension plan equal to the value of the rights created or established by the document or contract when the document was issued or the contract was entered into.

3. "Death benefit" means the amount by which the aggregate of amounts received by a taxpayer in a taxation year upon or after the death of an employee in recognition of the employee's service in an office or employment exceeds the amount determined under section 4.

1972, c. 23, s. 3; 1982, c. 17, s. 48; 1986, c. 19, s. 2.

4. The amount which a taxpayer shall subtract from the amount determined under section 3 is,

(a) where the taxpayer is the only person who has received an amount under section 3, the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts so received by the taxpayer in the year, and

ii. the amount, if any, by which $10,000 exceeds the aggregate of all amounts received by the taxpayer in preceding taxation years upon or after the death of the employee in recognition of the employee's service in an office or employment;

(b) in all other cases, the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts so received by the taxpayer in the year, and

ii. such proportion of $10,000 as the aggregate described in subparagraph i is of the aggregate of all amounts received by all taxpayers at any time upon or after the death of the employee in recognition of the employee's service in an office or employment.

1972, c. 23, s. 4; 1986, c. 19, s. 2; 1994, c. 22, s. 45; 1997, c. 14, s. 11.

5. When in this Part, a reference is made to a taxation year by identifying it with a calendar year, this reference contemplates the taxation year which coincides with that calendar year or ends therein.

1972, c. 23, s. 5.

5.1. (Repealed).

5.2. (Repealed).

1990, c. 59, s. 5; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2009, c. 15, s. 27.

6. The reference to a taxation year ending in another year includes a reference to a taxation year the end of which coincides with that of such other year.

The reference to a fiscal period ending in a taxation year includes a reference to a fiscal period the end of which coincides with the end of that taxation year.

6.1. If a corporation's fiscal period referred to in the second or fourth paragraph of section 7 exceeds 365 days, otherwise than because of an election described in paragraph c of subsection 3.1 or 4 of section 249 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), and for that reason the corporation does not have a taxation year that ends in a particular calendar year, for the purposes of this Part the corporation's first taxation year ending in the calendar year that follows the particular calendar year is deemed to end on the last day of the particular calendar year.

6.1.1. If at a particular time a corporation becomes or ceases to be a Canadian-controlled private corporation, otherwise than because of an acquisition of control to which section 6.2 would, but for this section, apply and subsections 3.1 and 4 of section 249 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) do not apply to the corporation in respect of the change of status, the following rules apply:

(a) the corporation's taxation year that would, but for this section, include the particular time is deemed to end immediately before that time; and

(b) a new taxation year of the corporation is deemed to begin at the particular time and end at the time at which the corporation's taxation year (determined for the purposes of the Income Tax Act) that includes the particular time, ends.

Chapter V.2 applies in relation to an election made under subparagraph iii of paragraph c of subsection 3.1 of section 249 of the Income Tax Act.

2009, c. 5, s. 10.

6.2. For the purposes of this Part, if at a particular time a taxpayer (other than a corporation that is a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada and that did not carry on a business in Canada in its last taxation year beginning before the particular time) is subject to a loss restriction event and, where the taxpayer is a corporation or a succession that is a graduated rate estate, subsection 4 of section 249 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) does not apply to the taxpayer in respect of the loss restriction event, the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer's taxation year that would, but for this subparagraph, have included the particular time is deemed to have ended immediately before that time; and

(b) a new taxation year of the taxpayer is deemed to begin at the particular time and, where the taxpayer is a corporation, end at the time at which the taxpayer's taxation year (determined for the purposes of the Income Tax Act) that includes the particular time, ends;

(c) (subparagraph repealed).

Chapter V.2 applies in relation to an election made under paragraph b of subsection 4 of section 249 of the Income Tax Act.

1989, c. 77, s. 3; 1993, c. 16, s. 5; 1995, c. 49, s. 5; 1996, c. 39, s. 12; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2004, c. 8, s. 5; 2009, c. 5, s. 11; 2017, c. 1, s. 64; 2017, c. 29, s. 17.

6.2.1. If the taxation year, determined for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), of a testamentary trust is deemed to end, in accordance with subsection 4.1 of section 249 of that Act and for the purposes of that Act, immediately before a particular time, a new taxation year of the trust is deemed, if the trust exists at the particular time, to begin at the particular time.

6.3. Subject to the second paragraph, the period for which the accounts of a succession that is a graduated rate estate are made up for purposes of assessment under this Part may not exceed 12 months and no change in the time at which that period ends may be made without the concurrence of the Minister.

However, the first paragraph does not apply in respect of a period for which the accounts of a succession that is a graduated rate estate are made up for purposes of assessment under this Part that, in accordance with paragraph b of the definition of "taxation year" in section 1, ends at the time at which the period for which the succession's accounts are made up for the purposes of assessment under the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) ends.

For the purposes of paragraph b of the definition of "taxation year" in section 1, the period, including a particular day, for which the accounts of a succession that is a graduated rate estate are made up for purposes of assessment under the Income Tax Act is deemed to end at the time at which the taxation year of the succession that includes that day is deemed to end, for the purposes of that Act.

6.4. (Repealed).

2009, c. 5, s. 12; 2017, c. 1, s. 67.

7. Subject to the second, third and fourth paragraphs, in this Part and the regulations, unless the context indicates otherwise, "fiscal period" of a business or a property of a person or partnership means the period for which the person's or partnership's accounts in respect of the business or property are made up for purposes of assessment under this Part.

A fiscal period of a business or property of a person or partnership, other than a fiscal period referred to in the third or fourth paragraph, may not end

(a) in the case of a business or a property of a corporation, more than 53 weeks after the period began;

(b) in any of the following cases, after the end of the calendar year in which the period began unless, in the case of a business, the business is not carried on in Canada, is a prescribed business or is carried on by a prescribed person or partnership:

i. a business or property of an individual, other than an individual in respect of whom any of sections 980 to 999.1 applies or other than a trust,

i.1. a business or property of a trust, other than a mutual fund trust if the fiscal period is one in respect of which subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 1121.7, as it read in respect of the fiscal period, applies or other than a succession that is a graduated rate estate,

ii. a business or property of a partnership of which an individual (other than an individual in respect of whom any of sections 980 to 999.1 applies or other than a succession that is a graduated rate estate), a professional corporation, or a partnership in respect of which this subparagraph ii applies, would, if the fiscal period ended at the end of the calendar year in which the period began, be a member in the fiscal period, or

iii. a business or property of a professional corporation that would, if the fiscal period ended at the end of the calendar year in which the period began, be in the fiscal period a member of a partnership in respect of which subparagraph ii applies;

(c) in any other case, more than 12 months after the period began.

A fiscal period of a business or property of a person or partnership that consists in a period that begins at a particular time after 20 December 2006 must end at the end of the period, including that time, that is a fiscal period of the business or property for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)).

In addition, the particular fiscal period of a business or property of a person or partnership that consists in a period that includes 20 December 2006 must end at the end of the period, including that day, that is a fiscal period of the business or property for the purposes of the Income Tax Act, unless the fiscal period of the business or property (determined for the purposes of the Income Tax Act) that includes 20 December 2006, ends, in the case of a corporation, more than 53 weeks after the time at which the particular fiscal period begins and, in any other case, more than 12 months after that time.

For the purposes of the third and fourth paragraphs, a fiscal period of a corporation that, for the purposes of the Income Tax Act, includes a particular day is deemed to end at the time at which the taxation year of the corporation that includes that day is deemed to end, for the purposes of that Act.

For the purposes of this section, the activities of a person in respect of whom any of sections 980 to 999.1 applies are deemed to be a business.

1972, c. 23, s. 7; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 31, s. 3; 2001, c. 53, s. 3; 2004, c. 8, s. 6; 2009, c. 5, s. 13; 2017, c. 1, s. 68.

7.0.1. For the purposes of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 7 and of section 7.0.3, a person or partnership that would not have a share of any income or loss of a partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership, if the fiscal period ended at the end of the calendar year in which it began, is deemed not to be a member of the partnership in that fiscal period.

7.0.2. Where a fiscal period of a business or a property of a person or partnership ends at a particular time, the subsequent fiscal period of the business or property of the person or partnership is deemed to begin immediately after that time.

1997, c. 31, s. 4.

7.0.3. Where a business is carried on, throughout the period of time that began at the beginning of a particular fiscal period referred to in the second paragraph of section 7, of the business, that includes a particular day, and ended at the end of the calendar year in which the fiscal period began, by an individual, otherwise than as a member of a partnership, or by an individual as a member of a partnership if, throughout that period of time, each member of the partnership is an individual and the partnership is not a member of another partnership, and where the individual makes, after 19 December 2006, a valid election under subsection 4 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) in respect of the fiscal period or a previous fiscal period, subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 7 does not apply to the particular fiscal period and the particular fiscal period must end at the end of the period that includes the particular day and that is a fiscal period of the business for the purposes of the Income Tax Act.

Chapter V.2 applies in relation to an election made under subsection 4 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act in respect of a fiscal period referred to in the second paragraph of section 7 or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

7.0.4. The first paragraph of section 7.0.3 does not apply to a particular fiscal period of a business where, in a preceding fiscal period or throughout the period of time that began at the beginning of the particular fiscal period and ended at the end of the calendar year in which the particular fiscal period began, the expenditures made in the course of carrying on the business were primarily the cost or capital cost of tax shelter investments, within the meaning of section 851.38.

7.0.5. The first paragraph of section 7.0.3 does not apply to a fiscal period of a business carried on by an individual if the individual makes, after 19 December 2006, a valid election under subsection 6 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) that applies in respect of the fiscal period.

Chapter V.2 applies in relation to an election made under subsection 6 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

7.0.6. For the purposes of this Part, no change in the time when a fiscal period referred to in the second paragraph of section 7 ends may be made without the concurrence of the Minister.

7.1. A transfer, distribution or acquisition of property is deemed, for the purposes of this Part, to be made as a consequence of the death of a taxpayer or of the taxpayer's spouse if it is made

(a) under or as a consequence of the terms of the will or other testamentary instrument of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or as a consequence of the law governing the intestacy of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse; or

(b) as a consequence of a disclaimer, release or surrender by a person who was a beneficiary under the will or other testamentary instrument or on the intestacy of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse.

7.2. A release or surrender by a person who was a beneficiary under the will or other testamentary instrument or on the intestacy of a taxpayer with respect to any property that was property of the taxpayer immediately before the taxpayer's death is deemed, for the purposes of this Part, not to be a disposition of the property by that person.

7.3. For the purposes of sections 7.1 and 7.2, the expression "release or surrender" means

(a) a release or surrender made under the laws of a province other than Québec, that does not direct in any manner who is entitled to benefit therefrom and that is made within the period ending 36 months after the death of the taxpayer or, where written application therefor has been made to the Minister by the taxpayer's legal representative within that period, within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances;

(b) a gift inter vivos made under the laws of Québec of a right in, or a property of, a succession that is made within the period referred to in paragraph a to the person or persons who would have benefited if the donor had made a renunciation of the succession that was not made in favour of any person.

7.4. In section 7.1, "disclaimer" means a disclaimer made under the laws of a province other than Québec and includes a renunciation of a succession made under the laws of Québec that is not made in favour of any person, but does not include any disclaimer or renunciation, as the case may be, made after the period ending 36 months after the death of the taxpayer unless written application therefor has been made to the Minister by the taxpayer's legal representative before the expiry of that period and the disclaimer or renunciation, as the case may be, is made within such longer period as the Minister considers reasonable.

7.4.1. In this Part and the regulations, a trust is deemed to be created by an individual's will if the trust is created by an order of a court in relation to the individual's succession made under any law of a province that provides for the relief or support of dependants of an individual.

7.4.2. For the purposes of this Part and the regulations, property is deemed not to have become vested indefeasibly in an individual other than a trust or in a trust under which the taxpayer's spouse is a beneficiary, where the trust is created by the will of the taxpayer, unless the property became so vested before the death of the individual or of the taxpayer's spouse, as the case may be.

7.5. Except as otherwise provided in this Part, where an amount or a number is required under this Part to be determined or calculated by or in accordance with an algebraic formula, if the amount or number when so determined or calculated would, but for this section, be a negative amount or number, it is deemed to be nil.

7.6. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, where the Minister and another person who is a party to a convention or agreement referred to in subsection 1 of section 115.1 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) have entered into a particular agreement with respect to the taxation of the other person in relation to matters referred to in the convention or agreement, all determinations made in accordance with the terms and conditions of the particular agreement are deemed to be in accordance with this Act.

Where rights and obligations under the particular agreement described in the first paragraph have been transferred to another person with the concurrence of the Minister, that other person is deemed, for the purposes of the first paragraph, to have entered into the particular agreement with the Minister.

7.7. For the purposes of this Part, one bond, debenture, bill, note or similar obligation issued by a person is identical to another such obligation issued by that person if both are identical in respect of all rights, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, attaching thereto, except as regards the principal amount of the obligation.

7.8. For the purposes of sections 21.4.3, 21.5 to 21.11, paragraph f of section 21.11.16, sections 21.12 to 21.16, 508, where the latter section applies to a reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of a term preferred share, 508.1 and 740.7, where after 12 November 1981 a person has an interest in a trust or partnership, whether directly or indirectly through an interest in any other trust or partnership or in any manner whatever, that person is deemed to be a beneficiary of the trust or a member of the partnership, as the case may be.

7.9. For the purposes of this Part and the regulations, the following rules apply in respect of a property that is, at any time, subject to a usufruct, right of use or substitution:

(a) the usufruct, right of use or substitution, as the case may be, is deemed to be at that time a trust or, if the usufruct, right of use or substitution, as the case may be, is created by will, a trust created by will;

(b) the property is deemed

i. if the usufruct, right of use or substitution, as the case may be, arises on the death of a testator, to have been transferred to the trust on and as a consequence of the death of the testator, and not otherwise, and

ii. if the usufruct, right of use or substitution, as the case may be, arises otherwise, to have been transferred — at the time it first became subject to the usufruct, right of use or substitution, as the case may be — to the trust by the person who granted the usufruct, right of use or substitution; and

(c) the property is deemed to be, throughout the period in which it is subject to the usufruct, right of use or substitution, as the case may be, held by the trust, and not otherwise.

7.9.1. Section 7.9 does not apply in respect of a recognized gift with reserve of usufruct or use.

7.10. For the purposes of this Part and the regulations, an arrangement (other than a partnership, a qualifying arrangement or an arrangement that is a trust determined without reference to this section) is deemed to be a trust and property subject to rights and obligations under the arrangement is, if the arrangement is deemed by this section to be a trust, deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise, if the arrangement

(a) is established before 31 October 2003 under a written contract that is governed by the laws of Québec and provides that, for the purposes of this Part and the regulations, the arrangement must be considered to be a trust; and

(b) creates rights and obligations that are substantially similar to the rights and obligations under a trust (determined without reference to this section and sections 7.9, 7.10.1 and 7.11).

7.10.1. For the purposes of section 7.10 and this section, an arrangement is a qualifying arrangement if it is

(a) entered into with a corporation that is licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or of a province to carry on in Canada the business of offering its services as trustee;

(b) established under a written contract that is governed by the laws of Québec;

(c) presented as a declaration of trust or provides that, for the purposes of this Part and the regulations, it must be considered to be a trust; and

(d) presented as an arrangement in respect of which the corporation is to take action for the arrangement to become a registered disability savings plan, a registered education savings plan, a registered retirement income fund, a registered retirement savings plan or a tax-free savings account.

If the arrangement is a qualifying arrangement, the following rules apply:

(a) the arrangement is deemed to be a trust;

(b) any property contributed at any time to the arrangement by an annuitant, a holder or a subscriber under the arrangement, as the case may be, is deemed to have been transferred, at that time, to the trust by the annuitant, holder or subscriber, as applicable; and

(c) property subject to rights and obligations under the arrangement is deemed to be held in trust and not otherwise.

7.11. For the purposes of this Part and the regulations, the following rules apply:

(a) a person who has a right, whether immediate or future and whether absolute or contingent, to receive all or any part of the income or capital in respect of property referred to in section 7.9 or 7.10 is deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust; and

(b) a person who at any particular time and in relation to a property, has a right of ownership, a right of an emphyteutic lessee or a beneficial interest in a trust is deemed, even if the property is subject to a servitude, to have beneficial ownership of the property at that time.

7.11.0.1. Section 7.9 does not apply to a usufruct or a right of use of an immovable property when a taxpayer disposes of the bare ownership of the immovable property in the course of a gift to a qualified donee and retains, for life, the usufruct or the right of use.

7.11.1. For the purposes of this Part and the regulations, the following rules apply:

(a) a person or partnership beneficially interested in a particular trust includes any person or partnership that has any right, whether immediate or future, whether absolute or contingent or whether conditional on or subject to the exercise of any discretionary power by any person or partnership, as a beneficiary under a trust to receive all or any part of the income or capital of the particular trust either directly from the particular trust or indirectly through one or more trusts or partnerships;

(b) except for the purposes of this subparagraph, a particular person or partnership is deemed to be beneficially interested in a particular trust at a particular time where

i. the particular person or partnership is not beneficially interested in the particular trust at the particular time,

ii. because of the terms or conditions of the particular trust or any agreement in respect of the particular trust at the particular time, the particular person or partnership might, because of the exercise of any discretion by any person or partnership, become beneficially interested in the particular trust at the particular time or at a later time, and

iii. at or before the particular time, either the particular trust has acquired property, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, from a person or partnership described in the second paragraph, or a person or partnership described in that paragraph has given a guarantee on behalf of the particular trust or provided any other financial assistance whatever to the particular trust; and

(c) a member of a partnership that is beneficially interested in a trust is deemed to be beneficially interested in the trust.

The person or partnership to which subparagraph iii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph refers is

(a) the particular person or partnership;

(b) another person with whom the particular person or partnership, or a member of the particular partnership, does not deal at arm's length;

(c) a person or partnership with whom the other person referred to in subparagraph b does not deal at arm's length;

(d) a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular person or of another person with whom the particular person or partnership, or a member of the particular partnership, does not deal at arm's length; or

(e) a corporation not resident in Canada that would, if the particular partnership were a corporation resident in Canada, be a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular partnership.

7.11.2. Without restricting the personal liabilities under this Act of the trustees of the trusts mentioned hereinafter or the application of section 656.9, where a particular trust transfers property at a particular time to another trust, other than a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or by a registered retirement income fund, in circumstances to which subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 248 applies, the other trust is deemed to be after that time the same trust as, and a continuation of, the particular trust.

If, as a result of a transaction or event, the property referred to in the first paragraph is deemed to be a taxable Canadian property of the particular trust because of subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 301, any of sections 521, 538 and 540.4, paragraph b of section 540.6, section 554, subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 614 or paragraph d of section 688.4, the property is also deemed to be, at any time that is within 60 months after the transaction or event, a taxable Canadian property of the other trust.

7.11.3. Except for the purposes of this section, where at a particular time property is transferred to a trust in circumstances to which subparagraph g of the second paragraph of section 248 applies, the trust is deemed to act as agent or mandatary for the transferor in respect of the property throughout the period that begins at the time of the transfer and ends at the time of the first change after that time in the beneficial ownership of the property.

7.11.4. Where a trust issues a unit of the trust to a taxpayer directly in consideration of a right to enforce payment of an amount by the trust in respect of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust, the cost to the taxpayer of the unit is deemed to be equal to that amount where

(a) at the time the unit is issued, the trust is neither a personal trust nor a trust prescribed for the purposes of section 688; and

(b) the unit meets either of the following conditions:

i. the unit is capital property and that amount is not proceeds of disposition of a capital interest in the trust, or

ii. the unit is not capital property and subparagraph i.1 of paragraph n of section 257 does not apply in respect of that amount but would so apply if that subparagraph i.1 were read without reference to subparagraphs 1 to 3 thereof.

7.11.5. Where at a particular time a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust includes a right to enforce payment of an amount by the trust, the amount shall be added at the particular time to the cost otherwise determined to the taxpayer of the capital interest where

(a) immediately after the particular time, the taxpayer disposes of the capital interest;

(b) as a consequence of the disposition, the right to enforce payment of the amount is acquired by another person or partnership; and

(c) if the right to enforce payment of the amount had been satisfied by a payment to the taxpayer by the trust, there would have been no disposition of that right for the purposes of this Part by reason of the application of subparagraph e of the second paragraph of section 248.

7.12. For greater certainty, it is hereby declared that, unless specifically permitted by this Part, neither the equity nor the consolidation method of accounting shall be used to determine any amount for the purposes of this Part.

7.13. Where a tax agreement between Québec and a particular country that has force of law in Québec provides for an income tax privilege, other than an income tax exemption, this Act and the regulations shall be applied on the assumption that they contain such provisions as are necessary for the granting of such a privilege.

7.14. The application of this Act and the regulations is not affected by article 77 of the Civil Code as regards the determination of whether or not a person is resident in Québec, in Canada or elsewhere.

7.15. All the structural units of a trade union, including each local, branch, national and international unit, are deemed to be a single employer and a single entity for the purposes of the provisions of this Part, and the regulations, relating to the determination of whether a contribution made under a plan or arrangement is a resident's contribution within the meaning of section 890.6.1.

7.16. Where at a particular time a person or partnership, in this section referred to as the "debtor", becomes liable to repay money borrowed by the debtor or becomes liable to pay an amount, other than interest, as consideration for any property acquired by the debtor or services rendered to the debtor, or that is deductible in computing the debtor's income, for the purpose of applying this Part relating to the liability, the liability is deemed to be an obligation, issued at that time by the debtor, that has a principal amount at that time equal to the amount of the liability at that time.

7.17. For the purposes of this Part,

(a) unless the context requires otherwise, an obligation issued by a debtor includes any part of a larger obligation that was issued by the debtor;

(b) the principal amount of that part is deemed to be the portion of the principal amount of that larger obligation that relates to that part; and

(c) the amount for which that part was issued is deemed to be the portion of the amount for which that larger obligation was issued that relates to that part.

7.18. For the purposes of this Part, where in a taxation year a person who is not resident in Canada carries on an activity, or disposes of a property, described in the second paragraph, the person is deemed to carry on business in Canada in the year in respect of the activity or disposition.

For the purposes of the first paragraph,

(a) an activity to which that paragraph refers is an activity that consists

i. in producing, growing, mining, creating, manufacturing, fabricating, improving, packing, preserving or constructing, in whole or in part, anything in Canada whether or not the person exports that thing without disposing of it before exportation, or

ii. in soliciting orders or offering anything for sale in Canada through an agent or servant, whether the contract or transaction is to be completed inside or outside Canada or partly in and partly outside Canada; and

(b) a property to which that paragraph refers is

i. Canadian resource property, except where an amount in respect of the disposition thereof is included in computing an amount determined under paragraph e of section 330 on account of an amount deducted under section 412 in computing the cumulative Canadian development expenses at the end of a taxation year or under section 418.12 on account of an amount deducted under section 418.6 in computing the cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expenses at the end of a taxation year,

ii. property, other than depreciable property, that is a timber resource property or an interest therein or option in respect thereof, or

iii. property, other than capital property, that is an immovable property situated in Canada, including an interest therein or option in respect thereof, whether or not the property is in existence.

7.18.1. For the purposes of the definition of "investment fund" in section 21.0.5, subparagraph ii of paragraph b of section 649, paragraph c of section 898.1.1, sections 905.0.11, 935.22, 935.32 and 965.0.21, subparagraphs i to iv of paragraph c.2 of section 998, paragraph b of sections 1117 and 1120 and any regulations made under paragraphs c.3 and c.4 of section 998 and under section 1108, where a trust or corporation holds an interest as a member of a partnership and, by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business or other activity of the partnership.

7.18.2. For the purposes of Chapters III.1 and III.1.1 of Title I of Book VIII, where a registered charity, a registered Canadian amateur athletic association or a registered Québec amateur athletic association holds an interest as a member of a partnership, the member shall not, solely because of its acquisition and holding of that interest, be considered to carry on any business of the partnership if

(a) by operation of any law governing the arrangement in respect of the partnership, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited;

(b) the member deals at arm's length with each general partner of the partnership; and

(c) the member, or the member together with persons and partnerships with which it does not deal at arm's length, holds interests in the partnership that have a fair market value of not more than 20% of the fair market value of the interests of all members in the partnership.

7.18.3. For the purposes of Chapters III.1 and III.1.1 of Title I of Book VIII, each member of a partnership at any time is deemed at that time to own the portion of each property of the partnership equal to the proportion that the fair market value of the member's interest in the partnership at that time is of the fair market value of the interests of all members in the partnership at that time.

7.19. Except as otherwise provided, no provision of this Act shall be read or construed

(a) to require the inclusion or permit the deduction, either directly or indirectly, in computing a taxpayer's income, taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada, for a taxation year or in computing a taxpayer's income or loss for a taxation year from a source in Canada or from sources in another place, of any amount to the extent that the amount has already been directly or indirectly included or deducted, as the case may be, in computing such income, taxable income, taxable income earned in Canada or loss, for the year or any preceding taxation year;

(b) to permit the deduction, either directly or indirectly, in computing a taxpayer's taxes payable under this Act for a taxation year of any amount to the extent that the amount has already been directly or indirectly deducted in computing such taxes payable for the year or any preceding taxation year; or

(c) to consider an amount to have been paid on account of a taxpayer's taxes payable under this Act for a taxation year to the extent that the amount has already been considered to have been paid on account of such taxes payable for the year or any preceding taxation year.

Subparagraph a of the first paragraph does not apply to prevent a taxpayer from deducting, in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, an amount the taxpayer pays in the year as a reimbursement of an amount the taxpayer deducted in computing the taxpayer's taxable income for a preceding taxation year.

7.19.1. For the purposes of this Act, if a particular provision of the Act refers to a valid election made under the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) and the Minister of National Revenue has agreed, in giving effect to an application filed for that purpose by a person, legal representative or partnership otherwise than under a provision of the Income Tax Act that specifically provides for such an application, to allow, for the purposes of that Act, the election provided for in the provision of that Act to which the particular provision refers to be made late, amended or rescinded at any time, the following rules apply:

(a) the election made late or the election, in its amended form, is deemed to be a valid election made at that time; and

(b) the election, before its being amended, or the election that has been rescinded, is deemed never to have been made.

Sections 21.4.14 and 21.4.15 apply, with the necessary modifications, to this section.

7.19.2. For the purposes of sections 234.1, 428 to 451 and 454 to 462.0.1 and Title VI.5 of Book IV, where at any time a person or a partnership carries on a farming business and a fishing business, a property used at that time principally in a combination of the activities of the farming business and the fishing business is deemed to be used at that time principally in the course of carrying on a farming or fishing business.

2017, c. 29, s. 19.

CHAPTER I.1

RULES RELATING TO GIFTS

2009, c. 5, s. 23.

7.20. The existence of an amount of an advantage in respect of a transfer of property does not disqualify the transfer from being a gift to a qualified donee, provided that

(a) the amount of the advantage does not exceed 80% of the fair market value of the transferred property; or

(b) the transferor of the property establishes to the satisfaction of the Minister that the transfer was made with the intention to make a gift.

7.21. The eligible amount of a gift is equal to the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift exceeds the amount of the advantage, if any, in respect of the gift.

However, if a taxpayer disposes of the bare ownership of a work of art or of a cultural property described in the third paragraph of section 232 in the course of a recognized gift with reserve of usufruct or use, the eligible amount of the gift is equal to the amount by which the fair market value of the gift, determined under the rules of paragraph b of section 710.4 or 752.0.10.4.2, exceeds the amount of the advantage in respect of the gift, other than the usufruct or right of use.

7.22. The amount of the advantage in respect of a gift made by a taxpayer is equal to the aggregate of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts, other than an amount referred to in paragraph b, each of which is an amount equal to the value, at the time the gift is made, of a property, service, compensation, use or other benefit that the taxpayer, or a person or partnership who does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer, has received, obtained or enjoyed, or is entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive, obtain, or enjoy

i. that is consideration for the gift,

ii. that is in gratitude for the gift, or

iii. that is in any other way related to the gift; and

(b) the limited-recourse debt, determined under section 851.41.1, in respect of the gift at the time the gift is made.

2009, c. 5, s. 23.

7.23. The cost to a taxpayer of a property, acquired by the taxpayer in circumstances where section 7.22 applies to include the value of the property in computing the amount of the advantage in respect of a gift, is equal to the fair market value of the property at the time the gift is made.

7.24. If at any time in a taxation year a taxpayer has paid an amount (in this section referred to as the "repaid amount"), on account of the principal amount of an indebtedness which was, before that time, an unpaid principal amount that was a limited-recourse debt referred to in section 851.41.1 (in this section referred to as the "former limited-recourse debt"), in respect of a gift (in this section referred to as the "original gift") of the taxpayer, otherwise than by way of an assignment or transfer of a guarantee, security or similar covenant, or by way of a payment in respect of which a taxpayer referred to in section 851.41.1 has incurred an indebtedness that would be a limited-recourse debt referred to in that section if that indebtedness were in respect of a gift made at the time that that indebtedness was incurred, the taxpayer is deemed, for the purposes of sections 710 to 716.0.11 and 752.0.10.1 to 752.0.10.26 and if the former limited-recourse debt is in respect of the original gift, to have made in the taxation year a gift to a qualified donee, the eligible amount of which deemed gift is equal to the amount by which the amount that would have been the eligible amount of the original gift, if the aggregate of all such repaid amounts paid at or before that time were paid immediately before the original gift was made, exceeds the aggregate of the eligible amount of the original gift and the eligible amount of all other gifts deemed under this section to have been made before that time in respect of the original gift.

7.25. For the purposes of section 7.21, paragraph c of section 422 and sections 716, 752.0.10.12 and 752.0.10.16.2, the fair market value of a property that is the subject of a gift made by a taxpayer to a qualified donee is deemed to be equal to the lesser of the fair market value of the property otherwise determined and the cost or, in the case of a capital property, the adjusted cost base or, in the case of a life insurance policy in respect of which the taxpayer is a policyholder, the adjusted cost basis, within the meaning of sections 976 and 976.1, of the property to the taxpayer immediately before the gift is made if

(a) the taxpayer acquired the property under a gifting arrangement that is a tax shelter as defined in section 1079.1; or

(b) unless the gift is made as a consequence of the taxpayer's death,

i. the taxpayer acquired the property less than 3 years before the day that the gift is made, or

ii. the taxpayer acquired the property less than 10 years before the day that the gift is made and it is reasonable to conclude that, at the time the taxpayer acquired the property, one of the main reasons for the acquisition was to make a gift of the property to a qualified donee.

7.26. If a taxpayer acquired a property, otherwise than by reason of the death of an individual, that is the subject of a gift to which section 7.25 applies because of subparagraph i or ii of paragraph b of that section and the property was, at any time within the 3-year or 10-year period that ends when the gift is made, acquired by a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, for the purpose of applying section 7.25 to the taxpayer, the cost or, in the case of a capital property, the adjusted cost base, of the property to the taxpayer immediately before the gift is made is deemed to be equal to the lowest amount that is the cost or, in the case of a capital property, the adjusted cost base, to the taxpayer or that person or partnership immediately before the property was disposed of by that person or partnership.

7.27. Section 7.25 does not apply to a gift

(a) of a property described in an inventory;

(b) of an immovable property situated in Canada;

(c) of a cultural property described in the third paragraph of section 232, other than property acquired under a gifting arrangement, within the meaning assigned to that expression by the first paragraph of section 1079.1, that is a tax shelter;

(d) of a property to which section 231.2 applies;

(e) of a share of the capital stock of a corporation if

i. the share was issued by the corporation to the donor,

ii. immediately before the gift, the corporation was controlled by the donor, a person related to the donor or a group of persons each of whom is related to the donor, and

iii. section 7.25 would not have applied in respect of the consideration for which the share was issued had that consideration been donated by the donor to the qualified donee when the share was so donated;

(f) by a corporation of a property if

i. the property was acquired by the corporation in circumstances to which section 518 or 529 applied,

ii. immediately before the gift, the shareholder from whom the corporation acquired the property controlled the corporation or was related to a person or each member of a group of persons that controlled the corporation, and

iii. section 7.25 would not have applied in respect of the property had the property not been transferred to the corporation and had the shareholder made the gift to the qualified donee when the corporation so made the gift;

(g) of a property that was acquired in circumstances where any of sections 440, 444, 454, 459 and 460 applied, unless section 7.26 would have applied if this section were read without reference to this paragraph;

(h) of a work of art to a Québec museum;

(i) of the bare ownership of a work of art or of a cultural property described in the third paragraph of section 232;

(j) of a musical instrument to an entity referred to in the definition of "total musical instrument gifts" in the first paragraph of section 752.0.10.1; or

(k) of a work of public art, the fair market value of which is determined by the Minister of Culture and Communications, referred to in subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 716.0.1.1 or 752.0.10.15.1 or the second paragraph of section 716.0.1.2 or 752.0.10.15.2.

7.28. The eligible amount of a gift of a property by a taxpayer is equal to zero if it can reasonably be concluded that the gift relates to a transaction or series of transactions

(a) one of the purposes of which is to avoid the application of section 7.25 to the gift of a property; or

(b) that would, if this Part were read without reference to this paragraph, result in a tax benefit to which section 1079.10 applies.

7.29. Where a taxpayer disposes of a property (in this section referred to as the "substantive gift") that is a capital property, to a recipient that is a qualified donee, section 7.25 would have applied in respect of the substantive gift if it had been the subject of a gift by the taxpayer to a qualified donee, and all or a part of the proceeds of disposition of the substantive gift are (or are substituted, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, for) property that is the subject of a gift by the taxpayer to the recipient or any person not dealing at arm's length with the recipient, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purposes of section 7.21, the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift made by the taxpayer is deemed to be equal to that proportion of the lesser of the fair market value of the substantive gift and the cost or, if the substantive gift is a capital property of the taxpayer, the adjusted cost base, of the substantive gift to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition to the recipient, that the fair market value otherwise determined of the property that is the subject of the gift is of the proceeds of disposition of the substantive gift; and

(b) if the substantive gift is a capital property of the taxpayer, for the purposes of subparagraph f of the first paragraph of section 93 and section 251, the sale price of the substantive gift is to be reduced by the amount by which the fair market value of the property that is the subject of the gift, determined without reference to this chapter, exceeds the fair market value determined under paragraph a;

(c) (paragraph repealed).

7.30. Section 7.20 does not apply in respect of a gift made by a registered charity to a qualified donee.

2009, c. 5, s. 23.

7.31. Despite section 7.21, the eligible amount of a gift made by a taxpayer is equal to zero if the taxpayer does not, before a receipt referred to in section 712 or 752.0.10.3 is issued in respect of the gift, inform the qualified donee or the recipient of any circumstances in respect of which any of sections 7.21, 7.25, 7.26, 7.28 and 7.29 causes the eligible amount of the gift to be less than the fair market value, determined without reference to sections 7.25, 716 and 752.0.10.12, of the property that is the subject of the gift.

2009, c. 5, s. 23.

CHAPTER II

DEEMED RESIDENCE

1972, c. 23; 1994, c. 22, s. 53.

8. An individual is deemed to have been resident in Québec throughout a taxation year if, at any time in the year, the individual

(a) sojourned in Québec for a period of, or periods the total of which is, 183 days or more and was ordinarily resident outside Canada;

(b) was a member of the Canadian Forces and was resident in Québec immediately before leaving Canada on military service in a foreign country;

(c) was an ambassador, Member of Parliament, officer, high commissioner, minister, servant or senator of Canada, or an agent-general, officer or servant of a province, and was resident in Québec immediately prior to election, employment or appointment by Canada or the province or received representation allowances in respect of the year;

(d) performed services in a country other than Canada under a prescribed international development assistance program of the Government of Québec or Canada and was resident in Québec at any time in the six month period preceding the day on which those services commenced;

(e) (paragraph repealed);

(f) was a child of, and dependent for support on, an individual to whom any of paragraphs b, c and d applies and the child's income for the year did not exceed $12,638; or

(g) was at any time in the year, under a tax agreement with one or more other countries, entitled to an exemption from an income tax otherwise payable in any of those countries in respect of income from any source, unless all or substantially all of the individual's income from all sources was not so exempt, because at that time the individual was related to or a member of the family of a particular individual, other than a trust, who was resident in Québec.

1972, c. 23, s. 8; 1972, c. 26, s. 32; 1974, c. 18, s. 1; 1977, c. 5, s. 14; 1982, c. 38, s. 11; 1986, c. 15, s. 34; 1989, c. 5, s. 22; 1993, c. 64, s. 6; 1995, c. 49, s. 9; 1998, c. 16, s. 10; 2001, c. 53, s. 4; 2003, c. 9, s. 13; 2005, c. 1, s. 24; 2006, c. 13, s. 25; 2009, c. 5, s. 24; 2017, c. 29, s. 20; 2023, c. 19, s. 12.

8.1. In determining whether an individual is, for all or part of a taxation year, a foreign researcher within the meaning of section 737.19, a foreign researcher on a postdoctoral internship within the meaning of section 737.22.0.0.1, a foreign expert within the meaning of section 737.22.0.0.5, an eligible individual within the meaning of section 737.22.0.9, a foreign professor within the meaning of section 737.22.0.5, a foreign specialist within the meaning of any of sections 737.18.6, 737.22.0.1 and 737.22.0.4.1 or a foreign farm worker within the meaning of section 737.22.0.12 and in determining whether the requirement of the definition of "eligible production" in section 737.22.0.9 in relation to a producer's residence is satisfied, section 8 is to be read without reference to its paragraph a.

8.2. The amount referred to in paragraph f of section 8 that must be used for a taxation year subsequent to the taxation year 2023 is to be adjusted annually in such a manner that the amount used for that taxation year is equal to the total of the amount used for the preceding taxation year and the product obtained by multiplying that amount so used by the factor determined by the formula

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the average all-items Consumer Price Index for Québec excluding alcoholic beverages, tobacco products and recreational cannabis for the 12-month period that ended on 30 September of the taxation year preceding that for which an amount is to be adjusted; and

(b) B is the average all-items Consumer Price Index for Québec excluding alcoholic beverages, tobacco products and recreational cannabis for the 12-month period that ended on 30 September of the taxation year immediately before the year preceding that for which the amount is to be adjusted.

If the factor determined by the formula in the first paragraph has more than four decimal places, only the first four decimal digits are retained and the fourth is increased by one unit if the fifth is greater than 4.

If the amount that results from the adjustment provided for in the first paragraph is not a multiple of $1, it must be rounded to the nearest multiple of $1 or, if it is equidistant from two such multiples, to the higher multiple.

9. Where, at a particular time in a taxation year, a taxpayer ceases to be an individual described in paragraph b, c or d of section 8 and the taxpayer would, but for this section, be deemed to have been resident in Québec throughout the year by reason of those paragraphs, the taxpayer is deemed to have been resident in Québec throughout the part of the year preceding that time.

The same applies to the taxpayer's spouse referred to in paragraph e of section 8 and the taxpayer's child referred to in paragraph f of that section.

1972, c. 23, s. 9; 1990, c. 59, s. 7; 1998, c. 16, s. 11.

10. Reference to a person resident in Québec or Canada also includes for the purposes of this Part a person who at the relevant time was ordinarily resident in Québec or Canada.

1972, c. 23, s. 10.

11. For the purposes of this Part a corporation is deemed to have been resident in Canada throughout a taxation year if:

(a) it was incorporated in Canada after 26 April 1965;

(b) it was incorporated in Canada before 9 April 1959 and at any time in the taxation year or in any preceding taxation year beginning after 1971 it was resident in Canada or carried on business in Canada and was a corporation which

i. was on 18 June 1971 a foreign business corporation, within the meaning of the regulations, controlled by a corporation resident in Canada, and

ii. throughout the 10-year period ending on 18 June 1971 carried on business in a country other than Canada, and, during those years, paid dividends to its shareholders resident in Canada on which they paid tax to the government of the other country; and

(c) in the case of a corporation incorporated before 27 April 1965 other than a corporation to which paragraph b applies it was incorporated in Canada and at any time in the taxation year or in a preceding taxation year of the corporation ending after 26 April 1965 it was resident in Canada or carried on business in Canada.

11.1. Notwithstanding section 11, for the purposes of this Part, other than paragraph a of section 772.6.1, a corporation is deemed not to be resident in Canada at any time if it is deemed not to be resident in Canada at that time under subsection 5 of section 250 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement).

11.1.1. For the purposes of this Part, a corporation that is incorporated or otherwise formed under the laws of a country other than Canada or of a state, province or other political subdivision of such a country is deemed to be resident in that country throughout a taxation year and not to be resident in Canada at any time in the year, where

(a) the corporation

i. has international shipping as its principal business in the year, or

ii. holds eligible interests in one or more eligible entities throughout the year and at no time in the year is the total of the cost amounts to it of all those eligible interests and of all debts owing to it by an eligible entity in which an eligible interest is held by it, by a person related to it or by a partnership affiliated with it less than 50% of the total of the cost amounts to it of all its property;

(b) all or substantially all of the corporation's gross revenue for the year consists of

i. gross revenue from international shipping,

ii. gross revenue from an eligible interest held by it in an eligible entity, ii.1. interest on a debt owing by an eligible entity in which an eligible interest is held by it, by a person related to it or by a partnership affiliated with it, or

iii. a combination of amounts described in subparagraphs i to ii.1; and

(c) the corporation has not been granted articles of continuance in Canada before the end of the year.

1993, c. 16, s. 7; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2001, c. 7, s. 4; 2017, c. 1, s. 70.

11.1.1.1. For the purposes of paragraph b of section 11.1.1, any amount of profit allocated from a partnership to a member of the partnership for a taxation year is deemed to be gross revenue of the member from the member's interest in the partnership for the year.

2017, c. 1, s. 71.

11.1.1.2. Section 11.1.1.3 applies to a corporation, trust or partnership (in this section and section 11.1.1.3 referred to as the "relevant entity") for a taxation year if

(a) the relevant entity does not satisfy the condition in subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 11.1.1, determined without reference to section 11.1.1.3;

(b) all or substantially all the gross revenue of the relevant entity for the year consists of

i. gross revenue from the provision of services to one or more eligible entities, other than services described in any of paragraphs a to h of the definition of "international shipping" in section 1,

ii. gross revenue from international shipping,

iii. gross revenue from an eligible interest held by it in an eligible entity,

iv. interest on a debt owing by an eligible entity in which an eligible interest is held by it or a person related to it, or

v. a combination of amounts described in subparagraphs i to iv;

(c) either the relevant entity is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation (within the meaning of subsection 5 of section 544) of the eligible entity referred to in paragraph b or an eligible interest in each eligible entity referred to in paragraph b is held throughout the year by

i. the relevant entity,

ii. one or more persons related to the relevant entity (if the relevant entity and each such person are corporations), or persons or partnerships affiliated with the relevant entity (in any other case), or

iii. the relevant entity and one or more persons or partnerships described in subparagraph ii; and

(d) all or substantially all the shares of the capital stock of, interests as a beneficiary under, or interests as a member of, the relevant entity, as the case may be, are held, directly or indirectly through one or more subsidiary whollyowned corporations (within the meaning of subsection 5 of section 544), throughout the year by one or more corporations, trusts or partnerships that would be eligible entities if they did not own shares of, interests as a beneficiary under, or interests as a member of, the relevant entity.

11.1.1.3. If the conditions referred to in section 11.1.1.2 are satisfied, for the purposes of section 11.1.1 and paragraph b of section 489, the following presumptions apply in respect of a relevant entity for a taxation year:

(a) the relevant entity is deemed to have international shipping as its principal business in the year; and

(b) the gross revenue described in subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 11.1.1.2 is deemed to be gross revenue from international shipping.

2017, c. 1, s. 71.

11.1.1.4. For the purposes of sections 11.1.1 to 11.1.1.5,

"eligible entity", for a taxation year, means

(a) a corporation that is deemed under section 11.1.1 to be resident in a country other than Canada for the year; or

(b) a partnership or trust, if

i. it satisfies the conditions in subparagraph i or ii of paragraph a of section 11.1.1, and

ii. all or substantially all its gross revenue for the year consists of an amount described in any of subparagraphs i to iii of paragraph b of section 11.1.1;

"eligible interest" means

(a) in relation to a corporation, shares of the capital stock of the corporation that i. give the holders of those shares not less than 25% of the votes that could be cast at an annual meeting of the shareholders of the corporation, and

ii. have a fair market value that is not less than 25% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(b) in relation to a trust, an interest as a beneficiary under the trust with a fair market value that is not less than 25% of the fair market value of all the interests as a beneficiary under the trust; and

(c) in relation to a partnership, an interest as a member of the partnership with a fair market value that is not less than 25% of the fair market value of the interests of all members in the partnership.

2017, c. 1, s. 71.

11.1.1.5. For the purpose of determining, for the purposes of sections 11.1.1 to 11.1.1.4, whether a person or partnership (in this section referred to as the "holder") holds an eligible interest in an eligible entity, the holder is deemed to hold all of the shares or interests as a beneficiary or all the interests as a member, as the case may be, in the eligible entity held by

(a) if the holder is a corporation,

i. each corporation related to the holder, and

ii. each person, other than a corporation, or partnership that is affiliated with the holder; and

(b) if the holder is not a corporation, each person or partnership affiliated with the holder.

11.1.2. For the purposes of the provisions of this Act that apply to a trust for a taxation year only where the trust has been resident in Canada throughout the year, where a particular trust ceases at any time to exist and the particular trust was resident in Canada immediately before that time, the particular trust is deemed to be resident in Canada throughout the period that begins at that time and ends at the end of the year.

2003, c. 2, s. 5.

11.2. (Repealed).

11.3. Where a corporation is at any time, in this section referred to as the "time of continuation", granted articles of continuance or similar constitutional documents, the corporation is

(a) for the purpose of applying this Part, other than section 11, in respect of all times from the time of continuation in a particular jurisdiction until the time of continuation in a different jurisdiction, deemed to have been incorporated in the particular jurisdiction and not to have been incorporated in the other jurisdiction; and

(b) for the purpose of applying section 11 in respect of all times from the time of continuation in a particular jurisdiction until the time of continuation in a different jurisdiction, deemed to have been incorporated in the particular jurisdiction at the time of continuation in that jurisdiction and not to have been incorporated in the other jurisdiction.

1995, c. 49, s. 10; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

11.4. (Repealed).

1996, c. 39, s. 14; 2000, c. 5, s. 8; 2013, c. 10, s. 14.

11.5. For the purposes of this Act, unless the context indicates otherwise, the following rules apply:

(a) a taxation year of a person not resident in Canada shall be determined, except as otherwise permitted by the Minister, in the same manner as the taxation year of a person resident in Canada; and

(b) a person for whom income for a taxation year is determined in accordance with this Act includes a person not resident in Canada.

2003, c. 2, s. 6.

CHAPTER III

ESTABLISHMENT

1972, c. 26, s. 33.

12. The establishment of a taxpayer means a fixed place where the taxpayer carries on the taxpayer's business or, if there is no such place, the taxpayer's principal place of business. An establishment also includes an office, a branch, a mine, an oil or gas well, a farm, a timberland, a factory, a warehouse or a workshop.

Without restricting the generality of the first paragraph, a corporation has an establishment in each province of Canada in which an immovable owned by the corporation and used principally for the purpose of earning or producing gross revenue that is rent is situated.

1972, c. 26, s. 33; 1982, c. 56, s. 9; 1993, c. 19, s. 15; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 12.

13. Where a taxpayer carries on business through an employee, agent or mandatary, established in a particular place, who has general authority to contract for the employer or mandator or who has a stock of merchandise owned by such employer or mandator from which the employee, agent or mandatary regularly fills orders which the employee, agent or mandatary receives, the taxpayer is deemed to have an establishment in that place.

However, a taxpayer is not deemed to have an establishment for the sole reason that the taxpayer has business dealings through a commission agent, a broker or other independent agent or maintains an office or warehouse solely for the purchase of merchandise; similarly, the taxpayer is not deemed to have an establishment in a place solely because of the taxpayer's control over a subsidiary carrying on business in that place.

14. A corporation that has an establishment in Canada under this chapter and is the owner of land in a province is deemed to have with respect to such land an establishment in that province.

1972, c. 26, s. 33; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

15. A taxpayer using at a particular place substantial machinery or material at a particular time in a taxation year is deemed to have an establishment at that place.

1972, c. 26, s. 33.

16. An insurance corporation is deemed to have an establishment at each place where it is registered or holds a permit to carry on business.

1972, c. 26, s. 33; 1973, c. 17, s. 3; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

16.0.1. If, but for this section, a corporation would not have an establishment, the corporation is deemed to have an establishment at the place designated in its articles as its head office.

2011, c. 1, s. 20.

16.1. Where, in a taxation year, a corporation not resident in Canada operates a mine, produces, processes, preserves, packs or builds goods or a product in whole or in part, or produces or presents a public show, it is deemed to have an establishment at the place, in Canada, where it carries on one or the other of these activities.

16.1.1. Sections 15 and 16.1 do not apply in respect of a taxpayer's activities relating to a business of the taxpayer that consists in operating a sports team that plays one or more of its matches or games, or that takes part in one or more competitions, outside Québec, or to a sports club if, in connection with its activities, one of its members plays a match or game, or takes part in a competition, outside Québec.

16.1.2. For the purposes of the definition of "Canadian banking business" in section 1, subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 21.32, section 125.1, the second paragraph of section 171, section 217.15, the definition of "goodwill amount" in section 333.4, section 740, subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 785.2 and paragraph b.1 of section 1029.8.17, if a person is not resident in Canada but is resident in a country with which a tax agreement defining "permanent establishment" has been entered into, the establishment of the person means, despite sections 12 to 16.1, the permanent establishment of the person, within the meaning assigned by the tax agreement.

16.2. For the purposes of this chapter, the word "province" includes

(a) the Nova Scotia offshore area, within the meaning of the Canada-Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Resources Accord Implementation Act (Statutes of Canada, 1988, chapter 28);

(b) the Newfoundland and Labrador offshore area, within the meaning of the Canada-Newfoundland and Labrador Atlantic Accord Implementation Act (Statutes of Canada, 1987, chapter 3);

(c) (paragraph repealed);

(d) (paragraph repealed).

1993, c. 19, s. 16; 1995, c. 49, s. 11; I.N. 2016-12-01.

CHAPTER IV

NON-ARM'S LENGTH AND RELATED PERSONS AND GROUPS

1972, c. 23.

17. In this Part a group is related when each person forming it is related to each other person of the group.

1972, c. 23, s. 12.

18. For the purposes of this Part, the following rules apply:

(a) related persons are deemed not to deal with each other at arm's length;

(b) a taxpayer and a personal trust, other than a trust described in any of subparagraphs a to d of the third paragraph of section 647, are deemed not to deal with each other at arm's length if the taxpayer, or any person not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer, would be beneficially interested in the trust if section 7.11.1 were read without reference to subparagraphs b to d of the second paragraph; and

(c) in any other case, it is a question of fact whether persons not related to each other are at a particular time dealing with each other at arm's length.

1972, c. 23, s. 13; 2003, c. 2, s. 7; 2009, c. 5, s. 27.

19. (1) For the purposes of this Part, related persons or persons related to each other are

(a) individuals connected by blood relationship, marriage or adoption;

(b) a corporation and

i. a person who controls that corporation, ii. a person who is a member of a related group that controls the corporation, or

iii. a person related to the person contemplated by subparagraph i or ii;

(c) any two corporations

i. if they are controlled by the same person or group of persons,

ii. if each of them is controlled by a person and that person who controls one of the corporations is related to the person who controls the other corporation,

iii. if one of them is controlled by a person related to any member of a related group that controls the other,

iv. if one of the corporations is controlled by a person related to each member of an unrelated group that controls the other,

v. if any member of a related group that controls one of the corporations is related to each member of an unrelated group that controls the other, or

vi. if each member of an unrelated group that controls one of the corporations is related to at least one member of an unrelated group that controls the other.

(2) Two corporations related to the same corporation under subsection 1 are deemed, for the purposes of subsection 1 and section 18, to be related to each other.

(3) Where there has been an amalgamation or merger of two or more particular corporations and the new corporation formed as a result of the amalgamation or merger would have been related to any of the particular corporations immediately before the amalgamation or merger if the new corporation were in existence at that time, and if the persons who were the shareholders of the new corporation immediately after the amalgamation or merger were the shareholders of the new corporation at that time, the new corporation and that particular corporation shall be deemed to have been related persons.

(4) Where there has been an amalgamation or merger of two or more particular corporations each of which was related, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, to each other immediately before the amalgamation or merger, the new corporation formed as a result of the amalgamation or merger and each of the particular corporations are deemed to have been related to each other.

20. For the purposes of sections 19 and 21.19,

(a) a related group which is in a position to control a corporation is deemed to be a related group which controls it, whether or not it is part of a larger group which in fact controls the corporation;

(b) where at any time a person has a right under a contract or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,

i. to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of a corporation or to control the voting rights of such shares, the person is, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, deemed to have the same position in relation to the control of the corporation as if the person owned the shares at that time,

ii. to cause a corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel any shares of its capital stock owned by other shareholders of the corporation, the person is, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, deemed to have the same position in relation to the control of the corporation as if the shares were so redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation at that time,

iii. to, or to acquire or control, voting rights in respect of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, the person is, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because its exercise is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, deemed to have the same position in relation to the control of the corporation as if the person could exercise the voting rights at that time, or

iv. to cause the reduction of voting rights in respect of shares, owned by other shareholders, of the capital stock of a corporation, the person is, except where the right is not exercisable at that time because its exercise is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, deemed to have the same position in relation to the control of the corporation as if the voting rights were so reduced at that time; and

(c) a shareholder of two or more corporations is, as shareholder of one of the corporations, deemed to be related to himself, herself or itself as shareholder of each of the other corporations.

1972, c. 23, s. 15; 1982, c. 5, s. 3; 1986, c. 15, s. 35; 1989, c. 5, s. 24; 1990, c. 59, s. 8; 1993, c. 16, s. 8; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 14; 2000, c. 5, s. 10.

21. For the purposes of this Part, except sections 752.0.1 to 752.0.7,

(a) persons are connected by blood relationship if one is the child, other descendant, brother or sister of the other;

(b) persons are connected by marriage if one is married to the other or to a person connected with the other by blood relationship or by adoption; and

(c) persons are connected by adoption if one has been adopted, either legally or in fact, and would be connected with the other by blood relationship or by marriage if filiation by adoption were filiation by blood.

AFFILIATED PERSONS

2000, c. 5, s. 11.

21.0.1. In this chapter,

"affiliated group of persons" means a group of persons each member of which is affiliated with every other member of the group;

"beneficiary", under a trust, includes a person beneficially interested in the trust;

"contributor", to a trust, means a person who has at any time made a loan or transfer of property, either directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, to or for the benefit of the trust other than, if the person deals at arm's length with the trust at that time and is not immediately after that time a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust, a loan made at a reasonable rate of interest or a transfer made for fair market value consideration;

"controlled" means controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever;

"majority-interest beneficiary", of a trust at any time, means a person whose interest as a beneficiary, if any, at that time,

(a) in the income of the trust has, together with the interests as a beneficiary in the income of the trust of all persons with whom the person is affiliated, a fair market value that is greater than 50% of the fair market value of all the interests as a beneficiary in the income of the trust; or

(b) in the capital of the trust has, together with the interests as a beneficiary in the capital of the trust of all persons with whom the person is affiliated, a fair market value that is greater than 50% of the fair market value of all the interests as a beneficiary in the capital of the trust;

"majority-interest group of beneficiaries", of a trust at any time, means a group of persons each of whom is a beneficiary under the trust at that time such that

(a) if one person held the interests as a beneficiary under the trust of all of the members of the group, that person would be a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust; and

(b) if any member of the group were not a member, the test described in paragraph a would not be met;

"majority-interest group of partners" of a partnership means a group of persons each of whom has an interest in the partnership such that

(a) if one person held the interests of all members of the group, that person would be a majority-interest partner of the partnership; and

(b) if any member of the group were not a member, the test described in paragraph a would not be met.

21.0.2. For the purposes of this chapter, the following rules apply:

(a) persons are affiliated with themselves;

(b) a person includes a partnership;

(c) despite section 646, a trust does not include the trustee or other persons who own or control the trust property; and

(d) for the purpose of determining whether a person is affiliated with a trust,

i. if the amount of income or capital of the trust that a person may receive as a beneficiary under the trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, a discretionary power, that person is deemed to have fully exercised, or to have failed to exercise, the power, as the case may be,

ii. the interest of a person in a trust as a beneficiary is disregarded in determining whether the person deals at arm's length with the trust if the person would, in the absence of the interest as a beneficiary, be considered to deal at arm's length with the trust,

iii. a trust is not a majority-interest beneficiary of another trust unless the trust has an interest as a beneficiary in the income or capital of the other trust, and

iv. in determining whether a contributor to one trust is affiliated with a contributor to another trust, individuals connected by blood relationship, marriage or adoption are deemed to be affiliated with one another.

21.0.3. For the purposes of this Part, affiliated persons, or persons affiliated with each other, are

(a) an individual and a spouse of the individual;

(b) a corporation and

i. a person by whom the corporation is controlled,

ii. each member of an affiliated group of persons by which the corporation is controlled, or

iii. a spouse of a person described in subparagraph i or ii;

(c) two corporations, if

i. each corporation is controlled by a person, and the person by whom one corporation is controlled is affiliated with the person by whom the other corporation is controlled,

ii. one corporation is controlled by a person, the other corporation is controlled by a group of persons, and each member of that group is affiliated with that person, or

iii. each corporation is controlled by a group of persons, and each member of each group is affiliated with at least one member of the other group;

(d) a corporation and a partnership, if the corporation is controlled by a particular group of persons each member of which is affiliated with at least one member of a majority-interest group of partners of the partnership, and each member of that majority-interest group is affiliated with at least one member of the particular group of persons;

(e) a partnership and a majority-interest partner of the partnership;

(f) two partnerships, if

i. the same person is a majority-interest partner of both partnerships,

ii. a majority-interest partner of one partnership is affiliated with each member of a majority-interest group of partners of the other partnership, or

iii. each member of a majority-interest group of partners of each partnership is affiliated with at least one member of a majority-interest group of partners of the other partnership;

(g) a person and a trust, if the person

i. is a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust, or

ii. would, but for this paragraph, be affiliated with a majority-interest beneficiary of the trust; and

(h) two trusts, if a contributor to one of the trusts is affiliated with a contributor to the other trust and

i. a majority-interest beneficiary of one of the trusts is affiliated with a majority-interest beneficiary of the other trust,

ii. a majority-interest beneficiary of one of the trusts is affiliated with each member of a majority-interest group of beneficiaries of the other trust, or

iii. each member of a majority-interest group of beneficiaries of each of the trusts is affiliated with at least one member of a majority-interest group of beneficiaries of the other trust.

21.0.4. Where at any time two or more particular corporations amalgamate or merge to form a new corporation, the new corporation and the particular corporations are deemed to have been persons affiliated with each other where they would have been affiliated with each other immediately before that time if the new corporation had existed immediately before that time and the shareholders of the new corporation immediately after that time had been the shareholders of the new corporation immediately before that time.

CHAPTER IV.2

LOSS RESTRICTION EVENT

2017, c. 1, s. 72.

21.0.5. In this chapter,

"beneficiary" has the meaning assigned by section 21.0.1;

"equity" has the meaning that would be assigned by the first paragraph of section 1129.70 if the definition of that expression were read without reference to its paragraph e;

"equity value" has the meaning assigned by the first paragraph of section 1129.70;

"fixed interest", at a particular time of a person in a trust, means an interest of the person as a beneficiary (determined without reference to section 7.11.1) under the trust provided that no part of the income or capital of the trust to be distributed at any time in respect of any interest in the trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, a power to appoint, other than a power to appoint in respect of which it is reasonable to conclude that

(a) the power is consistent with normal commercial practice;

(b) the power is consistent with terms that would be acceptable to beneficiaries under the trust that would be dealing with each other at arm's length; and

(c) the exercise of, or failure to exercise, the power will not materially affect the value of an interest as a beneficiary under the trust relative to the value of other such interests as a beneficiary under the trust;

"investment fund", at a particular time, means a trust, if

(a) at all times throughout the period that begins at the later of 21 March 2013 and the end of the calendar year in which it is created and that ends at the particular time, the trust has a class of units outstanding that would comply with the conditions prescribed for the purposes of section 1120 if section 1120R1 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) were read without its paragraph b; and

(b) at all times throughout the period that begins at the later of 21 March 2013 and the date on which it was created and that ends at the particular time, the trust

i. is resident in Canada,

ii. has no beneficiaries who have, for any reason, the right to receive directly from the trust an amount from the income or capital of the trust, other than beneficiaries whose interests as beneficiaries under the trust are fixed interests described by reference to units of the trust,

iii. follows a reasonable policy of investment diversification,

iv. limits its undertaking to the investing of its funds in property,

v. does not alone, or as a member of a group of persons, control a corporation, and

vi. does not hold

(1) property that the trust, or a person with which the trust does not deal at arm's length, uses in carrying on a business,

(2) immovable property or a real right in an immovable property,

(3) Canadian resource property, foreign resource property or a right in such property, or

(4) more than 20% of the securities of any class of securities of a person (other than an investment fund or a mutual fund corporation that would meet the conditions of this paragraph, other than that of subparagraph ii, if it were a trust), unless at the particular time the securities (other than liabilities) of the person held by the trust have a total fair market value that does not exceed 10% of the equity value of the person and, at that time, the liabilities of the person held by the trust have a total fair market value that does not exceed 10% of the value of all of the liabilities of the person;

"majority-interest beneficiary" has the meaning that would be assigned by section 21.0.1 if the definition of that expression in that section were read without reference to ", if any,";

"majority-interest group of beneficiaries" has the meaning assigned by section 21.0.1;

"majority-interest group of partners" has the meaning assigned by section 21.0.1;

"person" includes a partnership;

"specified right", held at a particular time by a person in respect of a trust, means a right under a contract or otherwise, to acquire, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, equity of the trust, or to cause the trust to redeem or cancel equity of the trust, unless the right is not exercisable at that time because its exercise is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual;

"subsidiary", of a particular person at a particular time, means a corporation, partnership or trust (in this definition referred to as the "subject entity") where

(a) the particular person holds at that time property

i. that is equity of the subject entity, or

ii. that derives all or part of its fair market value, directly or indirectly, from equity of the subject entity; and

(b) the total of the following amounts is at that time equal to more than 50% of the equity value of the subject entity:

i. each amount that is the fair market value at that time of equity of the subject entity that is held at that time by the particular person or a person with whom the particular person is affiliated, and

ii. each amount (other than an amount described in subparagraph i) that is the portion of the fair market value at that time—derived directly or indirectly from equity of the subject entity—of a property that is held at that time by the particular person or a person with whom the particular person is affiliated.

21.0.6. For the purposes of this Part, a taxpayer is at a particular time subject to a loss restriction event if

(a) the taxpayer is a corporation and at that time control of the corporation is acquired by a person or group of persons; or

(b) the taxpayer is a trust and

i. that time is after 20 March 2013 and after the time at which the trust is created, and

ii. at that time a person becomes a majority-interest beneficiary, or a group of persons becomes a majority-interest group of beneficiaries, of the trust.

2017, c. 1, s. 72.

21.0.7. For the purposes of paragraph b of section 21.0.6, a person is deemed not to become a majority-interest beneficiary, and a group of persons is deemed not to become a majority-interest group of beneficiaries, of a particular trust solely because of

(a) the acquisition of equity of the particular trust by

i. a person from another person with whom the person was affiliated immediately before the acquisition,

ii. a person who was affiliated with the particular trust immediately before the acquisition,

iii. a succession from an individual, if the succession arose on and as a consequence of the death of the individual and the succession acquired the equity from the individual as a consequence of the death, or

iv. a particular person from a succession that arose on and as a consequence of the death of an individual, if the succession acquired the equity from the individual as a consequence of the death and the individual was affiliated with the particular person immediately before the death;

(b) a variation in the terms of the particular trust, the satisfaction of, or failure to satisfy, a condition under the terms of the particular trust, the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, a power, or, without restricting the generality of this paragraph, the redemption, surrender or termination of equity of the particular trust at a particular time, if each majority-interest beneficiary, and each member of a majority-interest group of beneficiaries, of the particular trust immediately after the particular time was affiliated with the particular trust immediately before

i. the particular time, or

ii. in the case of the redemption or surrender of equity of the particular trust that was held, immediately before the particular time, by a succession and that was acquired by the succession from an individual as described in subparagraph iii of paragraph a, the individual's death;

(c) the transfer at a particular time of all the equity of the particular trust to a corporation, partnership or another trust (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquirer"), if

i. the only consideration for the transfer is equity, determined without reference to paragraph d of the definition of "equity" in the first paragraph of section 1129.70, of the acquirer,

ii. at all times before the particular time the acquirer held no property or held only property having a nominal value, and

iii. immediately after the particular time the acquirer is neither

(1) a subsidiary of any person, nor

(2) a corporation controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person or group of persons;

(d) the transfer at a particular time of equity of the particular trust to a corporation, partnership or another trust (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquirer"), if

i. immediately before the particular time a person was a majority-interest beneficiary, or a group of persons was a majority-interest group of beneficiaries, of the particular trust,

ii. immediately after the particular time the person, or group of persons, as the case may be, described in subparagraph i in respect of the particular trust, and no other person or group of persons, is

(1) if the acquirer is a corporation, a person by whom, or a group of persons by which, the corporation is controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever,

(2) if the acquirer is a partnership, a majority-interest partner, or a majority-interest group of partners, of the partnership, and

(3) if the acquirer is a trust, a majority-interest beneficiary, or a majority-interest group of beneficiaries, of the trust, and

iii. at no time during a series of transactions or events that includes the transfer does the person or group of persons, as the case may be, described in subparagraph i in respect of the particular trust, cease to be a person or group of persons described in any of subparagraphs 1 to 3 of subparagraph ii in respect of the acquirer;

(e) a transaction the parties to which are obligated to complete under the terms of an agreement in writing between the parties entered into before 21 March 2013, provided that none of the parties to the agreement may be excused from completing the transaction as a result of changes to the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)); or

(f) the acquisition or disposition of equity of the particular trust at a particular time if

i. the particular trust is an investment fund immediately before that time, and

ii. the acquisition or disposition is not part of a series of transactions or events that includes the particular trust ceasing to be an investment fund.

21.0.8. For the purposes of paragraph b of section 21.0.6 and subject to section 21.0.7, a person is deemed to become at a particular time a majority-interest beneficiary of a particular trust if

(a) a particular person is at and immediately before the particular time a majority-interest beneficiary, or a member of a majority-interest group of beneficiaries, of the particular trust, and the particular person is at the particular time, but is not immediately before the particular time, a subsidiary of another person (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquirer"), unless

i. the acquirer is immediately before the particular time affiliated with the particular trust, or

ii. this paragraph previously applied to deem that a person became a majority-interest beneficiary of the particular trust because the particular person became, as part of a series of transactions or events that includes the particular person becoming at the particular time a subsidiary of the acquirer, a subsidiary of another person that is at the particular time a subsidiary of the acquirer; or

(b) at the particular time, as part of a series of transactions or events, two or more persons acquire equity of the particular trust in exchange for or upon a redemption or surrender of equity of, or as a consequence of a distribution from, a corporation, partnership or another trust, unless

i. a person affiliated with the corporation, partnership or other trust was immediately before the particular time a majority-interest beneficiary of the particular trust,

ii. if all the equity of the particular trust that was acquired at or before the particular time as part of the series of transactions or events were acquired by one person, the person would not at the particular time be a majority-interest beneficiary of the particular trust, or

iii. this paragraph previously applied to deem a person to become a majority-interest beneficiary of the particular trust because of an acquisition of equity of the particular trust that was part of the series of transactions or events.

2017, c. 1, s. 72.

21.0.9. For the purposes of this chapter, the following rules apply:

(a) in determining whether persons are affiliated with each other

i. except for the purposes of paragraph b of the definition of "subsidiary" in section 21.0.5, section 21.0.3 applies without reference to the definition of "controlled" in section 21.0.1,

ii. individuals connected by blood relationship, marriage or adoption are deemed to be affiliated with one another, and

iii. if, at any time as part of a series of transactions or events a person acquires equity of a corporation, partnership or trust, and it can reasonably be concluded that one of the reasons for the acquisition, or for making any agreement or undertaking in respect of the acquisition, is to cause a condition in paragraph a or b of section 21.0.7 or subparagraph i of paragraph a or b of section 21.0.8 regarding affiliation to be satisfied at a particular time, the condition is deemed not to be satisfied at the particular time;

(b) in determining whether a particular person becomes at a particular time a majority-interest beneficiary, or a particular group of persons becomes at a particular time a majority-interest group of beneficiaries, of a trust, the fair market value of each person's equity of the trust is to be determined at and immediately before the particular time

i. without reference to the portion of that fair market value that is attributable to property acquired if it can reasonably be concluded that one of the reasons for the acquisition is to cause paragraph b of section 21.0.6, or any provision that applies by reference to a trust being subject to a loss restriction event at any time, not to apply,

ii. without reference to the portion of that fair market value that is attributable to a change in the fair market value of all or part of any equity of the trust if it can reasonably be concluded that one of the reasons for the change is to cause paragraph b of section 21.0.6, or any provision that applies by reference to a trust being subject to a loss restriction event at any time, not to apply, and

iii. as if each specified right held immediately before the particular time by the particular person, or by a member of the particular group of persons, in respect of the trust is at that time exercised if it can reasonably be concluded that one of the reasons for the acquisition of the right is to cause paragraph b of section 21.0.6, or any provision that applies by reference to a trust being subject to a loss restriction event at any time, not to apply; and

(c) if, at any time as part of a series of transactions or events a person acquires a security (within the meaning assigned by the first paragraph of section 1129.70) and it can reasonably be concluded that one of the reasons for the acquisition, or for making any agreement or undertaking in respect of the acquisition, is to cause a condition in subparagraph v of paragraph b of the definition of "investment fund" in section 21.0.5 or in subparagraph 4 of subparagraph vi of that paragraph b to be satisfied at a particular time in respect of a trust, the condition is deemed not to be satisfied at the particular time in respect of the trust.

21.0.10. For the purposes of this Part, if a trust is subject to a loss restriction event at a particular time during a day, the trust is deemed to be subject to the loss restriction event at the beginning of that day and not at the particular time unless the trust makes a valid election under subsection 6 of section 251.2 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) in that respect.

Chapter V.2 applies in relation to an election made under subsection 6 of section 251.2 of the Income Tax Act.

21.0.11. Where a trust is subject to a loss restriction event at a particular time, the following rules apply in respect of the trust for its taxation year that ends immediately before that time:

(a) paragraph d of subsection 2 of section 1000 is to be read as if "within 90 days after the end of" were replaced by "on or before the trust's balance-due day for", and the second paragraph of section 1086R57 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) is to be read as if "within 90 days following the end of" were replaced by "on or before the trust's balance-due day for";

(b) the first paragraph of section 1086R77 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act is to be read as if "within 90 days after the end of" were replaced by "on or before the reporting person's balance-due day for";

(c) the first paragraph of section 1120.0.1 is to be read as if "before the 91st day after the end of" were replaced by "that occurs on or before the trust's balance-due day for".

2017, c. 29, s. 26.

CHAPTER V

CONTROL OF A CORPORATION

21.1. Sections 21.2 to 21.3.1 apply in respect of the control of a corporation for the purposes of paragraph a of section 21.0.6, sections 21.2 to 21.3.3, 308.0.1 to 308.6, 384, 418.26 to 418.30, 564.4, 564.4.1, 711.2, 736.0.4 and 737.18.9.2, subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 771.8.5, subparagraphs d to f of the first paragraph of section 771.13, paragraph f of section 772.13, sections 776.1.12 and 776.1.13, subparagraph iv of paragraph b of the definition of "specified corporation" in the first paragraph of section 1029.8.36.0.17, subparagraph b of the first paragraph of sections 1029.8.36.0.21.2, 1029.8.36.0.22.1 and 1029.8.36.0.25.2 and sections 1029.8.36.166.49, 1029.8.36.166.50, 1029.8.36.166.60.54, 1029.8.36.166.60.55, 1029.8.36.171.3 and 1029.8.36.171.4.

Subject to section 21.3.7, sections 21.3.2 and 21.3.3 apply in respect of the control of a corporation for the purposes of section 737.18.9.2, subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 771.8.5, subparagraphs d to f of the first paragraph of section 771.13, subparagraph iv of paragraph b of the definition of "specified corporation" in the first paragraph of section 1029.8.36.0.17 and subparagraph b of the first paragraph of sections 1029.8.36.0.21.2, 1029.8.36.0.22.1 and 1029.8.36.0.25.2.

Sections 21.4 and 21.4.0.1 to 21.4.0.3 apply in respect of the control of a corporation for the purposes of this Part.

Section 21.4.1 applies in respect of the control of a corporation for the purposes of sections 6.2 and 21.0.1 to 21.0.4, paragraph b of the definition of "investment fund" in section 21.0.5, paragraph a of section 21.0.6, paragraphs c and d of section 21.0.7, the fifth paragraph of section 21.3.1, sections 83.0.3, 93.4, 222 to 230.0.0.2, 308.1, 384, 384.4, 384.5, 418.26 to 418.30 and 485 to 485.18, paragraph d of section 485.42, subparagraph d of the third paragraph of section 559, sections 560.1.2, 564.4, 564.4.1, 727 to 737 and 737.18.9.2, subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 771.8.5, subparagraphs d to f of the first paragraph of section 771.13, paragraph f of section 772.13, sections 776.1.12 and 776.1.13, subparagraph iv of paragraph b of the definition of "specified corporation" in the first paragraph of section 1029.8.36.0.17, subparagraph b of the first paragraph of sections 1029.8.36.0.21.2, 1029.8.36.0.22.1 and 1029.8.36.0.25.2 and sections 1029.8.36.166.49, 1029.8.36.166.50, 1029.8.36.166.60.54, 1029.8.36.166.60.55, 1029.8.36.171.3 and 1029.8.36.171.4.

1978, c. 26, s. 3; 1980, c. 13, s. 2; 1982, c. 5, s. 4; 1984, c. 15, s. 5; 1989, c. 77, s. 5; 1993, c. 16, s. 9; 1993, c. 19, s. 17; 1996, c. 39, s. 16; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 12; 2001, c. 7, s. 5; 2003, c. 2, s. 8; 2004, c. 21, s. 40; 2005, c. 23, s. 31; 2005, c. 38, s. 50; 2006, c. 13, s. 26; 2007, c. 12, s. 21; 2009, c. 5, s. 28; 2009, c. 15, s. 29; 2017, c. 1, s. 73; 2017, c. 29, s. 27; 2021, c. 14, s. 17; 2021, c. 18, s. 13.

21.2. Where two or more corporations, each of which is referred to in this section as a "predecessor corporation", have amalgamated to form one corporate entity, in this section referred to as the "new corporation", the following rules apply:

(a) control of a corporation is deemed not to have been acquired by any person or group of persons solely because of the amalgamation unless it is deemed under paragraph b or c to have been so acquired;

(b) a person or group of persons that controls the new corporation immediately after the amalgamation and did not control a predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation is deemed to have acquired immediately before the amalgamation control of the predecessor corporation and of each corporation it controlled immediately before the amalgamation, unless the person or group of persons would not have acquired control of the predecessor corporation if the person or group of persons had acquired all the shares of the predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation; and

(c) control of a predecessor corporation and of each corporation it controlled immediately before the amalgamation is deemed to have been acquired immediately before the amalgamation by a person or group of persons

i. unless the predecessor corporation was related, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, immediately before the amalgamation to each other predecessor corporation,

ii. unless, if one person had immediately after the amalgamation acquired all the shares of the new corporation's capital stock that the shareholders of the predecessor corporation, or of another predecessor corporation that controlled the predecessor corporation, acquired on the amalgamation in consideration for their shares of the predecessor corporation or of the other predecessor corporation, as the case may be, the person would have acquired control of the new corporation as a result of the acquisition of those shares, or

iii. unless this paragraph would, but for this subparagraph, deem control of each predecessor corporation to have been acquired on the amalgamation where the amalgamation is an amalgamation of

(1) two corporations, or

(2) two particular corporations and one or more other corporations that would, if all the shares of each other corporation's capital stock that were held immediately before the amalgamation by the particular corporations had been held by one person, have been controlled by that person.

1978, c. 26, s. 3; 1982, c. 5, s. 5; 1984, c. 15, s. 5; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 13.

21.2.1. Subject to section 21.3, where two or more persons, in this section referred to as the "transferors", dispose of shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation in exchange for shares of the capital stock of another corporation, in this section referred to as the "acquiring corporation", control of the acquiring corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before the exchange is deemed to have been acquired at the time of the exchange by a person or group of persons unless

(a) the particular corporation and the acquiring corporation were related, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, to each other immediately before the exchange; or

(b) if all the shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock that were acquired by the transferors on the exchange were acquired at the time of the exchange by one person, the person would not control the acquiring corporation.

21.2.2. Subject to section 21.3, if, at any particular time, as part of a series of transactions or events, two or more persons acquire shares of a corporation (in this section referred to as the "acquiring corporation") in exchange for or upon a redemption or surrender of interests in, or as a consequence of a distribution from, a SIFT trust or a SIFT partnership, on the assumption that the definitions of "SIFT trust" and "SIFT partnership" in the first paragraph of section 1129.70 applied from 31 October 2006, or a real estate investment trust within the meaning of that first paragraph, control of the acquiring corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before the particular time is deemed to have been acquired by a person or group of persons at the particular time, except in the following cases:

(a) in relation to each of those corporations, a person (in this paragraph referred to as a "relevant person") who would be affiliated with the SIFT trust, SIFT partnership or real estate investment trust, but for the definition of "controlled" in section 21.0.1, owns shares of the corporation having a total fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the corporation at all times during the period that ends immediately before the particular time and begins at the time of the last acquisition of control of the corporation by a relevant person or, if later, on the later of

i. 14 July 2008, and

ii. the day the corporation was constituted;

(b) if all the securities, within the meaning of the first paragraph of section 1129.70, of the acquiring corporation that were acquired as part of the series of transactions or events at or before the particular time were acquired by one person, the person would not at the particular time control the acquiring corporation and would have at the particular time acquired securities of the acquiring corporation having a fair market value of not more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the acquiring corporation; and

(c) this section previously applied to deem an acquisition of control of the acquiring corporation upon an acquisition of shares that was part of the same series of transactions or events.

21.2.2.1. Subject to section 21.3, where, at a particular time, as part of a series of transactions or events, two or more persons acquire shares of a corporation (in this section referred to as the "acquiring corporation") in exchange for or upon a redemption or surrender of interests in, or as a consequence of a distribution from, a partnership or trust, control of the acquiring corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before the particular time is deemed to have been acquired by a person or group of persons at the particular time, except in the following cases:

(a) in relation to each of those corporations, a person affiliated with the partnership or trust owns immediately before the particular time shares of the corporation having a total fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the corporation immediately before the particular time;

(b) if all the securities, within the meaning of the first paragraph of section 1129.70, of the acquiring corporation that were acquired as part of the series of transactions or events at or before the particular time were acquired by one person, the person would not at the particular time control the acquiring corporation and would have at the particular time acquired securities of the acquiring corporation having a fair market value of not more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the acquiring corporation; and

(c) section 21.2.2 applies, or section 21.2.2 or this section previously applied, to deem an acquisition of control of the acquiring corporation upon an acquisition of shares that was part of the same series of transactions or events.

2021, c. 14, s. 18.

21.2.3. Where at a particular time after 12 September 2013 a trust is subject to a loss restriction event and immediately before that time the trust, or a group of persons of which the trust is a member, controls a corporation, control of the corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before that time is deemed to have been acquired at that time by a person or group of persons.

2017, c. 1, s. 74.

21.3. Control of a particular corporation is deemed not to have been acquired solely because of

(a) the acquisition at any time of shares of the capital stock of any corporation by

i. a person who acquired the shares from another person to whom the person was related, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, immediately before that time,

ii. a person who was related to the particular corporation, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, immediately before that time,

iii. a succession that acquired the shares because of the death of a person,

iv. a particular person who acquired the shares from a succession that arose on and as a consequence of the death of an individual, if the succession acquired the shares from the individual as a consequence of the death and the individual was related to the particular person immediately before the death, or

v. a corporation on a distribution, within the meaning assigned by the first paragraph of section 308.0.1, by a specified corporation, within the meaning assigned by that paragraph, if a dividend, to which section 308.1 does not apply because of section 308.3, is received in the course of the reorganization in which the distribution occurs;

(b) the cancellation or redemption at any particular time of, or a change at any particular time in the terms or conditions of, shares of the particular corporation or of a corporation controlling the particular corporation, where each person and each member of each group of persons that controls the particular corporation immediately after the particular time was related, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, to the particular corporation

i. immediately before the particular time, or

ii. immediately before the death of a person, where the shares were held immediately before the particular time by a succession that acquired the shares because of the person's death; or

(c) the acquisition at any time of shares of the particular corporation if

i. the acquisition would otherwise result in the acquisition of control of the particular corporation at that time by a related group, and

ii. each member of each group of persons that controls the particular corporation at that time was related, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, to the particular corporation immediately before that time.

1978, c. 26, s. 3; 1979, c. 18, s. 3; 1982, c. 5, s. 5; 1993, c. 16, s. 10; 1994, c. 22, s. 55; 1995, c. 49, s. 12; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 15; 2009, c. 5, s. 29; 2017, c. 1, s. 75.

21.3.1. If at a particular time shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation are disposed of to another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") for consideration that includes shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock, control of the particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before that time is deemed not to have been acquired by the acquiring corporation solely because of the disposition if, immediately after the particular time, the acquiring corporation and the particular corporation are controlled by a person or group of persons who controlled the particular corporation immediately before the particular time, and did not, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the disposition, cease to control the acquiring corporation.

Control of a particular corporation and of each corporation controlled by it immediately before a particular time is deemed not to have been acquired at the particular time by a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation"), if at the particular time, the acquiring corporation acquires shares of the particular corporation's capital stock for consideration that consists solely of shares of the acquiring corporation's capital stock, and if

(a) immediately after the particular time,

i. the acquiring corporation owns all the shares of each class of the particular corporation's capital stock, without reference to shares of a specified class of the capital stock of the particular corporation, within the meaning of section 560.1.2.1,

ii. the acquiring corporation is not controlled by a person or group of persons, and

iii. the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation's capital stock that are owned by the acquiring corporation is not less than 95% of the fair market value of all the assets of the acquiring corporation; or

(b) any of subparagraphs i to iii of subparagraph a do not apply and the acquisition occurs as part of a plan of arrangement that, on completion, results in

i. the acquiring corporation, or a new corporation that is formed on an amalgamation of the acquiring corporation and a wholly-controlled subsidiary of the acquiring corporation, owning all the shares of each class of the particular corporation's capital stock, without reference to shares of a specified class of the capital stock of the particular corporation, within the meaning of section 560.1.2.1,

ii. the acquiring corporation, or the new corporation, not being controlled by a person or group of persons, and

iii. the fair market value of the shares of the particular corporation's capital stock that are owned by the acquiring corporation, or the new corporation, being not less than 95% of the fair market value of all the assets of the acquiring corporation or the new corporation.

A particular trust that would, in the absence of this paragraph, acquire control of a corporation solely because of a SIFT trust wind-up event that is a distribution of shares of the capital stock of the corporation by another trust is deemed not to acquire control of the corporation because of the distribution if

(a) the particular trust is described in paragraph c of the definition of "SIFT trust wind-up event" in section 1;

(b) the particular trust is the only beneficiary of the other trust; and

(c) the other trust controlled the corporation immediately before the distribution.

Where a corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "acquiring corporation") acquires shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation on a distribution that is a SIFT trust wind-up event of a trust that is a SIFT wind-up entity, the acquiring corporation is deemed not to acquire control of the particular corporation because of that acquisition if the following conditions are met:

(a) the acquiring corporation is the only beneficiary under the trust immediately before the distribution;

(b) the trust controlled the particular corporation immediately before the distribution;

(c) as part of a series of transactions or events under which the acquiring corporation became the only beneficiary under the trust, two or more persons acquired shares of the acquiring corporation in exchange for their interests as beneficiaries under the trust; and

(d) if all the shares described in subparagraph c had been acquired by one person, the person would control the acquiring corporation and would have acquired shares of the acquiring corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the acquiring corporation.

Where at a particular time after 12 September 2013 a trust controls a corporation, control of the corporation is deemed not to have been acquired solely because of a change in the trustee or legal representative having ownership or control of the trust's property if

(a) the change is not part of a series of transactions or events that includes a change in the beneficial ownership of the trust's property; and

(b) no amount of income or capital of the trust to be distributed, at any time at or after the change, in respect of any interest in the trust depends upon the exercise by any person or partnership, or the failure of any person or partnership to exercise, any discretionary power.

21.3.2. A person or group of persons is deemed not to have acquired control of a corporation at any time after 11 June 2003 if a significant shareholder, or a significant group of shareholders, of the corporation owns, at that time, shares of the capital stock of the corporation that give the shareholder or group 50% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at the annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation.

21.3.3. A person or group of persons deemed not to have acquired control of a corporation at any time after 11 June 2003 because of the application of section 21.3.2, is deemed to have acquired control of that corporation at a later time when, for the first time, no significant shareholder, or significant group of shareholders, of the corporation owns shares of the capital stock of the corporation that give the shareholder or group 50% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at the annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation.

21.3.4. For the purposes of sections 21.3.2 to 21.3.6,

(a) a person who owned, immediately before 12 June 2003, 25% or more in vote and value of the shares of the capital stock of a corporation is a significant shareholder of the corporation at any time after 11 June 2003;

(b) a group of persons in respect of which the following conditions are satisfied is a significant group of shareholders of a corporation at any given time after 11 June 2003:

i. immediately before 12 June 2003, the group owned 25% or more in vote and value of the shares of the capital stock of the corporation, and

ii. at the given time, each member of the group owned 10% or more in vote and value of the shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(c) two or more persons each of whom owns shares of the capital stock of a corporation is a group of persons in respect of that corporation; and

(d) the percentage, in vote and value, of the shares of the capital stock of a corporation owned by a person or group of persons at any given time corresponds to the lesser of

i. the proportion, expressed as a percentage, that, at that time, the number of votes that could be cast under all circumstances at the annual meeting of shareholders of the corporation given by the shares of the capital stock of the corporation owned by the person or group of persons is of the number of votes of that kind given by all the issued shares of that capital stock, and

ii. the proportion, expressed as a percentage, that, at that time, the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the corporation owned by the person or group of persons is of the fair market value of all the issued shares of that capital stock.

21.3.5. For the purpose of determining, in accordance with section 21.3.4, whether a person or group of persons is a significant shareholder, or a significant group of shareholders, as the case may be, of a particular corporation,

(a) subject to the second paragraph, the rules set out in paragraphs d to f of section 21.20.2 apply in respect of the ownership of the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation;

(b) another corporation, a partnership or a trust is deemed not to own, or not to be deemed to own because of the application of subparagraph a, a share of the capital stock of the particular corporation that is deemed to be owned, because of the application of that subparagraph, by

i. a shareholder of the other corporation,

ii. a member of the partnership, or

iii. a beneficiary under the trust or, if it is a trust referred to in section 467, the person referred to in that section;

(c) a person is deemed to have owned, immediately before 12 June 2003, a share the person acquired after 11 June 2003 from another person with whom the person was not dealing at arm's length, if that other person owned the share immediately before 12 June 2003;

(d) if, between 11 June 2003 and 1 July 2004, the particular corporation was the subject of an acquisition of control that was the result of a transaction to which any of the provisions referred to in the second paragraph of section 21.1 refers, the transaction is deemed to have been completed on 11 June 2003 for the purpose of applying sections 21.3.2 and 21.3.3 in respect of a subsequent acquisition of control of the particular corporation for the purposes of that provision;

(e) a person is deemed to have exercised, on 11 June 2003, one or more rights referred to in paragraph b of section 20 that the person exercised after that date but had acquired before 12 June 2003; and

(f) a person is deemed to have performed, on 11 June 2003, one or more obligations described in the third paragraph that the person performed after that date but had contracted before 12 June 2003.

Despite subparagraph 1 of subparagraph i of paragraph f of section 21.20.2 and subparagraphs ii and iv of that paragraph f, the number of shares of the capital stock of a corporation that the members of a group who are beneficiaries under a trust or the members of a group who are persons referred to in section 467 in respect of a trust referred to in that section are deemed to own because of the application of subparagraph a of the first paragraph to each of them, may not be greater than the number of shares of that capital stock that are owned, or deemed to be owned because of the application of that subparagraph a, by the trust.

An obligation to which subparagraph f of the first paragraph refers is an obligation whose performance puts the person who contracted it in the same position in relation to the control of a corporation as that in which the person would be if the person had acquired and exercised any of the rights referred to in paragraph b of section 20.

21.3.6. In determining, for the purposes of sections 21.3.2 and 21.3.3, the number of shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation owned by a significant shareholder, or a significant group of shareholders, of the particular corporation, subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 21.3.5 applies, but with reference to the following rules:

(a) despite paragraph d of section 21.20.2,

i. a shareholder of another corporation is deemed to own all the shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation that are owned, or deemed to be owned because of the application of this section, by the other corporation, if the shares of the capital stock of the other corporation owned by the shareholder give the shareholder 50% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at the annual meeting of shareholders of the other corporation, and

ii. the presumption in subparagraph i applies to a particular group consisting of members of a significant group of shareholders of the particular corporation who are shareholders of another corporation, if the shares of the capital stock of the other corporation owned by the particular group give the particular group 50% or more of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at the annual meeting of shareholders of the other corporation;

(b) a person who is a shareholder of more than one corporation, in this paragraph referred to as the "intermediary corporations", may not be deemed to own a number of shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation that are owned, or deemed to be owned because of the application of this section, by another corporation of which the intermediary corporations are shareholders that is greater than the number of those shares that the person would be deemed to own if this section applied to each intermediary corporation without reference to the rule set out in subparagraph i of paragraph a; and

(c) if a significant group of shareholders of the particular corporation includes persons each of whom is deemed to own, because of the application of this section, shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation that are owned by another corporation, the total number of those shares that those persons are deemed to own may not be greater than the number of shares of that capital stock that the other corporation owns.

21.3.7. When sections 21.3.2 and 21.3.3 apply in respect of the control of a corporation for the purposes of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 771.13 and subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 1029.8.36.0.22.1,

(a) sections 21.3.2 to 21.3.5 are to be read as if "11 June 2003" was replaced wherever it appears by "30 March 2004"; and

(b) section 21.3.4 and the first paragraph of section 21.3.5 are to be read as if "12 June 2003" was replaced wherever it appears by "31 March 2004".

21.4. Where, but for this section, a particular corporation would be regarded as being controlled, or controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person or partnership at a particular time and it is established that the conditions set forth in the second paragraph are fulfilled, the particular corporation is deemed not to be controlled by that person or partnership at that particular time.

The conditions referred to in the first paragraph are:

(a) there is in effect at the particular time an enforceable agreement or arrangement under which, upon the happening of an event or the satisfaction of a condition that it is reasonable to expect will happen or be satisfied, the particular corporation will cease to be controlled, or controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, as the case may be, by the person or partnership, and will be or become controlled, or controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, as the case may be, by a person or group of persons with whom or with each of the members of which, as the case may be, the person or partnership is at the particular time dealing at arm's length;

(b) the purpose of the control referred to in the first paragraph is, at the particular time, the safeguarding of the rights or interests of the person or partnership in respect of any indebtedness owing to the person or partnership the whole or any part of the principal amount of which is outstanding at the particular time, or of any shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation that are owned by the person or partnership at the particular time and that are, under the enforceable agreement or arrangement referred to in subparagraph a, to be redeemed by the particular corporation or purchased by the person or group of persons referred to in subparagraph a.

21.4.0.1. A corporation that would be controlled by another corporation if that other corporation were not controlled by any person or group of persons, is controlled by the other corporation and by any person or group of persons by whom the other corporation is controlled.

2003, c. 2, s. 9.

21.4.0.2. A corporation that would be controlled by a group of persons, in this section referred to as the "first-tier group", if no corporation that is a member of the first-tier group were controlled by any person or group of persons, is controlled by

(a) the first-tier group; and

(b) any group of one or more persons comprised of, in respect of every member of the first-tier group, either the member, or a person or group of persons by whom the member is controlled.

2003, c. 2, s. 9.

21.4.0.3. For their application within the framework of the circumstances described in section 21.25, sections 21.4.0.1 and 21.4.0.2 shall be read as if the references to "controlled" were references to "controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever,".

21.4.1. A taxpayer who, at a particular time, acquires a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20 in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation is deemed to be in the same position in relation to the control of the corporation as if the right were immediate and absolute and as if the taxpayer had exercised the right at the particular time, where it can reasonably be concluded that one of the main purposes of the acquisition of the right is

(a) to avoid any limitation on the deductibility of any net capital loss, non-capital loss or farm loss or any amount referred to in section 384 or sections 418.26 to 418.30;

(b) to avoid the application of Chapter IV.1, any of sections 21.0.6, 83.0.3, 93.4, 225, 308.1, 384.4, 384.5, 560.1.2, 736, 736.0.2, 736.0.3.1 and 737.18.9.2, subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 771.8.5, any of subparagraphs d to f of the first paragraph of section 771.13, section 776.1.12 or 776.1.13, subparagraph iv of paragraph b of the definition of "specified corporation" in the first paragraph of section 1029.8.36.0.17, subparagraph b of the first paragraph of any of sections 1029.8.36.0.21.2, 1029.8.36.0.22.1 and 1029.8.36.0.25.2 or any of sections 1029.8.36.166.49, 1029.8.36.166.50, 1029.8.36.166.60.54, 1029.8.36.166.60.55, 1029.8.36.171.3, 1029.8.36.171.4 and 1137.8; or

(c) to affect the application of sections 485 to 485.18.

1982, c. 5, s. 6; 1984, c. 15, s. 6; 1985, c. 25, s. 19; 1989, c. 77, s. 6; 1996, c. 39, s. 17; 2000, c. 5, s. 18; 2004, c. 21, s. 41; 2005, c. 23, s. 32; 2007, c. 12, s. 23; 2009, c. 15, s. 30; 2017, c. 1, s. 77; 2019, c. 14, s. 59; 2021, c. 14, s. 19; 2021, c. 18, s. 14.

21.4.1.1. For the purposes of sections 21.2 to 21.3.1 and 21.4.1, the following rules apply:

(a) a corporation incorporated without share capital is deemed to have a capital stock of a single class of shares;

(b) each member, policyholder and other participant in the corporation is deemed to be a shareholder of the corporation; and

(c) the membership, policy or other interest in the corporation of each of those participants is deemed to be the number of shares of the corporation's capital stock that the Minister considers reasonable in the circumstances, having regard to the total number of participants in the corporation and the nature of their participation.

21.4.2. For the purposes of this Part, other than for the purpose of determining if a corporation is, at any time, a small business corporation or a Canadian-controlled private corporation, if control of a corporation is acquired by a person or group of persons at a particular time on a day, control of the corporation is deemed to have been acquired by the person or group of persons at the commencement of that day and not at the particular time unless the corporation makes a valid election under subsection 9 of section 256 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in relation to the acquisition of control.

Chapter V.2 applies in relation to an election made under subsection 9 of section 256 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

1989, c. 77, s. 7; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2009, c. 5, s. 31; 2010, c. 5, s. 10.

CHAPTER V.0.1

ATTRIBUTE TRADING

2017, c. 1, s. 78.

21.4.2.1. In this chapter,

"attribute trading restriction" means any restriction on the use of a tax attribute arising on the application, either alone or in combination with other provisions, of any of this chapter, sections 6.2, 21.1 to 21.3.1, 83.0.3, 93.4, 222 to 230.0.0.6, 384.4 and 384.5, the first paragraph of section 418.26, sections 418.30, 427.4, 564.4, 564.4.1 and 727 to 737, paragraph f of section 772.13 and sections 1029.8.36.166.49, 1029.8.36.166.50, 1029.8.36.166.60.54, 1029.8.36.166.60.55, 1029.8.36.171.3 and 1029.8.36.171.4;

"person" includes a partnership;

"specified provision" means any of sections 83.0.3 and 93.4, paragraph d of section 225, section 384.4 or 384.5, the first paragraph of section 418.26, any of sections 418.30, 427.4, 736, 736.0.1, 736.0.1.1, 736.0.2 and 736.0.3.1, paragraph f of section 772.13, any of sections 1029.8.36.166.49, 1029.8.36.166.50, 1029.8.36.166.60.54, 1029.8.36.166.60.55, 1029.8.36.171.3 and 1029.8.36.171.4 and any other provision of similar effect.

21.4.2.2. The rules provided for in section 21.4.2.3 apply at a particular time in respect of a corporation in connection with attribute trading restrictions if

(a) shares of the capital stock of the corporation held by a person, or the total of all shares of the capital stock of the corporation held by members of a group of persons, as the case may be, have at the particular time a fair market value that exceeds 75% of the fair market value of all the shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(b) shares of the capital stock of the corporation held by the person, or the total of all shares of the capital stock of the corporation held by members of the group of persons, have immediately before the particular time a fair market value that does not exceed 75% of the fair market value of all the shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(c) the person or group of persons does not control the corporation at the particular time; and

(d) it is reasonable to conclude that one of the main reasons that the person or group of persons does not control the corporation is to avoid the application of one or more specified provisions.

2017, c. 1, s. 78.

21.4.2.3. The rules to which section 21.4.2.2 refers at a particular time in respect of a corporation are as follows:

(a) the person or group of persons referred to in section 21.4.2.2

i. is deemed to acquire control of the corporation, and each corporation controlled by the corporation, at the particular time, and

ii. is not deemed to have control of the corporation, and each corporation controlled by the corporation, at any time after the particular time solely because this paragraph applied at the particular time; and

(b) during the period that the condition in paragraph a of section 21.4.2.2 is satisfied, each corporation referred to in paragraph a—and any corporation incorporated subsequent to the particular time and controlled by that corporation—is deemed not to be related to, or affiliated with, any person to which it was related to, or affiliated with, immediately before paragraph a applies.

2017, c. 1, s. 78.

21.4.2.4. For the purpose of applying paragraph a of section 21.4.2.2 in respect of a person or group of persons, the following rules apply:

(a) if it is reasonable to conclude that one of the reasons that one or more transactions or events occur is to cause a person or group of persons not to hold shares having a fair market value that exceeds 75% of the fair market value of all the shares of the capital stock of a corporation, no account is to be taken of those transactions or events; and

(b) the person, or each member of the group of persons, is deemed to have exercised each right that is held by the person or a member of the group and that is referred to in paragraph b of section 20 in respect of a share of the corporation referred to in paragraph a of section 21.4.2.2.

21.4.2.5. For the purposes of sections 21.4.2.2 to 21.4.2.4, if the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of a corporation is nil at a particular time, then for the purpose of determining the fair market value of those shares, the corporation is deemed, at that time, to have assets net of liabilities equal to $100,000 and to have $100,000 of income for the taxation year that includes that time.

21.4.2.6. If, at a particular time as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events, control of a particular corporation is acquired by a person or group of persons and it can reasonably be concluded that one of the main reasons for the acquisition of control is so that a specified provision does not apply to one or more corporations, the attribute trading restrictions are deemed to apply to each of those corporations as if control of each of those corporations were acquired at that time.

2017, c. 1, s. 78.

CHAPTER V.I

DIVIDEND DEEMED TO BE INTEREST

1990, c. 59, s. 10.

21.4.3. Where a dividend is received on a share in a taxation year and after 18 June 1987 from a corporation not resident in Canada, other than a corporation in which the recipient of the dividend had or would have, if the corporation were a taxable Canadian corporation, a substantial interest within the meaning of section 191 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), such dividend is deemed, for the purposes of paragraphs c and l of section 87 and sections 746 to 749 and section 772.2 to 772.13, to have been received in the year as interest and not as a dividend on a share of the capital stock of the payer corporation, if the dividend is a dividend in respect of which no deduction could have been made under section 738, 740 or 845 by reason of sections 740.2 to 740.3.1 or section 740.5 if the corporation that paid the dividend were a taxable Canadian corporation.

21.4.3.1. Section 21.4.3 does not apply in respect of a dividend to the extent that the dividend would be described in subparagraph ii of paragraph j of section 257 if the corporation not resident in Canada were not a foreign affiliate of the recipient of the dividend.

2019, c. 14, s. 60.

CHAPTER V.2

MAKING CERTAIN ELECTIONS

2009, c. 5, s. 32.

21.4.4. This chapter applies when a provision of this Act (in this chapter referred to as the "particular provision") refers to this chapter in relation to an election made under the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) or under this Act.

A person, legal representative or partnership that makes such an election is referred to as the "elector" in this chapter.

21.4.5. If an election, which should have been made on or before 19 December 2006 or which was made before 20 December 2006, is made or amended as a consequence of the application of subsection 5 or 5.1 of section 93 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)) or of subsection 3.2 of section 220 of that Act, the date on which the election was made, which is to be taken into account for the purposes of sections 21.4.6, 21.4.9 and 21.4.10 and of the particular provision, is, despite the presumption provided for in that respect in that subsection 5 or 5.1 or in paragraph a of subsection 3.3 of that section 220, the date on which the election is actually made or amended.

If, in relation to any subject (in this paragraph referred to as the "subject of an election made for federal purposes"), an election is rescinded after 19 December 2006 in circumstances where section 7.19.1 applies and a particular valid election has been made before 20 December 2006 under the particular provision in relation to the subject of an election made for federal purposes, the particular valid election is deemed never to have been made.

21.4.6. If, after 19 December 2006, an elector makes a valid election under the provision of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) to which the particular provision refers, the elector or, if the elector is a partnership, any member of the partnership shall, on or before the date provided for in the second paragraph, notify the Minister in writing of the election and attach to the notice a copy of every document sent to the Minister of National Revenue in connection with the election.

The date to which the first paragraph refers is the date of the 30th day following that on which the election is made or, if it is later, the filing-due date of the person in respect of whom the election is made or, where the election is made in respect of a partnership, of the member of the partnership for the taxation year for which the election has to be sent to the Minister of National Revenue.

This section does not apply if the person in respect of whom the election is made or, where the election is made in respect of a partnership, each of its members was not subject to tax under this Part for the taxation year for which the election had to be sent to the Minister of National Revenue.

21.4.6.1. If, after 19 December 2006, an elector makes a valid election under the provision of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) to which the particular provision refers, other than an election described in the second paragraph, the person in respect of whom the election is made or, where the election is made in respect of a partnership, each of its members was not subject to tax under this Part for the taxation year for which the election had to be sent to the Minister of National Revenue and, for the purposes of the Income Tax Act, the election is in force for a subsequent taxation year (in this section referred to as the "tax liability year") for which the person in respect of whom the election is made or, where the election is made in respect of a partnership, any of its members becomes subject to tax under this Part, the elector or any member of the partnership shall, on or before the date provided for in the third paragraph, notify the Minister in writing of the election and attach to the notice a copy of every document sent to the Minister of National Revenue in connection with the election.

An election to which the first paragraph refers is an election that is made for the purpose of computing, for a taxation year, the income or taxable income of a taxpayer for the purposes of the Income Tax Act and that relates to a deduction in that computation or to the determination of the cost, capital cost or cost amount of a property of the taxpayer, to which section 31 or 694 applies for the purpose of determining, for the tax liability year or a subsequent taxation year, the taxpayer's income or taxable income for the purposes of this Part.

The date to which the first paragraph refers is the filing-due date, for the tax liability year, of the person in respect of whom the election is made or, where the election is made in respect of a partnership, of the member of the partnership who first becomes subject to tax under this Part for the tax liability year.

21.4.7. In the event of non-compliance with a requirement of section 21.4.6 or 21.4.6.1, the elector incurs a penalty of $25 a day for every day the omission continues, up to $2,500.

21.4.8. If, in relation to any subject (in this section referred to as the "subject of an election made for federal purposes") and as a consequence of the application of subsection 3.2 of section 220 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), the period within which an elector may make the election under section 21.4.6 has been extended or an election made by the elector under the provision of that Act to which the particular provision refers is amended or rescinded after 19 December 2006, the following rules apply:

(a) the elector shall notify the Minister in writing and attach to the notice a copy of every document sent to the Minister of National Revenue for that purpose;

(b) the elector incurs a penalty equal to $100 for each complete month included in the period beginning on the day on or before which the election or the amended or rescinded election was required to have been made and ending on the day on which the notice referred to in paragraph a is sent to the Minister, up to $5,000; and

(c) if a particular valid election has been made before 20 December 2006 under the particular provision in relation to the subject of an election made for federal purposes,

i. in the case of the election made or amended,

(1) the particular provision is to apply in respect of the subject of an election made for federal purposes, as the particular provision reads on 20 December 2006 and not as it read before that date, and

(2) the particular valid election is deemed never to have been made, and

ii. in the case of the rescinded election, the particular valid election is deemed never to have been made.

21.4.9. Subject to sections 21.4.5, 21.4.8 and 21.4.11, if, in relation to any subject (in this section referred to as the "subject of an election made for Québec purposes"), an elector made a particular valid election under the particular provision before 20 December 2006, the particular provision must apply in respect of the subject of an election made for Québec purposes, as the particular provision read before that date, unless, after 19 December 2006, the elector makes, in relation to the subject of an election made for Québec purposes, a valid election under the provision of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) to which the particular provision refers, in which case the following rules apply:

(a) the particular provision must apply in respect of the subject of an election made for Québec purposes, as the particular provision reads on 20 December 2006 and not as it read before that date; and

(b) the particular valid election is deemed never to have been made.

2009, c. 5, s. 32.

21.4.10. If, before 20 December 2006 and in relation to any subject (in this section referred to as the "subject of an election made for federal purposes"), an elector made a particular valid election under the provision of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) to which the particular provision refers and did not rescind it after 19 December 2006 as a consequence of the application of subsection 3.2 of section 220 of that Act, and the elector has not made a valid election under the particular provision, the following rules apply:

(a) if the applicable period within which to make the election under the particular provision in relation to the subject of an election made for federal purposes, as the particular provision read before 20 December 2006, would have ended after 19 December 2006, the particular provision must, if the elector so decides on or before the time at which the period should have ended, apply in respect of the subject of an election made for federal purposes as if the particular valid election had been made on 20 December 2006, and, for that purpose, section 603 applies, with the necessary modifications, in respect of that decision if the particular provision was referred to in section 603, as that section read on 19 December 2006;

(b) if subsection 3.2 of section 220 of the Income Tax Act applies, in relation to the subject of an election made for federal purposes, to the provision of that Act to which the particular provision refers and if section 21.4.8 does not apply,

i. the Minister may allow that the particular provision apply in respect of the subject of an election made for federal purposes as if the particular valid election had been made on 20 December 2006, if

(1) the applicable period within which to make the election under the particular provision in relation to the subject of an election made for federal purposes, as the particular provision read before 20 December 2006, would have ended on or before a particular day of any of the elector's taxation years or fiscal periods, as the case may be, and

(2) the elector files an application with the Minister in that respect on or before the day that is 10 calendar years after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, and, for that purpose, section 603 applies, with the necessary modifications, in respect of that application if the particular provision was referred to in section 603, as that section read on 19 December 2006, and

ii. if the Minister grants the application filed under subparagraph i, the elector incurs a penalty equal to $100 for each complete month included in the period beginning on the day on or before which the particular valid election was required to have been made and ending on the day on which the application is filed with the Minister, up to $5,000; and

(c) if the particular provision is any of sections 85.5, 194, 215, 250.1, 312.3, 462.16, 688.1.1, 853 and 985.3 and, before 20 December 2006, in the case of sections 85.5, 194 and 215, the elector has not made a valid election under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which section 85.6, 195 or 216, as the case may be, refers in relation to the particular valid election, or, in the case of section 985.3, the Minister of National Revenue has not revoked the particular valid election, the elector may, with the consent of the Minister and on the conditions determined by the Minister, apply the particular provision, for or from a particular taxation year or particular day or from a particular date, as the case may be, as if the particular valid election was a valid election made after 19 December 2006 in that respect, for or from the particular taxation year or particular day or from the particular date, as the case may be, under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which the particular provision refers.

21.4.11. If an elector made a particular valid election under the particular provision before 20 December 2006 in relation to any subject (in this section referred to as the "subject of an election made for Québec purposes"), the following rules apply:

(a) if subsection 3.2 of section 220 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) applies, in relation to the subject of an election made for Québec purposes, to the provision of that Act (in this subparagraph referred to as the "corresponding provision") to which the particular provision refers, if section 21.4.8 does not apply and if the elector made, in relation to the subject of an election made for Québec purposes, a valid election under the corresponding provision before 20 December 2006 that has not been rescinded before that date as a consequence of the application of that subsection 3.2, or the elector did not make such an election or made such an election that was thus rescinded before that date,

i. the Minister may allow that the particular provision, as it reads on 20 December 2006 and not as it read before that date, apply in respect of the subject of an election made for Québec purposes as if the election made for the purposes of the Income Tax Act that was not rescinded had been made on 20 December 2006, or that the particular valid election be revoked in any other case, if

(1) the period within which, in relation to the subject of an election made for Québec purposes, the election under the particular provision was to be made, as the particular provision read before 20 December 2006, would have ended on or before a particular day of any of the elector's taxation years or fiscal periods, as the case may be, and

(2) the elector files an application with the Minister in that respect on or before the day that is 10 calendar years after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, and, for that purpose, section 603 applies, with the necessary modifications, in respect of that application if the particular provision was referred to in section 603, as that section read on 19 December 2006, and

ii. if the Minister grants the application filed under subparagraph i,

(1) the elector incurs a penalty equal to $100 for each complete month included in the period beginning on the day on or before which the election under the corresponding provision in relation to the subject of an election made for Québec purposes was required to have been made and ending on the day on which the application is filed, up to $5,000, and

(2) the particular valid election is deemed never to have been made;

(b) if the particular provision is any of sections 85.5, 194, 215 and 985.3 and the conditions set out in the second paragraph are met before 20 December 2006, the elector may, with the consent of the Minister and on the conditions determined by the Minister, apply the particular provision, for a particular taxation year or from a particular date, as if the valid election referred to in subparagraph b of the second paragraph was a valid election made after 19 December 2006 in that respect, for the particular taxation year or from the particular date, under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which the particular provision refers;

(c) if the particular provision is any of sections 85.5, 194, 215, 284 and 985.3 and the conditions set out in the third paragraph are met before 20 December 2006,

i. in the case of sections 85.5, 194, 215 and 284, the elector may, with the consent of the Minister and on the conditions determined by the Minister, apply section 85.6, 195 or 216 or the second paragraph of section 284, as the case may be, for a particular taxation year, as if the valid election referred to in subparagraph c of the third paragraph was a valid election made in that respect after 19 December 2006, for the particular taxation year, under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which section 85.6, 195 or 216 or the second paragraph of section 284, as the case may be, refers, and

ii. in the case of section 985.3, the Minister may revoke the particular valid election from the particular date referred to in subparagraph c of the third paragraph; and

(d) if the particular provision is any of sections 85.5, 194, 215, 284 and 985.3 and the conditions set out in the fourth paragraph are met before 20 December 2006,

i. in the case of sections 85.5, 194, 215 and 284, the elector may, with the consent of the Minister and on the conditions determined by the Minister, apply section 85.6, 195 or 216 or the second paragraph of section 284, as the case may be, for a particular taxation year, as if a valid election had been made in that respect after 19 December 2006, for the particular taxation year, under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which section 85.6, 195 or 216 or the second paragraph of section 284, as the case may be, refers, and

ii. in the case of section 985.3, the Minister may revoke the particular valid election from the date the Minister determines.

The conditions to which subparagraph b of the first paragraph refers are as follows:

(a) in the case of sections 85.5, 194 and 215, the elector has made a valid election under section 85.6, 195 or 216, as the case may be, in relation to the particular valid election, or, in the case of section 985.3, the Minister has revoked the particular valid election;

(b) the elector has made a valid election, in relation to the subject of an election made for Québec purposes, under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which the particular provision refers; and

(c) in the case of sections 85.5, 194 and 215, the elector has not made a valid election under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which section 85.6, 195 or 216, as the case may be, refers in relation to the valid election referred to in subparagraph b, or, in the case of section 985.3, the Minister of National Revenue has not revoked the valid election referred to in subparagraph b.

The conditions to which subparagraph c of the first paragraph refers are as follows:

(a) in the case of sections 85.5, 194, 215 and 284, the elector has not made a valid election under section 85.6, 195 or 216 or the second paragraph of section 284, as the case may be, in relation to the particular valid election, or, in the case of section 985.3, the Minister has not revoked the particular valid election;

(b) the elector has made a valid election, in relation to the subject of an election made for Québec purposes, under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which section 85.5, 194 or 215 or the first paragraph of section 284, as the case may be, refers; and

(c) in the case of sections 85.5, 194, 215 and 284, the elector has made a valid election under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which section 85.6, 195 or 216 or the second paragraph of section 284, as the case may be, refers in relation to the valid election referred to in subparagraph b, or, in the case of section 985.3, the Minister of National Revenue has revoked the valid election referred to in subparagraph b from a particular date.

(a) in the case of sections 85.5, 194, 215 and 284, the elector has not made a valid election under section 85.6, 195 or 216 or the second paragraph of section 284, as the case may be, in relation to the particular valid election, or, in the case of section 985.3, the Minister has not revoked the particular valid election; and

(b) the elector has not made a valid election, in relation to the subject of an election made for Québec purposes, under the provision of the Income Tax Act to which section 85.5, 194 or 215 or the first paragraph of section 284, as the case may be, refers.

2009, c. 5, s. 32.

21.4.12. The Minister may determine any penalty payable by a partnership under this chapter and send the partnership a notice of assessment in that respect.

2009, c. 5, s. 32.

21.4.13. The total amount of the penalties incurred by the elector under this chapter in relation to a particular election may not exceed the greatest penalty that would otherwise have been incurred in respect of that election under any of the provisions of this chapter.

2009, c. 5, s. 32.

21.4.14. Under this Part and despite sections 1010 to 1011, the Minister shall make such assessments of tax, interest and penalties as are necessary for any taxation year to take into account any election, any amended, rescinded or revoked election or any election deemed never to have been made, and any application of the particular provision, referred to in any of sections 21.4.5, 21.4.8 and 21.4.9, in paragraph b of section 21.4.10 or in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 21.4.11.

21.4.15. If any given provision of this Act refers to this chapter in relation to an operation that consists in the rescinding or revocation of an election, or in an agreement or arrangement, an application, an attribution, a designation, a determination, a distribution or a specification relating to a property, an amount or anything else, this chapter is to be interpreted as if the operation consisted in an election made under the given provision or under the provision of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) to which the given provision refers.

2009, c. 5, s. 32.

CHAPTER V.3

USE OF THE CANADIAN CURRENCY OR OF A FUNCTIONAL CURRENCY

2010, c. 5, s. 11.

21.4.16. In this chapter,

"Canadian currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year that precedes the first functional currency year of the taxpayer;

"elected functional currency" of a taxpayer means the currency of a country other than Canada that is the elected functional currency of the taxpayer, within the meaning of subsection 1 of section 261 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), for the purposes of that section;

"functional currency year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year in respect of which the rules set out in section 21.4.19 apply to the taxpayer;

"pre-reversion debt" of a taxpayer means a debt obligation of the taxpayer that was issued by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's first reversionary year;

"pre-transition debt" of a taxpayer means a debt obligation of the taxpayer that was issued by the taxpayer before the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year;

"Québec tax results" of a taxpayer for a taxation year means

(a) the amount of the income, taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada of the taxpayer for the taxation year, or any other amount used as a basis for computing an amount that the taxpayer is required to pay for the taxation year under this Act, other than under Part III.7 or III.7.0.1 (except for the purposes of section 21.4.17);

(b) the amount (other than an amount payable on behalf of another person under section 1015 or, except for the purposes of section 21.4.17, other than an amount payable under Part III.7 or III.7.0.1) of tax or any other amount payable under this Act by the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year;

(c) the amount (other than an amount refundable on behalf of another person in respect of amounts payable on behalf of that person under section 1015) of tax or any other amount refundable under this Act to the taxpayer in respect of the taxation year; and

(d) any amount (including an amount provided for in Chapter V of the Act respecting international financial centres (chapter C-8.3)) that is relevant in computing the amounts described in respect of the taxpayer in paragraphs a to c;

"relevant spot rate" for a particular day means, in respect of a conversion of an amount from a particular currency to another currency,

(a) if the particular currency or the other currency is Canadian currency, the rate quoted by the Bank of Canada on the particular day (or, if the Bank of Canada ordinarily quotes such a rate, but there is no such rate quoted for the particular day, the closest preceding day for which such a rate is quoted) for the exchange of the particular currency for the other currency, or, for the purposes of paragraph b of section 21.4.17 and paragraph c of section 21.4.19, any other rate of exchange that is acceptable to the Minister; and

(b) if neither the particular currency nor the other currency is Canadian currency, the rate—calculated by reference to the rates quoted by the Bank of Canada on the particular day (or, if the Bank of Canada ordinarily quotes such rates, but either of such rates is not quoted for the particular day, the closest preceding day for which both such rates are quoted)—for the exchange of the particular currency for the other currency, or, for the purposes of paragraph b of section 21.4.17 and paragraph c of section 21.4.19, any other rate of exchange that is acceptable to the Minister;

"reversionary year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year that begins after the last functional currency year of the taxpayer;

"tax reporting currency" of a taxpayer for a taxation year, and at any time in the taxation year, means the currency in which the taxpayer's Québec tax results for the taxation year are to be computed.

2010, c. 5, s. 11; 2017, c. 1, s. 79; 2021, c. 14, s. 21.

21.4.17. The following rules apply in computing the Québec tax results of a taxpayer for a taxation year:

(a) subject to this chapter, other than this section, Canadian currency is to be used; and

(b) subject to this chapter, other than this section, sections 167.1.1 and 484.6, subparagraph l of the first paragraph of section 485.3 and paragraph b of section 851.22.39, if a particular amount that is relevant in computing those Québec tax results is expressed in a currency other than Canadian currency, the particular amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the particular amount arose.

21.4.18. The rules set out in section 21.4.19 apply to a taxpayer in respect of a particular taxation year if, because of subsection 3 of section 261 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), subsection 5 of section 261 of that Act applies to the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year for the purposes of that Act.

Chapter V.2 applies in relation to an election made under paragraph b of subsection 3 of section 261 of the Income Tax Act and, if applicable, in relation to the revocation of that election made under subsection 4 of section 261 of that Act.

21.4.19. The rules to which the first paragraph of section 21.4.18 refers and that apply to a taxpayer in respect of a particular taxation year are the following:

(a) the taxpayer's elected functional currency is to be used for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's Québec tax results for the particular taxation year;

(b) unless the context otherwise requires, each reference in this Act or the regulations made under it to an amount (other than in respect of a penalty or fine) that is described as a particular number of Canadian dollars is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, to be read as a reference to that amount expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the first day of the particular taxation year;

(c) subject to paragraph b of section 21.4.24, sections 21.4.30, 167.1.1 and 484.6, subparagraph l of the first paragraph of section 485.3 and paragraph b of section 851.22.39, if a particular amount that is relevant in computing the taxpayer's Québec tax results for the particular taxation year is expressed in a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency, the particular amount is to be converted to an amount expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on which the particular amount arose;

(d) the definition of "exchange rate" in section 736.0.0.2 is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with the necessary modifications, to be read as follows:

""exchange rate" at a particular time in respect of a particular currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency means the relevant spot rate, for the day that includes that time, in respect of the conversion of an amount from the particular currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency, or a rate of exchange acceptable to the Minister;";

(e) section 262 is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with the necessary modifications, to be read as if "one or more foreign currencies relative to Canadian currency" in the portion before paragraph a were replaced by "one or more currencies (other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency) relative to the taxpayer's elected functional currency" and as if "Canadian currency" in paragraphs a and b were replaced by "the taxpayer's elected functional currency";

(f) a reference to "Canadian currency" wherever it appears in the following provisions is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with the necessary modifications, to be read as a reference to the "taxpayer's elected functional currency":

i. paragraph c.1 of section 21.26,

ii. paragraph a.1 of section 21.27,

iii. sections 167.1.1, 474, 483.2, 483.3 and 484.6,

iv. subparagraph l of the first paragraph of section 485.3,

v. section 485.28,

v.1. sections 591 to 591.3,

vi. paragraph f of the definition of "tax basis" in section 851.22.7,

vii. paragraph g of section 851.22.8, viii. the portion of subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 851.22.39 before subparagraph 1,

ix. subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 851.22.39,

x. subparagraph ii of paragraph b of section 851.22.39, and

xi. subparagraph iv of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 1079.1R3 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1);

(g) the definition "foreign currency" in section 1 is, in respect of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year, and with the necessary modifications, to be read as follows:

""foreign currency" in respect of a taxpayer, at any time in a taxation year, means a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency;";

(h) this chapter applies, with the necessary modifications, for the purposes of Book II of Part VI in respect of the taxpayer in relation to a particular month, if the particular month is included in the particular taxation year; and

(i) this chapter applies, with the necessary modifications, for the purposes of Part VI.4 in respect of the taxpayer in relation to a particular calendar year, if the last fiscal period of the taxpayer, for the purposes of Part VI.4, that ends in the preceding calendar year is a fiscal period that ends in the particular taxation year or the end of which coincides with the end of that particular taxation year.

21.4.20. For the purpose of computing the Québec tax results of a particular taxpayer for each taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the particular taxpayer, this chapter is to be applied as if each partnership of which the particular taxpayer is a member in the taxation year were a taxpayer that

(a) had as its first functional currency year its first fiscal period that i. is a fiscal period during which the particular taxpayer is a member of the partnership,

ii. begins after 13 December 2007, and

iii. begins on or after the first day of the particular taxpayer's first functional currency year;

(b) had as its last Canadian currency year its last fiscal period that ends before its first functional currency year;

(c) had as its first reversionary year its first fiscal period that begins after the particular taxpayer's last functional currency year;

(d) is a taxpayer to which section 21.4.19 applies in respect of each of its fiscal periods that is, or begins after, its first functional currency year and that ends before its first reversionary year;

(e) had as its elected functional currency in respect of each fiscal period described in paragraph d the elected functional currency of the particular taxpayer; and

(f) had as its last functional currency year its last fiscal period that ends before its first reversionary year.

21.4.21. For the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income for a particular taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the taxpayer, foreign accrual property income of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, in respect of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year, is to be determined in accordance with the regulations made under section 579 after taking into account the application of subsection

6.1 of section 261 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) in respect of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year.

2010, c. 5, s. 11.

21.4.22. For the purpose of applying this Act to a taxpayer for a functional currency year of the taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "particular taxation year"), the following amounts are to be converted from Canadian currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

(a) each amount that

i. is, or is relevant in computing, an amount that may be deducted or is deemed to have been paid to the Minister for the particular taxation year under any of sections 222 to 225, 371, 710, 727 to 737, 772.12, 776.1.9, 1029.8.36.166.46, 1029.8.36.166.60.51, 1029.8.36.171.1 and 1135.2, and

ii. was determined for a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(b) the cost to the taxpayer of a property that was acquired by the taxpayer in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(c) any amount that was required by section 255 or 257 to be added or deducted in computing, at any time in a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of a capital property that was acquired by the taxpayer in such a year;

(d) any amount that

i. is in respect of the taxpayer's undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of a prescribed class, the taxpayer's cumulative Canadian exploration expenses within the meaning of section 398, the taxpayer's cumulative Canadian development expenses within the meaning of section 411, the taxpayer's cumulative foreign resource expense, in relation to a country other than Canada, within the meaning of section 418.1.3, or the taxpayer's cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense within the meaning of section 418.5 (each of which is in this paragraph referred to as a "pool amount"), and

ii. was added to or deducted in computing a pool amount of the taxpayer in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer;

(e) any amount that has been deducted or claimed as a reserve in computing the income of the taxpayer for the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year;

(f) any outlay or expense referred to in section 175.1 or 230.0.0.6 that was made or incurred by the taxpayer in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, and any amount that was deducted in respect of the outlay or expense in computing the income of the taxpayer for such a year; and

(g) any other amount (other than an amount referred to in any of sections 21.4.20, 21.4.21 and 21.4.23) determined under the provisions of this Act for or in respect of a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer that is relevant in computing the Québec tax results of the taxpayer for the particular taxation year.

21.4.23. In computing, in a functional currency year of a taxpayer, the amount for which a pre-transition debt of the taxpayer (other than a pre-transition debt denominated in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) was issued and its principal amount at the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year, those amounts are to be converted from the pre-transition debt currency to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year.

21.4.24. A pre-transition debt of a taxpayer that is denominated in a currency other than the taxpayer's elected functional currency is deemed to have been issued immediately before the taxpayer's first functional currency year for the purpose of

(a) computing the amount of the taxpayer's income, gain or loss, for a functional currency year of the taxpayer (other than an amount that section 21.4.25 deems to arise), that is attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency; and

(b) applying subparagraph l of the first paragraph of section 485.3 in respect of a functional currency year of the taxpayer.

21.4.25. If a taxpayer has, in a taxation year that is a functional currency year or a reversionary year of the taxpayer, made a particular payment on account of the principal amount of a pre-transition debt of the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) if the taxpayer would have made a gain—or, if the pre-transition debt was not on account of capital, would have had income—(in the second paragraph referred to as the "hypothetical gain or income") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-transition debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the currency in which the pre-transition debt is denominated, which currency is in this section referred to as the "debt currency") at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to make a gain or to have income, as the case may be, for the taxation year equal to the amount determined by the formula

A × B / C; and

(b) if the taxpayer would have sustained a loss—or, if the pre-transition debt was not on account of capital, would have had a loss—(in this subparagraph referred to as the "hypothetical loss") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-transition debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the debt currency) at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to sustain or to have a loss in respect of the particular payment for the taxation year equal to the amount that would be determined by the formula in subparagraph a if the reference to "hypothetical gain or income" in subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the second paragraph were read as a reference to "hypothetical loss".

In the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) A is

i. if the taxation year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer, the amount of the hypothetical gain or income converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year, and

ii. if the taxation year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer, the amount determined under subparagraph i converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year;

(b) B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the debt currency); and

(c) C is the principal amount of the pre-transition debt at the beginning of the taxpayer's first functional currency year (expressed in the debt currency).

21.4.25.1. For the purpose of determining a taxpayer's gain under section 21.4.25, if at a particular time a pre-transition debt of the taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "debtor") that is denominated in a currency other than Canadian currency becomes a parked obligation (within the meaning assigned by section 262.0.0.2), the debtor is deemed to have made, at that time, a particular payment on account of the principal amount of the debt equal to

(a) if the debt has become a parked obligation at that particular time as a result of its acquisition by the holder of the debt, the portion of the amount paid by the holder to acquire the debt that can reasonably be considered to relate to the principal amount of the debt at the particular time; and

(b) in any other case, the portion of the fair market value of the debt that can reasonably be considered to relate to the principal amount of the debt at the particular time.

21.4.26. Despite sections 21.4.19 and 21.4.22, for the purposes of this Act and the Tax Administration Act (chapter A-6.002) in respect of a functional currency year (in this section referred to as the "particular taxation year") of a taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purpose of computing the payments that the taxpayer is required to make in relation to the particular taxation year under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 1027, or any of sections 1145, 1159.7, 1175 and 1175.19 if they refer to that subparagraph a:

i. each estimated amount described in subparagraph i of that subparagraph a, or in subparagraph 1 of subparagraph iii of that subparagraph a, that is payable by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year is to be determined by converting that amount, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on or before which the amount is required to be paid,

ii. the taxpayer's first basic provisional account referred to in subparagraph i of that subparagraph a for the particular taxation year is to be determined, if the particular taxation year is the taxpayer's first functional currency year, without reference to this chapter and, in any other case, as if the tax payable by the taxpayer for the taxpayer's functional currency year (in this paragraph referred to as the "first base year") preceding the particular taxation year were equal to the total of

(1) the aggregate of the payments that the taxpayer is required to make under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 1027, or any of sections 1145, 1159.7, 1175 and 1175.19 if they refer to that subparagraph a, as the case may be, determined in accordance with this subparagraph ii or with subparagraph i or iii, as the case may be, in respect of the first base year, and

iii. the taxpayer's second basic provisional account described in subparagraph ii of that subparagraph a for the particular taxation year is to be determined, if the particular taxation year is the taxpayer's first functional currency year or the taxpayer's taxation year that follows the taxpayer's first functional currency year, without reference to this chapter and, in any other case, as if the tax payable by the taxpayer for the taxpayer's functional currency year (in this subparagraph referred to as the "second base year") preceding the first base year were equal to the total of

(1) the aggregate of the payments that the taxpayer is required to make under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 1027, or any of sections 1145, 1159.7, 1175 and 1175.19 if they refer to that subparagraph a, as the case may be, determined in accordance with this subparagraph iii or with subparagraph i or ii, as the case may be, in respect of the second base year, and

(2) the remainder of the tax payable by the taxpayer under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 1027, or any of sections 1145, 1159.7, 1175 and 1175.19 if they refer to that subparagraph b, as the case may be, determined in accordance with paragraph b, in respect of the second base year, and

iv. those payments must correspond to the payments based on a method described in that subparagraph a that is referred to in the fourth paragraph of section 1038 in respect of the taxpayer in relation to the particular taxation year;

(b) the remainder of the tax payable by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 1027, or any of sections 1145, 1159.7, 1175 and 1175.19 if they refer to that subparagraph b, is equal to the amount obtained by converting to Canadian currency, using the relevant spot rate for the taxpayer's balance-due day for the particular taxation year, the amount by which the tax payable by the taxpayer under this Part or under any of Parts IV, IV.1, VI and VI.1, as the case may be, for the particular taxation year, expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount obtained by converting the amount of a payment that the taxpayer is required to make in relation to that Part in respect of the particular taxation year, determined under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 1027, or any of sections 1145, 1159.7, 1175 and 1175.19 if they refer to that subparagraph a, as the case may be, and with reference to any of subparagraphs i, ii and iii of subparagraph a, to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on or before which the payment is required to be made;

(c) for the purpose of computing an amount (other than tax) that is payable by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year under this Part or under any of Parts IV, IV.1, VI and VI.1, or under the Tax Administration Act in relation to an amount that is payable under any of those Parts, the tax payable by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year under that Part is deemed to be equal to the total of

i. the aggregate of the payments that the taxpayer is required to make under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 1027, or any of sections 1145, 1159.7, 1175 and 1175.19 if they refer to that subparagraph a, as the case may be, determined in accordance with any of subparagraphs i, ii and iii of subparagraph a in respect of the particular taxation year, and

ii. the remainder of the tax payable by the taxpayer under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 1027, or any of sections 1145, 1159.7, 1175 and 1175.19 if they refer to that subparagraph b, as the case may be, determined in accordance with paragraph b, in respect of the particular taxation year;

(d) any amount of tax that is payable under this Act (otherwise than under this Part or under any of Parts IV, IV.1, VI and VI.1) by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year is, if applicable, to be determined by converting the amount, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day on or before which the amount is required to be paid;

(e) in relation to any particular amount that is deemed under this Part to have been paid at a particular time on account of an amount payable by the taxpayer under this Act for the particular taxation year,

i. if, for the purpose of computing the payments that the taxpayer is required to make under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 1027, or any of sections 1145, 1159.7, 1175 and 1175.19 if they refer to that subparagraph a, a particular provision of this Part establishes the portion of the particular amount that the taxpayer is deemed to have paid to the Minister on account of the aggregate of the taxpayer's tax payable for the particular taxation year under this Part and the taxpayer's tax payable for the particular taxation year under Parts IV, IV.1, VI and VI.1, on the date on or before which each of those payments is required to be made,

(1) the first excess amount referred to in the computation, provided for in that particular provision, of the portion of the particular amount in relation to a particular date is to be determined with reference to the particular amount as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency and by converting each portion of the particular amount, referred to in relation to an earlier date in the computation of that excess amount and as determined in Canadian currency, to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for that earlier date, and is equal to the amount obtained by converting that excess amount so determined to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the particular date, and

(2) the amount by which the particular amount, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount obtained by converting the amount—determined, with reference to subparagraph 1, in Canadian currency under the particular provision in respect of the particular amount in relation to a particular date—to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the particular date, is to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day that includes the particular time, and

ii. if subparagraph i does not apply in respect of the particular amount, the particular amount, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, is to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the day that includes the particular time;

(f) for the purpose of applying the second paragraph of section 1135.1 to the taxpayer in respect of the particular taxation year, the excess amount referred to in subparagraph i of subparagraph b of that second paragraph in relation to a particular date is to be determined with reference to the amount determined in accordance with the first paragraph of that section, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency and by converting each portion of that amount, referred to in relation to an earlier date in the computation of that excess amount and as determined in Canadian currency, to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for that earlier date, and is equal to the amount obtained by converting that excess amount so determined to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the particular date;

(g) for the purposes of section 1.2.1 of the Tax Administration Act, the amount of the taxpayer's paid-up capital for the particular taxation year, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency and in the manner provided for in that section, is to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the particular taxation year;

(h) for the purposes of section 59.2.2 of the Tax Administration Act, the amount of an income referred to in the first paragraph of that section in relation to the particular taxation year, as determined in the taxpayer's elected functional currency, is to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the taxpayer's balance-due day for the particular taxation year; and

(i) any amount payable by the taxpayer for the particular taxation year under this Act, or under the Tax Administration Act in relation to such an amount, is to be paid in Canadian currency.

21.4.27. For the purpose of applying this Act to a taxpayer's reversionary year, sections 21.4.22 and 21.4.23 are to be read as if

(a) "Canadian currency year" was replaced in the following provisions by "functional currency year":

i. the portion of section 21.4.22 before paragraph a,

ii. subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 21.4.22,

iii. paragraphs b and c of section 21.4.22,

iv. subparagraph ii of paragraph d of section 21.4.22,

v. paragraphs e to g of section 21.4.22, and

vi. section 21.4.23;

(b) "functional currency year" was replaced wherever it appears in the following provisions by "reversionary year":

i. the portion of section 21.4.22 before paragraph a, and

ii. section 21.4.23;

(c) "pre-transition debt" was replaced wherever it appears in section 21.4.23 by "pre-reversion debt";

(d) "the taxpayer's elected functional currency" was replaced wherever it appears in the following provisions by "Canadian currency":

i. the portion of section 21.4.22 before paragraph a, and

ii. section 21.4.23; and

(e) "Canadian currency" in the portion of section 21.4.22 before paragraph a was replaced by "the taxpayer's elected functional currency".

2010, c. 5, s. 11.

21.4.28. A pre-reversion debt of a taxpayer that is denominated in a currency other than Canadian currency is deemed to have been issued immediately before the taxpayer's first reversionary year for the purpose of

(a) computing the amount of the taxpayer's income, gain or loss, for a reversionary year of the taxpayer (other than an amount that section 21.4.29 deems to arise), that is attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency; and

(b) applying subparagraph l of the first paragraph of section 485.3 in respect of a reversionary year of the taxpayer.

21.4.29. If a taxpayer has, in a reversionary year of the taxpayer, made a particular payment on account of the principal amount of a pre-reversion debt of the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) if the taxpayer would have made a gain—or, if the pre-reversion debt was not on account of capital, would have had income—(in the second paragraph referred to as the "hypothetical gain or income") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-reversion debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of the taxpayer's last functional currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the currency in which the pre-reversion debt is denominated, which currency is in this section referred to as the "debt currency") at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to make a gain or to have income, as the case may be, for the reversionary year equal to the amount determined by the formula

$A \times B/C$; and

(b) if the taxpayer would have sustained a loss—or, if the pre-reversion debt was not on account of capital, would have had a loss—(in this subparagraph referred to as the "hypothetical loss") attributable to a fluctuation in the value of a currency if the pre-reversion debt had been settled by the taxpayer's having paid, immediately before the end of the taxpayer's last functional currency year, an amount equal to the principal amount (expressed in the debt currency) at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to sustain or to have a loss in respect of the particular payment for the reversionary year equal to the amount that would be determined by the formula in subparagraph a if the reference to "hypothetical gain or income" in subparagraph a of the second paragraph were read as a reference to "hypothetical loss".

In the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount of the hypothetical gain or income converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year;

(b) B is the amount of the particular payment (expressed in the debt currency); and

(c) C is the principal amount of the pre-reversion debt at the beginning of the taxpayer's first reversionary year (expressed in the debt currency).

21.4.29.1. For the purpose of determining a taxpayer's gain under section 21.4.29, if at a particular time a pre-reversion debt of the taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "debtor") that is denominated in a currency other than the taxpayer's functional currency becomes a parked obligation (within the meaning assigned by section 262.0.0.2), the debtor is deemed to have made, at that time, a particular payment on account of the principal amount of the debt equal to

(a) if the debt has become a parked obligation at that particular time as a result of its acquisition by the holder of the debt, the portion of the amount paid by the holder to acquire the debt that can reasonably be considered to relate to the principal amount of the debt at the particular time; and

(b) in any other case, the portion of the fair market value of the debt that can reasonably be considered to relate to the principal amount of the debt at the particular time.

21.4.30. For the purpose of computing the amount that may be deducted, or that is deemed to have been paid to the Minister, by a taxpayer, in respect of a particular amount that arises in a subsequent taxation year, under any of sections 727 to 737, 772.12, 776.1.9, 1029.8.36.166.47, 1029.8.36.166.60.52 and 1029.8.36.171.2 in computing the taxpayer's Québec tax results for a particular taxation year, the following rules apply:

(a) if the subsequent taxation year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the following amounts (expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) are to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

i. the particular amount, and

ii. any amount so deducted, or so deemed to have been paid to the Minister, in computing the taxpayer's Québec tax results for another functional currency year of the taxpayer;

(b) if the subsequent taxation year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year is a functional currency year of the taxpayer,

i. the following amounts (expressed in Canadian currency) are to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last functional currency year:

(1) the particular amount, and

(2) any amount so deducted, or so deemed to have been paid to the Minister, in computing the taxpayer's Québec tax results for another reversionary year of the taxpayer, and

ii. any amount (expressed in Canadian currency) so deducted, or so deemed to have been paid to the Minister, in computing the taxpayer's Québec tax results for a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer is to be converted to the taxpayer's elected functional currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year;

(c) if the subsequent taxation year is a reversionary year of the taxpayer and the particular taxation year is a Canadian currency year of the taxpayer, the following amounts (expressed in the taxpayer's elected functional currency) are to be converted to Canadian currency using the relevant spot rate for the last day of the taxpayer's last Canadian currency year:

i. the amount that would be determined under subparagraph 1 of subparagraph i of paragraph b in respect of the particular amount if the particular taxation year were a functional currency year of the taxpayer, and

ii. any amount so deducted, or so deemed to have been paid to the Minister, in computing the taxpayer's Québec tax results for a functional currency year of the taxpayer; and

(d) in any other case, this section does not apply.

21.4.31. If a winding-up described in section 556 begins at a particular time and the parent and the subsidiary referred to in that section would, in the absence of this section, have different tax reporting currencies at that time, the following rules apply for the purpose of computing the subsidiary's Québec tax results for its taxation years that end after the particular time:

(a) if the subsidiary's tax reporting currency is Canadian currency,

i. despite section 21.4.18, section 21.4.19 is deemed to apply to the subsidiary in respect of its taxation year that includes the particular time and each of its subsequent taxation years,

ii. the subsidiary is deemed to have as its elected functional currency the parent's tax reporting currency, and

iii. if the subsidiary's taxation year that includes the particular time would, in the absence of this section, be a reversionary year of the subsidiary, this chapter applies with the necessary modifications; and

(b) if neither the subsidiary's tax reporting currency nor the parent's tax reporting currency is Canadian currency,

i. the subsidiary's first reversionary year is deemed to end at the given time that is immediately after the time at which it began,

ii. a new taxation year of the subsidiary is deemed to begin immediately after the given time,

iii. despite section 21.4.18, section 21.4.19 is deemed to apply to the subsidiary in respect of its taxation year that includes the particular time and each of its subsequent taxation years, and

iv. the subsidiary is deemed to have as its elected functional currency the parent's tax reporting currency.

2010, c. 5, s. 11.

21.4.32. If, in respect of an amalgamation within the meaning of section 544, a predecessor corporation has a tax reporting currency for its last taxation year that is different from that of the new corporation for its first taxation year, paragraphs a and b of section 21.4.31 apply, for the purpose of computing the predecessor corporation's Québec tax results for its last taxation year, as if the tax reporting currencies referred to in those paragraphs were the tax reporting currencies referred to in this section and as if

(a) "subsidiary" and "subsidiary's" were replaced wherever they appear in the following provisions by "predecessor corporation" and "predecessor corporation's", respectively:

i. the portion of that paragraph a before subparagraph iii,

ii. that paragraph b;

(b) "the subsidiary's taxation year that includes the particular time" in subparagraph iii of that paragraph a was replaced by "the predecessor corporation's last taxation year";

(c) "parent's" was replaced in the following provisions by "new corporation's":

i. subparagraph ii of that paragraph a,

ii. the portion of that paragraph b before subparagraph i, and

iii. subparagraph iv of that paragraph b; and

(d) "its taxation year that includes the particular time and each of its subsequent taxation years" was replaced in the following provisions by "its last taxation year":

i. subparagraph i of that paragraph a, and

ii. subparagraph iii of that paragraph b.

2010, c. 5, s. 11.

21.4.33. If, for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), the Canadian tax results of a corporation, within the meaning of subsection 1 of section 261 of that Act, for one or more taxation years are to be computed, under subsection 18 of that section 261, using the particular currency referred to in that subsection 18, the Québec tax results of the corporation for that taxation year or for those taxation years are to be computed, subject to the second paragraph, using that particular currency.

The Québec tax results of a corporation for one or more taxation years are to be computed using a given currency if

(a) at any time (in this paragraph referred to as the "transfer time") one or more properties are directly or indirectly transferred

i. by the corporation to another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferor" and the "transferee", respectively), or

ii. by another corporation to the corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferor" and the "transferee", respectively);

(b) the transferor and the transferee are related at the transfer time or become related in the course of a series of transactions or events that includes the transfer;

(c) the transfer time

i. is, or would in the absence of sections 21.4.31 and 21.4.32 be, in a functional currency year of the transferor and the transferor and the transferee have, or would in the absence of those sections have, different tax reporting currencies at the transfer time, or

ii. is, or would in the absence of sections 21.4.31 and 21.4.32 be, in a reversionary year of the transferor and is not in a reversionary year of the transferee;

(d) it can reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of the transfer or of any portion of a series of transactions or events that includes the transfer is to change, or to enable the changing of, the currency in which the Québec tax results in respect of the property, or property substituted for it, for a taxation year would otherwise be determined; and

(e) the Minister directs that those Québec tax results be computed in the given currency.

21.4.34. For the purposes of the second paragraph of section 21.4.33, if two or more corporations (each of which is in this section referred to as a "predecessor corporation") are amalgamated or otherwise merged at a particular time to form one corporate entity (in this section referred to as the "new corporation"), the following rules apply:

(a) the predecessor corporation is deemed to have transferred to the new corporation at the time (in this section referred to as the "merger transfer time") that is immediately before the particular time each property that was held at the merger transfer time by the predecessor corporation and at the particular time by the new corporation;

(b) the new corporation is deemed to exist, and to be related to the predecessor corporation, at the merger transfer time; and

(c) the new corporation is deemed to have as its tax reporting currency at the merger transfer time its tax reporting currency at the particular time.

21.4.35. The rule set out in section 21.4.36 applies for the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income, gain or loss for a taxation year in respect of a transaction (in this section and section 21.4.36 referred to as a "specified transaction") if

(a) the specified transaction was entered into, directly or indirectly, at any time by the taxpayer and a corporation (in this section referred to as the "related corporation") to which the taxpayer was at that time related;

(b) the taxpayer and the related corporation had different tax reporting currencies during the period (in this section referred to as the "accrual period") in which the income, gain or loss accrued; and

(c) it would, in the absence of this section and section 21.4.36, be reasonable to consider that a fluctuation during the accrual period in the value of the taxpayer's tax reporting currency relative to the value of the related corporation's tax reporting currency

i. increased the taxpayer's loss in respect of the specified transaction,

ii. reduced the taxpayer's income or gain in respect of the specified transaction, or

iii. caused the taxpayer to have a loss, instead of income or a gain, in respect of the specified transaction.

2010, c. 5, s. 11.

21.4.36. The rule to which section 21.4.35 refers is the rule according to which each fluctuation in value referred to in paragraph c of that section is, for the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income, gain or loss in respect of the specified transaction and despite any other provision of this Act, deemed not to have occurred.

21.4.37. For the purposes of this section and sections 21.4.33 to 21.4.36, the following rules apply:

(a) if a property is directly or indirectly transferred to or by a partnership, the property is deemed to have been transferred to or by, as the case may be, each member of the partnership; and

(b) if a partnership is a party to a transaction, each member of the partnership is deemed to be that party to that transaction.

2010, c. 5, s. 11.

CHAPTER V.4

USE OF CRYPTOASSETS

2023, c. 19, s. 14.

21.4.38. In this chapter, "cryptoasset" means property that is a digital representation of value and that only exists at a digital address of a distributed ledger.

2023, c. 19, s. 14.

21.4.39. A taxpayer or a partnership that, in a taxation year or a fiscal period, as the case may be, owns, receives or disposes of a cryptoasset, or uses a cryptoasset in the context of a transaction, shall enclose the prescribed form containing prescribed information with either of the following documents, as applicable:

(a) in the case of the taxpayer, the fiscal return the taxpayer is required to file under section 1000 for the year; or

(b) in the case of the partnership, the information return it is required to file for the fiscal period under section 1086R78 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1).

2023, c. 19, s. 14.

CHAPTER VI

TERM PREFERRED SHARES

1980, c. 13, s. 3.

21.5. A share of a class of the capital stock of a corporation is a term preferred share of the corporation if one of the following conditions is met:

(a) the share was issued or acquired after 28 June 1982 and, at the time the share was issued or acquired, the existence of the corporation is, or there is an existing agreement under which it could be, limited;

(b) it is issued after 16 November 1978, the owner thereof acquired it after 23 October 1979 and is a corporation, trust or partnership described in section 21.5.1 that, either alone or together with any such corporations, partnerships or trusts, controls or has an absolute or contingent right to control or to acquire control of the corporation;

(c) it is issued after 16 November 1978 and, under its terms or conditions, an agreement in respect of the share or a modification of such terms or conditions or such agreement, either in the case of a share issued after 16 November 1978 and before 13 November 1981, or after 12 November 1981 and before 1 January 1983 pursuant to an agreement in writing to do so made before 13 November 1981, the share is convertible, directly or indirectly, into debt or into a share that would, if issued, be a term preferred share, and in any other case, the share is convertible or exchangeable, unless it is convertible into or exchangeable for a consideration described in section 21.5.5, or one of the provisions described in section 21.5.2, 21.5.3 or 21.5.4 applies.

21.5.1. For the purposes of paragraph b of section 21.5, the owner of the share must be

(a) a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs a to e.1 of the definition of "specified financial institution" in section 1;

(b) a corporation that is controlled by one or more corporations referred to in paragraph a,

(c) a corporation that acquired the share after 11 December 1979 and is related to a corporation referred to in paragraph a or b, or

(d) a partnership or trust of which a corporation referred to in paragraph a or b or a person related thereto is a member or a beneficiary.

21.5.2. The provisions referred to in paragraph c of section 21.5 are, in the case of a share issued between 16 November 1978 and 24 October 1979, the following:

(a) the owner thereof may, within 10 years after the date of issue, cause the share to be redeemed, acquired or cancelled, otherwise than by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share, or cause its paid-up capital to be reduced,

(b) the issuing corporation or any person with whom it is not dealing at arm's length is or may be required to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share or to reduce its paid-up capital, otherwise than pursuant to a requirement of the corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel, annually, not more than 5% of the issued and fully paid shares of that class, or unless the owner may cause the share to be redeemed, acquired or cancelled by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share, or

(c) a person is or may be required to provide a guarantee or a similar covenant, including the lending of funds to or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of, the owner thereof or any person related thereto, with respect to the share.

21.5.3. The provisions referred to in paragraph c of section 21.5 are, in the case of a share issued between 23 October 1979 and 13 November 1981 or a share issued between 12 November 1981 and 1 January 1983 pursuant to an agreement in writing to that effect entered into before 13 November 1981, the following:

(a) the owner thereof may, within 10 years after the date of issue, cause the share to be redeemed, acquired or cancelled, otherwise than by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share, or cause its paid-up capital to be reduced,

(b) a person is or may be required to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share or to reduce its paid-up capital, within 10 years after the date of issue,

i. otherwise than pursuant to a requirement of the issuing corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel annually not more than 5% of the issued and fully paid shares of that class and, where the requirement was agreed to after 21 April 1980, it provides that such redemption, acquisition or cancellation be in proportion to the number of shares of the class or of the series of the class registered in the name of each shareholder, or

ii. unless the requirement to redeem, acquire or cancel the share arises by reason only of right to convert or exchange the share, or

(c) a person provides or may be required to provide a guarantee or similar indemnity or covenant, including the lending of funds to or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of, the owner thereof or any person related thereto, with respect to the share.

21.5.4. The provisions referred to in paragraph c of section 21.5 are, in the case of a share issued between 12 November 1981 and 1 January 1983 otherwise than pursuant to an agreement referred to in section 21.5.3 or a share issued after 31 December 1982, one of the following:

(a) the owner thereof may cause the share to be acquired, cancelled or redeemed, otherwise than by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share, or cause its paid-up capital to be reduced;

(b) a person or partnership is or may be required to acquire, cancel or redeem the share, in whole or in part, otherwise than by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share, or to reduce its paid-up capital;

(c) a person or partnership provides or may be required to provide a guarantee or similar indemnity or covenant, including the lending of funds to or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of, the holder thereof or any person related thereto, with respect to the share.

21.5.5. The consideration for which a share may be converted or exchanged and to which paragraph c of section 21.5 refers shall only include

(a) another share of the issuing corporation or a corporation related to it that, if issued, would not be a term preferred share,

(b) a right or warrant that, if exercised, would allow the person exercising it to acquire only a share of the issuing corporation or a corporation related to it that, if issued, would not be a term preferred share, or

(c) both a share described in subparagraph a and a right or warrant described in subparagraph b.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, where a taxpayer may become entitled, upon the conversion or exchange of a share, to receive any particular consideration, other than consideration described in the first paragraph, in lieu of a fraction of a share, the particular consideration is deemed not to be consideration unless it may reasonably be considered that the particular consideration was receivable as part of a series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of section 21.10, 21.10.1 or 740.1.

21.6. For the purposes of section 21.5, a term preferred share does not include

(a) a share issued after 16 November 1978 and before 1980 pursuant to an agreement in writing to do so made before 17 November 1978;

(b) a share issued as a stock dividend before 22 April 1980 on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation that was not a term preferred share, or after 21 April 1980 on a share that was, at the time such dividend was paid, a share prescribed for the purposes of paragraph e;

(c) a share described in section 21.6.1;

(d) a share that is listed on a designated stock exchange located in Canada and was issued before 22 April 1980 by

i. a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs a to d of the definition of "specified financial institution" in section 1,

ii. a corporation whose principal business is the lending of money or the purchasing of debt obligations or a combination thereof, or

iii. an issuing corporation associated with a corporation described in subparagraph i or ii;

(e) a share that is, at that time, a prescribed share;

(f) a share that is a taxable preferred share held by a specified financial institution that acquired the share before 16 December 1987 or before 1 January 1989 pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before 16 December 1987, other than a share that is

i. a share deemed, under section 21.9.4.2 or paragraph a of section 21.11.12, to have been issued after 15 December 1987, or

ii. a share that would be deemed, under paragraph c of section 21.11.16, to have been issued after 15 December 1987 if the reference in the said section to "8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987" were read as a reference to "15 December 1987".

21.6.1. A share is not a term preferred share, for a period of 10 years from the date of its issue, that was issued between 16 November 1978 and 13 November 1981, or for a period of 5 years from the date of its issue, if it was issued after 12 November 1981, and that was issued by a corporation resident in Canada and, in the case of a share issued after 23 October 1979, the proceeds from the issue may be regarded as having been used by the corporation or a corporation with which it was not dealing at arm's length in the financing of its business carried on or, in the case of a share issued after 12 November 1981, carried on in Canada, immediately before the share was issued, and that was issued

(a) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, its creditors that had been approved by a competent court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter B-3),

(b) at a time when all or substantially all of its assets were under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

(c) at a time when, by reason of financial difficulty, the corporation or another corporation resident in Canada with which it does not deal at arm's length was in default, or could reasonably be expected to default, on a debt obligation held by a person with whom the corporation or the other corporation was dealing at arm's length and the share was issued, wholly or in substantial part, directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for that obligation or a part thereof.

21.7. For the purposes of this chapter, where the terms or conditions of an agreement in writing referred to in paragraph a of section 21.6 were amended after 16 November 1978, the agreement is deemed to have been made after that date.

1980, c. 13, s. 3.

21.7.1. Where at any particular time after 15 December 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement entered into before 16 December 1987, the terms or conditions of a taxable preferred share of the capital stock of a corporation relating to any matter referred to in paragraph c of section 21.5 or sections 21.5.2 to 21.5.5 have been established or modified, or any agreement in respect of the share relating to any such matter has been entered into or changed by the corporation or a specified person in relation to it, within the meaning of paragraph f of section 21.11.16, the share is deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time.

21.8. Where the redemption date of a share was extended or the terms or conditions relating to its redemption, acquisition, cancellation or conversion or reduction of its paid-up capital were changed, the share is, for the purposes of determining whether it is a term preferred share, deemed to have been issued at the time of the extension or change otherwise than pursuant to an agreement referred to in section 21.5.3 or in paragraph a of section 21.6

1980, c. 13, s. 3; 1982, c. 5, s. 9; 1984, c. 15, s. 10.

21.9. The rule provided by section 21.8 applies where the change or extension occurs after 16 November 1978 in the case of a share issued before 17 November 1978, or after 12 November 1981 in the case of a share issued between 16 November 1978 and 13 November 1981 or a share issued between 12 November 1981 and 1 January 1983 pursuant to an agreement referred to in section 21.5.3.

21.9.1. Subject to section 21.9.2, the rule provided by section 21.8 also applies, with the necessary modifications, in the following cases:

(a) where the terms or conditions of a share issued pursuant to an agreement referred to in paragraph a of section 21.6 or those of any agreement relating to such a share have been changed;

(b) where the owner of a share may, alone or together with one or more taxpayers, require the acquisition, cancellation, conversion or redemption of the share or the reduction of its paid-up capital

i. after 16 November 1978 under the terms or conditions of a share issued before 17 November 1978 and not listed on 16 November 1978 on a Canadian stock exchange that was prescribed on that date, of a share issued pursuant to an agreement referred to in paragraph a of section 21.6, of any agreement between the issuer and the owner of such a share, or any agreement relating to such a share made after 23 October 1979;

ii. after 12 November 1981 in the case of a share issued between 16 November 1978 and 13 November 1981, except a share described in section 21.6.1 or a share listed on 13 November 1981 on a Canadian stock exchange that was prescribed on that date, or a share issued between 12 November 1981 and 1 January 1983 pursuant to an agreement referred to in section 21.5.3;

(c) where a specified financial institution or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related thereto is a member or a beneficiary acquires,

i. between 23 October 1979 and 13 November 1981, from a person, a share issued before 17 November 1978 or a share issued pursuant to an agreement referred to in paragraph a of section 21.6;

ii. after 12 November 1981, from a person or a partnership, a share issued before 13 November 1981 or a share pursuant to an agreement referred to in section 21.5.3.

21.9.2. The rule provided by section 21.8 does not apply, in the case provided for in paragraph b of section 21.9.1, where the owner's right could be exercised by reason of a default under the terms or conditions of the share or any agreement that related to, and was entered into at the time of, the issuance of the share.

The same applies, in the case provided for in paragraph c of the said section 21.9.1, where

(a) the share described in subparagraph i of that paragraph c is

i. a share issued to a corporation that was, at the time of issue,

(1) a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs a to e of the definition of "specified financial institution" in section 1, or

(2) a corporation controlled by one or more corporations referred to in subparagraph 1,

ii. a share acquired from a person that was, at the time of acquisition, a corporation referred to in subparagraph 1 or 2 of subparagraph i, or

iii. a share acquired under an agreement in writing made before 24 October 1979; and

(b) the share described in subparagraph ii of that paragraph c is

i. a share described in section 21.6.1,

ii. a share acquired from a person that was, at the time of acquisition, a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs a to f of the definition of "specified financial institution" in section 1,

iii. a share acquired in an acquisition that was not subject to an undertaking, referred to in section 740.2, given after 12 November 1981, or

iv. a share acquired under an agreement in writing made before 24 October 1979 or an agreement referred to in section 21.5.3.

For the purposes of subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the second paragraph, one corporation is controlled by another corporation if more than 50% of its issued share capital having full voting rights under all circumstances belongs to the other corporation, to persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length, or to the other corporation and persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length.

21.9.3. Where a share of the capital stock of a corporation is issued or its terms or conditions are modified and it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all circumstances, including the rate of interest on any debt or the dividend provided on any term preferred share, that but for the existence of the debt or the term preferred share, the share would not have been issued or its terms or conditions modified, and one of the main purposes for its issue or for the modification of its terms or conditions was to avoid a limitation provided by section 740.1 or 845 in respect of a deduction, the share is deemed, from 1 January 1983, to be a term preferred share of the corporation.

21.9.4. Where the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation are modified or established after 28 June 1982 and as a consequence thereof the corporation, any person related thereto or any partnership or trust of which the corporation or a person related thereto is a member or a beneficiary, may reasonably be expected to redeem, acquire or cancel, in whole or in part, the share or to reduce its paid-up capital, the share is deemed as from the date of the modification or establishment to be a share described in paragraph c of section 21.5.

21.9.4.1. Where it may reasonably be considered that the dividends that may be declared or paid at any time on a share, other than a prescribed share or a share described in section 21.6.1 during the applicable time period referred to in that section, of the capital stock of a corporation issued after 15 December 1987 or acquired after 15 June 1988 are derived primarily from dividends received on term preferred shares of the capital stock of another corporation, and that the share was issued or acquired as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of section 740.1 or 845, the share is deemed, at that time, to be a term preferred share acquired in the ordinary course of business.

1990, c. 59, s. 19; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

21.9.5. (Repealed).

21.10. Where a specified financial institution resident in Canada receives, in a taxation year, from a corporation not resident in Canada an amount as a dividend on a term preferred share, the amount is deemed, for the purposes of paragraphs c and l of section 87 and sections 746 to 749 and 772.2 to 772.13, to be received in the year as interest and not as a dividend on a share of the capital stock of a corporation.

21.10.1. The rule provided in section 21.10 also applies where a particular corporation receives, in a taxation year, from a corporation not resident in Canada a dividend on a share, other than a term preferred share, that is a grandfathered share or was issued before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987 and was not deemed by section 740.3.1 to have been issued after that time, if the dividend is a dividend in respect of which no deduction could have been made under section 738, 740 or 845 by reason of sections 740.2 to 740.3.1 as they read on 17 June 1987, if the corporation that paid the dividend had been a taxable Canadian corporation.

21.10.2. Section 21.10 does not apply in respect of a dividend described in that section

(a) if the share on which the dividend is paid was not acquired by the specified financial institution in the ordinary course of the business it carried on; or

(b) to the extent that the dividend would be described in subparagraph ii of paragraph j of section 257 if the corporation not resident in Canada were not a foreign affiliate of the specified financial institution.

21.11. Notwithstanding section 119, where an amount is paid or payable after 1978 as interest or as an amount in lieu of interest in respect of a dividend that became payable or in arrears after 16 November 1978 and the dividend is in respect of a share that is not a term preferred share by reason of having been issued before 17 November 1978 or pursuant to an agreement in writing referred to in paragraph a of section 21.6, the amount is, for the purposes of section 740.1 and the second paragraph of section 845, deemed to be a dividend received on a term preferred share.

21.11.11. A short-term preferred share of a corporation at any particular time is a share, other than a grandfathered share, of the capital stock of the corporation issued after 15 December 1987 that, at that particular time, is

(a) a share where, under the terms and conditions of the share, any agreement relating to the share or any modification of such terms, conditions or agreement, the corporation or a specified person in relation to it is or may, at any time within five years from the date of its issued, be required to acquire, cancel or redeem, in whole or in part, the share or to reduce the paid-up capital of the share, unless the requirement to acquire, cancel or redeem the share arises only in the event of the death of the shareholder or by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share, or

(b) a share that is convertible or exchangeable at any time within five years from the date of its issue, unless

i. it is convertible into or exchangeable for

(1) another share of the corporation or a corporation related to the corporation that, if issued, would not be a short-term preferred share;

(2) a right or warrant that, if exercised, would allow the person exercising it to acquire only a share of the corporation or a corporation related to the corporation that, if issued, would not be a short-term preferred share, or

(3) both a share described in subparagraph 1 and a right or warrant described in subparagraph 2, and

ii. all the consideration receivable for the share on the conversion or exchange is the share described in subparagraph 1 of subparagraph i or the right or warrant described in subparagraph 2 of the said subparagraph i or both such share and such right or warrant, and, for the purposes of this subparagraph, where a taxpayer may become entitled upon the conversion or exchange of a share to receive any particular consideration, other than consideration described in any of subparagraphs 1 to 3 of subparagraph i, in lieu of a fraction of a share, the particular consideration is deemed not to be consideration unless it may reasonably be considered that the particular consideration was receivable as part of a series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of Part IV.1 or VI.1 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement).

21.11.12. For the purposes of this chapter, the following rules apply:

(a) where at any particular time after 15 December 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement entered into before 16 December 1987, the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation that are relevant to any matter referred to in any of paragraphs a and b of section 21.11.11 or d and f of this section are established or modified, or any agreement in respect of any such matter to which the corporation or a specified person in relation to it is a party, is entered into or changed, the share is deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time;

(b) where, at any particular time after 15 December 1987, a particular share of the capital stock of a corporation has been issued or its terms or conditions have been modified or an agreement in respect of the share is entered into or modified, the particular share is deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time and to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation, if it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, including the rate of interest on any debt obligation or the dividend provided on any short-term preferred share, that

i. but for the existence at any time of such a debt obligation or such a short-term preferred share, the particular share would not have been issued or its terms or conditions modified or the agreement in respect of the share would not have been entered into or modified;

ii. one of the main purposes for the issue of the particular share or the modification of its terms or conditions or the entering into or modification of the agreement in respect of the share was to avoid or limit the tax payable under subsection 1 of section 191.1 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement);

(c) where at any particular time after 15 December 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement entered into before 16 December 1987, the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation are established or modified or any agreement in respect of the share has been entered into or changed, and as a consequence thereof the corporation or a specified person in relation to it may reasonably be expected to acquire, cancel or redeem the share, in whole or in part, otherwise than by reason of the death of the shareholder or by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share that would not cause the share to be a short-term preferred share by reason of paragraph b of section 21.11.11, or to reduce its paid-up capital, within five years from the particular time, the share is deemed to have been issued at that particular time and to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation from the particular time until the time that such reasonable expectation ceases to exist;

(d) where a share of the capital stock of a corporation was issued after 15 December 1987 and at the time the share was issued the existence of the corporation was, or there was an arrangement under which it could be, limited to a period that was within five years from the date of its issue, the share is deemed to be a short-term preferred share of the corporation unless

i. the share is a grandfathered share and the arrangement is a written arrangement entered into before 16 December 1987, or

ii. the share is issued to an individual after 14 April 2005 under an agreement referred to in section 48, if at the time the individual last acquired a right under the agreement to acquire a share of the capital stock of the corporation, the existence of the corporation was not, and no arrangement was in effect under which it could be, limited to a period that was within five years from that time;

(e) where a share of the capital stock of a corporation is acquired at any time after 15 December 1987 by the corporation or a specified person in relation to it and the share is at any particular time after that time acquired from the corporation or a specified person in relation to it by a person with whom the corporation or a specified person in relation to it was dealing at arm's length if this Part were read without reference to paragraph b of section 20, the share is deemed after that particular time to have been issued at that particular time;

(f) where at any particular time after 15 December 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement entered into before 16 December 1987, as a result of the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation or any agreement entered into by the corporation or a specified person in relation to it, any person, other than the corporation or an individual other than a trust, was obligated, either absolutely or contingently and either immediately or in the future, to effect any undertaking within five years after the date on which the share was issued, including any guarantee, covenant or agreement to purchase or repurchase the share, and including the lending of funds to or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of, the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder, the share is deemed after that particular time to have been issued at the particular time and to be at and immediately after the particular time a short-term preferred share, if the undertaking is given

i. to ensure that any loss that the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder may sustain by reason of the ownership, holding or disposition of the share or any other property is limited in any respect, and

ii. as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events that included the issuance of the share;

(g) for the purposes of paragraph f where the undertaking referred to therein in respect of a share is given after 15 December 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement entered into before 16 December 1987, the share is deemed to have been issued at that time and the undertaking is deemed to have been given as part of a series of transactions that included the issuance of the share;

(h) a share that is, at the time a dividend is paid thereon, a share described in section 21.6.1 during the applicable time period referred to in that section or a prescribed share is, notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, deemed not to be a short-term preferred share at that time;

(i) the expression "specified person" has the meaning assigned by paragraph f of section 21.11.16.

21.11.13. For the purposes of paragraph a of section 21.11.11 and paragraph c of section 21.11.12,

(a) an agreement in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be read without reference to that part of the agreement under which a person agrees to acquire the share for an amount

i. in the case of a share, other than a share that would, but for that part of the agreement, be a taxable preferred share, the agreement in respect of which provides that the share is to be acquired within 60 days after the date on which the agreement was entered into, that does not exceed the greater of the fair market value of the share at the time the agreement was entered into, determined without reference to the agreement, and the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement;

ii. in any other case, that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or for an amount determined by reference to the assets or earnings of the corporation where such determination may reasonably be considered to be used to determine an amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement;

(b) the expression "shareholder" includes a shareholder of a shareholder.

1990, c. 59, s. 23; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

CHAPTER VI.2

TAXABLE PREFERRED SHARES

1990, c. 59, s. 23.

21.11.14. A taxable preferred share at any particular time is

(a) a share issued after 15 December 1987 that is a short-term preferred share at that particular time, or

(b) a share, other than a grandfathered share, of the capital stock of a corporation issued after 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987 where, at that particular time, by reason of the terms or conditions of the share or any agreement in respect of the share or its issue to which the corporation, or a specified person in relation to it, is a party,

i. it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, that the amount of the dividends that may be declared or paid on the share, in this chapter referred to as the "dividend entitlement", is, by way of a formula or otherwise, fixed, limited to a maximum, or, if with respect to the dividend that may be declared or paid on the share there is a preference over any other dividend that may be declared or paid on any other share of the capital stock of the corporation, established to be not less than a minimum, including any amount determined on a cumulative basis,

ii. it may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, that the amount that the shareholder, which includes a shareholder of the shareholder for the purposes of this subparagraph, is entitled to receive in respect of the share on the dissolution, liquidation or winding-up of the corporation or on the acquisition, cancellation or redemption of the share, unless the requirement to acquire, cancel or redeem the share arises only in the event of the death of the shareholder or by reason only of a right to convert or exchange the share, or on the reduction of the paid-up capital of the share by the corporation or by a specified person in relation to it, in this chapter referred to as the "liquidation entitlement", is, by way of a formula or otherwise, fixed, limited to a maximum, or established to be not less than a minimum,

iii. the share is convertible or exchangeable at any time, unless

(1) it is convertible into or exchangeable for another share of the corporation or a corporation related to it that, if issued, would not be a taxable preferred share, referred to in this subparagraph and in subparagraph 2 as the "particular share", for a right or warrant that, if exercised, would allow the person exercising it to acquire only a share of the corporation or a corporation related to it that, if issued, would not be a taxable preferred share, or for both a particular share and such right or warrant, and

(2) all the consideration receivable for the share on the conversion or exchange is the particular share or the right or warrant described in subparagraph 1 or both such share and such right or warrant, and for the purposes of this subparagraph, where a taxpayer may become entitled upon the conversion or exchange of a share to receive any particular consideration, other than consideration described in subparagraph 1, in lieu of a fraction of a share, the particular consideration is deemed not to be consideration unless it may reasonably be considered that the particular consideration was receivable as part of a series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of Part IV.1 or VI.1 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), or

iv. any person, other than the corporation, was, at or immediately before that particular time, obligated, either absolutely or contingently and either immediately or in the future, to effect any undertaking, in this chapter referred to as a "guarantee agreement", including any guarantee, covenant or agreement to purchase or repurchase the share, and including the lending of funds to or the placing of amounts on deposit with, or on behalf of, the shareholder or any specified person in relation to the shareholder, given

(1) as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events that included the issuance of the share, and

(2) to ensure that any loss that the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder may sustain by reason of the ownership, holding or disposition of the share or any other property is limited, or allow the shareholder or a specified person in relation to the shareholder to derive earnings by reason of the ownership, holding or disposition of the share or any other property.

For the purposes of subparagraph b of the first paragraph, where the guarantee agreement in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation is given after 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement entered into before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987, the share is deemed to have been issued at that time and the guarantee agreement is deemed to have been given as part of a series of transactions that included the issuance of the share.

21.11.15. For the purposes of section 21.11.14, a taxable preferred share does not include a share that is, at the particular time prescribed in that section, a share described in section 21.6.1 during the applicable time period referred to in that section or a prescribed share.

1990, c. 59, s. 23.

21.11.16. For the purposes of this chapter,

(a) the dividend entitlement of a share of the capital stock of a corporation is deemed not to be fixed, limited to a maximum or established to be not less than a minimum where all dividends on the share are determined solely by reference to the dividend entitlement of another share of the capital stock of the corporation or of a corporation that controls the corporation that would not be a taxable preferred share if this chapter were read without reference to paragraph d, and if the other share were issued after 18 June 1987 and were not a grandfathered share, a prescribed share or a share described in section 21.6.1;

(b) the liquidation entitlement of a share of the capital stock of a corporation is deemed not to be fixed, limited to a maximum or established to be not less than a minimum where all the liquidation entitlement is determinable solely by reference to the liquidation entitlement of another share of the capital stock of the corporation or of a corporation that controls the corporation that would not be a taxable preferred share if this section were read without reference to paragraph d, and if the other share were issued after 18 June 1987 and were not a grandfathered share, a prescribed share or a share described in section 21.6.1;

(c) where at any particular time after 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987, otherwise than pursuant to a written arrangement entered into before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987, the terms or conditions of a share of the capital stock of a corporation that are relevant to any matter referred to in any of subparagraphs i to iv of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 21.11.14 or the second paragraph of that section are established or modified, or any agreement in respect of any such matter to which the corporation or a specified person in relation to it is a party, is entered into or changed, the share is, for the purposes of determining whether it is a taxable preferred share after the particular time, deemed to have been issued at that particular time, unless the share is a share described in paragraph b of section 21.11.20 and the particular time is before 16 December 1987 and before the time at which the share is first issued;

(d) an agreement in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation shall be read without reference to that part of the agreement under which a person agrees to acquire the share for an amount

i. in the case of a share the agreement in respect of which provides that the share is to be acquired within 60 days after the date on which the agreement was entered into, that does not exceed the greater of the fair market value of the share at the time the agreement was entered into, determined without reference to the agreement, and the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement;

ii. in any other case, that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement, or for an amount determined by reference to the assets or earnings of the corporation where such determination may reasonably be considered to be used to determine an amount that does not exceed the fair market value of the share at the time of the acquisition, determined without reference to the agreement;

(e) where it may reasonably be considered that the dividends that may be declared or paid to a shareholder at any time on a share, other than a prescribed share or a share described in section 21.6.1 during the applicable time period referred to in that section, of the capital stock of a corporation issued after 15 December 1987 or acquired after 15 June 1988 are derived primarily from dividends received on taxable preferred shares of the capital stock of another corporation, and that the share was issued or acquired as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events one of the main purposes of which was to avoid or limit the application of Part IV.1 or VI.1 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), the share is deemed, at that time, to be a taxable preferred share;

(f) a specified person in relation to any particular person is a person with whom the particular person does not deal at arm's length or any partnership or trust of which the particular person or the person is a member or beneficiary.

CHAPTER VI.4

GRANDFATHERED SHARES

1990, c. 59, s. 23.

21.11.20. A grandfathered share is

(a) a share of the capital stock of a corporation issued after 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987 pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before that time,

(b) a share of the capital stock of a corporation issued after 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987 and before 1 January 1988 as part of a distribution to the public made in accordance with the terms of a final prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement, offering memorandum or notice filed before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987 with a public body in accordance with the securities legislation of the jurisdiction in which the shares are distributed,

(c) a share of the capital stock of a corporation the right of exchange and all or substantially all the terms and conditions of which were established in writing before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987 and that is issued after that time in exchange for

i. a share of a corporation that was issued before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987 or is a grandfathered share, or

ii. a debt obligation of a corporation that was issued before 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987, or issued after that time pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before that time, or after that time and before 1 January 1988 as part of a distribution to the public made in accordance with the terms of a final prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement, offering memorandum or notice filed before that time with a public authority pursuant to and in accordance with the securities legislation of the jurisdiction in which the debt obligation is distributed, or

(d) a share of a class of the capital stock of a Canadian corporation listed on a designated stock exchange that was issued after 8:00 p.m. Eastern Daylight Saving Time, 18 June 1987 upon the exercise of a right listed on a designated stock exchange that was issued before that time, that was issued after that time pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before that time or that was issued after that time and before 1 January 1988 as part of a distribution to the public made in accordance with the terms of a final prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement, offering memorandum or notice filed before that time with a public authority pursuant to and in accordance with the securities legislation of the jurisdiction in which the rights were distributed, where all or substantially all the terms and conditions of the right and the share were established in writing before that time.

1990, c. 59, s. 23; 1993, c. 16, s. 15; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 14, s. 13l; 2001, c. 7, s. 169; 2001, c. 53, s. 8; 2003, c. 2, s. 11; 2010, c. 5, s. 14.

21.11.21. For the purposes of section 21.11.20, a share that is deemed under Chapter VI, VI.1 or VI.2 or section 740.3.1 to have been issued at any time is, for the purposes of that chapter or section, deemed not to be a grandfathered share after that time.

1990, c. 59, s. 23.

CHAPTER VII

INCOME BONDS

1980, c. 13, s. 3.

21.12. In this Part, "income bond" or "income debenture" of a particular corporation means a bond or debenture in respect of which interest or dividends are payable only to the extent that the particular corporation has made a profit before taking into account the payment of the interest or dividend, and which is a bond or debenture

(a) that was issued before 17 November 1978;

(b) that was issued after 16 November 1978 and before 1980 pursuant to an agreement in writing to do so made before 17 November 1978; or

(c) issued, for a term that in no circumstances may exceed five years, by a corporation that is resident in Canada, the proceeds from the issue of which, in the case of a bond or debenture issued after 12 November 1981, may reasonably be regarded as having been used by the particular corporation or a corporation with which it was not dealing at arm's length in the financing of its business carried on in Canada immediately before it was issued and that was issued

i. as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, the creditors of the particular corporation that had been approved by a competent court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter B-3),

ii. at a time when all or substantially all of the assets of the particular corporation were under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or

iii. wholly or in substantial part, directly or indirectly, in exchange or substitution for a debt obligation, or a part thereof, of the particular corporation or another corporation resident in Canada with which it does not deal at arm's length held by a person with whom the particular corporation or the other corporation was dealing at arm's length at a time when, by reason of financial difficulty, the particular corporation or the other corporation was in default or could reasonably be expected to default on that debt.

21.13. For the purposes of this chapter, where the terms or conditions of an agreement in writing referred to in paragraph b of section 21.12 were amended after 16 November 1978, the agreement is deemed to have been made after that date.

1980, c. 13, s. 3.

21.14. Where, at a particular time after 16 November 1978, the maturity date of a bond or debenture was extended or the terms or conditions relating to the repayment of the principal amount thereof were changed, the bond or debenture is, for the purposes of determining at any time after the particular time whether it is an income bond or income debenture, as the case may be, deemed to have been issued at the particular time otherwise than pursuant to an agreement in writing referred to in paragraph b of section 21.12.

21.15. The rule provided in section 21.14 applies also where

(a) the terms or conditions of a bond or debenture issued pursuant to an agreement in writing referred to in paragraph b of section 21.12 or those of any agreement relating to such a bond or debenture have been changed at a particular time;

(b) under the terms or conditions of a bond or debenture acquired in the ordinary course of the business carried on by a specified financial institution or a partnership or trust, other than a testamentary trust, or under the terms or conditions of any agreement relating to any such bond or debenture, other than an agreement made before 24 October 1979 to which the issuer or any person related thereto was not a party, the owner thereof could at a particular time after 16 November 1978 require, either alone or together with one or more taxpayers, the repayment, acquisition, cancellation or conversion of the bond or debenture otherwise than by reason of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the bond or debenture or of any agreement that related to, and was entered into at the time of, the issuance of the bond or debenture;

(c) at a particular time a specified financial institution, or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to such an institution is a member or beneficiary, acquires a bond or debenture that i. was issued before 17 November 1978 or under an agreement in writing referred to in paragraph b of section 21.12,

ii. was issued to a person other than a corporation that was, at the time of issue,

(1) a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs a to e of the definition of "specified financial institution" in section 1, or

(2) a corporation controlled by one or more corporations referred to in subparagraph 1,

iii. was acquired from a person that was, at the particular time and at the time the person last acquired the bond or debenture, a person other than a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs a to f of the definition of "specified financial institution" in section 1, and

iv. was acquired otherwise than under an agreement in writing made before 24 October 1979; or

(d) at a particular time after 12 November 1981, a specified financial institution, or a partnership or trust of which a specified financial institution or a person related to such an institution is a member or beneficiary, acquires a bond or debenture that i. was not a bond or debenture referred to in subparagraph c,

ii. was acquired from a person that was, at the particular time, a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs a to f of the definition of "specified financial institution" in section 1, and

iii. was acquired subject to an undertaking given after 12 November 1981 that would be an undertaking referred to in section 740.2 if that section applied to an income bond or income debenture.

For the purposes of subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph c of the first paragraph, one corporation is controlled by another corporation if more than 50% of its issued share capital having full voting rights under all circumstances belongs to the other corporation, to persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length, or to the other corporation and persons with whom the other corporation does not deal at arm's length.

21.16. Notwithstanding section 119, where an amount is paid or payable after 31 December 1978 as interest or as an amount in lieu of interest in respect of any interest or dividend payable after 16 November 1978 on an income bond or an income debenture issued before 17 November 1978 or pursuant to an agreement in writing referred to in paragraph b of section 21.12, the amount is, for the purposes of section 740.1 and the second paragraph of section 845, deemed to be a dividend received on a term preferred share.

1980, c. 13, s. 3; 1986, c. 19, s. 6.

CHAPTER VIII

SPECIFIED SHAREHOLDERS AND CANADIAN CONTROLLED PRIVATE CORPORATIONS

1986, c. 15, s. 37; 1997, c. 3, s. 16.

21.17. A specified shareholder of a corporation in a taxation year is a taxpayer who owns, directly or indirectly, at any time in the year, not less than 10% of the issued shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation or of any other corporation that is related to the corporation.

21.18. The following rules apply for the purpose of determining whether or not a taxpayer is a specified shareholder of a corporation at any time:

(a) a taxpayer is deemed to own each share of the capital stock of a corporation owned at that time by a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length;

(b) each beneficiary of a trust is deemed to own that proportion of all the shares of the capital stock of a corporation that are owned by the trust at that time that the fair market value at that time of the beneficial interest of the beneficiary in the trust is of the fair market value at that time of all beneficial interests in the trust;

(c) each member of a partnership is deemed to own that proportion of all the shares of the capital stock of a corporation that are property of the partnership at that time that the fair market value at that time of the member's interest in the partnership is of the fair market value at that time of the interests of all members in the partnership;

(d) an individual who performs services on behalf of a corporation that would be carrying on a personal services business if the individual or any person related to the individual were at that time a specified

shareholder of the corporation is deemed to be a specified shareholder of the corporation at that time if the individual, or any person or partnership with whom the individual does not deal at arm's length, is, or by virtue of any arrangement, may become, entitled, directly or indirectly, to not less than 10% of the assets or the shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation or any corporation related thereto; and

(e) notwithstanding paragraph b, where a beneficiary's share of the income or capital of the trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, a power to appoint, the beneficiary is deemed to own each share of the capital stock of a corporation owned at that time by the trust.

21.19. "Canadian-controlled private corporation" means a private corporation that is a Canadian corporation other than a corporation

(a) controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by one or more persons not resident in Canada, by one or more public corporations, other than a prescribed corporation, by one or more corporations described in subparagraph c, or by any combination thereof;

(b) that would, if each share of the capital stock of a corporation that is owned by a person not resident in Canada, by a public corporation, other than a prescribed corporation, or by a corporation described in subparagraph c were owned by a particular person, be controlled by the particular person;

(c) a class of the shares of the capital stock of which is listed on a designated stock exchange; or

(d) that, for the purposes of section 6.1.1 and of subsection 1 of section 771 in respect of a particular taxation year, made a valid election under subsection 11 of section 89 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) to not be considered, for certain purposes, to be a Canadian-controlled private corporation at any time in or after a taxation year that is the particular taxation year or a preceding taxation year, and that did not revoke the election in accordance with subsection 12 of section 89 of that Act as of the end of a taxation year preceding the particular taxation year.

Chapter V.2 applies in relation to an election made under subsection 11 of section 89 of the Income Tax Act and, if applicable, in relation to the revocation of that election made under subsection 12 of section 89 of that Act.

CHAPTER IX

ASSOCIATED CORPORATIONS

1989, c. 5, s. 28; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

21.20. For the purposes of this Part, one corporation is associated with another in a taxation year if at any time in the year,

(a) one of the corporations controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, the other;

(b) both of the corporations were controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the same person or group of persons;

(c) each of the corporations was controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person and the person who so controlled one of the corporations was related to the person who so controlled the other, and either of those persons owned, in respect of each corporation, not less than 25% of the issued shares of any class, other than a specified class, of the capital stock thereof;

(d) one of the corporations was controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person and that person was related to each member of a group of persons that so controlled the other corporation, and that person owned, in respect of the other corporation, not less than 25% of the issued shares of any class, other than a specified class, of the capital stock thereof; or

(e) each of the corporations was controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a related group and each of the members of one of the related groups was related to all of the members of the other related group, and one person who was a member of both related groups owned alone, or several persons who were members of both related groups owned together, in respect of each corporation, not less than 25% of the issued shares of any class, other than a specified class, of the capital stock thereof.

21.20.1. For the purposes of section 21.20, the expression "specified class" means a class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation where, under the terms or conditions of the shares or any agreement in respect thereof,

(a) the shares are not convertible or exchangeable;

(b) the shares are non-voting;

(c) the amount of each dividend payable on the shares is a fixed amount or is determined by reference to a fixed percentage of the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued;

(d) the annual rate of the dividend on the shares, expressed as a percentage of the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued, cannot in any event exceed the prescribed rate of interest at the time the shares were issued; and

(e) the amount that any holder of the shares is entitled to receive on the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of the shares by the corporation or by any person with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length cannot exceed the aggregate of the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued and the amount of any unpaid dividends thereon.

21.20.2. For the purposes of sections 21.20 to 21.24,

(a) a group of persons in respect of a corporation means any two or more persons each of whom owns shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(b) for greater certainty,

i. a corporation that is controlled by one or more members of a particular group of persons in respect of that corporation is deemed to be controlled by that group of persons, and

ii. a corporation may be controlled by a person or a particular group of persons notwithstanding that the corporation is also controlled or deemed to be controlled by another person or group of persons;

(c) a corporation is deemed to be controlled by another corporation, a person or a group of persons at any time where the other corporation, the person or the group of persons, as the case may be, owns at that time

i. shares of the capital stock of the corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation, or

ii. common shares of the capital stock of the corporation having a fair market value of more than 50% of the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding common shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(d) shares of the capital stock of a corporation that are owned or deemed under this section to be owned at any time by another corporation are deemed to be owned at that time by each shareholder of that other corporation in a proportion equal to the proportion of all such shares that

i. the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the other corporation owned at that time by the shareholder is of

ii. the fair market value of all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the other corporation at that time;

(e) shares of the capital stock of a corporation that are owned or deemed under this section to be owned at any time by a partnership are deemed to be owned at that time by each member of the partnership in a proportion equal to the agreed proportion in respect of the member for the partnership's fiscal period that includes that time;

(f) where shares of the capital stock of a corporation are owned or deemed under this section to be owned at any time by a trust,

i. (subparagraph repealed);

ii. where a beneficiary's share of the accumulating income or capital of the trust depends upon the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, a power to appoint, such shares are deemed to be owned at that time by the beneficiary,

iii. in any case where subparagraph ii does not apply, a beneficiary is deemed at that time to own the proportion of such shares that the fair market value of the beneficial interest in the trust of the beneficiary is of the fair market value of all beneficial interests in the trust, and

iv. in the case of a trust referred to in section 467, the person referred to in that section from whom property of the trust or property for which it was substituted was directly or indirectly received is deemed to own such shares at that time; and

(g) in determining the fair market value of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, all issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation are deemed to be non-voting.

21.20.3. Shares of the capital stock of a corporation that are owned at any time by a child who is under 18 years of age are deemed, for the purposes of determining whether the corporation is associated at that time with any other corporation that is controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the father or the mother of the child or by a group of persons of which the father or mother is a member, to be owned at that time by the father or the mother, as the case may be, unless, having regard to all the circumstances, it may reasonably be considered that the child manages the business and affairs of the corporation and does so without a significant degree of influence by the father or mother.

21.20.4. For the purpose of determining if a corporation is associated with any other corporation with which it is not otherwise associated, where a person or any partnership in which the person has an interest has a right at any time under a contract or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently,

(a) to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of a corporation, or to control the voting rights of such shares, the person or partnership is, except where the right cannot be exercised at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, deemed to own the shares at that time and the shares are deemed to be issued and outstanding at that time; or

(b) to cause a corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel any shares of its capital stock owned by other shareholders of a corporation, the person or partnership is, except where the right cannot be exercised at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual, deemed at that time to have had the same position in relation to control of the corporation and ownership of shares of the capital stock of the corporation as if the shares were redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation.

21.20.5. For the purposes of sections 21.20 to 21.24, a person who owns shares in two or more corporations is deemed, as shareholder of one of the corporations, to be related to himself, herself or itself as shareholder of each of the other corporations.

21.20.6. For the purposes of section 21.20.2 and notwithstanding section 21.20.4,

(a) any share that is described in section 21.6.1 during one of the periods referred to therein or that is a share of a specified class within the meaning of section 21.20.1 is deemed not to be issued and outstanding and not to be owned by any shareholder;

(b) an amount equal to the greater of the paid-up capital of the share referred to in paragraph a and the amount that any holder of the share is entitled to receive on the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of the share by the corporation is deemed to be a liability of the corporation.

21.20.7. For the purpose of determining if two corporations are associated with each other at any time by reason of both of the corporations being controlled at that time, directly or indirectly, by the same group of persons that includes one or more specified entities, neither the shares of the capital stock of those corporations owned by any specified entity that is a member of the group of persons, nor any right referred to in section 21.20.4 held by any specified entity that is a member of the group of persons, shall be taken into account at that time.

However, where a specified entity is a member at a particular time of a group of persons that controls several corporations, and, at that time, the specified entity acts in concert with one or more members of the group of persons to control those corporations, the specified entity is deemed, for the purposes of the first paragraph in respect of those corporations, not to be a specified entity at that time.

21.20.8. For the purpose of determining if a corporation is associated with a specified entity at any time, otherwise than by virtue of section 21.25, neither the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the corporation owned by the specified entity, nor any right referred to in section 21.20.4 held by the specified entity, shall be taken into account at that time.

2002, c. 40, s. 18.

21.20.9. In sections 21.20.7 and 21.20.8, “specified entity” means any of the following entities:

(a) the Business Development Bank of Canada;

(b) the Caisse de dépôt et placement du Québec;

(c) Fondaction, le Fonds de développement de la Confédération des syndicats nationaux pour la coopération et l’emploi;

(d) the Fonds de solidarité des travailleurs et des travailleuses du Québec (FTQ);

(e) Hydro-Québec CapiTech inc.;

(f) Investissement Québec;

(g) (paragraph repealed);

(h) the Société Innovatech du Grand Montréal;

(i) the Société Innovatech du sud du Québec;

(j) the Société Innovatech Québec et Chaudière-Appalaches;

(k) the Société Innovatech Régions ressources;

(k.1) the entity governed by the Act constituting Capital régional et coopératif Desjardins (chapter C-6.1);

(l) a Québec university; or

(m) a corporation all the issued capital stock of which, except directors' qualifying shares, belongs to one or more entities described in any of subparagraphs a to l or in this subparagraph.

2002, c. 40, s. 18; 2005, c. 23, s. 34; 2010, c. 37, s. 106; 2015, c. 21, s. 98; 2015, c. 36, s. 8; 2024, c. 11, s. 45.

21.20.10. (Repealed).

21.20.11. For the purposes of section 965.66 and despite section 21.20.4, to determine whether a corporation (in this section referred to as the "issuing corporation") is associated at any time with a particular corporation, otherwise than as a consequence of the application of section 21.25, a right referred to in section 21.20.4 that is held by the particular corporation is not to be taken into account, if

(a) the Minister is of the opinion that the issuing corporation is associated with the particular corporation only because of the application of section 21.20.4; and

(b) the contract granting the particular corporation a right referred to in section 21.20.4 stipulates that the right will cease to exist by reason of a public share issue, within the meaning assigned by section 965.55, made by the issuing corporation.

21.21. Subject to the second paragraph of section 771.2.1.3, two corporations that are associated, or deemed by this section to be associated, with the same corporation at any time and that, but for this section, would not be associated with each other at that time, are deemed, for the purposes of this Part, to be associated with each other at that time.

1989, c. 5, s. 28; 1990, c. 59, s. 29; 1992, c. 1, s. 7; 1997, c. 3, s. 17; 1997, c. 14, s. 14; 2000, c. 39, s. 3; 2019, c. 14, s. 68.

21.21.1. For the purposes of this Part, where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the separate existence of two or more corporations in a taxation year is to reduce the amount of tax that would otherwise be payable under this Part, those corporations are deemed to be associated with each other in the year.

21.22. Where one corporation would, but for this section, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year by reason of both of the corporations being controlled by the same trustee, liquidator of a succession or executor and it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister that the trustee, liquidator or executor did not acquire control of the corporations as a result of one or more trusts created or successions opened by the same individual or two or more individuals not dealing with each other at arm's length, and that the trust or succession under which the trustee, liquidator or executor acquired control of each of the corporations arose only upon the death of the individual who created the trust or whose succession was opened, the two corporations are deemed, for the purposes of this Part, not to be associated with each other in the year.

21.23. Where one corporation would, but for this section, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year, by reason only that the other corporation is a trustee under a trust pursuant to which the corporation is controlled, the two corporations are deemed, for the purposes of this Part, not to be associated with each other in the year unless, at any time in the year, a settlor of the trust controlled or is a member of a related group that controlled the other corporation that is the trustee under the trust.

21.24. Where a particular corporation would, but for this section, be associated with another corporation in a taxation year by reason of being controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the other corporation or by reason of both of the corporations being controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the same person at a particular time in the year and it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister that the conditions set out in the second paragraph are fulfilled, the two corporations are deemed, for the purposes of this Part, not to be associated with each other in the year.

(a) there was in effect at the particular time an enforceable agreement or arrangement under which, upon the happening of an event or the satisfaction of a condition that it is reasonable to expect will happen or be satisfied, the particular corporation will cease to be controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the other corporation or the person so controlling the particular corporation and will be or become controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a person or group of persons with whom or with each of the members of which, as the case may be, the other corporation or the person so controlling the particular corporation was at the particular time dealing at arm's length;

(b) the purpose for which the particular corporation was at the particular time so controlled was the safeguarding of rights or interests of the other corporation or the person so controlling the particular corporation in respect of any indebtedness owing to the other corporation or the person so controlling the particular corporation the whole or any part of the principal amount of which was outstanding at the particular time, or in respect of any shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation that were owned by the other corporation or the person so controlling the particular corporation at the particular time and that were, under the enforceable agreement or arrangement referred to in subparagraph a, to be redeemed by the particular corporation or purchased by the person or group of persons referred to in subparagraph a who are to acquire control of the particular corporation.

21.25. For the purposes of this Part, where the expression "controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever," is used, a corporation is deemed to be so controlled by another corporation, a person or a group of persons at any time where, at that time, the other corporation, the person or the group of persons has any direct or indirect influence that, if exercised, would result in control in fact of the corporation.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, where the corporation and the other corporation, the person or the group of persons are dealing with each other at arm's length and the influence referred to in the first paragraph is derived from a franchise, licence, lease, distribution, supply or management agreement or other similar agreement or arrangement, the main purpose of which is to govern the relationship between the corporation and the other corporation, the person or the group of persons regarding the manner in which the business carried on by the corporation is to be conducted, the corporation shall not be considered to be controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the other corporation, the person or the group of persons by reason only of such agreement or arrangement.

21.25.1. For the purposes of this Part and for the purpose of determining whether a taxpayer has, in respect of a corporation, any direct or indirect influence that, if exercised, would result in control in fact of the corporation, the following rules apply:

(a) all factors that are relevant in the circumstances must be taken into consideration; and

(b) the determination must not be limited to, and the relevant factors need not include, whether the taxpayer has a legally enforceable right or ability to effect a change in the board of directors of the corporation, or its powers, or to exercise influence over the shareholder or shareholders who have that right or ability.

2020, c. 16, s. 30.

CHAPTER X

AMORTIZED COST OF A LOAN OR LENDING ASSET

1990, c. 59, s. 32.

21.26. Subject to section 838, "amortized cost", to a taxpayer, of a loan or lending asset at a particular time means the amount by which the aggregate of the following amounts exceeds the amount computed at that time in respect of the loan or lending asset under section 21.27:

(a) in the case of a loan made by taxpayer, the aggregate of all amounts advanced in respect of the loan at or before the particular time;

(b) in the case of a loan or lending asset acquired by the taxpayer, the cost to the taxpayer of the loan or lending asset;

(c) in the case of a loan or lending asset acquired by the taxpayer, the part of the amount by which the principal amount of the loan or lending asset at the time it was so acquired exceeds the cost to the taxpayer of the loan or lending asset that was included in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year ending at or before the particular time;

(c.1) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of the loan or lending asset that was included in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ended at or before that time in respect of changes in the value of the loan or lending asset attributable to the fluctuation in the value of a foreign currency relative to Canadian currency;

(d) where the taxpayer is an insurer, any amount in respect of the loan or lending asset that was deemed, by reason of paragraph a of section 830 as it read for the taxation year 1977, to be a gain for any taxation year ending at or before the particular time;

(e) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of the loan or lending asset that was included under paragraph i of section 87 in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year ending at or before the particular time.

21.27. The amount that must be deducted in computing the amortized cost, to a taxpayer, of a loan or lending asset at the particular time contemplated in section 21.26 is the aggregate of the following amounts:

(a) in the case of a loan or lending asset acquired by the taxpayer, the part of the amount by which the cost to the taxpayer of the loan or lending asset exceeds the principal amount of the loan or lending asset at the time it was so acquired that was deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year ending at or before the particular time;

*(a.1)* the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of the loan or lending asset that was deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ended at or before that time in respect of changes in the value of the loan or lending asset attributable to the fluctuation in the value of a foreign currency relative to Canadian currency;

(b) all amounts that the taxpayer received at or before the particular time as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of, the principal amount of the loan or lending asset;

(c) where the taxpayer is an insurer, any amount in respect of the loan or lending asset that was deemed, by reason of paragraph b of section 830 as it read for the taxation year 1977, to be a loss for any taxation year ending at or before the particular time;

(d) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of the loan or lending asset that was deducted under section 141 in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year ending at or before the particular time.

1990, c. 59, s. 32; 1996, c. 39, s. 19; 1998, c. 16, s. 21.

CHAPTER XI

TRANSFER OR LENDING OF SECURITIES

1991, c. 25, s. 5.

21.28. In this chapter,

"dealer compensation payment" means an amount received by a taxpayer as compensation for an underlying payment from a registered securities dealer resident in Canada who paid the amount in the ordinary course of a business of trading in securities, or for an underlying payment in the ordinary course of such a business of the taxpayer, where the taxpayer is such a dealer resident in Canada;

"qualified security" means

(a) a share of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that is listed on a stock exchange or of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that is a public corporation by reason of the designation of the class for the purposes of subparagraph i or ii of paragraph b of the definition of "public corporation" in subsection 1 of section 89 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement),

(b) a bond, debenture, note or similar obligation issued by a corporation described in paragraph a or by a corporation that is controlled by such a corporation,

(c) a bond, debenture, note or similar obligation issued or guaranteed by the government of any country, province, state, municipality or other political subdivision, or by a corporation, commission, agency or association controlled by such a government,

(d) a warrant, right, option or similar instrument with respect to a share described in paragraph a, or

(e) a qualified trust unit;

"qualified trust unit" means an interest, as a beneficiary under a trust, that is listed on a stock exchange;

"securities lending arrangement" means an arrangement, other than an arrangement one of the main purposes of which may reasonably be considered to be to avoid or defer the inclusion in income of any profit or gain with respect to a qualified security, under which

(a) a person (in this chapter referred to as the "lender") transfers or lends at any particular time a qualified security to another person (in this chapter referred to as the "borrower"),

(b) it may reasonably be expected, at the particular time, that the borrower will, at a later time, transfer or return to the lender a security, in this chapter referred to as an "identical security", that is identical to the security transferred or lent by the lender to the borrower at the particular time,

(c) the borrower is obligated to pay to the lender, as compensation for each particular amount paid on the security that would have been received by the borrower if the borrower had held the security throughout the period beginning after the particular time and ending at the time an identical security is transferred or returned to the lender, an amount equal to the particular amount,

(d) the lender's opportunity for gain or profit or risk of loss with respect to the security is not changed in any material respect, and

(e) if the lender and the borrower do not deal with each other at arm's length, it is intended that neither the arrangement nor any series of securities lending arrangements, loans or other transactions of which the arrangement is a part be in effect for more than 270 days;

"security distribution" means

(a) an underlying payment; or

(b) an SLA compensation payment, or a dealer compensation payment, that is deemed under section 21.32 to be an amount received as an amount described in any of subparagraphs a to c of the first paragraph of that section;

"SLA compensation payment", being a securities lending arrangement compensation payment, means an amount paid pursuant to

(a) a securities lending arrangement as compensation for an underlying payment; or

(b) a specified securities lending arrangement as compensation for an underlying payment, including, if the property transferred or lent is described in subparagraph ii of paragraph a of the definition of "specified securities lending arrangement", as compensation for a taxable dividend paid on a share described in subparagraph i of paragraph a of that definition;

"specified securities lending arrangement" means an arrangement, other than a securities lending arrangement, under which

(a) a particular person (in this definition referred to as a "transferor") transfers or lends at a particular time a property to another person (in this definition referred to as a "transferee") and the property is

i. a share described in paragraph a of the definition of "qualified security", or

ii. a property in respect of which the following conditions are met:

(1) the property is an interest in a partnership or an interest as a beneficiary under a trust, and

(2) all or part of its fair market value, immediately before the particular time, is derived, directly or indirectly, from a share described in subparagraph i;

(b) at the particular time, it may reasonably be expected that the transferee—or a person that does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, the transferee—will, after that time, transfer or return to the transferor—or a person that does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, the transferor (in this definition referred to as a "substitute transferor")—a property that is identical or substantially identical to the property transferred or lent by the transferor at the particular time; and

(c) the transferor's (together with any substitute transferor's) opportunity for gain or profit or risk of loss with respect to the property is not changed in any material respect;

"underlying payment" means an amount paid on a qualified security by the issuer of the security.

21.29. For the purposes of this Part, subject to sections 21.30 and 21.31, any transfer or loan by a lender of a security under a securities lending arrangement is deemed not to be a disposition of the security and the security is deemed to continue to be property of the lender.

For the purposes of this section, a security is deemed to include an identical security that has been transferred or returned to the lender under the securities lending arrangement.

21.30. For the purposes of this Part, where, at any time, a lender receives property in satisfaction of or in exchange for the lender's right under a securities lending arrangement to receive the transfer or return of an identical security and the property received at that time is neither an identical property nor an amount deemed, under section 21.31, to have been received as proceeds of disposition, the following rules apply:

(a) subject to paragraph b, the lender is deemed to have disposed, at that time, of the security initially transferred or lent for proceeds of disposition equal to the fair market value of the property received as consideration for the disposition of the right, other than any portion of the proceeds that is deemed to have been received by the lender as a taxable dividend;

(b) Division XIII of Chapter IV of Title IV of Book III, Division VI of Chapter IV of Title IX of Book III and Chapters V and VI of Title IX of Book III, as the case may be, apply in computing the income of the lender with respect to a disposition referred to in paragraph a as if the security initially transferred or lent had continued to be property of the lender and the lender had received the property directly.

21.31. Where, at any time, it may reasonably be considered that a lender would have received proceeds of disposition for a security that was transferred or lent under a securities lending arrangement had the security not been so transferred or lent, the lender is deemed to have disposed of the security at that time for an amount equal to such proceeds.

21.32. A particular amount that is received by a taxpayer in a taxation year as an SLA compensation payment from a person described in the second paragraph or as a dealer compensation payment, is deemed, to the extent of the underlying payment to which the amount relates, to have been received by the taxpayer in the year as,

(a) where the underlying payment is a taxable dividend paid on a share of the capital stock of a public corporation (other than an underlying payment to which subparagraph b applies), a taxable dividend on the share and, if the particular amount has the characteristics described in the third paragraph, an eligible dividend on the share;

(b) where the underlying payment is paid by a trust on a qualified trust unit issued by the trust,

i. to the extent that section 663 applied to the underlying payment, an amount of the trust's income that was paid by the trust to the taxpayer as a beneficiary under the trust and that was designated by the trust in respect of the taxpayer to the extent of a valid designation, if any, by the trust in accordance with this Part in respect of the recipient of the underlying payment, and

ii. to the extent that the underlying payment is a distribution of a property from the trust, a distribution of that property from the trust; or

(c) in any other case, interest.

A person to whom the first paragraph refers is

(a) a person resident in Canada; or

(b) a person not resident in Canada who pays the particular amount in the course of carrying on business in Canada through an establishment.

The characteristics to which the first paragraph refers in respect of the particular amount are the following:

(a) the amount is deemed, under the first paragraph, to be a taxable dividend; and

(b) the amount is received by a person resident in Canada as

i. compensation for an eligible dividend, or

ii. compensation for a taxable dividend, other than an eligible dividend, paid by a corporation to a shareholder not resident in Canada in circumstances where it may reasonably be considered that the corporation would, if that shareholder had been resident in Canada, have designated the dividend as an eligible dividend under subsection 14 of section 89 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) for the purposes of that Act.

However, the first paragraph does not apply in respect of an amount received

(a) as proceeds of disposition of a property, or

(b) by a person under an arrangement where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the person entering into the arrangement was to enable the person to receive an SLA compensation payment pursuant to a securities lending arrangement, or a dealer compensation payment, that would be deductible in computing the person's taxable income, or not included in computing the person's income, for any taxation year.

21.33. A taxpayer who, in a taxation year, pays a particular amount as an SLA compensation payment or as a dealer compensation payment, may deduct, in computing income from a business or property for the year, an amount equal to

(a) if the taxpayer is a registered securities dealer and the particular amount is deemed under section 21.32 to have been received as a taxable dividend, no more than 2/3 of the particular amount, unless the particular amount is an amount the taxpayer may deduct in computing income under section 21.33.1; or

(b) if the particular amount is in respect of an amount other than an amount that is, or is deemed under section 21.32 to have been, received as a taxable dividend,

i. where the taxpayer disposes of the borrowed security and includes the gain or loss, if any, from the disposition in computing income from a business, the particular amount, or

ii. in any other case, the lesser of the particular amount and the amount, if any, in respect of the security distribution to which the SLA compensation payment or dealer compensation payment relates that is included in computing the income, and not deducted in computing the taxable income, for any taxation year of the taxpayer or of any person to whom the taxpayer is related.

21.33.1. There may be deducted in computing a corporation's income from a business or property for a taxation year an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that the corporation becomes obligated in the year to pay to another person under an arrangement described in paragraphs a and b of the definition of "dividend rental arrangement" in section 1 and that, if paid, would be deemed under section 21.32 to have been received by the other person as a taxable dividend; and

(b) the amount of the dividends received by the corporation under the arrangement referred to in paragraph a that were identified in its fiscal return under this Part for the year as dividends in respect of which no amount was deductible because of section 740.4.1 in computing its taxable income.

21.33.2. For the purposes of this chapter,

(a) a person includes a partnership; and

(b) a partnership is deemed to be a registered securities dealer if each member of the partnership is a registered securities dealer.

The following rules apply to a corporation that is, in a taxation year, a member of a partnership:

(a) for the purposes of section 21.32, the corporation is deemed to receive, in the year, the agreed proportion in its respect, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, of each amount received by the partnership in that fiscal period, and is deemed to be the same person as the partnership in respect of the receipt of the agreed proportion of that amount; and

(b) for the purposes of section 21.33.1, the corporation is deemed to become obligated, in the year, to pay the agreed proportion in its respect, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, of the amount the partnership becomes, in that fiscal period, obligated to pay to another person under the arrangement referred to in paragraph a of that section.

The following rules apply to an individual who is, in a taxation year, a member of a partnership:

(a) for the purposes of section 21.32, the individual is deemed to receive, in the year, the agreed proportion in respect of the individual, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, of each amount received by the partnership in that fiscal period, and is deemed to be the same person as the partnership in respect of the receipt of the agreed proportion of that amount; and

(b) for the purposes of section 497, the individual is deemed to have paid, in the year, the agreed proportion in respect of the individual, for each fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year, of each amount paid by the partnership in that fiscal period that is deemed under section 21.32 to have been received by another person as a taxable dividend.

2015, c. 24, s. 21.

CHAPTER XII

QUÉBEC SALES TAX AND GOODS AND SERVICES TAX

1991, c. 25, s. 5; 1992, c. 1, s. 8.

21.34. For the purposes of this Part, where a liability for the Québec sales tax or the goods and services tax is incurred in respect of a change of use at any time of a property, the liability so incurred is deemed to have been incurred immediately after that time in respect of the acquisition of the property.

21.35. For the purposes of this Part, except section 58.2 and this section, an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax credit or rebate with respect to the goods and services tax in respect of a property or service is deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) if the amount was claimed as an input tax credit in a return filed under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. E-15) for a reporting period under that Act,

i. at the particular time that is the time that the goods and services tax in respect of the credit was paid or, if it is earlier, the time that it became payable if

(1) the particular time is in the reporting period, or

(2) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with subsection 1 of section 249 of the Excise Tax Act, is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal period, within the meaning of that Act, that includes the particular time and the taxpayer claimed the input tax credit at least 120 days before the end of the period described in paragraph a or a.0.1 of subsection 2 of section 1010, for the taxation year that includes the particular time,

ii. at the end of the reporting period, if

(1) subparagraph i does not apply, and

(2) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with subsection 1 of section 249 of the Excise Tax Act, is $500,000 or less for the taxpayer's fiscal period, within the meaning of that Act, that includes the particular time, and

iii. in any other case, on the last day of the taxpayer's first taxation year that begins after the taxation year that includes the particular time and for which the period described in paragraph a or a.0.1 of subsection 2 of section 1010 ends at least 120 days after the time that the input tax credit was claimed; or

(b) if the amount was claimed as a rebate with respect to the goods and services tax, at the time the amount was received by, or credited to, the taxpayer.

21.35.1. For the purposes of this Part, other than section 58.3 and this section, an amount claimed by a taxpayer as an input tax refund or a rebate with respect to the Québec sales tax in respect of a property or service is deemed to be assistance from a government in respect of the property or service that is received by the taxpayer

(a) where the amount is claimed as an input tax refund in a return filed under the Act respecting the Québec sales tax (chapter T-0.1) for a reporting period under that Act,

i. at the particular time that is the time that the Québec sales tax in respect of the refund was paid or, if it is earlier, the time that it became payable if

(1) the particular time is in the reporting period, or

(2) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with section 462 of that Act, is greater than $500,000 for the taxpayer's fiscal period, within the meaning of that Act, that includes the particular time and the taxpayer claimed the input tax refund at least 120 days before the end of the period described in paragraph a or a.0.1 of subsection 2 of section 1010, for the taxation year that includes the particular time,

ii. at the end of the reporting period, if

(1) subparagraph i does not apply, and

(2) the taxpayer's threshold amount, determined in accordance with section 462 of that Act, is $500,000 or less for the taxpayer's fiscal period, within the meaning of that Act, that includes the particular time, and

iii. in any other case, on the last day of the taxpayer's first taxation year that begins after the taxation year that includes the particular time and for which the period described in paragraph a or a.0.1 of subsection 2 of section 1010 ends at least 120 days after the time that the input tax refund was claimed; or

(b) where the amount is claimed as a rebate with respect to the Québec sales tax, at the time the amount was received by, or credited to, the taxpayer.

1992, c. 1, s. 10; 1997, c. 14, s. 15; 2009, c. 5, s. 37.

21.36. If the input tax credit of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. E-15) in respect of property that is a passenger vehicle, a zero-emission passenger vehicle or an aircraft is determined with reference to subsection 4 of section 202 of that Act, no reference is to be made to subparagraph iii of paragraph a of section 21.35, and subparagraphs i and ii of that paragraph a, when they apply in respect of such property, are to be read as follows:

"i. at the beginning of the first taxation year or fiscal period of the taxpayer that begins after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, in which the goods and services tax in respect of such property was considered, for the purpose of determining the input tax credit, to be payable, if the tax was considered, for the purpose of determining the input tax credit, to have become payable in the reporting period, or

ii. at the end of the reporting period, if no such tax was considered, for the purpose of determining the input tax credit, to have become payable in that period; or".

21.36.1. If the input tax refund of a taxpayer under the Act respecting the Québec sales tax (chapter T-0.1) in respect of property that is a passenger vehicle, a zero-emission passenger vehicle or an aircraft is determined with reference to section 252 of that Act, no reference is to be made to subparagraph iii of paragraph a of section 21.35.1, and subparagraphs i and ii of that paragraph a, when they apply in respect of such property, are to be read as follows:

"i. at the beginning of the first taxation year or fiscal period of the taxpayer that begins after the end of the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, in which the Québec sales tax in respect of such property was considered, for the purpose of determining the input tax refund, to be payable, if the tax was considered, for the purpose of determining the input tax refund, to have become payable in the reporting period, or

ii. at the end of the reporting period, if no such tax was considered, for the purpose of determining the input tax refund, to have become payable in that period; or".

21.36.2. An amount in respect of an input tax credit that is deemed, under subsection 5 of section 296 of the Excise Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. E-15), to have been claimed in a return or application filed under Part IX of that Act is deemed to have been so claimed for the reporting period under that Act that includes the time when an assessment referred to in that subsection is made in respect of a taxpayer.

21.36.3. An amount in respect of an input tax refund that is deemed, under section 30.5 of the Tax Administration Act (chapter A-6.002), to have been claimed is deemed to have been so claimed for the reporting period under the Act respecting the Québec sales tax (chapter T-0.1) that includes the day on which an assessment, indicating that the refund has been allocated under that section 30.5, is made in respect of a taxpayer.

21.37. For the purposes of this Part, where an amount is added at a particular time in determining the net tax of a taxpayer under Part IX of the Excise Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter E-15) in respect of an input tax credit relating to property or a service that had been previously deducted in determining the net tax of the taxpayer, that amount is deemed to be assistance repaid at the particular time in respect of the property or service pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or part of that assistance.

21.38. For the purposes of this Part, where an amount is added at a particular time in determining the net tax of a taxpayer under the Act respecting the Québec sales tax (chapter T-0.1) in respect of an input tax refund relating to property or a service that had been previously deducted in determining the net tax of the taxpayer, that amount is deemed to be assistance repaid at the particular time in respect of the property or service pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or part of that assistance.

1992, c. 1, s. 12; 1994, c. 22, s. 59; 1997, c. 14, s. 16.

CHAPTER XIII

Repealed, 2000, c. 5, s. 20.

1996, c. 39, s. 23; 2000, c. 5, s. 20.

CHAPTER XVI

QUALIFYING TRUST ANNUITY

2009, c. 15, s. 32.

21.43. A qualifying trust annuity with respect to a taxpayer means

(a) an annuity in respect of which the following conditions are met:

i. it is acquired after 31 December 2005,

ii. the annuitant is a trust that is, at the time the annuity is acquired, a lifetime benefit trust with respect to the taxpayer and the succession of an individual,

iii. it is for the life of the taxpayer (with or without a guaranteed period), or for a fixed term equal to 90 years minus the age in whole years of the taxpayer at the time it is acquired, and

iv. if it is with a guaranteed period or for a fixed term, it requires that, in the event of the death of the taxpayer during the guaranteed period or fixed term, any amounts that would otherwise be payable after the death of the taxpayer be commuted into a single payment;

(b) an annuity in respect of which the following conditions are met:

i. it is acquired after 31 December 1988,

ii. the annuitant is a trust under which the taxpayer is the sole person beneficially interested (determined without regard to any right of a person to receive an amount from the trust only on or after the death of the taxpayer) in amounts payable under the annuity,

iii. it is for a fixed term not exceeding 18 years minus the age in whole years of the taxpayer at the time it is acquired, and

iv. if it is acquired after 31 December 2005, it requires that, in the event of the death of the taxpayer during the fixed term, any amounts that would otherwise be payable after the death of the taxpayer be commuted into a single payment; and

(c) an annuity in respect of which the following conditions are met:

i. it is acquired after 31 December 2000 and before 1 January 2005 at a time at which the taxpayer was mentally or physically infirm, or in the year 2005 at a time at which the taxpayer was mentally infirm,

ii. the annuitant is a trust under which the taxpayer is the sole person beneficially interested (determined without regard to any right of a person to receive an amount from the trust only on or after the death of the taxpayer) in amounts payable under the annuity, and

iii. it is for the life of the taxpayer (with or without a guaranteed period), or for a fixed term equal to 90 years minus the age in whole years of the taxpayer at the time it is acquired.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, a trust is at a particular time a lifetime benefit trust with respect to a taxpayer and the succession of an individual if

(a) immediately before the death of the individual, the taxpayer

i. was both a spouse of the individual and mentally infirm, or

ii. was both a child or grandchild of the individual and dependent on the individual for support because of mental infirmity; and

(b) the trust is, at the particular time, a personal trust under which

i. no person other than the taxpayer may receive or otherwise obtain the enjoyment of, during the taxpayer's lifetime, all or part of the income or capital of the trust, and

ii. the trustees are empowered to pay amounts from the trust to the taxpayer, and are required—in determining whether to pay, or not to pay, an amount to the taxpayer—to consider the needs of the taxpayer, including the comfort, care and maintenance of the taxpayer.

2009, c. 15, s. 32.

BOOK II

LIABILITY FOR TAX

1972, c. 23.

22. Every person who is an individual resident in Québec on the last day of a taxation year or a corporation having an establishment in Québec at any time in a taxation year shall pay a tax on the taxable income of the individual or the corporation, as the case may be, for that taxation year.

The tax payable under section 750 by an individual referred to in the first paragraph who carries on a business in Canada but outside Québec is equal to the proportion of the tax that would be determined under this section but for this paragraph that the individual's income earned in Québec is of the individual's income earned in Québec and elsewhere, as determined by the regulations.

1972, c. 23, s. 17; 1972, c. 26, s. 34; 1973, c. 17, s. 4; 1984, c. 15, s. 14; 1988, c. 4, s. 18; 1989, c. 5, s. 29; 1993, c. 64, s. 7; 1995, c. 63, s. 16; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 24; 2001, c. 53, s. 10.

23. When an individual ceases to be resident in Canada in a taxation year, the last day of the individual's taxation year is, for the purposes of section 22, the last day on which the individual was resident in Canada.

The taxable income, for the taxation year, of an individual referred to in the first paragraph who was resident in Québec on that day is the amount by which the amount determined under the third paragraph exceeds the aggregate of

(a) the deductions permitted by sections 727, 728.1, 729 and 733.0.0.1 and, to the extent that they relate to amounts included in computing an amount referred to in the third paragraph, the deductions permitted by sections 725, 725.1.2 and 725.2 to 725.4; and

(b) any other deduction permitted by Book IV, to the extent that

i. the deduction can reasonably be considered to be attributable to the part of the year throughout which the individual was resident in Canada, or

ii. if all or substantially all of the individual's income for the part of the year throughout which the individual was not resident in Canada is included in the amount referred to in the third paragraph, the deduction can reasonably be considered to be attributable to that part of the year.

The amount to which the second paragraph refers is the amount that would be the individual's income for the year if, for the part of the year throughout which the individual was not resident in Canada, only the following elements were taken into account:

(a) the elements described in section 1090; and

(b) the income that would be included in computing the individual's income earned in Canada for the year under subparagraph g of the first paragraph of section 1090 if the part of the year throughout which the individual was not resident in Canada were a whole taxation year.

24. The taxable income of an individual referred to in section 22 for a taxation year is the individual's income for the year plus the additions provided for in Book IV and minus the deductions permitted by that Book, except where the individual was resident in Canada for only part of that taxation year. In the latter case, the individual's taxable income shall be computed in the manner described in section 23, whether the individual is an individual who became resident in Canada in the year or an individual who ceased to be resident in Canada in the year.

1972, c. 23, s. 19; 1972, c. 26, s. 36; 1985, c. 25, s. 20; 1989, c. 5, s. 31; 1995, c. 49, s. 18; 1998, c. 16, s. 26.

25. Every individual resident in Canada but outside Québec on the last day of a taxation year shall, if the individual carried on a business in Québec at any time in the year, pay a tax on the individual's income earned in Québec for the year as determined under Part II.

The tax payable under section 750 by an individual referred to in the first paragraph is equal to the portion of the tax that the individual would pay, but for this paragraph, under that section on the individual's taxable income determined under section 24 if the individual were resident in Québec, that is the proportion, which is not to exceed 1, that that income earned in Québec is of the amount by which the aggregate of the amount that would have been the individual's income, computed without reference to section 1029.8.50, had the individual been resident in Québec on the last day of the taxation year and the amount that the individual included in computing that taxable income under any of sections 726.43 to 726.43.2, exceeds any amount deducted by the individual under any of sections 726.20.2, 726.28, 737.16, 737.18.10, 737.21, 737.22.0.0.3, 737.22.0.0.7, 737.22.0.3, 737.22.0.4.7, 737.22.0.7, 737.25 and 737.28 in computing that taxable income.

For the purposes of this section, where an individual ceases to be resident in Canada in a taxation year, the last day of the individual's taxation year is the last day on which the individual was resident in Canada.

1972, c. 23, s. 20; 1972, c. 26, s. 37; 1973, c. 17, s. 5; 1984, c. 15, s. 15; 1987, c. 21, s. 9; 1988, c. 4, s. 19; 1989, c. 5, s. 32; 1993, c. 64, s. 8; 1995, c. 1, s. 14; 1995, c. 63, s. 17; 1997, c. 14, s. 17; 1997, c. 85, s. 34; 1998, c. 16, s. 27; 1999, c. 83, s. 27; 2000, c. 39, s. 264; 2002, c. 40, s. 19; 2003, c. 9, s. 15; 2004, c. 21, s. 42; 2006, c. 36, s. 23; 2010, c. 25, s. 8; 2013, c. 10, s. 16; 2017, c. 29, s. 28; 2021, c. 14, s. 24; 2022, c. 23, s. 31.

26. Every individual who was not resident in Canada at any time in a taxation year and who, in the taxation year or a previous taxation year, was employed in Québec, carried on a business in Québec or disposed of a taxable Québec property, shall pay a tax on the individual's income earned in Québec for the year as determined under Part II.

The tax payable under sections 750 and 752.12 to 752.16 by an individual referred to in the first paragraph is equal to the proportion, which cannot exceed 1, of the tax that would, but for this paragraph, be payable under those sections on the individual's taxable income earned in Canada as determined under Part II if the individual were resident in Québec, that the individual's income earned in Québec is of the individual's income earned in Canada as determined in accordance with section 1090.

26.1. The taxable income of a corporation referred to in section 22 for a taxation year is its income for the year plus the additions provided for in Book IV and minus the deductions permitted by the said Book.

27. Any corporation not contemplated in section 22 and not resident in Canada that disposes in a taxation year of taxable Québec property shall pay a tax at the rate established in subsection 1 of section 771 on the amounts described in subparagraphs d, e, f, h and l of the first paragraph of section 1089 that are applicable thereto and on the amount by which the aggregate of its taxable capital gains exceeds the aggregate of its allowable capital losses from the disposition of such property.

Where a corporation contemplated in section 22 has an establishment outside Québec, its tax payable is equal to the proportion of the tax established under subsection 1 of section 771 that the business it carries on in Québec is of the entire business it carries on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere, as determined under subsection 2 of section 771.

BOOK III

COMPUTATION OF INCOME

1972, c. 23.

TITLE I

BASIC RULES

1972, c. 23.

28. A taxpayer shall, to determine the income of the taxpayer for a taxation year for the purposes of this Part,

(a) add the aggregate of the taxpayer's income for the year, other than the taxable capital gains from dispositions of property, from each source inside and outside Canada;

(b) add to the aggregate so determined the amount by which

i. the taxpayer's taxable capital gains for the year from dispositions of property other than precious property and the taxpayer's taxable net gain for the year from dispositions of precious property, exceed

ii. the amount by which the taxpayer's allowable capital losses for the year from dispositions of property other than precious property exceed the taxpayer's allowable business investment losses for the year; and

(c) subtract from the total so determined

i. the deductions permitted by Title VI in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, except those taken into account in computing the aggregate of the income referred to in paragraph a and, if there is any remainder,

ii. the losses incurred in the year by the taxpayer from an office, employment, business or property and the taxpayer's allowable business investment losses for the year;

iii. (subparagraph replaced).

1972, c. 23, s. 23; 1979, c. 18, s. 4; 1982, c. 56, s. 10; 1987, c. 67, s. 8; 1998, c. 16, s. 29.

28.1. Where the amount determined under section 28 for a taxation year in respect of a taxpayer does not exceed zero, the taxpayer is deemed, for the purposes of this Part, to have income for the year in an amount equal to zero.

29. Where income or loss is from an office, employment, business, property or other source in Canada or in another place, or where income or loss is from an office, employment or business performed or carried on partly in Canada and partly in another place, the taxpayer shall compute separately the income or loss from each source according to the place and shall only apply to it such part of the deductions provided by this Part as may reasonably be applied to such source according to the place.

Notwithstanding the first paragraph, the deductions permitted by sections 334 to 358.0.4 shall, subject to the third paragraph, be applied to the whole income of the taxpayer.

For the purposes of Part II and sections 671, 671.1 and 772.2 to 772.13, in respect of income or loss from a source in Canada or in another place or from an office, employment or business, performed or carried on partly in Canada and partly in another place,

(a) subject to subparagraph b, the deductions permitted in computing the income of the taxpayer under this Part, except those permitted by paragraphs c to e and j of section 336, sections 336.0.3 and 336.0.4, paragraphs b to g and i of section 339 and sections 340 and 341, shall be applied separately to the income from each of those places;

(b) the deductions permitted by paragraphs a and b of section 657 shall not be applied to income from a source in a country other than Canada.

1972, c. 23, s. 24; 1990, c. 59, s. 33; 1994, c. 22, s. 60; 1995, c. 1, s. 15; 1995, c. 63, s. 18; 1997, c. 85, s. 35; 1998, c. 16, s. 30; 2005, c. 38, s. 51; 2011, c. 1, s. 22.

30. (Repealed).

31. For the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year, and unless otherwise prescribed,

(a) any deduction allowed to the taxpayer under a provision of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year in respect of which the taxpayer or, in the case of a partnership, each of the members, was not subject to tax under this Part, is deemed to have also been allowed to the taxpayer under the corresponding provision of this Part in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year;

(b) where, for the purposes of Part I of the Income Tax Act, the cost, the capital cost or the cost amount of property, to the taxpayer, determined as a consequence of the application of a particular provision of that Act in respect of a transaction or event that occurred during a preceding taxation year described in paragraph a, is different from that which it would have been at that time but for that provision, the corresponding provision of this Part is deemed, for the purpose of determining the cost, the capital cost or the cost amount, as the case may be, of the property to the taxpayer for the purposes of this Part, to have applied in respect of the property at the same time and for the same amounts as for the application of the particular provision in respect of the property.

31.1. The amounts referred to in the fourth paragraph that are to be used for a taxation year subsequent to the taxation year 2007 are to be adjusted annually in such a manner that each amount used for that taxation year is equal to the total of the amount used for the preceding taxation year and the product obtained by multiplying that latter amount by the factor determined by the formula

(A/B) - 1.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the average all-items Consumer Price Index for Québec excluding alcoholic beverages, tobacco products and recreational cannabis for the 12-month period that ended on 30 September of the taxation year preceding that for which an amount is to be adjusted; and

(b) B is the average all-items Consumer Price Index for Québec excluding alcoholic beverages, tobacco products and recreational cannabis for the 12-month period that ended on 30 September of the taxation year immediately before the year preceding that for which the amount is to be adjusted.

If the factor determined by the formula in the first paragraph has more than four decimal places, only the first four decimal digits are retained and the fourth is increased by one unit if the fifth is greater than 4.

The amounts to which the first paragraph refers are

(a) the amount of $300 mentioned in paragraph e.1 of section 39;

(b) the amount of $1,120 mentioned in the first paragraph of section 39.6;

(c) the amount of $1,000 mentioned in subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 75.2.1; and

(d) the amount of $1,000 mentioned in the first paragraph of section 358.0.3.

If the amount that results from the adjustment provided for in the first paragraph is not a multiple of $5, it is to be rounded to the nearest multiple of $5 or, if it is equidistant from two such multiples, to the higher of the two.

2009, c. 15, s. 33; 2012, c. 8, s. 41; 2015, c. 24, s. 22; 2020, c. 5, s. 214.

TITLE II

INCOME OR LOSS FROM AN OFFICE OR EMPLOYMENT

1972, c. 23.

CHAPTER I

1972, c. 23.

32. Subject to this Part, an individual's income for a taxation year from an office or employment is the salary, wages and other remuneration, including gratuities, received by the individual in the year.

1972, c. 23, s. 26; 1998, c. 16, s. 31.

33. An individual's loss for a taxation year from an office or employment is the amount of such loss computed, with the necessary modifications, by applying the provisions of this Part respecting computation of income from that source.

34. Every amount an individual receives from another person while in the employment of the latter is presumed received as remuneration for services rendered. The same applies to every amount received in payment of an obligation arising out of an agreement between two persons immediately prior to, during or immediately after a period that one person is in the employment of the other.

35. The presumption provided in section 34 may be rebutted if it is established that, irrespective of when the agreement, if any, was made and the terms thereof, the payment was not made for services rendered or to be rendered, to prompt an individual to accept an office or employment or in consideration for a covenant with reference to what the employee is, or is not, to do before the employee becomes or after the employee ceases to be an employee.

35.1. If an amount, other than an amount to which section 37 applies because of section 47.11, is receivable at the end of a taxation year by an individual in respect of a covenant, agreed to by the individual more than 36 months before the end of the year, with reference to what the individual is, or is not, to do, and the amount would be included in computing the individual's income for the year under this Title if it were received by the individual in the year, the amount

(a) is deemed to be received by the individual at the end of the year for services rendered as an employee or during the period of employment; and

(b) is deemed not to be received at any other time.

2009, c. 5, s. 41.

CHAPTER II

INCLUSIONS

1972, c. 23.

DIVISION I

GENERALITIES

1972, c. 23.

36. An individual shall, in computing the income of the individual for the year from an office or employment, include all amounts the individual receives or benefits from in that year or which are allocated to the individual for that year, and that are provided for in this chapter.

Such amounts include the fees received by the individual because of, or in the course of, an office or employment, including director's fees.

1972, c. 23, s. 30; 1983, c. 43, s. 3; 1998, c. 16, s. 33.

36.1. (Repealed).

1995, c. 1, s. 16; 1995, c. 63, s. 20; 1997, c. 85, s. 37.

DIVISION II

FRINGE BENEFITS

1972, c. 23.

37. The amounts required to be included in computing an individual's income are the value of board, lodging and other benefits of any kind whatever received or enjoyed by the individual, or by a person who does not deal at arm's length with the individual, because of, or in the course of, the individual's office or employment and the allowances received by the individual, including any amount received, without having to account for its use, for personal or living expenses or for any other purpose.

37.0.1. For the purposes of section 37, a benefit is deemed to have been enjoyed by an individual at any time an obligation issued by any debtor, including the individual, is settled or extinguished and the value of that benefit is deemed to be the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation.

In the first paragraph, the "forgiven amount" at any time in respect of an obligation issued by a debtor has the meaning that would be assigned by section 485 if

(a) the obligation were a commercial obligation, within the meaning assigned by section 485, issued by the debtor;

(b) no amount included in computing income because of the obligation being settled or extinguished at that time were taken into account;

(c) the definition of "forgiven amount" in section 485 were read without reference to paragraphs f and h; and

(d) section 485.3 were read without reference to subparagraphs b and r of the first paragraph of that section.

37.0.1.1. For the purposes of section 37, the value of the benefit received or enjoyed by an individual for a taxation year where, because of a previous, the current or an intended office or employment of the individual, the individual is provided coverage during the year under a plan for the insurance of persons, is equal to

(a) in the case of a plan for the insurance of persons which provides coverage through insurance with an insurer, the amount established for the year under sections 37.0.1.2 and 37.0.1.3 in respect of the individual in relation to the plan;

(b) in the case of a plan for the insurance of persons which provides coverage otherwise than through insurance with an insurer, the amount established for the year under sections 37.0.1.4 to 37.0.1.6 in respect of the individual in relation to the plan.

For the purposes of this section and sections 37.0.1.2 to 37.0.1.6, the following rules apply:

(a) any premium paid in respect of an individual, because of the individual's office or employment with an employer, under a plan for the insurance of persons, by a person to whom the employer is related, is deemed to be a premium paid by the employer and not by the person to whom the employer is related;

(b) any amount paid as a dividend, return or refund of premiums, under a plan for the insurance of persons, to a person to whom the employer is related, in relation to the coverage and benefits enjoyed by the employees of the employer under the plan, is deemed to be a dividend, a return or a refund of premiums paid, to the employer and not to the person to whom the employer is related;

(c) where, in a taxation year, an employer pays, under a plan for the insurance of persons, an additional premium in respect of the coverage or benefits under the plan enjoyed by the employees for a period prior to that year, the additional premium is deemed to be a premium paid at that time in respect of the coverage or benefits enjoyed by the employees for that year and not in respect of the coverage or benefits enjoyed by the employees for the preceding year;

(d) "tax" does not include tax payable by the employer under Part IV.1 or Part VI, if any.

37.0.1.2. The amount contemplated in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 37.0.1.1 in respect of an individual for a taxation year in relation to a plan for the insurance of persons, means an amount equal to the amount by which

(a) the aggregate of the premium, other than the portion of the premium which can reasonably be attributed to coverage related to the cost that would be assumed by the Régie de l'assurance maladie du Québec on behalf of an insured person in respect of insured services under the Health Insurance Act (chapter A-29), paid by the employer of the individual in respect of the coverage and benefits enjoyed by the individual for any period of the year under the plan, and the tax relating to that premium, exceeds

(b) the aggregate of

i. the portion of the aggregate described in subparagraph a that the individual has reimbursed to the employer during the year, and

ii. the amount determined for the year in respect of the individual in accordance with section 37.0.1.3 in relation to the plan.

However, where, for a particular period, included in the year, throughout which the individual is not entitled to benefit from the provisions of the Health Insurance Act, the benefits enjoyed by the individual in relation to particular coverage under the plan covers at least all the services that would be insured in the individual's respect under the said Act for the particular period if the individual were entitled to benefit from the provisions of that Act at that time, the amount referred to in subparagraph a of the first paragraph for the particular period in respect of the individual in relation to the particular coverage is deemed to be the amount that would otherwise be determined under that subparagraph for the particular period in respect of the individual in relation to the particular coverage if the exception provided for therein were disregarded, if the premium referred to therein were reduced by the amount prescribed for the particular period in respect of the individual in relation to the particular coverage and if the tax referred to therein were reduced to the portion of the tax which can reasonably be attributed to the premium so reduced.

37.0.1.3. The amount contemplated in subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 37.0.1.2 in respect of an individual for a taxation year in relation to a plan for the insurance of persons, is the portion, hereinafter described, of the amount called "particular amount" in this section, that corresponds to the amount by which the aggregate of the amount paid during the year to the employer of the individual as a dividend, return or refund of premiums under the plan and the related tax, exceeds the portion, if any, of that aggregate that can reasonably be attributed to the share of the employer's employees in the cost of the plan that was distributed to the employees in the year:

(a) where the amount paid to the employer as a dividend, return or refund of premiums is based on the experience of all coverage and benefits provided by the plan, the proportion of the particular amount that the premium paid by the employer in respect of the coverage and benefits enjoyed by the individual for any period of the year under the plan is of the premium paid by the employer in respect of the coverage and benefits enjoyed by all the employer's employees for any period of the year under the plan;

(b) where the amount paid to the employer as a dividend, return or refund of premiums is based on the experience of only certain coverage and benefits provided by the plan, called "particular coverage and benefits" in this paragraph, the proportion of the particular amount that the premium paid by the employer in respect of the particular coverage and benefits enjoyed by the individual for any period of the year under the plan is of the premium paid by the employer in respect of the particular coverage and benefits enjoyed by all the employer's employees for any period of the year under the plan.

37.0.1.4. The amount contemplated in subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 37.0.1.1 in respect of an individual for a taxation year in relation to a plan for the insurance of persons, means the amount by which the aggregate of the following amounts exceeds the total of the amounts paid by the individual in the year for any period, after 20 May 1993, of the year or of a preceding year as a contribution under the plan:

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which corresponds to the amount determined, in respect of the particular coverage and benefits enjoyed by the individual in the year under the plan, by the formula

(A × B) / C;

(b) the amount determined by the formula

(D × E) / F.

For the purposes of the formulas set forth in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of the benefits paid in the year for any period, after 20 May 1993, of the year or of a previous year in respect of all the employees of the employer of the individual who enjoy the particular coverage and benefits under the plan, and the related tax;

(b) B is the number of days of the year during which the individual enjoys the particular coverage and benefits under the plan;

(c) C is the number, for each day of the year, of all the employees of the employer of the individual who enjoy the particular coverage and benefits under the plan;

(d) D is the aggregate of the expenses, except those relating to the establishment of or a modification to the plan, incurred in respect of a third person for the administration or management of the plan for any period of the year, and the related tax, if any;

(e) E is the number of days of the year during which the individual enjoys coverage under the plan;

(f) F is the number, for each day of the year, of all employees of the employer of the individual who enjoy coverage under the plan.

37.0.1.5. For the purposes of section 37.0.1.4,

(a) the portion of a benefit, which can reasonably be considered to relate to the cost that would be assumed by the Régie de l'assurance maladie du Québec on behalf of an insured person in respect of insured services under the Health Insurance Act (chapter A-29), is deemed not to be a benefit contemplated in subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 37.0.1.4;

(b) where the risk to an employer, or to a person related to the employer, in relation to a particular plan for the insurance of persons, is reduced by the fact that the employer, or the person related to the employer, has purchased excess of loss insurance from an insurer,

i. a benefit paid by the insurer under the excess of loss insurance in relation to the particular plan is deemed not to be a benefit contemplated in subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 37.0.1.4 in relation to that plan, and

ii. the portion of the premium paid by the employer, which can reasonably be attributed to particular coverage and benefits under the particular plan, in relation to the excess of loss insurance for any period of a year, is deemed to be a benefit contemplated for the year in subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 37.0.1.4 in relation to such coverage and benefits under the particular plan, except if the excess of loss insurance covers all the coverage and benefits provided under the particular plan, in which case the premium is deemed to constitute expenses contemplated for the year in subparagraph d of the second paragraph of the said section 37.0.1.4 in respect of the particular plan;

(c) where, for a particular period, included in the year, throughout which the individual is not entitled to benefit from the provisions of the Health Insurance Act, the particular benefits enjoyed by the individual in relation to particular coverage under the plan covers at least all the services that would be insured in respect of the individual under the said Act for the particular period if the individual were entitled to benefit from the provisions of that Act at that time, subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 37.0.1.4 shall, in respect of such particular coverage and benefits, apply without reference to paragraph a and read as follows:

"(a) A is the aggregate of the amount by which the benefits paid in the year for any period, after 20 May 1993, of the year or of a previous year in respect of all the employees of the employer of the individual who enjoy the particular coverage and benefits under the plan exceeds the amount prescribed in respect of the particular coverage and benefits, and the portion of the related tax which can reasonably be attributed to the excess amount;".

37.0.1.6. For the purposes of section 37.0.1.4, where the plan for the insurance of persons provides identical coverage to the employer's employees under Québec jurisdiction and to the employer's other employees, the employer must elect, from among the following data in the employer's possession, the data which will best reflect the coverage provided under the plan to those of the employer's employees under Québec jurisdiction:

(a) actual data relating to all the employees of the employer who enjoy coverage under the plan;

(b) actual data relating to the employer's employees under Québec jurisdiction who enjoy coverage under the plan.

In the first paragraph, the expression "employee under Québec jurisdiction" of an employer means an employee of the employer who reports for work in an establishment of the employer situated in Québec, and an employee of the employer who is not required to report for work at an establishment of the employer but whose wages are paid or deemed to be paid from such an establishment situated in Québec.

37.0.2. An individual shall, in computing the income of the individual for the year from an office or employment, include all amounts received by the individual in the year as an allowance or reimbursement in respect of an amount that would, if the individual were entitled to no reimbursements or allowances, be deductible under Chapter III in computing the individual's income, except to the extent that the amounts so received are otherwise included in computing the individual's income for the year or are taken into account in computing the amount that is deducted under Chapter III by the individual for the year or a preceding taxation year.

37.0.3. Without restricting the generality of sections 36 and 37, an individual shall, in computing the income of the individual for the year from an office or employment, include

(a) the value of any indemnity for meals or transportation between the individual's ordinary place of residence and the individual's work location received by the individual in the year, as an allowance or refund or under any other form, for overtime worked in the course of performing the duties of the individual's office or employment; and

(b) any amount that is the amount by which the value of a meal or service of transportation between the individual's ordinary place of residence and the individual's work location supplied in the year for overtime worked in performing the duties of the individual's office or employment exceeds the amount the individual pays in respect of the meal or service of transportation.

However, the individual is not required in computing the income of the individual to include an amount referred to in the first paragraph in relation to overtime if it was worked at the request of the employer for a scheduled period of at least two consecutive hours and are infrequent or occasional in nature and if,

(a) in the case of an indemnity for meals or a meal supplied,

i. the value of the indemnity for meals or of the meal supplied is reasonable, and

ii. in the case of an indemnity for meals, the indemnity is the full or partial refund, upon presentation of vouchers, of the meal expenses incurred by the individual because of the overtime; and

(b) in the case of an indemnity for transportation or a service of transportation supplied,

i. public transit is not available or it is reasonable to consider that, under the circumstances, the individual's safety would be jeopardized because of the time at which the transportation is provided, and

ii. in the case of an indemnity for transportation, the indemnity is the full or partial refund, upon presentation of vouchers, of the taxi transportation expenses incurred by the individual because of the overtime to travel between the individual's ordinary place of residence and the individual's work location.

37.0.4. An individual shall, in computing the income of the individual for the year from an office or employment, include any amount that the individual received from the individual's employer in the year under a public compensation plan and that may not be considered to be an amount received as an income replacement indemnity solely because no employer may obtain the reimbursement of that amount.

37.1. An individual referred to in section 487.1 shall, in computing the income of the individual for the year from an office or employment, include every amount deemed by section 487.1 to be a benefit received in the year by the individual.

1978, c. 26, s. 4; 1983, c. 44, s. 14; 1998, c. 16, s. 40.

37.1.1. An amount paid or the value of assistance provided by any person because of, or in the course of, an individual's office or employment in respect of the cost of, the financing of, the use of or the right to use, a residence is, for the purposes of this division, a benefit received by the individual because of the office or employment.

37.1.2. In this division,

"eligible housing loss" in respect of a residence designated by an individual means a housing loss in respect of an eligible relocation of the individual or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the individual and, for the purposes of this definition, no more than one residence may be so designated in respect of an eligible relocation;

"housing loss" at any time in respect of a residence of an individual means the amount by which the greater of the adjusted cost base of the residence at that time to the individual or to another person who does not deal at arm's length with the individual and the highest fair market value of the residence within the six-month period that ends at that time exceeds

(a) if the residence is disposed of by the individual or the other person before the end of the first taxation year that begins after that time, the lesser of the proceeds of disposition of the residence and the fair market value of the residence at that time; and

(b) in any other case, the fair market value of the residence at that time.

37.1.3. For the purposes of section 37, an amount paid at any time in respect of a housing loss other than an eligible housing loss to or on behalf of an individual or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the individual because of, or in the course of, an office or employment is deemed to be a benefit received by the individual at that time because of the office or employment.

37.1.4. For the purposes of section 37, an amount paid at any time in a taxation year in respect of an eligible housing loss to or on behalf of an individual or a person who does not deal at arm's length with the individual because of, or in the course of, an office or employment is deemed to be a benefit received by the individual at that time because of the office or employment to the extent of the amount by which one half of the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is so paid in the year or in a preceding taxation year exceeds $15,000 exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included in computing the individual's income because of this section for a preceding taxation year in respect of the loss.

37.1.5. For the purposes of section 37, the value of the benefit received or enjoyed by an individual for a taxation year because of, or in the course of, the individual's office or employment is deemed to be equal,

(a) for all the gifts, other than excluded gifts, received in the year by the individual from the individual's employer for one or more special occasions, such as Christmas, an anniversary, a wedding or similar occasion, to the amount by which the value otherwise determined of the benefit for the year exceeds the lesser of

i. $500, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the value of such a gift; and

(b) for all the awards, other than excluded awards, received in the year by the individual from the individual's employer in recognition of certain achievements, such as reaching a set number of years of service, meeting or exceeding safety standards or reaching similar objectives, to the amount by which the value otherwise determined of the benefit for the year exceeds the lesser of

i. $500, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the value of such an award.

In the first paragraph, an excluded gift or an excluded award means a gift or an award that

(a) is in cash;

(b) may easily be converted into cash, except a gift coupon or gift certificate, including a smart card and an electronic gift card, that must be used to purchase a property or a service from one or more designated merchants; or

(c) constitutes a benefit that is referred to in another special provision of this chapter or that may reasonably be considered, without reference to section 34, to be a benefit received or enjoyed by the individual as consideration for the individual's performance of work.

37.2. For the purposes of section 37, where an employer or former employer of an individual makes a top-up disability payment, within the meaning assigned by section 43.0.2, in respect of the individual, the payment is deemed not to be a benefit received or enjoyed by the individual.

2000, c. 5, s. 22.

38. An individual is not required in computing income to include the value of benefits derived from contributions paid in respect of the individual by the individual's employer to or under

(a) a registered pension plan;

*(a.1)* a pooled registered pension plan;

(b) a group insurance plan, in relation to coverage against the loss of all or part of the income from an office or employment;

(b.1*)* an employee life and health trust, to the extent that it may reasonably be considered that those contributions are attributable to coverage against the loss of all or part of the income from an office or employment;

(c) (subparagraph repealed);

(d) a supplementary unemployment benefit plan;

(e) a deferred profit sharing plan; or

(f) (subparagraph repealed);

(g) a multi-employer insurance plan.

Similarly, the individual is not required in computing the individual's income to include the value of any benefit derived from group coverage which, otherwise than under an insurance plan referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph, is provided to the individual under a plan, against the loss of all or part of the income from an office or employment, or the value of any benefit derived from the payment by the individual's employer of the tax provided for under the Retail Sales Tax Act (chapter I-1) or under Title III of the Act respecting the Québec sales tax (chapter T-0.1), in respect of such group coverage or of the contributions paid by the individual's employer under subparagraph b or g of the first paragraph in respect of the individual.

Furthermore, the individual is not required in computing the individual's income to include the value of any benefit

(a) derived from a retirement compensation arrangement, an employee benefit plan or an employee trust;

(b) derived from a salary deferral arrangement, except to the extent that the value of the benefit is included under section 37 because of section 47.11;

(c) in respect of the use of an automobile, unless the benefit is related to the use of an automobile owned or leased by the individual and is not referred to in section 41.1.2;

(d) derived from counselling services received by the individual or a person related to the individual in respect of stress management or the use or consumption of tobacco, drugs or alcohol, other than a benefit attributable to an outlay or expense to which section 134 applies, or from counselling services in respect of the re-employment or retirement of the individual;

(e) derived from the individual's participation in a training activity the cost of which is borne by the individual's employer, if it is reasonable to consider that the training significantly benefits the individual's employer; or

(f) received or enjoyed by a person, other than the individual, under a program offered by the individual's employer to help persons continue their studies, if the individual deals at arm's length with the employer and it is reasonable to conclude that the benefit is not a substitute for salary, wages or other remuneration of the individual.

1972, c. 23, s. 32; 1972, c. 26, s. 39; 1982, c. 5, s. 16; 1983, c. 44, s. 15; 1986, c. 15, s. 38; 1989, c. 77, s. 10; 1990, c. 59, s. 34; 1991, c. 25, s. 7; 1993, c. 16, s. 23; 1993, c. 64, s. 12; 1995, c. 49, s. 19; 1995, c. 63, s. 261; 1997, c. 31, s. 7; 1998, c. 16, s. 41; 1999, c. 83, s. 28; 2011, c. 6, s. 113; 2015, c. 21, s. 102.

38.1. An individual is not required in computing the individual's income to include the value of benefits received from the individual's employer and derived from

(a) the total or partial reimbursement, after 23 March 2006, of the cost of an eligible transit pass taking the form of a subscription for a minimum period of one month, valid after that date, that the individual acquired with a view to using it to commute between the individual's ordinary place of residence and the individual's work location;

(b) the total or partial reimbursement, after 23 March 2006, of the cost of an eligible paratransit pass, valid after that date, that the individual acquired with a view to using it to commute between the individual's ordinary place of residence and the individual's work location; or

(c) the supply, after 23 March 2006, of an eligible transit pass or eligible paratransit pass, if the pass is supplied to the individual primarily to commute between the individual's ordinary place of residence and the individual's work location.

In this section, "eligible paratransit pass" and "eligible transit pass" have the meaning assigned by section 156.9.

2006, c. 36, s. 24.

38.2. An individual is not required in computing the individual's income to include the value of benefits resulting from the use of a shared transportation service of a taxpayer who is the individual's employer in respect of which the taxpayer may deduct, under section 156.10, an amount in computing the taxpayer's income from a business.

In this section, "shared transportation service" has the meaning assigned by section 156.10.

2013, c. 10, s. 17.

38.3. Despite subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 38, an individual is required in computing the individual's income for the year to include the value of benefits derived from contributions paid in respect of the individual in the year by the individual's employer under a group insurance plan, in relation to coverage against the loss of all or part of the income from an office or employment, to the extent that the benefit arising from that plan is not payable periodically.

2015, c. 21, s. 103.

39. An individual is not required to include in computing the individual's income

(a) travel, personal or living expense allowances

i. expressly established by the laws of Canada,

ii. paid under the Act respecting public inquiry commissions (chapter C-37), or

iii. paid under the authority of the Treasury Board of Canada to a person who was appointed or whose services were engaged pursuant to the Inquiries Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. I-11) in respect of the discharge of the person's duties relating to such appointment or engagement;

(b) travel and separation allowances received by the individual under service regulations as a member of the Canadian Forces;

(c) representation or other special allowances received by the individual in respect of a period of absence from Canada as a person described in paragraph b, c or d of section 8;

(d) representation or other special allowances received by the individual as an agent-general of a province in respect of a period while the individual was in Ottawa in such capacity;

(e) reasonable allowances received by the individual as a minister or clergyman in charge of or ministering to a diocese, parish or congregation for transportation incident to the discharge of the duties of that office or employment;

(e.1) allowances for the board and lodging received by the individual, to a maximum total of $300 for each month of a taxation year, if

i. the individual is, in that month, a registered participant with, or member of, a sports team or recreation program of the employer in respect of which participation or membership is restricted to persons under 21 years of age,

ii. the allowance is paid because of the individual's participation or membership and is not attributable to services of the individual as a coach, instructor, trainer, referee, administrator or other similar occupation,

iii. the employer is a registered charity or a person described in section 996, and

iv. the allowance is reasonably attributable to the cost to the individual of living away from the place where the employee would, but for the employment, ordinarily reside;

(f) (paragraph repealed);

(f.1) allowances not exceeding a reasonable amount received by the individual for the purchase or care of distinctive clothing the individual is required to wear, under the terms of the individual's contract of employment, in the performance of the duties of the employment;

(f.2) allowances received by the individual for expenses incidental to the individual's relocation, by reason of a change in the location of employment with the individual's employer, up to an amount not exceeding an amount equal to two weeks' salary, calculated on the basis of the salary paid to the individual on the date of reassignment; and

(g) prescribed travel, personal, living or representation expense allowances and any other amount prescribed in respect of such expenses.

1972, c. 23, s. 33; 1978, c. 26, s. 5; 1982, c. 5, s. 17; 1993, c. 64, s. 13; 1995, c. 63, s. 21; 1997, c. 85, s. 38; 1998, c. 16, s. 251; 2003, c. 9, s. 18; 2005, c. 38, s. 53; 2009, c. 15, s. 36.

39.1. (Repealed).

39.2. An individual who is a member of the National Assembly or of the legislature of another province is not required in computing the individual's income for a taxation year to include the portion of the allowance the individual receives in the year for expenses incident to the discharge of the individual's duties, which does not exceed one-half of the maximum fixed amount provided by the laws of a province as payable to the individual by way of salary, indemnity and other remuneration in respect of attendance at a session.

39.3. An individual who is an elected member of a municipal council, a member of the council or executive committee of a metropolitan community, regional county municipality or other similar body established under an Act of the Parliament of Québec, a member of a municipal utilities commission or corporation or any other similar body administering such a service, a member of a school service centre's board of directors or a member of a public or separate school board or any other similar body administering a school district, is not required in computing the income of the individual for a taxation year to include the allowance the individual receives in the year from the municipality or body for expenses incident to the discharge of the individual's duties, other than an allowance the individual is not otherwise required to include in computing the individual's income, to the extent that the allowance does not exceed one-half of the amount, determined without reference to that allowance, paid to the individual in the year by the municipality or body by way of salary or other remuneration.

39.4. An individual who is a member of the council of a regional county municipality or a member of the council of the Kativik Regional Government, constituted under the Act respecting Northern villages and the Kativik Regional Government (chapter V-6.1), is not required to include in computing the individual's income for a taxation year an amount received by the individual in the year from the municipality as an allowance for, or reimbursement of, travel expenses other than those incident to the discharge of the individual's duties as such a member, to the extent that the amount does not exceed a reasonable amount.

39.4.1. An individual who is elected or appointed in a representative capacity to hold an office with a body that is a corporation, association or other similar organization with which the individual was dealing at arm's length is not required to include in computing the individual's income for a taxation year an amount received by the individual in the year from the body as an allowance for, or reimbursement of, travel expenses to enable the individual to attend a meeting of the council or committee of which the individual is a member, other than travel expenses incurred in the performance of the individual's duties, to the extent that the amount does not exceed a reasonable amount and that the meeting is held at a location

(a) not less than 80 kilometres from the individual's ordinary place of residence; and

(b) where the body is a non-profit organization, that may reasonably be considered as being connected to the territory within which that body regularly carries on its activities or, in any other case, is situated within the local municipal territory or the metropolitan area, as the case may be, where the head office or principal place of business of the body is situated.

39.5. An individual who had part-time employment with an employer with whom the individual was dealing at arm's length is not required to include in computing the individual's income for a taxation year an amount, not exceeding a reasonable amount, received by the individual in the year from that employer as an allowance for, or reimbursement of, travel expenses other than expenses incurred in the performance of the duties of the individual's part-time employment, if

(a) the individual's part-time employment

i. was during a period throughout which the individual had other employment or was carrying on a business, or

ii. was as a teacher in an educational institution referred to in subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 752.0.18.10; and

(b) the duties of the part-time employment were performed at a location not less than 80 kilometres from both the individual's ordinary place of residence and, where the condition set out in subparagraph ii of paragraph a is not met, of the principal place of the individual's other employment or the principal place of the individual's business.

39.6. An individual who is employed in a taxation year by a government, municipality or public authority, in this section referred to as the "employer", is not required to include in computing the individual's income for the year derived from the performance of the duties provided for in paragraph a, an amount received by the individual or the value of a benefit received or enjoyed by the individual in the year, because of the individual's employment with that employer for the performance of those duties, up to an amount of $1,120, where

(a) the individual receives or enjoys the amount for the performance of the individual's duties as a volunteer ambulance technician, a volunteer firefighter or a volunteer assisting in the search and rescue of individuals or in other emergency operations; and

(b) the employer certifies in writing where so requested by the Minister that the individual was in the year an employee of the employer and performed the duties provided for in paragraph a and that the individual was at no time in the year an employee of the employer otherwise than as a volunteer, in connection with the performance of any of those duties or of similar duties.

The first paragraph does not apply if the individual deducts an amount under section 752.0.10.0.5 or 752.0.10.0.7 from the individual's tax otherwise payable for the year under this Part.

In this section, "volunteer firefighter" means a person who, for very little or no annual compensation, responds to alarms from a fire safety service or a 9-1-1 emergency centre, issued in particular by radio, telephone, siren or alarm bell, and does not include a person who provides services as a volunteer firefighter or performs duties in this respect, if the person

(a) replaces permanent firefighters for short periods;

(b) is regularly or periodically on duty in a fire station; or

(c) is remunerated for periods of on-call duty in the territory.

2003, c. 2, s. 14; 2004, c. 21, s. 43; 2012, c. 8, s. 42; 2015, c. 24, s. 23; 2017, c. 1, s. 81.

40. An individual is not required to include in computing the individual's income,

(a) reasonable allowances for travel expenses received by the individual from the individual's employer in respect of any period when the individual was employed in connection with the selling of property or negotiating of contracts for the employer;

(b) reasonable allowances for travel expenses, other than allowances for the use of a motor vehicle, received from the employer by the individual as an employee, other than an employee referred to in paragraph a, for travelling away from the local municipal territory or the metropolitan area, as the case may be, where the employer's establishment at which the employee ordinarily works or with which the employee is ordinarily connected is located, in the performance of the duties of the employment; or

(c) reasonable allowances for the use of a motor vehicle received by the individual as an employee, other than an employee referred to in paragraph a, from the employer for travelling in the performance of the duties of the employment.

40.1. For the purposes of paragraph e of section 39 and paragraphs a and c of section 40, an allowance received in the year by the individual for the use of a motor vehicle in connection with or in the course of the individual's office or employment is deemed not to be a reasonable allowance

(a) where the measurement of the use of the vehicle for the purpose of determining the allowance is not based solely on the actual number of kilometres for which the motor vehicle is used in connection with or in the course of the office or employment; or

(b) where the individual both receives an allowance in respect of that use and is reimbursed in whole or in part for expenses in respect of that use, except where the reimbursement is in respect of supplementary business insurance or toll or ferry charges and the amount of the allowance was determined without reference to those reimbursed expenses.

41. Where an employer or a person related to the employer makes an automobile available to an employee of the employer, or to a person related to the employee, in the year, the employee shall, in computing the income of the employee, include the amount by which a reasonable amount corresponding to the value of such right of use for the total number of days in the year during which the automobile was made so available exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount, other than an expense related to the operation of the automobile, paid in the year to the employer or a person related to the employer by the employee or the person related to the employee for the use of the automobile.

41.0.1. For the purposes of section 41, a reasonable amount corresponding to the value of the right of use of an automobile for the total number of days, in this section referred to as the "total available days", in a year during which the automobile is made available to an individual or to a person related to the individual by an employer or a person related to the employer, both of whom are in this section referred to as "the employer", is deemed to be equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$A / B [2\% (C \times D) + 2/3 (E - F)].$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is

i. the lesser of the total number of kilometres that the automobile is driven, otherwise than in connection with or in the course of the individual's office or employment, during the total available days, and the product determined for the year under subparagraph b, if

(1) the individual is required by the employer to use the automobile in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, and

(2) the distance travelled by the automobile during the total available days is primarily in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, and

ii. in any other case, the product determined for the year under subparagraph b;

(b) B is the product obtained by multiplying 1,667 by the quotient obtained by dividing the total available days by 30 and, if the quotient so obtained is not a whole number and exceeds one, by rounding it to the nearest whole number or, where that quotient is equidistant from two consecutive whole numbers, by rounding it to the lower of those two numbers;

(c) C is the cost of the automobile to the employer where the employer owns the vehicle at any time in the year;

(d) D is the quotient obtained by dividing such of the total available days as are days when the employer owns the automobile by 30 and, if the quotient so obtained is not a whole number and exceeds one, by rounding it to the nearest whole number or, where that quotient is equidistant from two consecutive whole numbers, by rounding it to the lower thereof;

(e) E is the aggregate of all amounts that may reasonably be regarded as having been payable by the employer to a lessor for the purpose of leasing the automobile during such of the total available days as are days when the automobile is leased to the employer;

(f) F is the part of the amount determined under subparagraph e that may reasonably be regarded as having been payable to the lessor in respect of all or part of the cost to the lessor of insuring against loss of, or damage to, the automobile or liability resulting from the use or operation of the automobile.

The condition in subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the second paragraph is deemed to be met for an individual's 2020 or 2021 taxation year, in respect of an employer, if the conditions in subparagraphs 1 and 2 of that subparagraph i are met for the individual's 2019 taxation year in respect of an automobile made available to the individual, or to a person related to the individual, by that employer.

41.0.2. Where, in a year, an individual is employed principally in selling or leasing automobiles, an automobile owned by the individual's employer is made available by the employer to the individual or to a person related to the individual, and the employer has acquired one or more automobiles, the reasonable amount corresponding to the value of the right of use determined under section 41.0.1 shall, at the option of the employer, be computed as if

(a) the reference in the formula therein to 2% were read as a reference to 1.5%, and

(b) the cost of the automobile to the employer were the greater of

i. the quotient obtained by dividing the cost to the employer of all new automobiles acquired by the employer in the year for sale or lease in the course of the employer's business by the number of new automobiles so acquired, and

ii. the quotient obtained by dividing the cost to the employer of all automobiles acquired by the employer in the year for sale or lease in the course of the employer's business by the number of automobiles so acquired.

41.1. (Repealed).

41.1.1. Where, in computing the income of the individual for a taxation year as income from an office or employment, a reasonable amount corresponding to the value of the right of use of an automobile is determined under sections 41 to 41.0.2, and an amount in respect of the operation, otherwise than in connection with or in the course of the individual's office or employment, of the automobile for the period or periods in the year during which the automobile was made available to the individual or a person related to the individual is paid or payable by the individual's employer or a person related to the individual's employer, each of whom is in this section referred to as the "payor", the individual shall, in computing the individual's income for the year from an office or employment, include the amount determined by the formula

A − B.

For the purposes of the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is

i. where the automobile is used primarily in the performance of the duties of the individual during the period or periods referred to in the first paragraph and the individual notifies the employer in writing before the end of the year of the individual's intention to have this subparagraph apply, one-half of the reasonable amount corresponding to the value of the right of use determined in respect of the automobile under sections 41 to 41.0.2 in computing the individual's income for the year, and

ii. in any other case, the amount equal to the product obtained when the amount prescribed for the year is multiplied by the total number of kilometres that the automobile is driven, otherwise than in connection with or in the course of the individual's office or employment, during the period or periods referred to in the first paragraph; and

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts in respect of the operation of the automobile in the year paid in the year or within 45 days after the end of the year to the payor by the individual or by the person related to the individual.

This section does not apply where the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount referred to in the first paragraph, paid or payable by the payor, is paid, in the year or within 45 days after the end of the year, to the payor by the individual or by the person related to the individual.

For the purposes of this section in respect of an automobile provided by the payor in 2020 or 2021 (in this paragraph referred to as the "relevant year"), where an individual has met the condition in subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the second paragraph for the 2019 taxation year in respect of the use of an automobile made available to the individual, or to a person related to the individual, by the payor, the amount represented by A in the formula in the first paragraph in respect of the automobile for the relevant year is deemed to be equal to the lesser of

(a) one-half of the reasonable amount that corresponds to the value of the right of use determined in respect of the automobile under sections 41 to 41.0.2 for the relevant year; and

(b) the amount determined in respect of the automobile under subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph for the relevant year.

41.1.2. An individual shall, in computing the individual's income for a taxation year from an office or employment, include the value of a benefit in respect of the operation of an automobile, other than a benefit to which section 41.1.1 applies or would apply but for the third paragraph of that section, received or enjoyed by the individual, or by a person related to the individual, in the year because of, or in the course of, the individual's office or employment.

41.1.3. An individual who is a member of a police force or of a fire safety service is not required to include, in computing the individual's income for a taxation year from an office or employment, the value of a benefit in respect of the use of a vehicle that is, in the year, made available to the individual by the employer or a person related to the employer, if

(a) a written directive of the employer limits the use, by the individual, of the vehicle for personal purposes and specifies that the vehicle is to be returned to the employer during an extended absence; and

(b) the vehicle is clearly identified with the employer's name or, failing that, the vehicle has special equipment allowing for a prompt intervention in the case of events concerning public safety.

2004, c. 21, s. 44.

41.1.4. If an employer or a person to whom the employer is related makes an automobile, other than a vehicle in respect of which section 41.1.3 applies, available in a taxation year to an employee or to a person related to the employee, the employee shall keep, in respect of trips made with the automobile for the total number of days in the year during which the automobile is so made available to the employee or to a person to whom the employee is related, a logbook in which the employee enters the information provided for in section 41.1.5, and shall give a copy of the logbook to the employer on or before the tenth day following the last day of the year during which the employer or a person related to the employer made such an automobile available to the employee or to a person to whom the employee is related.

41.1.5. The information to which section 41.1.4 refers is

(a) the total number of days in the year during which the employer or a person to whom the employer is related made the automobile available to the individual or to a person related to the individual;

(b) on a daily, weekly or monthly basis, the total number of kilometres travelled by the automobile during the total number of days referred to in subparagraph a; and

(c) on a daily basis, for each trip made with the automobile in connection with or in the course of the office or employment of the individual, the identification of the place of departure and the place of destination, the number of kilometres travelled by the automobile between those two places, and any information necessary to establish that the trip was made in connection with or in the course of the office or employment of the individual.

However, if the kilometres travelled by the automobile during the total number of days referred to in subparagraph a are kilometres exclusively travelled by the automobile otherwise than in connection with or in the course of the office or employment of the individual, the information to which section 41.1.4 refers is

(a) the total number of days in the year during which the employer or a person to whom the employer is related made the automobile available to the individual or to a person related to the individual; and

(b) the kilometres registered on the odometer of the automobile at the beginning and end of each period, within the year, during which the automobile was made available, on a continuous basis, to the individual or a person to whom the individual is related by the employer or a person related to the employer.

41.4. For the purposes of this division, the value of a benefit in respect of the use of a motor vehicle by an individual does not include the value of a benefit related to the parking of the vehicle.

1995, c. 49, s. 27.

42. Notwithstanding sections 36 and 37, an individual who is not entitled to the deduction provided for in section 737.25 is not required, in computing the income of the individual for a taxation year from an office or employment, to include any amount received or enjoyed by the individual because of, or in the course of, the office or employment that is the value of, or an allowance, not in excess of a reasonable amount, in respect of expenses the individual has incurred

(a) for the individual's board and lodging for a period during which the individual was required by the individual's duties to be away from the individual's principal place of residence, or to be at the special work site referred to in subparagraph i or at the location referred to in subparagraph ii, for not less than 36 hours, if such board and lodging were

i. at a special work site at which the duties performed by the individual were of a temporary nature and if the individual maintained at another location a self-contained domestic establishment as the individual's principal place of residence that was, throughout the period, available for the individual's occupancy and not rented to any other person, and to which, by reason of distance, the individual could not reasonably be expected to have returned daily from the special work site, or

ii. at a location at which, by virtue of its remoteness from any established community, the individual could not reasonably be expected to establish and maintain a self-contained domestic establishment; or

(b) for transportation, in respect of a period described in paragraph a during which the individual received board and lodging, or a reasonable allowance in respect of board and lodging, from the individual's employer, between

i. the individual's principal place of residence and the special work site referred to in subparagraph i of paragraph a, or

ii. the location referred to in subparagraph ii of paragraph a and a location in Canada or in the country in which the individual is employed.

42.0.1. Notwithstanding sections 36 and 37, an individual is not required in computing the income of the individual for a taxation year from an office or employment to include any amount received or enjoyed by the individual because of, or in the course of, the individual's office or employment that is the value of a benefit, or an allowance, not in excess of a reasonable amount, in respect of expenses incurred by the individual for

(a) the transportation of the individual between the individual's ordinary place of residence and the individual's work location, including parking near that location, if the individual is blind or subparagraphs a

to c of the first paragraph of section 752.0.14 apply in respect of the individual for the year by reason of the individual's mobility impairment; or

(b) an attendant to assist the individual in the performance of the individual's duties if subparagraphs a to c of the first paragraph of section 752.0.14 apply in respect of the individual for the year.

42.6. In this division,

"regulated establishment" means, subject to section 42.7,

(a) a place situated in Québec specially laid out where lodging or food for consumption on the premises is ordinarily provided in return for payment;

(b) a place situated in Québec where alcoholic beverages are served for consumption on the premises in return for payment;

(c) a railway train or a vessel, operated in connection with a business carried on entirely or almost entirely in Québec and on which food or beverages are served;

(d) a place situated in Québec where, in connection with the carrying on of a business, food or beverages for consumption elsewhere than on the premises are provided in return for payment;

"tippable sale" means a sale in a regulated establishment that, in keeping with the prevailing custom in Québec, is likely to entail tipping by the customer, but does not include a sale of food or beverages for consumption elsewhere than on the premises of the regulated establishment.

1997, c. 85, s. 44.

42.7. For the purposes of the definition of "regulated establishment" in section 42.6, a regulated establishment does not include

(a) a place situated in Québec where mainly lodging or food, or both, are provided by the week, month or year in return for payment;

(b) a place where the activity consisting in the providing of food and beverages is carried on by an educational institution, a hospital institution, a shelter for needy persons or victims of violence or any other similar establishment;

(c) a place where the activity consisting in the providing of food and beverages is carried on by a charity or a similar organization but is not carried on on a regular basis;

(d) a cafeteria;

(e) a fast food outlet in which the employees do not ordinarily receive tips from the majority of customers.

1997, c. 85, s. 44.

42.8. An individual shall, in computing income for the year, include every tip the individual receives or benefits from, and an amount equal to the amount that the employer is deemed, where such is the case, to have paid to the individual in that year because of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 1019.7, except

(a) a tip remitted to another individual under a tip-sharing arrangement that has been implemented for the employees performing their employment duties for the same regulated establishment as the regulated establishment for which the individual performs employment duties, and that is managed by the employees;

(b) a tip that is otherwise included in computing income for the year; and

(c) where applicable, a tip the individual received or benefited from in the year and that is equal to an amount that the employer is deemed, because of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 1019.7, to pay to the individual in the following year.

1997, c. 85, s. 44.

42.9. (Repealed).

1997, c. 85, s. 44; 2009, c. 5, s. 43.

42.10. An individual shall, in computing income for the year, include all tips attributed to the individual in the year pursuant to section 42.11.

42.11. Every person who employs an individual who receives or benefits from tips in the performance of employment duties for a regulated establishment shall, for each pay period, attribute to that individual, at the time referred to in the second paragraph, an amount equal to the amount by which 8% of the total of the amounts of all tippable sales that are attributable to the pay period and to that individual in the performance of employment duties for the regulated establishment exceeds the total of the amounts of each tip in respect of tippable sales that is attributable to the pay period and to the individual in the performance of employment duties for the regulated establishment.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, the attribution of an amount determined under that paragraph in respect of a pay period shall be made at the time the employer pays to the individual referred to therein the individual's salary or wages for that pay period or, where, having regard to the information available at that time and the time required to determine the amount of that attribution, it may reasonably be considered that the employer cannot at that time change the amount of the salary or wages to take into account that attribution owing to the fact that the payment of the salary or wages for that pay period is made at a time that follows too closely the end of that pay period, at the time the employer pays to the individual the salary or wages for the pay period immediately following that pay period.

42.12. Section 42.11 does not apply to an individual in relation to employment duties performed by the individual for a regulated establishment where all or substantially all of the tips the individual receives or benefits from in the performance of employment duties are derived from service charges paid by the customers of the regulated establishment and where

(a) the service charges required from the customer in respect of a tippable sale are, in all or substantially all cases, equal to at least 10% of the amount of the tippable sale;

(b) the customers are informed of the mandatory nature of the service charges and of the percentage charged in relation to the amount of tippable sales; and

(c) the tip-sharing arrangement, if any, is not managed by the employees.

In addition, section 42.11 does not apply, for a pay period, to an individual in relation to employment duties as a cloakroom attendant performed for a regulated establishment or to an individual in relation to employment duties performed for a regulated establishment where

(a) all or substantially all of the tips the individual receives or benefits from during the pay period are derived from a redistribution of tips received or benefited from by other individuals;

(b) the individual is an employee of a corporation that operates the regulated establishment and the shares of the capital stock of which carrying voting rights in all circumstances are more than 40% held, at the end of the pay period, by the individual or the individual's spouse;

(c) the individual is an employee of a partnership that operates the regulated establishment, the individual's spouse is a member of the partnership at the end of the pay period, and the spouse's share, at that time, of the income of the partnership would be equal to more than 40% of the income of the partnership if the partnership's fiscal period ended at that time and the partnership's income for that fiscal period were equal to $1,000,000; or

(d) the individual is an employee of the individual's spouse.

42.13. For the purposes of this section and sections 42.11 and 42.14, the following rules apply:

(a) subject to paragraph b, a tippable sale is attributable to the pay period during which the obligations relating to that sale are fully fulfilled;

(b) where the funds representing the proceeds of a tippable sale in a regulated establishment are not received by the operator of the regulated establishment before the end of the pay period referred to in paragraph a in respect of that tippable sale, and where remittance of the tip attributable to that sale to the individual in respect of whom the sale is attributable is deferred to a time after that pay period, the tippable sale is attributable to the pay period during which the funds are received by the operator of the regulated establishment;

(c) a tip in respect of a sale made to a customer that is a tippable sale attributable to an individual, means the tip determined by the customer in respect of the sale, including the portion of the tip to be remitted to another individual under a tip-sharing arrangement in effect in the regulated establishment;

(d) subject to paragraph e, a tip in respect of a tippable sale is attributable to the pay period during which the obligations relating to that sale are fully fulfilled;

(e) where the funds representing the proceeds of a tippable sale in a regulated establishment are not received by the operator of the regulated establishment before the end of the pay period referred to in paragraph d in respect of that tippable sale, and where remittance of the tip attributable to that sale to the individual in respect of whom the sale is attributable is deferred to a time after that pay period, the tip is attributable to the pay period during which the funds are received by the operator of the regulated establishment;

(f) an individual who receives or benefits from tips in the performance of employment duties for a regulated establishment, other than an individual to whom the first paragraph of section 42.12 applies, shall, except where the individual performs the employment duties referred to in the second paragraph of that section 42.12, report in writing to the employer, in respect of a pay period, every tip in respect of a tippable sale attributable to the individual and to that pay period.

42.14. Every person who operates a regulated establishment for which an individual performs employment duties without being an employee of the regulated establishment shall declare in writing to the employer of that individual in relation to those duties, at the end of each pay period of that employer, the total of the amounts of each of the tippable sales attributable to the individual and at that pay period.

42.15. Where the Minister considers it necessary, the Minister may determine, in respect of a regulated establishment or class of sales in a regulated establishment, a percentage that is lesser than the percentage mentioned in section 42.11.

The Minister may determine, in respect of a regulated establishment or a class of sales in a regulated establishment, a percentage that is lesser than the percentage mentioned in section 42.11 if the employer who is to attribute an amount under that section applies therefor or, where that employer refuses to do so, if the majority of individuals performing their employment duties for the regulated establishment or for a class of sales in the regulated establishment apply therefor, and it is established to the satisfaction of the Minister that the percentage of 8% is too high having regard to the circumstances.

The Minister may determine, for a period in a calendar year, the percentage considered to be appropriate by the Minister having regard to the circumstances.

DIVISION III

INCOME INSURANCE BENEFITS

1972, c. 23.

43. (1) An individual shall, in computing the individual's income, include the amounts payable on a periodic basis that the individual receives in respect of the loss of all or part of the individual's income from an office or employment, pursuant to an insurance plan under which the individual's employer has made a contribution or which is administered or provided by an employee life and health trust to which the individual's employer has made a contribution, not exceeding the limit set under subsection 2.

(2) Such limit shall be established by computing the amount by which

(a) the aggregate of all such amounts received by the individual pursuant to the plan before the end of the year and after the later of the end of the year 1971 and the end of the last year in which any such amount was included in the individual's income; exceeds

(b) the aggregate of the contributions made by the individual under the plan before the end of the year and after the later of the end of the year 1967 and the end of the last year in which any amount referred to in paragraph a was included in the individual's income.

43.0.1. For the purposes of section 43, where an employer or former employer of an individual makes a top-up disability payment in respect of the individual, the following rules apply:

(a) the payment is deemed not to be a contribution made by the employer or former employer to or under the insurance plan of which the disability policy in respect of which the payment is made is or was a part; and

(b) if the payment is made to the individual, it is deemed to be an amount received by the individual pursuant to the insurance plan referred to in paragraph a.

2000, c. 5, s. 23.

43.0.2. In section 43.0.1 and in this section,

"disability policy" means a group disability insurance policy that provides for periodic payments to individuals in respect of the loss of remuneration from an office or employment;

"top-up disability payment" in respect of an individual means a payment made by an employer or former employer of the individual as a consequence of the insolvency of an insurer that was obligated to make payments to the individual under a disability policy where

(a) the payment is made to an insurer so that periodic payments made to the individual under the disability policy will not be reduced because of the insolvency, or will be reduced by a lesser amount; or

(b) the payment is made to the individual to replace, in whole or in part, periodic payments that would have been made under the disability policy to the individual but for the insolvency and the payment is made under an arrangement by which the individual is required to reimburse the payment to the extent that the individual subsequently receives an amount from an insurer in respect of the portion of the periodic payments that the payment was intended to replace.

For the purposes of paragraphs a and b of the definition of "top-up disability payment" in the first paragraph, an insurance policy that replaces a disability policy is deemed to be the same policy as, and a continuation of, the disability policy that was replaced.

2000, c. 5, s. 23.

DIVISION III.1

MULTI-EMPLOYER INSURANCE PLAN

1993, c. 64, s. 16; 1995, c. 63, s. 22.

43.1. In this Title, a multi-employer insurance plan means a plan for the insurance of persons which is applicable by operation of law, the regulations or a government order, to an economic sector, an industry, an activity or a part of such a sector, industry or activity, and is offered jointly by employers belonging to the same economic sector, the same industry or the same activity and is managed by a common administrator.

43.2. An individual shall, in relation to a multi-employer insurance plan, include in computing the income of the individual for a taxation year the portion, which can reasonably be attributed to a plan for the insurance of persons, otherwise than in relation to coverage against the loss of all or part of the income from an office or employment, and which relates to work performed by the individual, of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that corresponds to the total contribution which, because of a previous, the current or an intended office or employment of the individual, was paid, for any period of the year, by an employer of the individual to the administrator of the multi-employer insurance plan and the related tax, within the meaning of subparagraph d of the second paragraph of section 37.0.1.1.

43.3. Where the amount established in accordance with the second paragraph for a taxation year in respect of an individual in relation to a multi-employer insurance plan exceeds the amount referred to in section 43.2 for the year in respect of the individual in relation to that plan, the individual shall include the excess in computing the income of the individual for the year.

The amount which must be established for a taxation year in respect of an individual in relation to a multi-employer insurance plan is equal to the amount that would be established for the year under sections 37.0.1.1 to 37.0.1.6 in respect of the individual in relation to the coverage, other than coverage against the loss of all or part of the income from an office or employment, enjoyed by the individual under the plan for any period of the year, if the administrator of the plan was the employer of all the employees who enjoy coverage under the plan during the year and if those employees were employees of the administrator and enjoyed that coverage by reason of an office or employment with the latter.

For the purposes of the second paragraph, no amount paid by an individual during the year as contribution to the plan shall be taken into account in computing the amount determined under section 37.0.1.2 or 37.0.1.4 in respect of the individual otherwise than because of a previous, the current or an intended office or employment of the individual.

In addition, for the purposes of this Title, except the third paragraph and this paragraph, where it may reasonably be considered that, at any time in a taxation year, an individual enjoys, otherwise than because of a previous, the current or an intended office or employment of the individual, all or part of a coverage under a multi-employer insurance plan, other than coverage against the loss of all or part of the income from an office, employment or business,

(a) the individual is deemed to be an employee who, during the year, enjoys that coverage, or part thereof, by reason of an office or employment; and

(b) the value of the benefit derived from that coverage or part thereof is deemed to be referred to in section 38.

1993, c. 64, s. 16; 1995, c. 63, s. 23; 1998, c. 16, s. 54.

CANADIAN FORCES MEMBERS AND VETERANS

2006, c. 36, s. 25.

43.4. An individual shall, in computing income for a taxation year from an office or employment, include the total of the following amounts received by the individual in the year on account of

(a) an earnings loss benefit, an income replacement benefit (other than an amount determined under subsection 1 of section 19.1, paragraph b of subsection 1 of section 23 or subsection 1 of section 26.1 of the Veterans Well-being Act (S.C. 2005, c. 21), as modified, where applicable, under Part 5 of that Act), a supplementary retirement benefit or a career impact allowance payable to the individual under Part 2 of the Veterans Well-being Act; or

(b) an amount payable under subsection 6 of section 99, subsection 1 of section 109, subsection 5 of section 115 or sections 124 to 126 of the Veterans Well-being Act.

2006, c. 36, s. 25; 2019, c. 14, s. 70; 2020, c. 16, s. 31.

DIVISION V

PROFIT SHARING PLANS

1972, c. 23.

47. For the purposes of this chapter, an individual shall, in computing the income of the individual, include the amounts allocated to the individual under a profit-sharing plan as provided by Title I of Book VII, except those referred to in section 860, and the amounts required by section 857 to be included in computing the individual's income.

1972, c. 23, s. 41; 1998, c. 16, s. 55.

DIVISION V.1

EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLANS AND EMPLOYEE TRUSTS

1982, c. 5, s. 19.

47.1. An individual shall, in computing the income of the individual for a taxation year, include all amounts allocated to the individual for that year by a trustee under an employee trust and all amounts received by the individual in the year out of or under an employee benefit plan or from the disposition of any interest in any such plan.

47.1.1. For the purposes of section 47.1, an amount received by a person out of or under an employee benefit plan is deemed to have been received by another person (in this section referred to as the "individual") and not by the person if

(a) the person does not deal at arm's length with the individual;

(b) the amount is received in respect of an office or employment of the individual; and

(c) the individual is living at the time the amount is received by the person.

2015, c. 21, s. 106.

47.2. Despite section 47.1, an individual is not required in computing the individual's income to include an amount received in respect of an employee benefit plan, to the extent that such amount represents a return of amounts contributed to the plan by the individual or a deceased employee of whom the individual is a legatee by particular title or legal representative, a death benefit or an amount that would, but for the deduction provided for in sections 3 and 4, be a death benefit, a pension benefit attributable to services rendered by a person in a period throughout which the person was not resident in Canada, or a designated employee benefit (as defined in section 869.1).

47.3. For the purposes of section 47.2, an amount included in computing the income of an individual in respect of an employee benefit plan for a taxation year preceding the year in which it is paid, is deemed to be an amount contributed to the plan by the individual.

47.4. For the purposes of section 47.2, where an amount is received in a taxation year by an individual from an employee benefit plan that was in a preceding year an employee trust, that amount is deemed to be the return of the amounts contributed to the plan by the individual, up to the amount by which the lesser of the amounts determined under paragraph a or b of section 47.5 exceeds the aggregate of all amounts previously received out of the plan by the individual or a deceased person of whom the individual is a legatee by particular title or legal representative at a time when the plan was an employee benefit plan, to the extent that the latter amounts were deemed by this section to be a return of amounts contributed to the plan.

47.5. The amounts referred to in section 47.4 are the following:

(a) the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts allocated to the individual or a deceased person of whom the individual is a legatee by particular title or legal representative, by a trustee of the plan at a time when the plan was an employee trust, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts previously paid out of the plan to or for the benefit of the individual or the deceased person at that time; and

(b) the portion of the amount by which the cost amount to the plan of its property immediately before it ceased to be an employee trust exceeds the liabilities of the plan at that time that the amount determined under paragraph a in respect of the individual is of the aggregate of amounts determined under that paragraph in respect of all individuals who were beneficiaries under the plan immediately before it ceased to be an employee trust.

47.6. For the purposes of this division, "employee benefit plan" means an arrangement under which contributions are made by an employer or by a person with whom the employer does not deal at arm's length to another person (in this Part referred to as the "custodian" of an employee benefit plan) and under which payments are to be made to or for the benefit of employees or former employees of the employer or persons who do not deal at arm's length with any such employee or former employee, other than a payment that, if this chapter were read without reference to the third paragraph of section 38 and to section 47.1, would not be required to be included in computing the income of the recipient or of an employee or former employee.

However, such a plan does not include any part of the arrangement that is a plan referred to in any of subparagraphs a, *a.*1, d and e of the first paragraph of section 38 or in section 43 or 47, a group health or accident insurance plan, a private health services plan, a group term life insurance policy, a trust referred to in paragraph m of section 998, an employee trust, an employee life and health trust, an arrangement the sole purpose of which is to provide education or training for employees of the employer to improve their work or work-related skills and abilities, a salary deferral arrangement in respect of an individual under which a deferred amount must be included as a benefit under section 37 in computing the individual's income, a retirement compensation arrangement or a prescribed arrangement.

1982, c. 5, s. 19; 1987, c. 21, s. 11; 1988, c. 18, s. 4; 1989, c. 77, s. 11; 1991, c. 25, s. 176; 1993, c. 64, s. 18; 1995, c. 49, s. 28; 1995, c. 63, s. 24; 1996, c. 39, s. 26; 1998, c. 16, s. 60; 1999, c. 89, s. 53; 2011, c. 6, s. 116; 2015, c. 21, s. 107.

47.7. For the purposes of this division, "employee trust" means an arrangement in respect of which the trustee of the arrangement makes a valid election under paragraph c of the definition of "employee trust" in subsection 1 of section 248 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 and under which

(a) payments are made by one or more employers to a trustee in trust solely to provide for the payment of benefits to employees or former employees of the employer or a person with whom the employer does not deal at arm's length;

(b) the right to a benefit referred to in subparagraph a vests only at the time of its payment;

(c) the amount of a benefit referred to in subparagraph a does not depend on the individual's position, performance or compensation as an employee; and

(d) the trustee has, since the commencement of the arrangement, each year allocated to individuals who are beneficiaries under the trust, in such manner as is reasonable, an amount equal to the excess described in section 47.8.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under paragraph c of the definition of "employee trust" in subsection 1 of section 248 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

47.8. The excess referred to in subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 47.7 is obtained by subtracting the aggregate of the capital losses of the trust for the year from the disposition of property and of the losses, other than allowable capital losses from the disposition of property, of the trust for the year from any source other than a business, from the aggregate of amounts received under the arrangement by the trustee in the year from an employer or from a person with whom the employer does not deal at arm's length, capital gains of the trust for the year from the disposition of property and amounts that would, but for paragraph a of section 657 and section 657.1, be the income of the trust for the year, other than a taxable capital gain from the disposition of property, from any source other than a business.

47.9. Notwithstanding section 47.7, an employee trust does not include a profit sharing plan, a deferred profit sharing plan or a plan the registration of which is revoked under subsection 14 or 14.1 of section 147 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement).

1982, c. 5, s. 19; 1991, c. 25, s. 11.

DIVISION V.2

SALARY DEFERRAL ARRANGEMENTS

1988, c. 18, s. 5.

47.10. An individual shall, in computing the income of the individual for a taxation year, include an amount equal to the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts received by any person as benefits, other than amounts received by or from a trust governed by a salary deferral arrangement, in the year out of or under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of the individual exceeds the amount by which

(a) the aggregate of all deferred amounts under the arrangement that were included under section 37 as benefits in computing the individual's income for preceding taxation years exceeds

(b) the aggregate of all deferred amounts received by any person in preceding taxation years out of or under the arrangement, and all deferred amounts under the arrangement that were deducted under section 78.2 in computing the individual's income for the year or preceding taxation years.

47.11. Where at the end of a taxation year any person has a right under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of an individual to receive a deferred amount, an amount equal to the deferred amount is deemed, for the purposes only of section 37, to have been received by the individual as a benefit in the year, to the extent that the amount was not otherwise included in computing the individual's income for the year or any preceding taxation year.

47.12. Where at the end of a taxation year any person has a right under a salary deferral arrangement, other than a trust governed by a salary deferral arrangement, in respect of an individual to receive a deferred amount, an amount equal to any interest or other additional amount that accrued to, or for the benefit of, that person to the end of the year in respect of the deferred amount is deemed at the end of the year, for the purposes only of section 47.11, to be a deferred amount that the person has a right to receive under the arrangement.

47.13. Section 47.11 does not apply in respect of a deferred amount under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of an individual that was established primarily for the benefit of one or more employees not resident in Canada in respect of services to be rendered in a country other than Canada, to the extent that the deferred amount

(a) was in respect of services rendered by an employee who was not resident in Canada at the time the services were rendered, or was resident in Canada for a period, in this section referred to as an "excluded period", of not more than 36 of the 72 months preceding the time the services were rendered and was an employee to whom the arrangement applied before the employee became resident in Canada; and

(b) cannot reasonably be regarded as being in respect of services rendered or to be rendered during a period, other than an excluded period, when the employee was resident in Canada.

47.14. For the purposes of this Part, other than this section, where deferred amounts under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of an individual, in this section referred to as "that arrangement", are required to be included as benefits under section 37 in computing the individual's income and that arrangement is part of a plan or arrangement, in this section referred to as "the plan", under which amounts or benefits not related to the deferred amounts are payable or provided, the following rules apply:

(a) that arrangement is deemed to be a separate arrangement independent of other parts of the plan of which it is a part;

(b) where any person has a right to a deferred amount under that arrangement, an amount received by the person as a benefit at any time out of or under the plan is deemed to have been received out of or under that arrangement except to the extent that it exceeds the amount by which

i. the aggregate of all deferred amounts under that arrangement that were included under section 37 as benefits in computing the individual's income for taxation years ending before that time exceeds

ii. the aggregate of all deferred amounts received by any person before that time out of or under the plan that were deemed by this paragraph to have been received out of or under that arrangement, and all deferred amounts under that arrangement that were deducted under section 78.2 in computing the individual's income for the year or a preceding taxation year.

47.15. For the purposes of this division, a salary deferral arrangement in respect of an individual means a plan or arrangement, whether funded or not, under which any person has a right in a taxation year to receive an amount after the end of the year where it is reasonable to consider that one of the main purposes for the creation or existence of the right is to postpone tax payable under this Part by the individual in respect of an amount that is, or is on account or in lieu of, salary or wages of the individual for services rendered by the individual in the year or a preceding taxation year.

The right referred to in the first paragraph includes a right that is subject to one or more conditions unless there is a substantial risk that any one of those conditions will not be satisfied.

47.16. For the purposes of section 47.15, a salary deferral arrangement does not include

(a) a registered pension plan;

(a.1) a pooled registered pension plan;

(b) a disability or income maintenance insurance plan under a policy with an insurance corporation;

(c) a deferred profit sharing plan;

(d) a profit sharing plan;

(e) an employee trust;

(e.1) an employee life and health trust;

(f) a group sickness or accident insurance plan;

(g) a supplementary unemployment benefit plan;

(h) a trust described in paragraph m of section 998;

(i) a plan or arrangement the sole purpose of which is to provide education or training for employees of an employer to improve their work or work-related skills and abilities;

(j) a plan or arrangement established for the purpose of deferring the salary or wages of a professional athlete for the services of the athlete as such with a team that participates in a league having regularly scheduled games;

(k) a plan or arrangement under which an individual has a right to receive a bonus or similar payment in respect of services rendered by the individual in a taxation year to be paid within three years following the end of the year; or

(l) a prescribed plan or arrangement.

47.17. For the purposes of this division, a deferred amount at the end of a taxation year under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of an individual means

(a) in the case of a trust governed by the arrangement, any amount that a person has a right under the arrangement at the end of the year to receive after the end of the year where the amount has been received, is receivable or may at any time become receivable by the trust as salary or wages of the individual for services rendered in the year or a preceding taxation year;

(b) in the case where no trust is governed by the arrangement, any amount that a person has a right under the arrangement at the end of the year to receive after the end of the year.

The right referred to in the first paragraph includes a right that is subject to one or more conditions unless there is a substantial risk that any one of those conditions will not be satisfied.

1988, c. 18, s. 5.

DIVISION VI

AGREEMENT TO ISSUE SECURITIES TO EMPLOYEES

1972, c. 23; 2001, c. 53, s. 13.

47.18. In this division and in section 259.0.1,

"qualifying person" means a corporation or a mutual fund trust;

"security" of a qualifying person means

(a) if the qualifying person is a corporation, a share of the capital stock of the corporation; and

(b) if the qualifying person is a mutual fund trust, a unit of the trust.

2001, c. 53, s. 14; 2003, c. 2, s. 15; 2009, c. 15, s. 41.

48. This division applies where a particular qualifying person agrees to sell or issue one of its securities or a security of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length to one of its employees or to an employee of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length.

1972, c. 23, s. 42; 1987, c. 67, s. 9; 1988, c. 4, s. 21; 1992, c. 1, s. 15; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2001, c. 53, s. 15.

49. Subject to section 49.2, an employee who acquires a security under the agreement referred to in section 48 is deemed to receive because of the employee's office or employment, in the taxation year in which the employee acquires the security, a benefit equal to the amount by which the value of the security at the time the employee acquires it exceeds the aggregate of the amount paid or to be paid to the qualifying person by the employee for the security and the amount paid by the employee to acquire the right to acquire the security.

1972, c. 23, s. 43; 1986, c. 15, s. 40; 1988, c. 4, s. 22; 1992, c. 1, s. 15; 1993, c. 16, s. 28; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 67; 2001, c. 53, s. 15; 2003, c. 2, s. 16; 2011, c. 34, s. 16.

49.1. (Repealed).

49.2. Where section 49 applies in respect of a security that is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, it shall be read with the words "in which the employee acquires the security" replaced by the words "in which the employee disposes of or exchanges the security" where

(a) the agreement contemplated in section 48 is made with a particular Canadian-controlled private corporation that has agreed to sell or issue a share of its capital stock or of the capital stock of a Canadian-controlled private corporation with which it is not dealing at arm's length, to one of its employees or to an employee of a Canadian-controlled private corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length;

(b) the share is acquired by an employee who, at the time immediately after the agreement was made, was dealing at arm's length with the particular corporation, the Canadian-controlled private corporation, the share of the capital stock of which has been agreed to be sold or issued by the particular corporation, and the Canadian-controlled private corporation that is the employer of the employee.

49.2.1. For the purposes of this division, a mutual fund trust is deemed not to deal at arm's length with a corporation only if the trust controls the corporation.

49.2.2. For the purposes of this section, section 49.2, Title IV, sections 725.2.2 and 725.2.3, paragraph a of section 725.3 and section 888.1, and subject to section 49.2.3, a taxpayer is deemed to dispose of securities that are identical properties in the order in which the taxpayer acquired them and the following rules apply for that purpose:

(a) if the taxpayer acquires a particular security (other than under the circumstances to which section 49.2 or 886 applies) at a time when the taxpayer also acquires or holds one or more other securities that are identical to the particular security and are, or were, acquired under circumstances to which any of those sections applied, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the particular security at the time immediately preceding the earliest of the times at which the taxpayer acquired those other securities; and

(b) if the taxpayer acquires, at the same time, two or more identical securities under the circumstances to which section 49.2 applied, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the securities in the order in which the agreements under which the taxpayer acquired the rights to acquire the securities were made.

49.2.3. Where a taxpayer acquires, at a particular time, a particular security under an agreement referred to in section 48 and, on a day that is no later than 30 days after the day that includes the particular time, the taxpayer disposes of a security that is identical to the particular security, the particular security is deemed to be the security that is so disposed of if

(a) no other securities that are identical to the particular security are acquired, or disposed of, by the taxpayer after the particular time and before the disposition;

(b) after 19 December 2006, the taxpayer identifies, in accordance with subsection 1.31 of section 7 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), the particular security as the security so disposed of; and

(c) the particular security has not been identified under subparagraph b by the taxpayer in relation to the disposition of another security.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an identification made under subsection 1.31 of section 7 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an identification made under this section before 20 December 2006.

2003, c. 2, s. 17; 2009, c. 5, s. 47.

49.3. (Repealed).

49.4. For the purposes of this division, the rules provided for in the fourth paragraph apply where a taxpayer disposes of rights under an agreement referred to in section 48 to acquire securities of the particular qualifying person that made the agreement or of a qualifying person with which the particular qualifying person does not deal at arm's length, which rights and securities are referred to in this section as the "exchanged option" and the "old securities", respectively, and where

(a) the taxpayer receives no consideration for the disposition of the exchanged option other than rights under an agreement with any of the following persons to acquire securities of any such person or of a qualifying person with which any such person does not deal at arm's length, which rights and securities are referred to in this section as the "new option" and the "new securities", respectively:

i. the particular qualifying person,

ii. a qualifying person with which the particular qualifying person does not deal at arm's length immediately after the disposition of the exchanged option,

iii. a corporation formed on the amalgamation or merger of the particular qualifying person and one or more other corporations,

iv. a qualifying person with which the corporation referred to in subparagraph iii does not deal at arm's length immediately after the disposition of the exchanged option,

v. a mutual fund trust to which the particular qualifying person has transferred property in circumstances to which Title I.2 of Book VI applied, or

vi. if the disposition occurs before 1 January 2013 and each of the old securities were an investment in a SIFT wind-up entity that was at the time of the disposition a mutual fund trust, a SIFT wind-up corporation in respect of the SIFT wind-up entity; and

(b) the amount by which the total value of the new securities immediately after the disposition exceeds the amount determined under the second paragraph does not exceed the amount by which the total value of the old securities immediately before the disposition exceeds the amount determined under the third paragraph.

The first amount to which subparagraph b of the first paragraph refers is equal to the total amount payable by the taxpayer to acquire the new securities under the new option.

The second amount to which subparagraph b of the first paragraph refers is equal to the amount payable by the taxpayer to acquire the old securities under the exchanged option.

The rules to which the first paragraph refers are as follows:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed, except for the purposes of subparagraph ii of paragraph d of section 58.0.2, as it read before being repealed, not to have disposed of the exchanged option and not to have acquired the new option;

(b) the new option is deemed to be the same option as, and a continuation of, the exchanged option; and

(c) the person described in any of subparagraphs ii to v of subparagraph a of the first paragraph is deemed to be the same person as, and a continuation of, the particular qualifying person.

49.5. For the purposes of this division and sections 725.2, 725.2.2 and 725.3, where a taxpayer disposes of or exchanges securities of a particular qualifying person that were acquired by the taxpayer under circumstances to which section 49.2 applied, in this section referred to as the "exchanged securities", the taxpayer receives no consideration for the disposition or exchange of the exchanged securities other than securities, in this section referred to as the "new securities" of any of the persons described in the second paragraph, and the total value of the new securities immediately after the disposition or exchange does not exceed the total value of the exchanged securities immediately before the disposition or exchange, the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed not to have exchanged or disposed of the exchanged securities and not to have acquired the new securities;

(b) the new securities are deemed to be the same securities as, and a continuation of, the exchanged securities, except for the purpose of determining if the new securities are identical to any other securities;

(c) the qualifying person that issued the new securities is deemed to be the same person as, and a continuation of, the qualifying person that issued the exchanged securities; and

(d) where the exchanged securities were issued under an agreement, the new securities are deemed to have been issued under that agreement.

The persons to which the first paragraph refers are the following:

(a) the particular qualifying person;

(b) a qualifying person with which the particular qualifying person does not deal at arm's length immediately after the disposition or exchange of the exchanged securities;

(c) a corporation formed on the amalgamation or merger of the particular qualifying person and one or more other corporations;

(d) a qualifying person with which the corporation referred to in subparagraph c does not deal at arm's length immediately after the disposition or exchange of the exchanged securities; and

(e) a mutual fund trust to which the particular qualifying person has transferred property in circumstances to which Title I.2 of Book VI applied.

1986, c. 19, s. 8; 1987, c. 67, s. 13; 1992, c. 1, s. 18; 1993, c. 16, s. 30; 1995, c. 49, s. 29; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2003, c. 2, s. 19; 2011, c. 34, s. 19.

49.6. For the purposes of this division and section 725.3, a taxpayer is deemed not to have disposed of a share acquired under circumstances to which section 49.2 applied solely because of section 785.2.

49.7. For the purposes of sections 50 and 725.2, where a taxpayer receives at a particular time one or more particular amounts in respect of rights of the taxpayer to acquire securities under an agreement referred to in section 48 ceasing to be exercisable in accordance with the terms of the agreement, and the cessation would not, but for this section, constitute a transfer or disposition of those rights by the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of those rights at the particular time to a person with whom the taxpayer was dealing at arm's length and to have received the particular amounts as consideration for the disposition; and

(b) for the purpose of determining the amount, if any, of the benefit that the taxpayer is deemed by section 50 to have received as a consequence of the disposition referred to in paragraph a, the taxpayer is deemed to have paid an amount to acquire those rights equal to the amount by which the amount paid by the taxpayer to acquire those rights, determined without reference to this section, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer before the particular time in respect of the cessation.

2003, c. 2, s. 20.

50. An employee who transfers or disposes of rights under the agreement referred to in section 48 in respect of securities to a person with whom the employee is dealing at arm's length, is deemed to receive because of the employee's office or employment, in the taxation year in which the employee makes the transfer or disposition, a benefit equal to the amount by which the value of the consideration for the transfer or disposition exceeds the amount paid by the employee to acquire those rights.

50.1. An employee who transfers or disposes of rights under the agreement referred to in section 48 in respect of some or all of the securities to the particular qualifying person (or a qualifying person with which the particular qualifying person is not dealing at arm's length) with which the employee is not dealing at arm's length is deemed to receive, because of the employee's office or employment, in the taxation year in which the employee makes the transfer or disposition, a benefit equal to the amount by which the value of the consideration for the transfer or disposition exceeds the amount paid by the employee to acquire those rights.

51. If rights of the employee under the agreement referred to in section 48 have, by one or more transactions between persons not dealing at arm's length, become vested in a person who exercises the employee's right to acquire a security under the agreement, the employee is deemed, subject to the second paragraph, to receive because of the employee's office or employment, in the taxation year in which the person acquired the security, a benefit equal to the amount by which the value of the security at the time that person acquired it exceeds the aggregate of the amount paid or to be paid to the qualifying person by the person for the security and the amount paid by the employee to acquire the right to acquire the security.

Where the employee was deceased at the time the person acquired the security, the benefit is deemed to have been received by the person, in the taxation year in which the person acquired the security, as income from the duties of an office or employment performed by the person in that year in the country in which the employee primarily performed the duties of the employee's office or employment.

52. If rights of the employee under the agreement referred to in section 48 have, by one or more transactions between persons not dealing at arm's length, become vested in a particular person who transfers or disposes of the rights to another person with whom the particular person is dealing at arm's length, the employee is deemed, subject to the second paragraph, to receive because of the employee's office or employment, in the taxation year in which the particular person made the transfer or disposition, a benefit equal to the amount by which the value of the consideration for the transfer or disposition exceeds the amount paid by the employee to acquire those rights.

Where the employee was deceased at the time the other person acquired the employee's rights, the benefit is deemed to have been received by the particular person, in the taxation year in which the particular person transferred or disposed of the employee's rights, as income from the duties of an office or employment performed by the particular person in that year in the country in which the employee primarily performed the duties of the employee's office or employment.

52.0.1. If rights of an employee under the agreement referred to in section 48 have, by one or more transactions between persons not dealing at arm's length, become vested in a particular person who transfers or disposes of the rights to a particular qualifying person (or a qualifying person with which the particular qualifying person is not dealing at arm's length) with which the particular person is not dealing at arm's length, the employee is deemed, subject to the second paragraph, to receive, because of the employee's office or employment, in the taxation year in which the particular person made the transfer or disposition, a benefit equal to the amount by which the value of the consideration for the transfer or disposition exceeds the amount paid by the employee to acquire those rights.

Where the employee was deceased at the time the particular person transferred or disposed of the employee's rights, the benefit is deemed to have been received by the particular person, in the taxation year in which the particular person transferred or disposed of the employee's rights, as income from the duties of an office or employment performed by the particular person in that year in the country in which the employee primarily performed the duties of the employee's office or employment.

52.1. Where an employee has died and, immediately before the death, the employee owned a right to acquire a security under the agreement referred to in section 48, the employee is deemed to have received because of the employee's office or employment, in the taxation year in which the employee died, a benefit equal to the amount by which the value of the right immediately after the death exceeds the amount paid by the employee to acquire the right, and sections 50 to 52.0.1 do not apply.

53. If a security is held by a trustee, in any manner whatever, for an employee, the employee is deemed, for the purposes of this division and sections 725.2, 725.2.2 and 725.3, to acquire the security at the time the trustee begins so to hold it and to exchange or dispose of the security at the time the trustee exchanges it or disposes of it to any person other than the employee.

54. If a particular qualifying person has agreed to sell or issue one of its securities, or a security of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length, to one of its employees or to an employee of the qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length, the employee is deemed to receive no benefit under or because of the agreement other than as provided in this division.

55. If a particular qualifying person has agreed to sell or issue one of its securities, or a security of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length, to one of its employees or to an employee of the qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length, the income for a taxation year of any person is deemed to be not less than it would have been for the year if no benefit had been conferred on the employee by the sale or issue of the security.

56. Where a person to whom sections 48 to 52.1 would otherwise apply ceases to be an employee before all conditions have been fulfilled that would make such sections applicable, those sections apply as though the person were still an employee and as though the office or employment were still in existence.

1972, c. 23, s. 50; 2001, c. 53, s. 21.

57. This division does not apply where the benefit conferred under the agreement contemplated in section 48 was not received by reason of the office or employment.

1972, c. 23, s. 51.

58. For the purposes of this division, except section 53, and of sections 725.2, 725.2.2 and 725.3, if a particular qualifying person has entered into an arrangement under which one of its securities, or a security of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length, is sold or issued by either person to a trustee to be held by the trustee in trust for sale to an employee of the particular qualifying person or of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length, the following rules apply:

(a) any particular right of the employee under the arrangement in respect of the security is deemed to be a right under a particular agreement referred to in section 48;

(b) any security acquired under the arrangement by the employee or by a person in whom the particular right has become vested is deemed to be a security acquired under the particular agreement referred to in section 48; and

(c) any amount paid or agreed to be paid to the trustee for any security acquired under the arrangement by the employee or by a person in whom the particular right has become vested is deemed to be an amount paid or agreed to be paid to the particular qualifying person for a security acquired under the particular agreement referred to in section 48.

However, section 53 does not apply to the case contemplated by this section.

1972, c. 23, s. 52; 1993, c. 16, s. 33; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 14, s. 21; 2001, c. 53, s. 22; 2003, c. 2, s. 22.

GOODS AND SERVICES TAX OR QUÉBEC SALES TAX REBATE

1991, c. 25, s. 13; 1992, c. 1, s. 19.

58.2. Where an amount in respect of a particular outlay or particular expense is deducted under Chapter III in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year from an office or employment, or an amount is included in the capital cost to the taxpayer of a particular property described in section 64 or 78.4, and a particular amount is paid to the taxpayer in a particular taxation year as a rebate under the Excise Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter E-15) in respect of any goods and services tax included in the amount of the particular outlay or particular expense or the capital cost of the particular property, as the case may be, the particular amount,

(a) to the extent that it relates to the particular outlay or particular expense, shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income from an office or employment for the particular year; and

(b) to the extent that it relates to the capital cost of the particular property, is deemed, for the purposes of section 101, to have been received by the taxpayer in the particular year as assistance from a government for the acquisition of the particular property.

58.3. Where an amount in respect of a particular outlay or particular expense is deducted under Chapter III in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year from an office or employment, or an amount is included in the capital cost to the taxpayer of a particular property described in section 64 or 78.4, and a particular amount is paid to the taxpayer in a particular taxation year as a rebate under the Act respecting the Québec sales tax (chapter T-0.1) in respect of any Québec sales tax included in the amount of the particular outlay or particular expense or the capital cost of the particular property, as the case may be, the particular amount,

(a) to the extent that it relates to the particular outlay or particular expense, shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income from an office or employment for the particular year; and

(b) to the extent that it relates to the capital cost of the particular property, is deemed, for the purposes of section 101, to have been received by the taxpayer in the particular year as assistance from a government for the acquisition of the particular property.

DEDUCTIONS

1972, c. 23.

DIVISION I

RULES OF APPLICATION

1972, c. 23.

59. An individual shall not, in computing the income of the individual for a taxation year from an office or employment, deduct any amount except as provided in this chapter and only to the extent that such amount may reasonably be regarded as applicable to that office or employment.

1972, c. 23, s. 53; 1998, c. 16, s. 74.

59.1. For the purposes of this Title, other than sections 32 and 33 and Division VI of Chapter II, the amount of any rebate paid or payable to a taxpayer under the Act respecting the Québec sales tax (chapter T-0.1) in respect of the Québec sales tax or under the Excise Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter E-15) in respect of the goods and services tax is deemed not to be an amount that is reimbursed to the taxpayer or to which the taxpayer is entitled.

1991, c. 25, s. 14; 1992, c. 1, s. 21; 1997, c. 14, s. 23.

DIVISION II

DIVISION III

SALESMEN'S EXPENSES AND TRAVEL EXPENSES

1972, c. 23; 1997, c. 85, s. 45.

62. (1) An individual whose office or employment is connected with the selling of property or negotiating of contracts for the individual's employer may, in accordance with this division, deduct the amounts expended by the individual in the year to earn the income from the office or employment, if the individual is required, under the contract of employment, to pay the individual's own expenses, if the individual is required to carry on all or part of the duties of the office or employment away from the employer's place of business, and if the individual is remunerated in whole or in part by commissions or other similar amounts fixed by reference to the volume of the sales made or the contracts negotiated.

(2) An individual shall not claim a deduction under this section if the individual receives an allowance for travel expenses that is not required to be included in computing the individual's income under paragraph a of section 40.

(3) The deduction under this section must not exceed the sum of the commissions and other similar amounts, fixed by reference to the volume of the sales made or the contracts negotiated, that the individual receives in the year, and shall only be made to the extent to which the amounts expended are not

(a) outlays, losses or replacements of capital or payments on account of capital, except amounts described in section 64,

(b) outlays or expenses that, under section 134, would not be deductible in computing the individual's income for the year if the office or employment were a business carried on by the individual, or

(c) amounts the payment of which reduced the amount that would otherwise be included in computing the individual's income for the year under section 41.

1972, c. 23, s. 56; 1977, c. 26, s. 4; 1983, c. 49, s. 11; 1993, c. 16, s. 34; 1997, c. 85, s. 46.

62.1. Notwithstanding section 62, no amount may be deducted in computing an individual's income for a taxation year from an office or employment in respect of any part, in this section and sections 62.2 and 62.3 referred to as the "work space", of the self-contained domestic establishment in which the individual resides, except to the extent that the work space is either

(a) the place where the individual principally performs the duties of the office or employment, or

(b) used

i. exclusively during the period in respect of which the amount relates for the purposes of earning income from the office or employment, and

ii. on a regular and continuous basis for meeting customers or other persons in the ordinary course of performing the duties of the office or employment.

1993, c. 16, s. 35.

62.2. Where the conditions set out in paragraph a or b of section 62.1 are met in respect of the work space described in that section, the amount in respect of the work space that may be deducted in computing the individual's income for a taxation year from the office or employment shall not exceed the individual's income for the year from the office or employment, computed without reference to any deduction in respect of the work space.

62.3. Any amount in respect of a work space that was, by reason only of section 62.2, not deductible in computing the individual's income for the preceding taxation year from an office or employment is deemed to be an amount in respect of a work space that is otherwise deductible and that, subject to section 62.2, may be deducted in computing the individual's income for the taxation year from the office or employment.

63. An individual may deduct amounts expended by the individual in the year, other than motor vehicle expenses, for travelling in the course of the individual's office or employment, if the individual is required to perform all or part of the duties of the office or employment away from the employer's place of business or in different places and is required under the contract of employment to pay the travel expenses incurred by the individual in the performance of the duties of the office or employment.

An individual shall not claim any deduction under this section if the individual receives an allowance for travel expenses that is not required to be included in computing the individual's income for the year because of paragraph e of section 39 or paragraph a or b of section 40, or if the individual claims a deduction for the year under section 62, 65.1, 66 or 67.

63.1. An individual may deduct amounts expended by the individual in the year in respect of motor vehicle expenses incurred for travelling in the course of the individual's duties, if the individual is required to carry on all or part of the duties away from the place of business of the individual's employer or in different places and is required under the contract of employment to pay the motor vehicle expenses incurred by the individual in the performance of the individual's duties.

An individual shall not claim any deduction under this section if the individual receives an allowance for the use of a motor vehicle that is not required to be included in computing the individual's income for the year because of section 39 or 40, or if the individual claims a deduction for the year under section 62.

64. An individual who is entitled, in the year, to a deduction under section 62, 63 or 63.1 may also deduct any interest paid by the individual in the year on borrowed money used for the purpose of purchasing, or an amount payable for the purchase of, a motor vehicle that is used by the individual in the performance of the individual's duties, and such part of the capital cost of such a motor vehicle as is allowed by regulation.

The individual may also deduct any interest paid by the individual in the year on borrowed money used for the purpose of purchasing an aircraft that is required for use in the performance of the individual's duties, and such part of the capital cost of the aircraft as is allowed by regulation.

1972, c. 23, s. 58; 1978, c. 26, s. 7; 1982, c. 5, s. 20; 1984, c. 35, s. 9; 1990, c. 59, s. 40; 1993, c. 16, s. 38; 1998, c. 16, s. 77.

64.1. (Repealed).

64.2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, an individual who uses an aircraft that is owned or rented by the individual for travelling in the course of the individual's duties shall not deduct the aggregate of the amounts that would otherwise be deductible pursuant to section 62, 63 or 64, in respect of the aircraft, except to the extent that such aggregate is reasonable in the circumstances having regard to the cost and availability of other modes of transportation.

64.3. No amount may be deducted for the year by an individual under any of sections 62, 63 and 63.1, unless the individual files with the Minister, together with the individual's fiscal return for the year under this Part, a prescribed form signed by the individual's employer certifying that the conditions set out in that section were met in the year in respect of the individual.

65. An individual shall not, in computing a deduction under section 62 or 63, deduct an amount expended for a meal unless the meal is consumed during a period while the individual was required by the individual's duties to be away, for not less than 12 hours, from the local municipal territory or the metropolitan area, as the case may be, where the employer's establishment to which the individual ordinarily reports for work is located.

Despite the first paragraph, an individual may, in computing a deduction under section 62, deduct an amount expended for a meal if it is consumed with a client.

65.1. An individual who regularly collects or delivers goods for the individual's employer by means of vehicles that are used by the employer to transport goods away from the local municipal territory or the metropolitan area, as the case may be, where the employer's establishment to which the individual ordinarily reports for work is located, may deduct the amounts disbursed by the individual in the year for meals and lodging while the individual is required by the individual's duties to be away for not less than 12 consecutive hours from that territory or metropolitan area or to go to a place located at least 80 kilometres from that territory or metropolitan area, to the extent that the individual is not reimbursed and is not entitled to be reimbursed in respect thereof.

66. Where an individual is an employee of a person whose principal business is transport and the individual's duties require the individual, regularly, to travel away from the local municipal territory or the metropolitan area, as the case may be, where the employer's establishment to which the individual ordinarily reports for work is located, on vehicles used by the employer for transport, the individual may deduct the amounts disbursed by the individual in the year for meals and lodging while the individual is so away from that territory or metropolitan area, to the extent that the individual is not reimbursed and is not entitled to be reimbursed in respect thereof.

67. An individual who is an employee of a railway company may deduct the amounts disbursed by the individual in the year for meals and lodging while performing, away from the individual's ordinary place of residence, the duties of a relieving telegrapher or station agent or of a maintenance and repair worker.

There may also be deducted any such amounts disbursed by the individual while

(a) away from the local municipal territory and, as the case may be, the metropolitan area where the individual's home terminal is located; and

(b) at a location from which, by reason of distance from the place where the individual maintains a self-contained domestic establishment in which the individual resides and actually supports a spouse or a person dependent on the individual for support and connected with the individual by blood relationship, marriage or adoption, the individual cannot reasonably be expected to return daily to that place.

The amounts contemplated in this section are deductible to the extent that the individual is not reimbursed and is not entitled to be reimbursed in respect thereof.

DIVISION V

PENSION, RETIREMENT AND EMPLOYMENT INSURANCE PLANS

1972, c. 23; 1997, c. 14, s. 290.

70. An individual may deduct any amount:

(a) (paragraph repealed);

(b) (paragraph repealed);

(c) deductible by him, in respect of a contribution to a registered pension plan, in computing his income for the year to the extent provided in section 965.0.3.

1972, c. 23, s. 64; 1991, c. 25, s. 15; 1993, c. 15, s. 93; 1993, c. 64, s. 21; 1993, c. 64, s. 247.

70.1. An individual may deduct the amount that is deductible in computing his income for the year by reason of section 864.

1995, c. 49, s. 30.

70.1.1. An individual may deduct an amount that is an excess profit sharing plan amount (as defined in section 1129.66.9) of the individual for the year, other than any portion of the excess profit sharing plan amount for which the individual's tax for the year under section 1129.66.10 is waived or cancelled.

2015, c. 21, s. 109.

70.2. An individual may deduct an amount contributed by him in the year to a pension plan in respect of services rendered by him where the plan is a prescribed plan or where

(a) the plan is a retirement compensation arrangement;

(b) the amount was paid to a custodian, within the meaning of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 890.1, of the arrangement who is resident in Canada; and

(c) either

i. the individual was required, by the terms of the individual's office or employment, to contribute the amount, and the aggregate of the amounts contributed to the plan in the year by him does not exceed the aggregate of the amounts contributed to the plan in the year by any other person in respect of the individual, or

ii. the plan is a pension plan the registration of which was revoked under the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), other than a plan the registration of which was revoked as of the effective date of its registration, and the amount was contributed in accordance with the terms of the plan as last registered.

74.2. For the application of paragraph c of section 70 and section 71 to the taxation year 1986, such part as a taxpayer designates in his fiscal return for that year of the aggregate of all amounts contributed by the taxpayer after 31 December 1985 and before 9 October 1986 as additional voluntary contributions is deemed to have been contributed in respect of services rendered by the taxpayer before 1 January 1986.

1991, c. 25, s. 17.

75. An individual who may deduct the salary paid to another person under section 78, may also deduct any amount payable by him in the year in respect of the salary of such person as an employer's premium under the Employment Insurance Act (Statutes of Canada, 1996, chapter 23) or under the Act respecting parental insurance (chapter A-29.011), or as an employer's contribution under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan (chapter R-9) or under any similar plan within the meaning of paragraph u of section 1 of the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan or under the Act respecting the Régie de l'assurance maladie du Québec (chapter R-5).

DIVISION V.1

PROFESSIONAL OR MALPRACTICE LIABILITY INSURANCE

1997, c. 14, s. 26.

75.1. An individual may deduct an amount paid by him in the year as professional or malpractice liability insurance if the payment was necessary to maintain a professional status recognized by statute.

1997, c. 14, s. 26.

DIVISION V.2

TRADESPERSONS AND APPRENTICE MECHANICS

2004, c. 8, s. 16; 2007, c. 12, s. 26.

75.2. In this division,

"eligible apprentice mechanic", at any time in a taxation year, means an individual who, at that time,

(a) is registered in a program established in accordance with the laws of Canada or of a province that leads to designation under those laws as a mechanic licensed to repair self-propelled motorized vehicles; and

(b) is employed as an apprentice mechanic;

"eligible tool" of an individual means a tool, including ancillary equipment, that

(a) is acquired by the individual for use in connection with the individual's employment as an eligible apprentice mechanic or as a tradesperson;

(b) has not been used for any purpose before it is acquired by the individual;

(c) is certified in a prescribed form signed by the individual's employer to be required to be provided by the individual as a condition of, and for use in, the individual's employment as an eligible apprentice mechanic or as a tradesperson; and

(d) is, unless the device or equipment can be used only for the purpose of measuring, locating or calculating, not an electronic communication device or electronic data processing equipment.

For the purposes of paragraph a of the definition of "eligible apprentice mechanic" in the first paragraph, an individual is considered to be registered in a program established in accordance with the laws of a province that leads to designation under those laws as a mechanic licensed to repair self-propelled motorized vehicles if the individual holds an apprenticeship card issued by a parity committee of the automobile industry formed pursuant to the laws of a province, to obtain from that committee designation as a mechanic licensed to repair self-propelled motorized vehicles.

75.2.1. An individual who is employed as a tradesperson, at any time in the year, may deduct an amount not exceeding the lesser of $1,000 and the amount determined by the formula

A − B.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the cost to the individual of an eligible tool acquired by the individual after 1 May 2006 and in the year, and

ii. the aggregate of

(1) the amount that would be the individual's income for the year from employment as a tradesperson if this chapter were read without reference to this division, and

(2) the amount, if any, by which the amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph i of section 312 exceeds the amount deducted in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph d.3.0.1 of section 336; and

(b) B is an amount of $1,000.

An individual may deduct an amount for the year under the first paragraph only if the individual sends the Minister the prescribed form referred to in paragraph c of the definition of "eligible tool" in the first paragraph of section 75.2 with the fiscal return the individual is required to file for the year under this Part.

2007, c. 12, s. 28; 2024, c. 11, s. 46.

75.3. An individual who is an eligible apprentice mechanic at any time in the year after 31 December 2001 may deduct an amount not exceeding the lesser of

(a) the individual's income for the year computed without reference to this section; and

(b) the amount determined by the formula

(A − B) + C.

In the formula provided for in subparagraph b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the cost to the individual of an eligible tool acquired in the year by the individual or, if the individual first becomes employed as an eligible apprentice mechanic in the year, the cost to the individual of an eligible tool acquired by the individual in the last three months of the preceding taxation year;

(b) B is the lesser of

i. the aggregate determined for the year under subparagraph a in respect of the individual, and

ii. the greater of

(1) the total of the amount in dollars mentioned in the portion of the first paragraph of section 75.2.1 before the formula and the amount determined for the year for B in the formula in the first paragraph of that section, and

(2) 5% of the amount determined under the third paragraph; and

(c) C is the amount by which the amount determined under subparagraph b of the first paragraph for the preceding taxation year in respect of the individual exceeds the amount deducted under this section for that preceding taxation year by the individual.

The amount to which subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the second paragraph refers is equal to the aggregate of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the individual's income for the year from employment as an eligible apprentice mechanic, computed without reference to this section; and

(b) the amount, if any, by which the amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph i of section 312 exceeds the amount deducted in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph d.3.0.1 of section 336.

No amount may be deducted for the year by an individual under the first paragraph, unless the individual files with the Minister, together with the individual's fiscal return for the year under this Part, the prescribed form referred to in paragraph c of the definition of "eligible tool" in the first paragraph of section 75.2.

75.4. An individual who, at any time in the year, is not an eligible apprentice mechanic and has an excess amount determined under subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 75.3 is, for that year, entitled to deduct an amount under section 75.3 as if that excess amount were wholly applicable to an employment of the individual.

75.5. Except for the purposes of subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 75.2.1 and subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 75.3, the cost to an individual of an eligible tool the cost of which was included in computing the aggregate determined under either of those provisions in respect of the individual for a taxation year is equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$A - (A \times B / C).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the cost to the individual of the eligible tool, computed without reference to this section;

(b) B is

i. if the tool is an eligible tool in respect of which only section 75.2.1 applies for the year, the amount that is deductible by the individual for the year under that section,

ii. if the tool is an eligible tool in respect of which only section 75.3 applies for the year, the amount that would be determined under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 75.3 in respect of the individual for the year if the excess amount determined under subparagraph c of the second paragraph of that section were nil, and

iii. if the tool is an eligible tool in respect of which sections 75.2.1 and 75.3 apply for the year, the aggregate of

(1) the amount that is deductible by the individual for the year under section 75.2.1, and

(2) the amount that would be determined under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 75.3 in respect of the individual for the year if the excess amount determined under subparagraph c of the second paragraph of that section were nil; and

(c) C is

i. if the tool is an eligible tool in respect of which only section 75.2.1 applies for the year, the aggregate determined under subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of that section in respect of the individual for the year,

ii. if the tool is an eligible tool in respect of which only section 75.3 applies for the year, the aggregate determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph of that section in respect of the individual for the year, and

iii. if the tool is an eligible tool in respect of which sections 75.2.1 and 75.3 apply for the year, the greater of the aggregate determined under subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 75.2.1 in respect of the individual for the year and the aggregate determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 75.3 in respect of the individual for the year.

2004, c. 8, s. 16; 2007, c. 12, s. 30.

75.6. (Repealed).

MISCELLANEOUS

1972, c. 23.

76. An individual who, in the year, is a member of the clergy or of a religious order or a regular minister of a religious denomination, and is in charge of or ministering to a diocese, parish or congregation or engaged exclusively in full-time administrative service by appointment of a religious order or religious denomination, may deduct the amount, not exceeding the individual's remuneration for the year from the office or employment, equal to

(a) the aggregate of all amounts including amounts in respect of utilities, included in computing the individual's income for the year under Chapter II in relation to the residence or other living accommodation occupied by the individual because of the individual's office or employment; or

(b) an amount, not exceeding the amount determined under the second paragraph, that is equal to the total of the rent and expenses in respect of utilities paid by the individual for the individual's principal place of residence or for another principal living accommodation ordinarily occupied during the year by the individual, or the fair rental value of such a residence or living accommodation, including the value of utilities, owned by the individual or the individual's spouse, to the extent that the individual is required to use that place of residence or other living accommodation in performing the duties of the individual's office or employment.

The amount to which subparagraph b of the first paragraph refers is the lesser of

(a) the greater of

i. $1,000 multiplied by the number of months in the year during which the individual is a member or a minister referred to in the first paragraph, not exceeding $10,000, and

ii. one-third of the individual's remuneration for the year from the office or employment; and

(b) the amount by which the total of the rent paid or the fair rental value of the residence or living accommodation and expenses in respect of utilities exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted, in respect of the residence or accommodation, in computing a particular individual's income from an office or employment or from a business, other than an amount deducted under the first paragraph by the individual, to the extent that the amount can reasonably be considered to relate to the period, or a portion of the period, in respect of which the individual deducted an amount under the first paragraph.

No amount may be deducted for the year by an individual under the first paragraph, unless the individual files with the Minister, together with the individual's fiscal return for the year under this Part, a prescribed form signed by the individual's employer certifying that the conditions set out in that paragraph were met in the year in respect of the individual.

1972, c. 23, s. 69; 2003, c. 2, s. 25; 2007, c. 12, s. 32.

76.1. (Repealed).

77. In computing income for a taxation year from an office or employment, an individual may deduct judicial or extrajudicial expenses paid by the individual in the year to collect, or to establish a right to, an amount owed to the individual that, if received by the individual, would be required by this Title to be included in computing the individual's income.

1972, c. 23, s. 71; 1991, c. 25, s. 18; 2000, c. 39, s. 6; 2009, c. 15, s. 47; I.N. 2016-01-01 (NCCP); 2017, c. 29, s. 29.

77.1. If, in a taxation year, an employee is deemed by reason of section 53 to have disposed of a security, as defined in section 47.18, held by a trust, the trust disposed of the security to the person that issued the security, the disposition occurred as a result of the employee not meeting the conditions necessary for title to the security to vest in the employee, and the amount paid by the person to acquire the security from the trust or to redeem or cancel the security did not exceed the amount paid to the person for the security, the following rules apply:

(a) there may be deducted in computing the employee's income for the year from an office or employment the amount by which the amount of the benefit deemed by section 49 to have been received by the employee in the year or a preceding taxation year in respect of the security exceeds any amount deducted under section 725.2 or 725.3 in computing the employee's taxable income for the year or a preceding taxation year in respect of that benefit; and

(b) notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, any gain or loss of the employee otherwise determined from the disposition of the security is deemed to be nil, and Division I of Chapter III of Title IX does not apply to deem a dividend to have been received in respect of the disposition.

78. An individual may deduct, in computing the individual's income for a taxation year, any amount paid by the individual in the year, or on behalf of the individual in the year if the amount paid on behalf of the individual is required to be included in computing the individual's income for the year, as office rent or salary to an assistant or substitute or for supplies consumed directly in the performance of duties if the individual's contract of employment requires the individual to pay such amounts and, as the case may be, furnish such supplies.

However, no such amounts may be deducted for the year by the individual unless the individual submits to the Minister, with the fiscal return filed for the year by the individual under this Part, a prescribed form signed by the individual's employer certifying that the conditions set out in the first paragraph were met in the year in respect of the individual.

The rules set forth in sections 62.1 to 62.3 apply, with the necessary modifications, for the purpose of computing the amount that may be deducted by an individual under this section in respect of any part, in those sections referred to as the "work space", of a self-contained domestic establishment in which the individual resides.

78.1. An individual may deduct an amount paid by or on behalf of the individual in the year pursuant to an arrangement, other than an arrangement described in paragraph b of the definition of "top-up disability payment" in the first paragraph of section 43.0.2, under which the individual is required to reimburse any amount paid to the individual for a period throughout which the individual did not perform the duties of the individual's office or employment, to the extent that the amount so paid to the individual for the period was included in computing the individual's income from an office or employment.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the individual shall not deduct that part of amounts so reimbursed which exceeds the aggregate of amounts received by him for such a period.

78.1.1. An individual may deduct the amount determined in respect of the individual for the year under the second paragraph where, as a consequence of the receipt of an amount, in this section referred to as the "deferred amount", from an insurer, an amount is reimbursed by or on behalf of the individual to an employer or former employer of the individual pursuant to an arrangement described in paragraph b of the definition of "top-up disability payment" in the first paragraph of section 43.0.2, and the reimbursement is made

(a) in the year, other than within the first 60 days of the year if the deferred amount was received in the preceding taxation year; or

(b) within 60 days after the end of the year, if the deferred amount was received in the year.

The amount to which the first paragraph refers in respect of an individual for the year is the lesser of

(a) the amount included under section 43 in respect of the deferred amount in computing the individual's income for any taxation year; and

(b) the amount of the reimbursement referred to in the first paragraph in respect of the individual for the year.

2000, c. 5, s. 25.

78.2. An individual may deduct the amount determined under section 78.3 where at the end of the year the rights of any person to receive benefits under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of the individual have been extinguished or no person has any further right to receive any amount under the arrangement.

1988, c. 18, s. 6.

78.3. The amount referred to in section 78.2 is equal to the amount by which the aggregate of all deferred amounts under the arrangement included in computing the individual's income for the year and preceding taxation years as benefits under section 37 exceeds the aggregate of

(a) all such deferred amounts received by any person in that year or preceding taxation years out of or under the arrangement,

(b) all such deferred amounts receivable by any person in subsequent taxation years out of or under the arrangement, and

(c) all amounts deducted under section 78.2 in computing the individual's income for preceding taxation years in respect of deferred amounts under the arrangement.

1988, c. 18, s. 6.

78.4. An individual who is employed in the year as a musician and, as a term of the employment, is required to provide a musical instrument for a period in the year may deduct an amount not exceeding his income for the year from the employment, computed without reference to this section, equal to the aggregate of

(a) amounts disbursed by him before the end of the year for the maintenance, rental and insurance of the instrument for that period, except where the amounts are otherwise deducted in computing his income for any taxation year, and

(b) such part of the capital cost of the musical instrument as is allowed by regulation.

78.6. Where the amount contemplated in section 43.2 for a taxation year in respect of an individual in relation to a multi-employer insurance plan exceeds the amount established for the year in accordance with the second paragraph of section 43.3 in respect of the individual in relation to that plan, the individual may deduct the excess amount in computing his income for the year.

TITLE III

INCOME OR LOSS FROM A BUSINESS OR PROPERTY

1972, c. 23.

CHAPTER I

BASIC RULES

1972, c. 23.

80. Subject to this Part, a taxpayer's income from a business or property is his profit therefrom.

The income a taxpayer must include under this Title in computing his income for a taxation year from businesses or property is his income therefrom for that year, unless this Title provides otherwise.

1972, c. 23, s. 74.

81. A taxpayer's loss for a taxation year from a business or property is the amount of such loss computed, with the necessary modifications, by applying the provisions of this Part respecting computation of income from that source.

1972, c. 23, s. 75; 1995, c. 63, s. 25.

82. For the purposes of this Part, income or loss from a property does not include, respectively, any capital gain or any capital loss resulting from the disposition of the property.

1972, c. 23, s. 76; 1985, c. 25, s. 23; 1987, c. 67, s. 17.

83. For the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business that is not an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, property described in an inventory shall be valued at the end of the year at the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property or its fair market value at the end of the year, whichever is lower, or in a prescribed manner.

83.0.1. For the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income from a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, property described in an inventory shall be valued at the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property.

2000, c. 5, s. 27.

83.0.2. Where, at the end of a taxpayer's taxation year that is the last year in which property described in an inventory of a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade was valued in accordance with section 83, the property was valued at an amount that is less than the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property, after that time the cost to the taxpayer at which the property was acquired is, subject to section 83.0.3, deemed to be equal to that amount.

83.0.3. Despite section 83.0.1, property described in an inventory of a taxpayer's business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade at the end of the taxpayer's taxation year that ends immediately before the time at which the taxpayer is subject to a loss restriction event is to be valued at the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property, or its fair market value at the end of the year, whichever is lower, and, after that time, the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property is deemed to be equal to that lower amount.

83.0.4. Where at a particular time a taxpayer not resident in Canada ceases to use, in relation to a business or part of a business carried on by the taxpayer in Canada immediately before that time, a property that was immediately before that time described in the inventory of the business or the part of the business, other than a property that was disposed of by the taxpayer at that time, the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of the property immediately before that time for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value at that time; and

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have received those proceeds immediately before that time in the course of carrying on the business or the part of the business.

2004, c. 8, s. 17.

83.0.5. Where at a particular time a property becomes described in the inventory of a business or part of a business that a taxpayer not resident in Canada carries on in Canada after that time, other than a property that was, otherwise than because of this section, acquired by the taxpayer at that time, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the property at that time at a cost equal to its fair market value at that time.

2004, c. 8, s. 17.

83.0.6. (Repealed).

83.0.7. For the purposes of sections 83 to 85.6, property of a taxpayer that is a swap agreement, a forward purchase or sale agreement, a forward rate agreement, a futures agreement, an option agreement, or any similar agreement is deemed not to be property described in an inventory of the taxpayer.

83.1. For the purposes of sections 83, 83.0.1 and 83.0.3, where land is described in an inventory of a business of a taxpayer, the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the land shall include each amount that

(a) is the amount of an expense referred to in the first paragraph of section 164, in respect of the land and for which no deduction is permitted to the taxpayer, or to another person or partnership that is

i. a person or partnership with whom or with which the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length,

ii. if the taxpayer is a corporation, a person or partnership that is a specified shareholder of the taxpayer, or

iii. if the taxpayer is a partnership, a person or partnership whose share of any income or loss of the taxpayer is 10% or more; and

(b) is not included in or added to the cost to that other person or partnership of any property otherwise than because of paragraph e.1 of section 255 or subparagraph xi of paragraph i of that section.

84. Notwithstanding section 83, for the purpose of computing income for a taxation year from a business, the taxpayer shall value the property described in his inventory at the commencement of the year at the same amount as that at which it was valued at the end of the preceding year for the purpose of computing income for that preceding year.

1972, c. 23, s. 78.

84.1. Where property described in an inventory of a taxpayer's business that is not an adventure or concern in the nature of trade is valued at the end of a taxation year in accordance with a method permitted under sections 83 to 85.6, that method shall, subject to section 85.5, be used in the valuation of property described in the inventory of that business at the end of the following taxation year for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income from the business unless the taxpayer, with the concurrence of the Minister and on any terms and conditions that are specified by the Minister, adopts another method permitted under those sections.

85. Where, according to the method adopted by the taxpayer for computing income from a business for a taxation year, the property described in his inventory at the commencement of that year has not been valued as required by section 83, such property is nevertheless deemed to have been valued in that manner, if the Minister so directs.

1972, c. 23, s. 79.

85.1. For the purposes of section 83, the fair market value of the property described in the inventory of a taxpayer means, in the case of work in progress at the end of a taxation year of a business that is a profession, the amount that can reasonably be expected to become receivable in respect thereof after the end of the year and, in other cases, the replacement cost of the property.

85.2. Section 85.1 does not apply to property that is obsolete, damaged or defective or that is held for sale or lease or for the purpose of being processed, fabricated, manufactured, incorporated into, attached to, or otherwise converted into property for sale or lease.

1982, c. 5, s. 23.

85.3. Without restricting the generality of this chapter,

(a) property, other than capital property, of a taxpayer that is work in progress of a business that is a profession, advertising or packaging material, parts or supplies must be included in his inventory;

(b) property used primarily for the purposes of advertising or packaging property that is included in the inventory of a taxpayer shall be deemed not to be property held for sale or lease or for any of the purposes referred to in section 85.2; and

(c) property of a taxpayer, the cost to him of which was deductible by virtue of paragraph n of section 157 must be included in his inventory having a cost to him, except for the purposes of that paragraph, of nil.

1982, c. 5, s. 23; 1984, c. 15, s. 18; 1986, c. 15, s. 46; 1997, c. 14, s. 28.

85.3.0.1. (Repealed).

85.3.1. Without restricting the generality of this Title, for the purposes of computing the income of a taxpayer derived for a taxation year from a metal recycling business, the cost of a property owned by the taxpayer as is described in the inventory of the business is deemed to be nil, unless the taxpayer,

(a) where the property is acquired by the taxpayer from a person or a partnership who or which is registered for the purposes of the Québec sales tax, obtains from that person or partnership, at the time of the acquisition, the registration number that is assigned to the person or partnership in accordance with the Act respecting the Québec sales tax (chapter T-0.1); or

(b) in any other case, fills out, at the time of the acquisition of the property, a document signed by the individual who delivers the property to the taxpayer and containing the information required by section 85.3.2 in relation to the acquisition.

85.3.2. For the purposes of paragraph b of section 85.3.1, the information that must be included in the document filled out by the taxpayer is the following:

(a) the name, address, date of birth and Social Insurance Number of the individual who delivers the property to the taxpayer to whom that paragraph b refers;

(b) the description of the goods acquired, the purchase price and the method of payment;

(c) if the individual who delivers the property to the taxpayer is not the vendor of the property, the name and address of the vendor and the vendor's Social Insurance Number or, as the case may be, the vendor's Québec business number assigned under the Act respecting the legal publicity of enterprises (chapter P-44.1).

The individual referred to in subparagraph a of the first paragraph shall produce one of the following supporting documents to confirm the individual's name, address and Social Insurance Number, and the document containing that information must specify the supporting document so produced:

(a) the individual's health insurance card issued by the Régie de l'assurance maladie du Québec;

(b) the individual's birth certificate;

(c) the individual's driver's licence issued by the Société de l'assurance automobile du Québec;

(d) the registration certificate of the vehicle used for the transportation of the property that is issued by the Société de l'assurance automobile du Québec.

85.4. For the purposes of sections 83 to 85.6, the expression "artistic endeavour" of an individual means the business of creating paintings, prints, etchings, drawings, sculptures or similar works of art, where such works of art are created by the individual, but does not include a business of reproducing works of art.

85.5. Despite section 83, for the purpose of computing the income of an individual other than a trust for a taxation year from an artistic endeavour, the value of the property in the individual's inventory for the year is deemed to be nil if the individual makes, in relation to the year, a valid election under subsection 6 of section 10 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in respect of the artistic endeavour.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 6 of section 10 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

85.6. If the value of the property in an individual's inventory in relation to an artistic endeavour is deemed to be nil for a taxation year because of an election referred to in the first paragraph of section 85.5 made in relation to that year, the value of the property in the individual's inventory in relation to the artistic endeavour is deemed to be nil for each subsequent taxation year, unless the taxation year is a year in relation to which a revocation, made by the individual under subsection 7 of section 10 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006, of an election made under subsection 6 of section 10 of that Act in respect of the artistic endeavour, is valid.

Any condition determined by the Minister of National Revenue for the revocation referred to in the first paragraph applies, with the necessary modifications, in computing the income from the artistic endeavour.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to a revocation made under subsection 7 of section 10 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to a revocation made under this section before 20 December 2006.

85.7. Where a taxpayer has made a valid election under subsection 1 of section 10.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), the following rules apply in respect of the taxation years to which the election applies for the purposes of that Act (each such taxation year being referred to in this section as a "particular taxation year"):

(a) where the taxpayer is a financial institution, within the meaning of section 851.22.1, in the particular taxation year, each eligible derivative held by the taxpayer in the particular year is, for the purposes of this Act and with the necessary modifications, deemed to be mark-to-market property, within the meaning of section 851.22.1, of the taxpayer for the particular year; and

(b) in any other case, the taxpayer is deemed

i. to have disposed, immediately before the end of the particular taxation year, of each eligible derivative held by the taxpayer at the end of that year and received proceeds of disposition or paid an amount, as the case may be, equal to the fair market value of the eligible derivative at the time of disposition, and

ii. to have reacquired, or reissued or renewed, at the end of the taxation year, each of the eligible derivatives referred to in subparagraph i at an amount equal to the proceeds of disposition or the amount paid, as the case may be, referred to in subparagraph i, in respect of the eligible derivative.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, where a taxpayer revokes, under subsection 2 of section 10.1 of the Income Tax Act and for the purposes of that Act, an election made under subsection 1 of that section 10.1, a taxation year in relation to which the revocation applies for the purposes of that Act is not a particular taxation year.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 1 of section 10.1 of the Income Tax Act or an application for revocation made under subsection 2 of that section 10.1.

85.8. For the purposes of sections 85.7 and 85.9 to 85.12, an eligible derivative of a taxpayer for a taxation year means a swap agreement, a forward purchase or sale agreement, a forward rate agreement, a futures agreement, an option agreement or a similar agreement, held in the year by the taxpayer, where

(a) the agreement is not a capital property, a Canadian resource property, a foreign resource property or an obligation on account of capital of the taxpayer;

(b) either

i. the taxpayer has produced audited financial statements prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles for the taxation year, or

ii. if the taxpayer has not produced financial statements described in subparagraph i, the agreement has a readily ascertainable fair market value; and

(c) if the agreement is held by a financial institution within the meaning of section 851.22.1, the agreement is not a tracking property within the meaning of that section (other than an excluded property within the meaning of that section) of the financial institution.

85.9. Where a taxpayer holds an eligible derivative at the beginning of its first taxation year in respect of which an election provided for in section 85.7 applies (in this section referred to as the "election year") and, in the taxation year immediately preceding the election year, the taxpayer did not compute its profit or loss in respect of that eligible derivative in accordance with a method of profit computation that produces a substantially similar effect to that provided for in subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 85.7, the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed

i. to have disposed of the eligible derivative immediately before the beginning of the election year and received proceeds of disposition or paid an amount, as the case may be, equal to the fair market value of the eligible derivative at that time, and

ii. to have reacquired, or reissued or renewed, the eligible derivative at the beginning of the election year at an amount equal to the proceeds of disposition or the amount paid, as the case may be, referred to in subparagraph i;

(b) the profit or loss that would arise, but for this paragraph, on the deemed disposition under subparagraph i of paragraph a

i. is deemed not to arise in the taxation year immediately preceding the election year, and

ii. is deemed to arise in the taxation year in which the taxpayer disposes of the eligible derivative (otherwise than under subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 85.7 or paragraph a of section 851.22.15); and

(c) for the purposes of section 175.9, in respect of the disposition of the eligible derivative referred to in subparagraph ii of paragraph b, the profit or loss deemed to arise because of the application of that subparagraph is included in determining the amount of the transferor's loss, if any, from the disposition.

2020, c. 16, s. 32.

85.10. Where section 85.7 does not apply to a taxpayer referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph of that section in respect of a taxation year, the taxpayer shall not use a method of profit computation that produces a substantially similar effect to that provided for in that subparagraph b for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income from a business or property in respect of a swap agreement, a forward purchase or sale agreement, a forward rate agreement, a futures agreement, an option agreement or a similar agreement for the year.

85.11. For the purposes of sections 85.7 to 85.9, if an agreement that is an eligible derivative of a taxpayer is not a property of the taxpayer, the taxpayer is deemed

(a) to hold the eligible derivative at any time while the taxpayer is a party to the agreement; and

(b) to have disposed of the eligible derivative when it is settled or extinguished in respect of the taxpayer.

85.12. Where there has been an amalgamation, within the meaning of section 544, of two or more corporations and subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 85.7 applies to a predecessor corporation, within the meaning of section 544, in its last taxation year, each eligible derivative of the predecessor corporation immediately before the end of its last taxation year is deemed to have been reacquired, or reissued or renewed, as the case may be, by the new corporation, within the meaning of section 544, at its fair market value immediately before the amalgamation.

Where the rules set out in sections 556 to 564.1 and 565 apply to the winding-up of a subsidiary, within the meaning of section 556, the subsidiary's taxation year in which an eligible derivative was distributed to, or assumed by, the parent, within the meaning of section 556, on the winding-up is deemed, for the purposes of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 85.7, to have ended immediately before the time when the eligible derivative was distributed or assumed.

86. Subject to sections 217.2 to 217.9.1, where an individual is a proprietor of a business, the individual's income from the business for a taxation year is deemed to be the income from the business for the fiscal periods of the business that end in the year.

Where an individual's income for a taxation year includes income from a business the fiscal period of which does not coincide with the calendar year, any reference in respect of the business to the taxation year or the year, in this Title and in sections 487 to 487.0.4, is to be read as a reference to the fiscal period ending in the year, unless the context otherwise requires.

1972, c. 23, s. 80; 1991, c. 25, s. 19; 1995, c. 49, s. 31; 1997, c. 31, s. 10; 2000, c. 5, s. 293; 2015, c. 24, s. 24.

CHAPTER II

INCLUSIONS

1972, c. 23.

DIVISION I

SPECIFIC AMOUNTS

1972, c. 23.

87. A taxpayer shall include in computing his income from a business or property for a taxation year,

(a) any amount he receives in the year in the course of a business, even if such amount

i. is paid him for services not rendered or goods not delivered before the end of the year, or may be regarded as not having been earned in the year or a previous year, or

ii. is, under an arrangement or understanding, repayable in whole or in part on the return or resale to the taxpayer of articles in or by means of which goods were delivered to a customer;

(b) any amount receivable in respect of property sold or services rendered in the course of a business in the year, even if that amount or any part thereof is not due until a subsequent year, unless the method adopted for computing his income from the business and accepted for the purposes of this Part does not require him to include, in computing his income for a taxation year, an amount not received in the year and, for the purposes of this paragraph, an amount is deemed to have become receivable in respect of services rendered in the course of a business on a day that is the earlier of the day upon which the account in respect of the services was rendered and the day upon which that account would have been rendered had there been no undue delay;

(c) subject to sections 92 and 92.1.1, any amount received or receivable by the taxpayer in the year as interest, depending on the method regularly followed by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income, to the extent that the interest was not included in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year;

(d) any amount deducted under section 140 as a reserve in computing his income for the preceding taxation year;

(d.1) any amount deducted under section 140.2 as a reserve in computing his income for the preceding taxation year;

(d.2) any amount deducted under section 150.2 as a reserve in computing the taxpayer's income for the preceding taxation year;

(e) any amount deducted in computing his income from a business for the preceding year

i. under section 150, including any amount substituted under section 151,

ii. under sections 150.1 and 152, or

iii. under section 153;

(e.1) where the taxpayer is an insurer, any amount prescribed in respect of the insurer for the year;

(f) any amount received or receivable under an insurance policy or otherwise, as compensation for damage to his depreciable property, that he expends for repair of the damage within the year and within a reasonable time after the damage;

(g) any amount received by the taxpayer in the year and established in respect of the use of or production from property, even if that amount is an instalment of the sale price of such property, but not including an instalment of the sale price of agricultural land;

(g.1) any proceeds of disposition in respect of which section 158.6 applies;

(h) any amount deducted as an allowance for the quadrennial or special inspection of a vessel under section 154 in computing his income for the previous year;

(i) any amount, other than an amount referred to in paragraph i.1, received in the year on account of a debt or a loan or lending asset in respect of which a deduction for bad debts or uncollectible loans or lending assets had been made in computing his income for a preceding taxation year;

(i.1) that proportion of 1/2 of the amount received in the year on account of a debt in respect of which a deduction for a bad debt under section 142.1 had been made in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year that the amount deducted under that section in respect of that debt is of the aggregate of the amount so deducted and the amount deemed under section 142.1 or 142.2 to be an allowable capital loss in respect of that debt;

(j) any amount received by him in the year out of or under an employee trust or a profit sharing plan established for the benefit of employees of the taxpayer or of a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length;

(j.1) the amount by which the aggregate of amounts received by him in the year out of or under an employee benefit plan to which he has contributed as an employer, other than amounts included in computing his income by virtue of paragraph n, exceeds the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts so contributed by him to the plan, or included in computing his income for any preceding taxation year by virtue of this paragraph, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts deducted by him in respect of his contributions to the plan in computing his income for the year or any preceding taxation year, or received by him out of or under the plan in any preceding taxation year, other than amounts included in computing his income by virtue of paragraph n;

(j.2) any amount in respect of deferred amounts under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of another person, that was deductible under section 78.2 in computing the income of that other person for a taxation year ending in the year where the deferred amounts have been deducted under paragraph p of section 157 in computing the taxpayer's income for preceding taxation years;

(j.3) any amount he must include in computing his income for the year under section 890.11;

(k) any amount he must include in computing his income for the year under Title IX in respect of a dividend paid by a corporation resident in Canada on a share of its capital stock;

(l) any amount required by Title X to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

(m) any amount that is, under Title XI, income from a business or property of the taxpayer;

(m.1) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount determined, in relation to a partnership, in accordance with section 87.0.1;

(n) any amount he must include in computing his income for the year under Title XII or section 1121.1, except

i. any amount deemed to be a taxable capital gain of the taxpayer under that Title, and

ii. any amount paid or payable to the taxpayer out of or under an RCA trust within the meaning assigned by section 890.1;

(o) any amount received by the taxpayer in the year as a stabilization payment, or as a refund of a levy, under the Western Grain Stabilization Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. W-7) or as a payment, or a refund of a premium, in respect of the gross revenue insurance program established under the Farm Income Protection Act (S.C. 1991, c. 22);

(p) any prescribed amount deducted by him for the year as employment tax credit;

(q) any amount that, in respect of a property described in his inventory, at the end of the year, is an allowance in respect of depreciation, obsolescence or depletion included in the cost amount of that property to him at the end of the year;

(r) (paragraph repealed);

(s) the amount of any grant received by him in the year under a prescribed program relating to home insulation or energy conversion in respect of a property used by him principally for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business or property;

(t) the amount by which the aggregate of amounts determined at the end of the year in respect of him under section 225 exceeds the aggregate of amounts determined at that time in respect of him under sections 222 to 224;

(u) the prescribed amount deducted in respect of a property acquired or an expenditure made in a preceding taxation year in computing the taxpayer's tax payable for a preceding taxation year under the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), to the extent that such amount was not included in computing his income for a preceding taxation year under this paragraph or is not included in an amount determined under subparagraph f of the second paragraph of section 93, section 101 or 225, subparagraph vi of paragraph l of section 257, subparagraph ii of paragraph n of section 257 or paragraph g of section 399;

(v) (paragraph repealed);

(w) any particular amount, other than a prescribed amount, received by the taxpayer in the year, in the course of earning income from a business or property, from a government, municipality or other public authority, a person or partnership in this paragraph referred to as the "particular person", who pays the particular amount in the course of earning income from a business or property, or in order to achieve a benefit for the particular person or for persons with whom the particular person does not deal at arm's length, or in circumstances where it is reasonable to conclude that the particular person would not have paid the particular amount but for the receipt by the particular person of amounts from another particular person referred to in this paragraph or a government, municipality or public authority, where the particular amount can reasonably be considered to have been received as a refund, reimbursement, contribution or allowance or as assistance, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, allowance or any other form of assistance, in respect of an amount included in, or deducted as, the cost of property or in respect of an outlay or expense, or as an inducement, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, allowance or any other form of inducement, to the extent that the particular amount

i. was not otherwise included in computing the taxpayer's income, or deducted in computing, for the purposes of this Part, any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts, for the year or a preceding taxation year,

ii. except as provided by any provision of any of Titles III.3 to III.5 of Book V or of Chapter III.1 of Title III of Book IX, does not reduce, for the purposes of this Part, the cost or capital cost of the property or the amount of the outlay or expense, as the case may be,

iii. does not reduce, pursuant to paragraph f.2 of section 257 or section 87.4 or 101.6, the cost or capital cost of the property or the amount of the outlay or expense, as the case may be,

iv. may not reasonably be considered to be a payment made in respect of the acquisition by the particular person or the public authority of an interest in the taxpayer, a right in the taxpayer's business or a real right in the taxpayer's property, or

v. is not an amount received by the taxpayer in respect of a restrictive covenant, within the meaning assigned by section 333.4, that was included under section 333.5 in computing the income of a person related to the taxpayer;

(w.1) where the year ends after 31 December 2006, any amount, other than an amount otherwise included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, that was received by the taxpayer, including by way of a deduction from tax, in the year as a refund, reimbursement, contribution or allowance, in respect of an amount that was at any time receivable, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the State or Her Majesty in right of Canada or of a province, other than Québec, in relation to the acquisition, development or ownership of a Canadian resource property or the production in Canada from a mineral resource, a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas, or an oil or gas well, except that, where the year includes 31 December 2006,

i. this paragraph shall be read with "the proportion that the number of days in the year that follow that date is of the number of days in the year, of" inserted before "any amount, other than an amount" in the portion before this subparagraph, and

ii. this paragraph shall not be taken into account for the purposes of the regulations made under paragraph z.4 or section 145 or 360;

(x) an amount that, where the taxpayer is an individual who is a member of a partnership or an employee of a member of a partnership and the partnership makes an automobile available in the year to the taxpayer or to a person related to the taxpayer, would be included, by reason of section 41, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year if the taxpayer were employed by the partnership;

(y) any amount in respect of an amateur athlete trust required by section 851.35 to be included in computing his income for the year;

(z) any amount received by the taxpayer in the year as a beneficiary under an environmental trust, whether or not the amount is included because of section 692.1 in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year;

(z.1) the consideration received by the taxpayer in the year for the disposition to another person or partnership of all or part of the taxpayer's interest as a beneficiary under an environmental trust, other than consideration that is the assumption of a reclamation obligation in respect of the trust;

(z.2) any amount required because of section 485.13 to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

(z.3) any amount required because of section 979.21 to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

(z.4) where the year begins before 1 January 2007, 25% of the taxpayer's resource loss for the year, as determined by regulation, except that, where the year includes that date, that percentage shall be replaced by the percentage obtained by multiplying 25% by the proportion that the number of days in the year that precede that date is of the number of days in the year;

(z.5) any amount received by the taxpayer in the year in respect of a refund of an amount that was deducted under paragraph u of section 157 in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year;

(z.6) any amount required by section 935.26.1 or section 207.061 of the Income Tax Act to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year; and

(z.7) the total of all amounts each of which is

i. where the taxpayer acquires a property under a derivative forward agreement in the year, the portion of the amount by which the fair market value of the property at the time it is acquired by the taxpayer exceeds the cost to the taxpayer of the property that is attributable to an underlying interest other than an underlying interest referred to in any of subparagraphs i to iii of paragraph b of the definition of "derivative forward agreement" in section 1, or

ii. where the taxpayer disposes of a property under a derivative forward agreement in the year, the portion of the amount by which the proceeds of disposition, within the meaning of section 251, of the property exceeds the fair market value of the property at the time the agreement is entered into by the taxpayer that is attributable to an underlying interest other than an underlying interest referred to in any of subparagraphs 1 to 3 of subparagraph i of paragraph c of the definition of "derivative forward agreement" in section 1.

87.0.1. The amount that a taxpayer is required to include under paragraph m.1 of section 87 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year in respect of a partnership is determined by the formula

A × B - C.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount of interest that is

i. deductible by the partnership, and

ii. paid by the partnership in, or payable by the partnership in respect of, the taxation year of the taxpayer (depending on the method regularly followed by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income) on a debt amount included, in accordance with section 171, in the taxpayer's outstanding debts to specified persons not resident in Canada;

(b) B is the proportion determined under section 170 in respect of the taxpayer for the taxation year; and

(c) C is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included under section 580 in computing the income of the taxpayer for the taxation year or a subsequent taxation year, or of the partnership for a fiscal period, that may reasonably be considered to be in respect of an amount of interest described in subparagraph a.

For the purposes of subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph,

"debt amount" has the meaning assigned by paragraph a of section 174.1;

"specified person not resident in Canada" has the meaning assigned by subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 172.

2015, c. 21, s. 112.

87.1. (Repealed).

87.2. A corporation carrying on in the year a personal services business or that carried on such a business in a previous taxation year is required to include in computing its income for the year every amount deemed in section 487.1 to be a benefit it receives in that year.

1983, c. 44, s. 20; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 14, s. 30.

87.2.1. Paragraph g of section 87 does not defer the inclusion in computing the income of any amount that would, but for that paragraph, have been included in computing the income of a taxpayer in accordance with sections 80 to 82.

87.2.2. For the purposes of this Act, if an amount is included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year because of paragraph m.1 of section 87 in relation to interest that is deductible by a partnership in computing its income from a particular source or from sources in a particular place, the amount is deemed to be from the particular source or from sources in the particular place, as the case may be.

87.3. For the purposes of paragraph w of section 87, where at a particular time a taxpayer who is a beneficiary of a trust or a member of a partnership has received an amount in respect of the activities of the trust or partnership, or in respect of the cost of property or in respect of an outlay or expense of the trust or partnership, on any basis contemplated in that paragraph, the amount is deemed to have been received at that time by the trust or partnership, as the case may be, on the same basis.

87.3.1. For the purposes of section 87.3, the amount that, in relation to expenses described in paragraphs a.1 and c.1 of the definition of "eligible expenses" in the first paragraph of section 1029.8.36.167, is received at a particular time by a corporation that is a member of a partnership under Division II.6.15 of Chapter III.1 of Title III of Book IX shall be computed without reference to the second paragraph of section 1029.8.36.169, the third paragraph of section 1029.8.36.171 and sections 1029.8.36.171.1 and 1029.8.36.171.2.

87.4. A taxpayer who has in a taxation year received an amount that would, but for this section, be included in computing his income for the year under paragraph w of section 87 in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred by him before the end of the following taxation year, other than an outlay or expense in respect of the cost of property of the taxpayer, may elect under this section, on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year or, where the outlay or expense is made or incurred in the following taxation year, for that following year, that the amount of the outlay or expense be deemed, for the purpose of computing his income, other than for the purposes of this section, paragraph w of section 87 and paragraph o of section 157, to have always been the amount by which the amount of the outlay or expense exceeds the lesser of the amount elected by the taxpayer under this section and the amount so received by the taxpayer.

Notwithstanding sections 1010 to 1011, the Minister shall make, under this Part, such assessment or reassessment of the tax, interest and penalties of the taxpayer referred to in the first paragraph as is necessary for any taxation year to give effect to the election made by the taxpayer under the first paragraph.

88. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, where, in a taxation year, a taxpayer receives a cash bonus that the Gouvernement du Québec or the Government of Canada has undertaken to pay in respect of a

Québec or Canada Savings Bond, he shall, in computing his income for the year, include as interest in respect of the Québec or Canada Savings Bond one-half of the cash bonus so received.

This section does not apply to a bonus that the Gouvernement du Québec or the Government of Canada has agreed to pay at the time of the issue of the bond under the terms of the bond.

1975, c. 21, s. 3; 1977, c. 5, s. 14; 1987, c. 67, s. 21.

89. A taxpayer shall, in computing the income of the taxpayer from a business or property for a taxation year that begins before 1 January 2007, include any amount that becomes receivable in the year by a person referred to in section 90 and that can reasonably be considered to be a royalty, tax, rental or bonus, or to be in respect of the late receipt or non-receipt of such an amount, in relation to

(a) the acquisition, development or ownership of a Canadian resource property of the taxpayer; or

(b) the production in Canada

i. of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas other than a mineral resource or from an oil or gas well, i.1. of sulphur from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas, from an oil or gas well or from a mineral resource,

ii. to any stage that is not beyond the prime metal stage or its equivalent, of metal, minerals other than iron or petroleum or related hydrocarbons, or coal from a mineral resource,

iii. to any stage that is not beyond the pellet stage or its equivalent, of iron from a mineral resource, or

iv. to any stage that is not beyond the crude oil stage or its equivalent, of petroleum or related hydrocarbons from a deposit of bituminous sands or oil shales.

For the purposes of subparagraph b of the first paragraph, the natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas, the oil or gas well, the mineral resource and the deposit of bituminous sands or oil shales referred to in that subparagraph must be property situated in Canada in respect of which the taxpayer has an interest.

Where the taxation year referred to in the first paragraph includes 1 January 2007, the first paragraph, except for the purposes of the regulations made under paragraph z.4 of section 87 or section 145 or 360, applies only in respect of the proportion of each amount referred to in the first paragraph that the number of days in the year that precede that date is of the number of days in the year.

1975, c. 22, s. 8; 1977, c. 26, s. 7; 1978, c. 26, s. 12; 1984, c. 15, s. 20; 1985, c. 25, s. 25; 1986, c. 19, s. 10; 1987, c. 67, s. 22; 1993, c. 16, s. 47; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1998, c. 16, s. 82; 2005, c. 1, s. 30.

90. Section 89 applies where the amount mentioned therein becomes receivable by the State or Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, other than Québec, by a mandatary of the State or Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, other than Québec, or by a corporation, commission or association that is controlled by the State or Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, other than Québec, or a mandatary of the State or Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, other than Québec.

1975, c. 22, s. 8; 1978, c. 26, s. 13; 1990, c. 59, s. 48; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 83; 2001, c. 7, s. 10.

91. Section 89 does not apply to an amount described in subsection 1 of section 144, to a tax or portion thereof that may reasonably be considered to be a school or municipal tax, or to a prescribed amount.

91.1. There shall be included in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year any amount that is, in relation to a foreign oil and gas business of the taxpayer, the taxpayer's production tax amount for the year.

In the first paragraph, "foreign oil and gas business" and "production tax amount" have the meaning assigned by section 772.2.

2003, c. 2, s. 31.

91.2. For the purposes of this Act, where, in the absence of this section and section 271, a taxpayer would have a gain from the disposition, after 31 December 2022, of a flipped property, the following rules apply throughout the period that the taxpayer owned the flipped property:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed to carry on a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade with respect to the flipped property;

(b) the flipped property is deemed to be a property described in the inventory of the taxpayer's business; and

(c) the flipped property is deemed not to be a capital property of the taxpayer.

2023, c. 19, s. 16.

91.3. For the purposes of sections 91.2 and 91.4, a flipped property of a taxpayer means a property of the taxpayer (other than a property, or a right to acquire a property, that would be a property described in the taxpayer's inventory if the definition of "inventory" in section 1 were applied without reference to section 91.2) in respect of which the following conditions are met:

(a) prior to its disposition by the taxpayer, the property was either

i. a housing unit located in Canada, or

ii. a right to acquire a housing unit located in Canada; and

(b) the property was owned by the taxpayer for less than 365 consecutive days prior to its disposition, unless it can reasonably be considered that the disposition occurred due to, or in anticipation of, one or more of the following events:

i. the death of the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer,

ii. one or more persons related to the taxpayer becoming members of the taxpayer's household or the taxpayer becoming a member of a related person's household,

iii. the breakdown of the marriage of the taxpayer if the taxpayer has been living separate and apart from the taxpayer's spouse for at least 90 days prior to the disposition,

iv. a threat to the personal safety of the taxpayer or a related person,

v. the taxpayer or a related person suffering from a serious disability or illness,

vi. an eligible relocation of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse if the definition of "eligible relocation" in section 349.1 were applied without reference to the requirements for the new work location and the new residence to be in Canada,

vii. an involuntary termination of the employment of the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse, viii. the insolvency of the taxpayer, or

ix. the destruction or expropriation of the housing unit.

2023, c. 19, s. 16; 2024, c. 11, s. 48.

91.4. For the purposes of this Part, a taxpayer's loss from a business in respect of a flipped property is deemed to be nil.

2023, c. 19, s. 16.

92. Subject to section 92.1.1, in computing its income for a taxation year, a corporation, partnership, unit trust or any trust of which a corporation or a partnership is a beneficiary shall include any interest on a debt obligation that accrues to it to the end of the year, or becomes receivable or is received by it before the end of the year, to the extent that the interest was not included in computing its income for a preceding taxation year.

However, the first paragraph does not apply to interest accrued, received or that became receivable in respect of a net income stabilization account, a farm income stabilization account, an income bond, an income debenture, a small business bond, an indexed debt obligation or a development bond.

92.1. Subject to section 92.1.1, where in a taxation year a taxpayer, other than a taxpayer to whom section 92 applies, holds an interest in an investment contract on any anniversary day of the contract, the taxpayer shall include in computing the taxpayer's income for the year the interest that accrued to the taxpayer to the end of that day with respect to the investment contract, to the extent that the interest was not otherwise included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year.

92.1.1. Paragraph c of section 87 and sections 92 and 92.1 do not apply to a taxpayer in respect of a debt obligation for the part of a taxation year throughout which the obligation is impaired where an amount in respect of the obligation is deductible because of paragraph b of section 140 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

2001, c. 7, s. 13.

92.2. (Repealed).

1982, c. 5, s. 26; 1984, c. 15, s. 21; 1991, c. 25, s. 25.

92.5. For the purposes of sections 92, 92.1, 92.7, 157.6 and 167, where a taxpayer acquires a right in a prescribed debt obligation, interest on the obligation, computed in prescribed manner, is deemed to accrue to the taxpayer in each taxation year during which the taxpayer holds the right.

92.5.1. Where a taxpayer disposes of a right in a debt obligation that is a debt obligation in respect of which the proportion of the payments of principal to which the taxpayer is entitled is not equal to the proportion of the payment of interest to which the taxpayer is entitled, such portion of the proceeds of disposition received by the taxpayer as may reasonably be considered to represent a recovery of the cost to the taxpayer of the right in the debt obligation must not, despite any other provision of this Part, be included in computing the taxpayer's income.

A debt obligation referred to in the first paragraph includes, for greater certainty, all of the issuer's obligations to pay principal and interest under that debt obligation.

1986, c. 19, s. 12; 1994, c. 22, s. 67; 2020, c. 16, s. 35.

92.5.2. There shall be included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year from a property the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount determined by the formula

A - B.

For the purposes of the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is an amount paid at a particular time in the year out of the taxpayer's NISA Fund No. 2; and

(b) B is the amount by which

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is deemed to have been paid before the particular time out of the NISA Fund No. 2

(1) of the taxpayer under section 92.5.2.1 or section 656.3 or 660.1, as it read in its application to the taxpayer's taxation year 2015, or

(2) of another person under section 437.1 or 462.0.1, on being transferred to the taxpayer's NISA Fund No. 2, exceeds

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which an amount otherwise determined under this section in respect of a payment out of the taxpayer's NISA Fund No. 2, before the particular time, was reduced because of the letter described in this subparagraph.

1994, c. 22, s. 68; 2009, c. 15, s. 48; 2017, c. 1, s. 84.

92.5.2.1. If at any time there is an acquisition of control of a corporation, the balance of the corporation's NISA Fund No. 2 at that time is deemed to be paid out to the corporation immediately before that time.

2009, c. 15, s. 49.

92.5.3. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, an amount added or credited to a taxpayer's NISA Fund No. 2 shall not be included in computing the taxpayer's income solely because of that adding or crediting.

1994, c. 22, s. 68.

92.5.3.1. There shall be included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year from a business the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount determined by the formula

A − B.

For the purposes of the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is an amount paid at a particular time in the year out of the taxpayer's farm income stabilization account; and

(b) B is the amount by which the aggregate described in the third paragraph is exceeded by the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed to have been paid before the particular time out of the farm income stabilization account

i. of the taxpayer under section 656.3.1 or 660.2, as it read in its application to the taxpayer's taxation year 2015, or

ii. of another person under section 437.2 or 462.0.2, on being transferred to the taxpayer's farm income stabilization account.

The aggregate to which subparagraph b of the second paragraph refers is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which an amount otherwise determined under this section in respect of a payment out of the taxpayer's farm income stabilization account, before the particular time, was reduced because of that subparagraph b.

92.5.3.2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, an amount added or credited to a taxpayer's farm income stabilization account shall not be included in computing the taxpayer's income solely because of that adding or crediting.

2004, c. 21, s. 51.

92.5.3.3. For the purposes of this Act and the regulations, a taxpayer who ceased to carry on a farming business in Québec in respect of which the taxpayer owns a farm income stabilization account is, until the account balance is nil, deemed to continue carrying on that farming business and to have an establishment in Québec in relation to that farming business.

2004, c. 21, s. 51.

92.6. (Repealed).

92.7. For the purposes of sections 92 to 92.7,

(a) "investment contract", in relation to a taxpayer, means any debt obligation other than

i. a salary deferral arrangement or a plan or arrangement that, but for any of paragraphs a, b and d to l of section 47.16, would be a salary deferral arrangement,

ii. a retirement compensation arrangement or a plan or arrangement that, but for any of subparagraphs a, b, d and f to n of the second paragraph of section 890.1, would be a retirement compensation arrangement,

iii. an employee benefit plan or a plan or arrangement that, but for the second paragraph of section 47.6, would be an employee benefit plan,

iv. a foreign retirement arrangement,

iv.1. a tax-free savings account,

v. an income bond or debenture,

vi. a development bond,

vii. a small business bond,

viii. an obligation in respect of which the taxpayer has, otherwise than by reason of section 92.1, at periodic intervals of not more than one year included, in computing his income throughout the period in which he held a right in the obligation, the income accrued thereon for such intervals, viii.1. an obligation in respect of a net income stabilization account, viii.1.1. an obligation in respect of a farm income stabilization account, viii.2. an indexed debt obligation, and

ix. a prescribed contract;

(b) "anniversary day" of an investment contract means the day that is one year after the day immediately preceding the date of issue of the contract, the day that occurs at every successive one year interval from the anniversary day determined in the first instance under this paragraph, and the day on which the contract was disposed of.

1984, c. 15, s. 21; 1985, c. 25, s. 27; 1986, c. 19, s. 13; 1988, c. 18, s. 8; 1991, c. 25, s. 28; 1993, c. 16, s. 49; 1994, c. 22, s. 69; 1995, c. 49, s. 34; 2001, c. 53, s. 25; 2004, c. 21, s. 52; 2010, c. 5, s. 20; 2020, c. 16, s. 188.

92.11. Where in a taxation year a taxpayer holds an interest in a life insurance policy last acquired after 31 December 1989, on any anniversary day of the policy, the taxpayer shall include in computing his income for the year the amount by which the accumulating fund on that day, as determined in prescribed manner, in respect of the interest in the policy exceeds the adjusted cost basis to the taxpayer of the interest in the policy on that day.

The first paragraph does not apply to an interest in

(a) an exempt policy,

(b) a prescribed annuity contract, or

(c) an annuity contract received, as proceeds from a life insurance policy that was not an annuity contract and that was last acquired before 2 December 1982, by the policyholder under the terms and conditions of the policy.

1984, c. 15, s. 21; 1986, c. 19, s. 16; 1991, c. 25, s. 31; 1993, c. 16, s. 51.

92.12.1. (Repealed).

92.13. Where in a taxation year section 92.11 applies with respect to a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract, or would apply if the contract had an anniversary day in the year at the time when the taxpayer held the interest, and at the end of the year the aggregate determined under section 976.1 in respect of the interest exceeds the aggregate determined under section 976 in respect of the interest, the taxpayer shall include the excess in computing his income for the year.

92.15. (Repealed).

92.16. For the purposes of sections 92.11 to 92.19, where the first premium under an annuity contract last acquired by a taxpayer before 1 January 1990 was not fixed before that date and was paid after 31 December 1989 by or on behalf of the taxpayer, the premium is deemed to have been paid to acquire, at the time the premium was paid, an interest in a separate annuity contract issued at that time, to the extent that the amount of the premium was not fixed before 1 January 1990, and each subsequent premium paid under the contract is deemed to have been paid under the separate contract, to the extent that the amount of that subsequent premium was not fixed before 1 January 1990.

The first paragraph does not apply in respect of an annuity contract described in subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 92.9 or to which section 92.9 or 92.12 applies, as that subparagraph and those sections read in their application to life insurance policies last acquired before 1 January 1990, or to which section 92 applies.

92.18. For the purposes of this Part, a rider added at any time after 31 December 1989 to a life insurance policy last acquired before 1 January 1990 that provides additional life insurance is deemed to be a separate life insurance policy issued at that time, unless the only additional life insurance provided by the rider is an accidental death benefit or the life insurance policy is an exempt policy last acquired before 1 December 1982 or an annuity contract.

92.19. For the purposes of sections 92.11 to 92.19, 160 and 161, paragraph c of section 312 and sections 966 to 977.1,

(a) "exempt policy" has the meaning prescribed by regulation; and

(b) "anniversary day" of a life insurance policy means the day that is one year after the day immediately preceding the day on which the policy was issued and each day that occurs at each successive one-year interval after the anniversary day determined firstly under this paragraph.

92.22. Where, in a taxation year, a taxpayer disposes of a property described in his inventory and an amount has been deducted under section 141 in respect of the property in computing his income for the year or a preceding taxation year, he shall include in computing his income for the year from the business in which the property was used or held, the amount by which

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by him under section 141 in respect of the property in computing his income for the year or a preceding taxation year, exceeds

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included by him under paragraph i of section 87 in respect of the property in computing his income for the year or a preceding taxation year.

1990, c. 59, s. 49.

92.23. In this section and sections 92.24 to 92.30,

"base year" of an insurer means the insurer's taxation year that precedes its transition year;

"insurance business" of an insurer means an insurance business carried on by the insurer, other than a life insurance business;

"reserve transition amount" of an insurer, in respect of an insurance business carried on by it in Canada in its transition year, is the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

A - B;

"transition year" of an insurer means the insurer's first taxation year that begins after 30 September 2006.

In the formula in the definition of "reserve transition amount" in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the maximum amount that the insurer would be permitted to claim under the second paragraph of section 152 as a reserve for its base year in respect of its insurance policies if

i. the generally accepted accounting principles that applied to the insurer in valuing its assets and liabilities for its transition year had applied to it for its base year, and

ii. the regulations made under the second paragraph of section 152, as they read for the insurer's transition year, applied to its base year; and

(b) B is the maximum amount that the insurer is permitted to claim under the second paragraph of section 152 as a reserve for its base year.

2010, c. 25, s. 12.

92.24. There must be included in computing an insurer's income for its transition year from an insurance business carried on by it in Canada in the transition year, the positive amount of the insurer's reserve transition amount in respect of that insurance business.

2010, c. 25, s. 12.

92.25. If an amount has been deducted under section 175.2.17 in computing an insurer's income for its transition year from an insurance business carried on by it in Canada, there must be included in computing the insurer's income, for each particular taxation year of the insurer that ends after the beginning of the transition year, from that insurance business, the amount determined by the formula

A × B/1,825.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount deducted under section 175.2.17 in computing the insurer's income for its transition year from that insurance business; and

(b) B is the number of days in the particular taxation year that are before the day that is 1,825 days after the first day of the transition year.

2010, c. 25, s. 12.

92.26. If an insurer has, in a winding-up to which section 556 has applied, been wound up into another corporation (in this section referred to as the "parent"), and immediately after the winding-up the parent carries on an insurance business, in applying sections 92.25 and 175.2.18 in computing the incomes of the insurer and of the parent for the particular taxation years that end on or after the first day (in this section referred to as the "start day") on which assets of the insurer were distributed to the parent on the winding-up, the following rules apply:

(a) the parent is, on and after the start day, deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the insurer in respect of

i. any amount included under section 92.24 or deducted under section 175.2.17 in computing the insurer's income from an insurance business for its transition year,

ii. any amount included under section 92.25 or deducted under section 175.2.18 in computing the insurer's income from an insurance business for a taxation year of the insurer that begins before the start day, and

iii. any amount that would—in the absence of this section and if the insurer existed and carried on an insurance business on each day that is the start day or a subsequent day and on which the parent carries on an insurance business—be required to be included under section 92.25 or deducted under section 175.2.18, in respect of any of those days, in computing the insurer's income from an insurance business; and

(b) the insurer is, in respect of each of its particular taxation years, to determine the number of days that is referred to in subparagraph b of the second paragraph of sections 92.25 and 175.2.18 without reference to the start day and days after the start day.

2010, c. 25, s. 12.

92.27. The rules in section 92.28 apply if, at any time, an insurer (in this section and section 92.28 referred to as the "transferor") transfers, to a corporation (in this section and section 92.28 referred to as the "transferee") that is related to the transferor, property in respect of an insurance business carried on by the transferor in Canada (in this section and section 92.28 referred to as the "transferred business") and

(a) section 832.3 or 832.9 applies to the transfer; or

(b) section 518 applies to the transfer, the transfer includes all or substantially all of the property and liabilities of the transferred business and, immediately after the transfer, the transferee carries on an insurance business.

2010, c. 25, s. 12.

92.28. The rules to which section 92.27 refers and that apply to the transfer of property at any time are as follows:

(a) the transferee is, at and after that time, deemed to be the same corporation as and a continuation of the transferor in respect of

i. any amount included under section 92.24 or deducted under section 175.2.17 in computing the transferor's income for its transition year that can reasonably be attributed to the transferred business,

ii. any amount included under section 92.25 or deducted under section 175.2.18 in computing the transferor's income for a taxation year of the transferor that begins before that time that can reasonably be attributed to the transferred business,

iii. any amount that would—in the absence of this section and if the transferor existed and carried on an insurance business on each day that includes that time or is a subsequent day and on which the transferee carries on an insurance business—be required to be included under section 92.25 or deducted under section 175.2.18, in respect of any of those days, in computing the transferor's income that can reasonably be attributed to the transferred business; and

(b) for the purpose of determining, in respect of the day that includes that time or any subsequent day, any amount that is required to be included under section 92.25 or deducted under section 175.2.18 in computing the transferor's income for each particular taxation year from the transferred business, the amount referred to in subparagraph a of the second paragraph of those sections is deemed to be nil.

2010, c. 25, s. 12.

92.29. If at any time an insurer ceases (otherwise than as a result of an amalgamation within the meaning of subsections 1 and 2 of section 544) to carry on all or substantially all of an insurance business (in this section referred to as the "discontinued business"), and neither section 92.26 nor 92.27 applies, there must be included in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for the insurer's taxation year that includes the time that is immediately before that time, the amount determined by the formula

A - B.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount deducted under section 175.2.17 in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for its transition year; and

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included under section 92.25 in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for a taxation year that began before that time.

92.30. If at any time an insurer that carried on an insurance business ceases to exist (otherwise than as a result of a winding-up described in section 92.26 or of an amalgamation within the meaning of subsections 1 and 2 of section 544), for the purposes of sections 92.29 and 175.2.19, the insurer is deemed to have ceased to carry on the insurance business at the time (determined without reference to this section) at which the insurer ceased to carry on the insurance business or, if it is earlier, the time that is immediately before the end of the last taxation year of the insurer that ended at or before the time at which the insurer ceased to exist.

92.31. The second paragraph applies for a taxation year of an entity in respect of a security of the entity if

(a) the security becomes, at a particular time in the taxation year, a stapled security of the entity and, as a consequence, section 158.18 applies to deny the deductibility of amounts described in paragraphs a and b of that section;

(b) the security (or any security for which the security was substituted) ceased, at an earlier time, to be a stapled security of any entity and, as a consequence, section 158.18 ceased to apply to deny the deductibility of amounts that would have been described in paragraphs a and b of that section if the security had not ceased to be a stapled security; and

(c) throughout the period that began immediately after the most recent time referred to in subparagraph b and that ends at the particular time, the security (or any security for which the security was substituted) was not a stapled security of any entity.

Where this paragraph applies for a taxation year of an entity in respect of a security of the entity, the entity must include in computing its income for the year each amount that

(a) was deducted by the entity (or by another entity that issued a security for which the security was substituted) in computing its income for a taxation year that includes any part of the period described in subparagraph c of the first paragraph; and

(b) would not have been so deductible if section 158.18 had applied in respect of the amount.

The definitions in section 158.16 apply to this section and section 92.32.

2017, c. 1, s. 86.

92.32. For the purposes of section 1037, where the second paragraph of section 92.31 provides for the inclusion of a particular amount described in subparagraph a of that second paragraph in computing the income of an entity for a taxation year, the entity is deemed to have an amount of unpaid tax immediately after the entity's balance-due day for the year computed as if

(a) the entity had been resident in Canada throughout the year;

(b) the entity's tax payable for the year were equal to the tax payable by the entity on its taxable income for the year;

(c) the particular amount were the entity's only taxable income for the year;

(d) the entity had claimed no deductions under Book V for the year;

(e) the entity had not paid any amounts on account of its tax payable for the year; and

(f) the tax payable to which paragraph b applies had been an amount of unpaid tax throughout the period that begins immediately after the end of the taxation year for which the particular amount was deducted and that ends on the entity's balance-due day for the year.

2017, c. 1, s. 86.

DIVISION II

DISPOSITION OF DEPRECIABLE PROPERTY

1972, c. 23.

93. In this division, in sections 130.1, 142 and 149 and in the regulations made under paragraph a of section 130, the expression

(a) (subparagraph repealed);

(b) "total depreciation" allowed to a taxpayer before any time for property of a prescribed class means the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the taxpayer by reason of paragraph a of section 130 in respect of property of that class or an amount deducted under section 130.1, or that would have been so deducted but for the fifth paragraph of section 130.1, in computing his income for the taxation years ending before that time;

(c) "depreciable property" of a taxpayer as of any time in a taxation year means property acquired by the taxpayer in respect of which he has been allowed, or would, if he owned the property at the end of the year and if this Part were read without reference to section 93.6, be entitled to, a deduction under paragraph a of section 130 in computing his income for that taxation year or a previous taxation year;

(d) "timber resource property" of a taxpayer means:

i. a right or licence to cut or remove timber from a limit or area in Canada, hereinafter referred to as an "original right", if that original right is acquired by the taxpayer after 6 May 1974 and not in the manner referred to in subparagraph ii and if at the time of the acquisition the taxpayer may either reasonably be regarded as having directly or indirectly acquired the right to extend or renew that right or to acquire a similar one in substitution therefor, or reasonably expect, in the ordinary course of events, to be able to extend, renew or acquire that right, or

ii. any right or licence owned by the taxpayer to cut or remove timber from a limit or area in Canada if that right or licence may reasonably be regarded as an extension or renewal of an original right of the taxpayer, or as having been acquired in substitution for or as one of a series of substitutions of an original right of the taxpayer or for such an extension or renewal;

(e) "undepreciated capital cost" of depreciable property of a prescribed class of a taxpayer as of any time means the amount that is equal to the amount by which the aggregate of the following amounts exceeds the amount determined under the second paragraph:

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the capital cost to the taxpayer of a depreciable property of that class acquired before that time,

ii. the aggregate of all amounts included in computing the taxpayer's income under sections 93 to 104 for a taxation year ending before that time, to the extent that those amounts relate to depreciable property of that class, ii.1. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount of assistance that has been repaid by the taxpayer, pursuant to an obligation to repay, in respect of a depreciable property of that class subsequent to the disposition thereof by the taxpayer that would have been included in computing the capital cost of the property under section 101 had the repayment been made before the disposition, ii.2. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount repaid in respect of a property of that class subsequent to the disposition thereof by the taxpayer that would have been an amount described in paragraph b of section 101.6 had the repayment been made before the disposition, ii.3. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid by the taxpayer before that time as or on account of an existing or proposed countervailing or anti-dumping duty in respect of depreciable property of that class,

iii. (subparagraph repealed),

iii.1. (subparagraph repealed),

iv. (subparagraph repealed),

v. (subparagraph repealed),

vi. (subparagraph repealed),

vi.1. (subparagraph repealed),

vii. (subparagraph repealed);

(f) "proceeds of disposition" of property includes:

i. the sale price of property disposed of,

ii. compensation for property unlawfully appropriated,

iii. compensation for property destroyed and any amount received or receivable under an insurance policy in respect of the loss or destruction of property,

iv. compensation for property appropriated by a person under statutory authority or in respect of which he has given notice of his intention to appropriate,

v. compensation for acts and omissions of a person whether or not acting in the exercise of a right, under statutory authority or otherwise, that injuriously affect property,

vi. compensation for property damaged and any amount received or receivable under an insurance policy covering such damage, except to the extent that such compensation or amount, as the case may be, is expended on repairing the damage within a reasonable delay after the damage is caused,

vii. the amount by which the liability of a taxpayer to a hypothecary creditor or mortgagee is reduced as a result of the sale of the hypothecated or mortgaged property under a provision of the hypothec or mortgage, plus any amount received by the taxpayer out of the proceeds of such sale, and viii. any amount included, because of sections 484 to 484.6, in computing a taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of property.

For the purpose of determining the undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of a prescribed class of a taxpayer as of any time, the amount to which subparagraph e of the first paragraph refers is equal to the aggregate of

(a) the amount of the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer for property of that class before that time, including, if the taxpayer is an insurer, depreciation deemed to have been allowed before that time under section 101.1 or 101.2 as they applied to the taxpayer's last taxation year that began before 1 November 2011;

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount by which the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of that class is required, otherwise than because of a reduction in the capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property, to be reduced at or before that time because of section 485.6;

(c) for each disposition by the taxpayer before that time of property of that class, other than a timber resource property, the lesser of the proceeds of disposition of the property minus any expenses made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition, and the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property;

(d) for each disposition by the taxpayer before that time of a timber resource property of that class, the proceeds of disposition of the property minus any expenses made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition;

(e) where property of that class was acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a mine and the taxpayer so elects in the prescribed manner and within the prescribed time in respect of that property, the amount equal to that portion of the income derived from the operation of the mine that is, by virtue of the provisions of the Act respecting the application of the Taxation Act (chapter I-4) relating to income from the operation of new mines, not included in computing income of the taxpayer or any other person;

(f) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount, other than a prescribed amount, deducted under subsection 5 or 6 of section 127 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), in respect of a depreciable property of that class, in computing the tax payable under that Act by the taxpayer for a taxation year ending before that time and subsequent to the disposition of that property by the taxpayer;

(g) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount of assistance that the taxpayer received or was entitled to receive before that time, in respect of or for the acquisition of a depreciable property of that class subsequent to the disposition of that property by the taxpayer, that would have been included, under section 101, in the amount of assistance that the taxpayer received or was entitled to receive in respect of that property had the amount been received before the disposition; and

(h) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer before that time in respect of a refund of an amount added to the undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of that class because of the application of subparagraph ii.3 of subparagraph e of the first paragraph.

1972, c. 23, s. 82; 1975, c. 22, s. 9; 1977, c. 26, s. 9; 1978, c. 26, s. 15; 1982, c. 5, s. 27; 1987, c. 67, s. 23; 1990, c. 59, s. 50; 1992, c. 1, s. 23; 1993, c. 16, s. 55; 1996, c. 39, s. 29; 2001, c. 53, s. 29; 2003, c. 2, s. 32; 2005, c. 1, s. 32; 2019, c. 14, s. 72.

93.1. For the purposes of subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 93 and of Title IV, sections 93.2 and 93.3 apply, notwithstanding sections 99 and 251, where at any particular time in a taxation year a taxpayer disposes of a building of a prescribed class and the proceeds of disposition of the building determined without reference to this section and sections 93.2 to 93.3.1 are less than the lesser of the cost amount and the capital cost to the taxpayer of the building immediately before the disposition.

93.2. Where in the taxation year referred to in section 93.1 the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length disposes of the land subjacent to, or immediately contiguous to and necessary for the use of, the building, the following rules apply:

(a) the proceeds of disposition of the building are deemed to be equal to the lesser of

i. the amount by which the aggregate of the fair market value of the building at the particular time referred to in section 93.1 and the fair market value of the land immediately before its disposition exceeds the lesser of

(1) the fair market value of the land immediately before its disposition, and

(2) the amount by which the cost amount to the vendor of the land, determined without reference to this section and sections 93.1 and 93.3, exceeds the aggregate of the capital gains, determined without reference to subparagraph b of the first paragraph and the second paragraph of section 234, in respect of dispositions of the land within three years before the particular time by the taxpayer or by a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length to the taxpayer or to another person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, and

ii. the greater of the fair market value of the building at the particular time and the lesser of the cost amount and the capital cost to the taxpayer of the building immediately before its disposition;

(b) notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, the proceeds of disposition of the land are deemed to be equal to the amount by which the aggregate of the proceeds of disposition of the building and of the land determined without reference to this section and sections 93.1, 93.3 and 93.3.1 exceeds the proceeds of disposition of the building as determined under paragraph a; and

(c) the cost to the purchaser of the land shall be determined without reference to this section and sections 93.1 and 93.3.

93.3. Where section 93.2 does not apply with respect to the disposition referred to in section 93.1 and, before the disposition, the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length owned the land subjacent to, or immediately contiguous to and necessary for the use of, the building, the proceeds of disposition of the building are deemed to be equal to the aggregate of the proceeds of disposition of the building determined without reference to this section and sections 93.1, 93.2 and 93.3.1, and, subject to the second paragraph, 1/2 of the amount by which the greater of the cost amount to the taxpayer of the building immediately before its disposition and the fair market value of the building immediately before its disposition exceeds the proceeds of disposition of the building determined without reference to this section and sections 93.1, 93.2 and 93.3.1.

However, where the disposition occurs in a taxation year of the taxpayer that includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or that begins after 28 February 2000 and ends before 17 October 2000, the fraction "1/2" in the first paragraph shall be replaced by the fraction obtained when the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the taxpayer for the year is subtracted from 1.

93.3.1. The rules in the second paragraph apply where

(a) a person or partnership, in this section referred to as the "transferor", disposes at a particular time, otherwise than in a disposition described in any of paragraphs a to e of section 238, of a particular depreciable property of a particular prescribed class of the transferor;

(b) the lesser of the following amounts exceeds the amount that would otherwise be the transferor's proceeds of disposition of the particular property at the particular time:

i. the capital cost to the transferor of the particular property, and

ii. the proportion of the undepreciated capital cost to the transferor of all property of the particular class immediately before the particular time that the fair market value of the particular property at the particular time is of the fair market value of all property of the particular class immediately before the particular time; and

(c) on the thirtieth day after the particular time, a particular person or partnership, who is the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor, owns or has a right to acquire the particular property, other than a right, as security only, derived from a hypothec, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar obligation.

The rules to which the first paragraph refers are as follows:

(a) sections 518 to 533 and 614 to 617 do not apply in respect of the disposition of the particular property;

(b) for the purpose of applying this division, sections 130 and 130.1 and any regulations made for the purposes of paragraph a of section 130 in respect of the transferor for taxation years that end after the particular time,

i. the transferor is deemed to have disposed of the particular property for proceeds of disposition equal to the lesser of the amounts determined in subparagraphs i and ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph with respect to the particular property,

ii. if two or more properties of a prescribed class of the transferor are disposed of at the same time, subparagraph i applies in their respect as if each property so disposed of had been separately disposed of in the following order:

(1) if an order is designated after 19 December 2006 in their respect under subparagraph ii of paragraph e of subsection 21.2 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), the order so designated, and

(2) if subparagraph 1 does not apply, the order designated by the transferor or, if the transferor does not designate an order, in the order designated by the Minister,

iii. the transferor is deemed to own a property that was acquired before the beginning of the taxation year that includes the particular time at a capital cost equal to the amount of the excess described in subparagraph b of the first paragraph with respect to the particular property, and that is property of the particular class, until the time that is immediately before the first time, after the particular time,

(1) at which a 30-day period begins throughout which neither the transferor nor a person affiliated with the transferor owns or has a right to acquire the particular property, other than a right, as security only, derived from a hypothec, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar obligation,

(2) at which the particular property is not used by the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor for the purpose of earning income and is used for another purpose,

(3) at which the particular property would, if it were owned by the transferor, be deemed under Chapter I of Title I.1 of Book VI or section 999.1 to have been disposed of by the transferor,

(4) that is immediately before the transferor is subject to a loss restriction event, or

(5) at which the winding-up of the transferor begins, other than a winding-up referred to in section 556, where the transferor is a corporation, and

iv. the property described in subparagraph iii is considered to have become available for use by the transferor at the time at which the particular property is considered to have become available for use by the particular person or partnership referred to in subparagraph c of the first paragraph;

(c) for the purposes of subparagraphs iii and iv of subparagraph b, where a partnership otherwise ceases to exist at any time after the particular time,

i. the partnership is deemed not to have ceased to exist until the time that is immediately after the first time described in subparagraphs 1 to 5 of subparagraph iii of subparagraph b, and

ii. each person who was a member of the partnership immediately before the partnership would, but for this subparagraph c, have ceased to exist is deemed to remain a member of the partnership, until the time that is immediately after the first time described in subparagraphs 1 to 5 of subparagraph iii of subparagraph b; and

(d) for the purpose of applying this division, sections 130 and 130.1 and any regulations made for the purposes of paragraph a of section 130 in respect of the particular person or partnership referred to in subparagraph c of the first paragraph,

i. that person's or partnership's capital cost of the particular property is deemed to be equal to the amount that was the transferor's capital cost of that property, and

ii. the amount by which the transferor's capital cost of the particular property exceeds the lesser of its fair market value at the particular time and the amount that would otherwise be the transferor's proceeds of disposition of the property at the particular time is deemed to have been allowed as depreciation to the particular person or partnership in respect of property of the prescribed class that includes that property for taxation years ending before the particular time.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to a designation made under subparagraph ii of paragraph e of subsection 21.2 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to a designation made under subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the second paragraph before 20 December 2006 and must, if the order referred to in subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the second paragraph was designated by the Minister of National Revenue, apply, with the necessary modifications, as if the designation had been made by the transferor.

93.4. For the purposes of subparagraph i of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 93, where, at a particular time, a taxpayer is subject to a loss restriction event and, within the 12-month period that ended immediately before that time, the taxpayer, a partnership of which the taxpayer was a majority-interest partner or a trust of which the taxpayer was a majority-interest beneficiary, within the meaning of section 21.0.1, acquired depreciable property that was not used, or acquired for use, by the taxpayer, partnership or trust in a business that was carried on by it immediately before the 12-month period began,

(a) the property is deemed, subject to subparagraph b, to have been acquired by the taxpayer, partnership or trust immediately after the particular time and not to have been acquired by it before that time; and

(b) where the property was disposed of by the taxpayer, partnership or trust before the particular time and was not reacquired by it before that time, the property is deemed to have been acquired by it immediately before the property was disposed of.

However, the first paragraph does not apply in the case of an acquisition of property that was owned by the taxpayer, partnership or trust or by a person that would, but for the definition of "controlled" in section 21.0.1, have been affiliated with the taxpayer throughout the period that began immediately before the 12-month period referred to in the first paragraph and ended at the time the property was acquired by the taxpayer, partnership or trust.

93.5. For the purposes of section 93.4, where the taxpayer referred to in that section was formed or created in the 12-month period referred to in the first paragraph of that section, the taxpayer is deemed to have been

(a) in existence throughout the period that began immediately before that 12-month period and ended immediately after it was formed or created; and

(b) affiliated, throughout the period referred to in paragraph a, with every person with whom it was affiliated, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, throughout the period that began when it was formed or created and ended immediately before the time at which the taxpayer was subject to the loss restriction event referred to in that section.

93.6. In applying subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 93 in respect of paragraph a of section 130 and any regulations made under that paragraph a, for the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business or property, no amount shall be included in calculating the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of a prescribed class in respect of the capital cost to the taxpayer of a property of that class, other than prescribed property or property that is a certified Québec film, a Québec film production or a certified production, within the meaning of the regulations made under paragraph a of section 130, before the time at which the property is considered to have become available for use by the taxpayer.

93.7. For the purposes of section 93.6 and subject to section 93.9, property, other than a building or part thereof, acquired by a taxpayer shall be considered to have become available for use by the taxpayer at the time that is the earliest of

(a) the time at which the property is first used by the taxpayer for the purpose of earning income,

(b) the time that is immediately after the commencement of the first taxation year of the taxpayer commencing more than 357 days after the end of the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the property was acquired by the taxpayer,

(c) the time that is immediately before the disposition of the property by the taxpayer,

(d) the time at which the property

i. has been delivered to the taxpayer, or to a person or partnership that will use the property for the benefit of the taxpayer, or, where the property is not of a type that is deliverable, is made available to the taxpayer or the person or partnership, and

ii. is capable, either alone or in combination with other property in the possession at that time of the taxpayer or the person or partnership referred to in subparagraph i, of being used by or for the benefit of the taxpayer or that person or partnership to produce a commercially saleable product or to perform a commercially saleable service, including an intermediate product or service that is used or consumed, or to be used or consumed, by or for the benefit of the taxpayer or the person or partnership in producing or performing any such product or service,

(e) in the case of property acquired by the taxpayer for the prevention, reduction or elimination of air or water pollution created by operations carried on by the taxpayer or that would be created by such operations if the property had not been acquired, the time at which the property is installed and capable of performing the function for which it was acquired,

(f) in the case of property acquired by a corporation a class of shares of the capital stock of which is listed on a designated stock exchange, a corporation that is a public corporation by reason of an election made under subparagraph i of paragraph b of the definition of "public corporation" in subsection 1 of section 89 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) or a designation made by the Minister of Revenue of Canada in a notice to the corporation under subparagraph ii of paragraph b of that definition, or a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of any such corporation, the end of the taxation year for which depreciation in respect of the property is first deducted in computing the earnings of the corporation in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and for the purposes of the financial statements of the corporation for the year presented to its shareholders,

(g) in the case of property acquired by the taxpayer in the course of carrying on a business of farming or fishing, the time at which the property has been delivered to the taxpayer and is capable of performing the function for which it was acquired,

(h) in the case of property of a taxpayer that is a motor vehicle, trailer, trolleybus, aircraft or vessel for which one or more permits, certificates or licences evidencing that the property may be operated by the taxpayer in accordance with any laws regulating the use of such property are required to be obtained, the time at which all such permits, certificates or licences have been obtained,

(i) in the case of property that is a spare part intended to replace a part of another property of the taxpayer if required due to the breakdown of that other property, the time at which that other property became available for use by the taxpayer,

(j) in the case of a concrete gravity base structure and topside modules intended to be used at an oil production facility in a commercial discovery area, within the meaning assigned by the Canada Petroleum Resources Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 36, 2nd Supplement), on which the drilling of the first well that indicated the discovery commenced before 5 March 1982, in a prescribed offshore region, the time at which the gravity base structure deballasts and lifts the assembled topside modules, and

(k) where the property is, within the meaning of subsection 3 of section 96, a replacement for a former property described in paragraph a of subsection 1 of that section that was acquired before 1 January 1990 or that had become available for use at or before the time at which the replacement property is acquired, the time at which the replacement property is acquired.

For the purposes of subparagraph f of the first paragraph, where the depreciation referred to therein in respect of property is calculated by reference to a proportion of the cost of the property, only that portion of the property shall be considered to have become available for use at the end of the taxation year referred to in that subparagraph.

1993, c. 16, s. 56; 1995, c. 49, s. 35; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 293; 2001, c. 7, s. 15; 2010, c. 5, s. 21.

93.8. For the purposes of section 93.6 and subject to section 93.9, property that is a building or part thereof of a taxpayer shall be considered to have become available for use by the taxpayer at the time that is the earliest of

(a) the time at which all or substantially all of the building is first used for the purpose for which it was acquired,

(b) the time at which the construction of the building is complete,

(c) the time that is immediately after the commencement of the first taxation year of the taxpayer commencing more than 357 days after the end of the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the property was acquired by the taxpayer,

(d) the time that is immediately before the disposition of the property by the taxpayer, and

(e) where the property is, within the meaning of subsection 3 of section 96, a replacement for a former property described in paragraph a of subsection 1 of that section that was acquired before 1 January 1990 or that had become available for use at or before the time at which the replacement property is acquired, the time at which the replacement property is acquired.

For the purposes of this section, a renovation, alteration or addition to a particular building shall be considered to be a building separate from the particular building.

93.9. For the purposes of section 93.6, where a taxpayer has acquired property, other than a building that is used or is to be used by the taxpayer principally for the purpose of gaining or producing gross revenue that is rent, in the taxpayer's first taxation year, in this section referred to as the "particular year", commencing more than 357 days after the end of the taxpayer's taxation year in which the taxpayer first acquired property after 31 December 1989 that is part of a project of the taxpayer, or in a taxation year subsequent to the particular year, and at the end of any taxation year, in this section referred to as the "inclusion year", of the taxpayer, the property may reasonably be considered to be part of the project and has not otherwise become available for use, if the taxpayer so elects in prescribed form filed with the taxpayer's fiscal return under this Part for the particular year, that particular portion of the property the capital cost of which does not exceed the amount determined under the second paragraph is deemed to have become available for use immediately before the end of the inclusion year.

The amount referred to in the first paragraph is equal to the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the capital cost to the taxpayer of a depreciable property, other than a building that is used or is to be used by the taxpayer principally for the purpose of gaining or producing gross revenue that is rent, that is part of the project referred to in the first paragraph, that was acquired by the taxpayer after 31 December 1989 and before the end of the taxpayer's last taxation year ending more than 357 days before the commencement of the inclusion year and that has not become available for use at or before the end of the inclusion year, except where the property has first become available for use before the end of the inclusion year by reason of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 93.7, subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 93.8 or this section, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the capital cost to the taxpayer of a depreciable property, other than the particular portion of the property, that is part of the project to the extent that the property is considered, by reason of this section, to have become available for use before the end of the inclusion year.

93.10. For the purposes of section 93.6 and notwithstanding sections 93.7 to 93.9, property of a taxpayer is deemed to have become available for use by the taxpayer at the earlier of the time the property was acquired by the taxpayer and, if applicable, a prescribed time, where

(a) the property was acquired from a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, at the time the property was acquired by the taxpayer, or in the course of a reorganization in respect of which, if a dividend were received by a corporation in the course of the reorganization, section 308.1 would not apply to the dividend by reason of the application of section 308.3; and

(b) before the property was acquired by the taxpayer, the property became available for use, determined without reference to subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 93.7 and subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 93.8, by the person from whom it was acquired.

93.11. For the purposes of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 93.7, subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 93.8 and section 93.9, where a property of a taxpayer was acquired from a person, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the property at the time it was acquired by the person, where

(a) the taxpayer was, at the time the taxpayer acquired the property, not dealing at arm's length with the person, otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, or

(b) the property was acquired in the course of a reorganization in respect of which, if a dividend were received by a corporation in the course of the reorganization, section 308.1 would not apply to the dividend by reason of the application of section 308.3.

93.12. Where a taxpayer has leased property that is depreciable property of a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, the amount determined under the second paragraph is deemed to be the cost to the taxpayer of a property included in Class 13 in Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) and not to be an amount paid or payable for the use of, or the right to use, the property.

The amount referred to in the first paragraph is equal to the amount by which the aggregate of any amounts paid or payable by the taxpayer for the use of, or the right to use, the property in a particular taxation year and before the time at which the property would have been considered to have become available for use by the taxpayer if the taxpayer had acquired the property, and that, but for this section, would be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year exceeds the aggregate of any amounts received or receivable by the taxpayer for the use of, or the right to use, the property in the particular taxation year and before that time and that are included in the income of the taxpayer for any taxation year.

93.13. Where a person acquires a depreciable property for consideration that can reasonably be considered to include another property, the portion of the cost to the person of the depreciable property attributable to the other property is deemed not to exceed the fair market value of that other property.

1995, c. 49, s. 36.

93.14. Where a taxpayer carries on a particular business, the following rules apply:

(a) there is deemed to be a single goodwill property in respect of the particular business;

(b) if at a particular time the taxpayer acquires goodwill as part of an acquisition of all or a part of another business that is carried on, after the acquisition, as part of the particular business—or is deemed in accordance with section 93.15 to acquire goodwill at a particular time in respect of the particular business—the cost of the goodwill is added at that time to the cost of the goodwill property in respect of the particular business;

(c) where at a particular time the taxpayer disposes of goodwill as part of the disposition of part of the particular business, receives proceeds of disposition a portion of which is attributable to goodwill and continues to carry on the particular business or is deemed in accordance with section 93.17 to dispose of goodwill at a particular time in respect of the particular business,

i. the taxpayer is deemed to dispose at that time of a portion of the goodwill property in respect of the particular business having a cost equal to the lesser of the cost of the goodwill property otherwise determined in respect of the particular business and the portion of the proceeds attributable to goodwill, and

ii. the cost of the goodwill property in respect of the particular business is reduced at that time by the amount determined under subparagraph i; and

(d) if subparagraph c applies to more than one disposition of goodwill at the same time, that subparagraph c and section 93.19 apply as if each disposition had occurred separately in the order determined in its respect in accordance with paragraph d of subsection 34 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)).

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies to each of the dispositions referred to in subparagraph d of the first paragraph in relation to the order determined in its respect in accordance with paragraph d of subsection 34 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act.

93.15. Where at a particular time a taxpayer makes or incurs an outlay or expense on account of capital for the purpose of earning income from a business carried on by the taxpayer, the taxpayer is deemed to acquire at that time goodwill in respect of the business with a cost equal to the amount of the outlay or expense if no portion of the amount is

(a) the cost, or any part of the cost, of a property;

(b) but for this section, deductible in computing the taxpayer's income from the business;

(c) non-deductible in computing the taxpayer's income from the business because of any provision of this Part (other than section 129) or the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1);

(d) paid or payable to a creditor of the taxpayer as, on account of or in lieu of full or partial payment of any debt, or on account of the redemption, cancellation or purchase of any bond or debenture; or

(e) where the taxpayer is a corporation, partnership or trust, paid or payable to a person as a shareholder, member or beneficiary, as the case may be, of the taxpayer.

2019, c. 14, s. 74.

93.16. No amount paid or payable may be included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) if the amount is

(a) in consideration for the purchase of shares; or

(b) in consideration for the cancellation or assignment of an obligation to pay consideration referred to in paragraph a.

2019, c. 14, s. 74.

93.17. Where at a particular time in a taxation year a taxpayer has or may become entitled to receive a particular amount on account of capital in respect of a business that is or was carried on by the taxpayer, the taxpayer is deemed to dispose, at that time, of goodwill in respect of the business for proceeds of disposition equal to the amount by which the particular amount exceeds the aggregate of all outlays or expenses that were made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of obtaining the particular amount and that were not otherwise deductible in computing the taxpayer's income, if, but for this section, the following conditions were satisfied:

(a) for the purposes of this Part, the particular amount is not included in computing the taxpayer's income or deducted in computing any balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts for the taxation year or a preceding taxation year;

(b) the particular amount does not reduce the cost or capital cost of a property or the amount of an outlay or expense; and

(c) the particular amount is not included in computing any gain or loss of the taxpayer from a disposition of a capital property.

93.18. Where a taxpayer has incurred an incorporeal capital amount in respect of a business before 1 January 2017, the following rules apply:

(a) at the beginning of 1 January 2017, the total capital cost of all property of the taxpayer included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) in respect of the business, each of which was an incorporeal capital property of the taxpayer immediately before that day or is the goodwill property in respect of the business, is deemed to be equal to the amount determined by the formula

$4/3 \times (A + B - C)$;

(b) at the beginning of 1 January 2017, the capital cost of each property of the taxpayer included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act in respect of the business, each of which was an incorporeal capital property of the taxpayer immediately before that day or is the goodwill property in respect of the business, is to be determined as follows:

i. the order for determining the capital cost of each property that is not the goodwill property is identical to the order that is determined for the same purposes under subparagraph i of paragraph b of subsection 38 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)),

ii. the capital cost of a particular property that is not the goodwill property in respect of the business is deemed to be equal to the lesser of the incorporeal capital amount of the taxpayer in respect of the particular property and the amount by which the total capital cost of property of the class determined under subparagraph a exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed under this subparagraph ii to be the capital cost of a property that is determined in advance of the determination of the capital cost of the particular property, and

iii. the capital cost of the goodwill property is deemed to be equal to the amount by which the total capital cost of property of that Class 14.1 exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed under subparagraph ii to be the capital cost of a property;

(c) an amount equal to the amount by which the aggregate of the total capital cost of property of that Class 14.1 and the amount determined under subparagraph c of the second paragraph exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph is deemed to have been allowed to the taxpayer as depreciation in respect of property of that class under paragraph a of section 130 in computing the taxpayer's income for taxation years ending before 1 January 2017; and

(d) if no taxation year of the taxpayer ends immediately before 1 January 2017 and the taxpayer would have had a particular amount included, because of paragraph b of section 105, as it read before being repealed, in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the particular taxation year that includes that day if the particular year had ended immediately before that day,

i. for the purposes of the formula in subparagraph a, 3/2 of the particular amount is to be included in computing the amount determined under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 107, as it read before being repealed,

ii. the taxpayer is deemed to dispose of a capital property in respect of the business immediately before 1 January 2017 for proceeds of disposition equal to twice the particular amount,

iii. if the taxpayer makes a valid election under subparagraph iii of paragraph d of subsection 38 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act, subparagraph ii does not apply and an amount equal to the particular amount is to be included in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the particular year,

iv. if, after 31 December 2016 and in the particular year, the taxpayer acquires a property included in that Class 14.1 in respect of the business or is deemed under section 93.15 to acquire goodwill in respect of the business, and the taxpayer makes a valid election under subparagraph iv of paragraph d of subsection 38 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act,

(1) for the purposes of subparagraphs ii and iii, the particular amount must be reduced by the lesser of the particular amount otherwise determined and 1/2 of the capital cost of the property or goodwill acquired (determined without reference to subparagraph 2), and

(2) the capital cost of the property or goodwill acquired, as the case may be, must be reduced by twice the amount of the reduction under subparagraph 1, and

v. if, in the part of the particular year preceding that day, the taxpayer disposed of a qualified farm or fishing property (as defined in subparagraph a.0.2 of the first paragraph of section 726.6) that was an incorporeal capital property of the taxpayer, the capital property disposed of by the taxpayer under subparagraph ii is deemed to be such a property to the extent of the lesser of

(1) the proceeds of disposition of the capital property, and

(2) the amount by which the proceeds of disposition of the qualified farm or fishing property exceed its cost.

In the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the eligible incorporeal capital amount of the taxpayer in respect of the business at the beginning of 1 January 2017;

(b) B is the excess amount determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 107, as it read before being repealed, in respect of the business at the beginning of 1 January 2017; and

(c) C is the amount by which the amount determined under the second paragraph of section 107, as it read before being repealed, in respect of the business exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount determined under any of subparagraphs a to e of the first paragraph of that section in respect of the business at the beginning of 1 January 2017, with reference to any adjustment provided for in subparagraph i of subparagraph d of the first paragraph.

For the purposes of subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the first paragraph and subparagraphs iii and iv of subparagraph d of that paragraph, Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to the order for determining the capital cost of a property in accordance with subparagraph i of paragraph b of subsection 38 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act and in relation to an election referred to in subparagraphs iii and iv of paragraph d of that subsection 38.

93.19. Where at a particular time a taxpayer disposes of a particular property included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) in respect of a business and none of sections 189, 437, 460 to 462, 521 to 526, 528, 556 to 564.1, 565, 620 to 632, 688 and 692.8 apply in respect of the disposition, the taxpayer is deemed, for the purpose of determining the undepreciated capital cost of the class, to have acquired a property of the class immediately before that time for a capital cost equal to the least of 1/4 of the proceeds of disposition of the particular property, 1/4 of the capital cost of the particular property and

(a) if the particular property is not goodwill and is acquired before 1 January 2017 by the taxpayer, 1/4 of the capital cost of the particular property;

(b) if the particular property is not goodwill, is acquired after 31 December 2016 by the taxpayer and an amount is deemed to have been allowed as depreciation under section 93.20 in respect of the taxpayer's acquisition of the particular property under paragraph a of section 130, that amount;

(c) if the particular property (other than a property to which paragraph b applies) is not goodwill and is acquired after 31 December 2016 by the taxpayer—in circumstances under which any of sections 189, 437, 460 to 462, 521 to 526, 528, 556 to 564.1, 565, 620 to 632, 688 and 692.8 apply—from a person or partnership that would have been deemed under this section to have acquired a property if none of those sections had applied, the capital cost of the property that would have been deemed under this section to have been acquired by the person or partnership;

(d) if the particular property is goodwill, the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the capital cost of a property deemed under this section to have been acquired by the taxpayer at or before the particular time in respect of another disposition of goodwill property in respect of the business is exceeded by the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

i. 1/4 of the amount determined under subparagraph iii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 93.18 in respect of the business,

ii. if goodwill is acquired after 31 December 2016 by the taxpayer and an amount is deemed to have been allowed as depreciation under section 93.20 in respect of the taxpayer's acquisition of the goodwill under paragraph a of section 130, that amount, and

iii. if goodwill is acquired (other than an acquisition in respect of which subparagraph ii applies) after 31 December 2016 by the taxpayer—in circumstances under which any of sections 189, 437, 460 to 462, 521 to 526, 528, 556 to 564.1, 565, 620 to 632, 688 and 692.8 apply—from a person or partnership that would have been deemed under this section to have acquired a property if none of those sections had applied, the capital cost of the property that would have been deemed under this section to have been acquired by the person or partnership; or

(e) in any other case, nil.

2019, c. 14, s. 74.

93.20. Where at a particular time a taxpayer acquires a particular property included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) in respect of a business, the acquisition of the particular property is part of a transaction or series of transactions or events that includes a disposition (in this section referred to as the "prior disposition") at or before that time of the particular property, or a similar property, by the taxpayer or a person or partnership that does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer and section 93.19 applies in respect of the prior disposition, an amount is deemed, for the purpose of determining the undepreciated capital cost of property of the class, to have been allowed to the taxpayer as depreciation in respect of the particular property under paragraph a of section 130 in computing the taxpayer's income for taxation years ending before the acquisition equal to the lesser of the capital cost of the property deemed under section 93.19 to be acquired in respect of the prior disposition and 1/4 of the capital cost of the particular property.

2019, c. 14, s. 74.

93.21. For the purposes of sections 93.18 to 93.20 and 93.22, "incorporeal capital amount" , "eligible incorporeal capital amount" , "exempt gains balance" and "incorporeal capital property" have the meaning assigned by sections 106, 107, 107.2 and 250, respectively, as they read before being repealed.

93.22. Where a taxpayer owns property included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) in respect of a business at the beginning of the calendar year 2017 and the property was an incorporeal capital property in respect of the business immediately before 1 January 2017, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purposes of this Part and its regulations (other than sections 93 to 104, 130 and 130.1 and any regulations made under paragraph a of section 130), if the amount determined under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 107, as it read before being repealed, would have been increased immediately before 1 January 2017 if the property had been disposed of immediately before that time, the capital cost of the property is deemed to be increased by 4/3 of the amount of that increase;

(b) for the purposes of sections 93 to 104, 130 and 130.1 and any regulations made under paragraph a of section 130, where the taxpayer was deemed under subparagraphs a and b of the second paragraph of section 106.4, as it read before being repealed, to continue to own incorporeal capital property in respect of the business and not to have ceased to carry on the business until a time that is after 31 December 2016, the taxpayer is deemed to continue to own the incorporeal capital property and to continue to carry on the business until the time that is immediately before the time from among those described in subparagraphs i to v of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of that section 106.4 that would occur first if subparagraph ii of that subparagraph a were read as if "incorporeal capital property" were replaced by "incorporeal capital property or capital property";

(c) for the purposes of subparagraph ii.3 of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 93 and subparagraph h of the second paragraph of that section, the taxpayer is deemed not to have paid or received an amount before 1 January 2017 as or on account of an existing or proposed countervailing or anti-dumping duty in respect of depreciable property of the class; and

(d) section 101 does not apply to assistance that a taxpayer received or is entitled to receive before 1 January 2017 in respect of a property that was an incorporeal capital property immediately before 1 January 2017.

2019, c. 14, s. 74.

94. Where, at the end of a taxation year, the amount determined under the second paragraph of section 93 in respect of a taxpayer's depreciable property of a prescribed class exceeds the aggregate of the amounts determined under subparagraphs i to ii.3 of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of that section in respect thereof, the excess shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

94.1. Despite section 94, the excess determined at the end of a taxation year under that section is not to be included in computing a taxpayer's income for the year where it is in respect of a passenger vehicle in respect of which paragraph d.3 or d.4 of section 99 or section 525.1 applied to the taxpayer, unless it was, at any time, designated immediate expensing property, within the meaning assigned by section 130R3 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1).

However, the excess referred to in the first paragraph is deemed, for the purposes of subparagraph ii of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 93, to be an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under sections 93 to 104.

95. Where a taxpayer is an individual and his income for a taxation year includes income from a business the fiscal period of which does not coincide with the calendar year, and the taxpayer has disposed of depreciable property acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from the business,

(a) each reference in sections 94, 94.1 and 130.1 to "year" and "taxation year" shall read as a reference to "fiscal period", except so far as the said sections apply to a disposition by a taxpayer, after ceasing to operate a business, of depreciable property of a prescribed class he had acquired to gain income from the business and had subsequently used for no other purpose; and

(b) the expression "the taxpayer's income", in section 94, means "the taxpayer's income from the business".

1972, c. 23, s. 85; 1977, c. 26, s. 12; 1978, c. 26, s. 16; 1991, c. 25, s. 40.

96. (1) Subsection 2 applies where an amount in respect of the disposition in a taxation year of depreciable property of a prescribed class of a taxpayer, in this section and section 96.0.2 referred to as the "former property", would, but for this section, be the amount determined under subparagraph c or d of the second paragraph of section 93 in respect of the disposition of the former property that is either

(a) property the proceeds of disposition of which were compensation or an amount described in subparagraph ii, iii or iv of subparagraph f of the first paragraph of section 93; or

(b) a property that was, immediately before the disposition, a former business property of the taxpayer.

(2) If the taxpayer acquires, in a taxation year, a depreciable property of a prescribed class of the taxpayer that is a replacement property for a former property of the taxpayer and the taxpayer makes a valid election under subsection 4 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December

2006 in respect of the former property or, if section 96.0.1 applies, the taxpayer so elects in the taxpayer's fiscal return filed in accordance with section 1000 for the taxation year, the following rules apply:

(a) the amount determined under subparagraph c or d of the second paragraph of section 93, in respect of the disposition of the former property, must be reduced by the lesser of the amount by which the amount otherwise determined under that subparagraph c or d, in respect of that disposition, exceeds the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of property of the prescribed class to which the former property belonged at the time immediately before the time that the former property was disposed of, and the amount that has been used by the taxpayer to acquire, in the case of a former property referred to in paragraph a of subsection 1, before the end of the second taxation year following the year referred to in subsection 1 or, if it is later, before the end of the 24-month period following the year referred to in subsection 1, or, in any other case, before the end of the first taxation year following the year referred to in subsection 1 or, if it is later, before the end of the 12-month period following the year referred to in subsection 1, a replacement property that has not been disposed of by the taxpayer before the time at which the taxpayer disposed of the former property; and

(b) the amount of the reduction determined under paragraph a is deemed to be proceeds of disposition of a depreciable property of the taxpayer that had a capital cost equal to that amount and that was property of the same class as the replacement property, from a disposition made on the day on which the replacement property was acquired by the taxpayer or, if it is later, on the day on which the former property was disposed of by the taxpayer.

(3) For the purposes of this section, a depreciable property of a prescribed class of a taxpayer is a replacement property for the taxpayer's former property where

(a) it is reasonable to conclude that the property was acquired by the taxpayer to replace the former property;

(a.1) it was acquired by the taxpayer and used by the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer for a use that is the same as or similar to the use to which the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer put the former property;

(b) where the former property was used by the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business, the property was acquired by the taxpayer either for the purpose of gaining or producing income from that or a similar business or for use by a person related to the taxpayer for such a purpose;

(c) where the former property was a taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer, the property is a taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer; and

(d) where the former property was a taxable Canadian property, other than tax-agreement-protected property, of the taxpayer, the property is a taxable Canadian property, other than tax-agreement-protected property, of the taxpayer.

1972, c. 23, s. 86; 1975, c. 22, s. 11; 1977, c. 26, s. 13; 1978, c. 26, s. 17; 1993, c. 16, s. 57; 1994, c. 22, s. 72; 2001, c. 7, s. 16; 2001, c. 53, s. 32; 2009, c. 5, s. 53; 2009, c. 15, s. 51.

96.0.1. For the purposes of paragraph a of subsection 2 of section 96, if a taxpayer acquires a replacement property after the end of the period provided for in that paragraph a for the acquisition, and, in the Minister's opinion, the taxpayer was unable to acquire the replacement property before the end of the period because of the specific nature of the former property referred to in section 96, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the replacement property before the end of the period.

96.0.2. The rules set out in the second paragraph apply if

(a) a taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "transferor") has, pursuant to a written agreement with a person or partnership (in this section referred to as the "transferee"), disposed of or terminated a former property that is a franchise, concession or licence for a limited period that is wholly attributable to the carrying on of a business at a fixed place;

(b) the transferee acquired the former property from the transferor or, on the termination, acquired a similar property in respect of the same fixed place from another person or partnership; and

(c) the transferor and the transferee make a valid election under paragraph c of subsection 4.2 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in respect of the acquisition and the disposition or termination.

The rules to which the first paragraph refers in respect of an acquisition and a disposition or termination are as follows:

(a) if the transferee acquires a similar property referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph, the transferee is deemed to have also acquired the former property at the time that the former property was terminated and to own the former property until the transferee no longer owns the similar property;

(b) if the transferee acquires the former property referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph, the transferee is deemed to own the former property until such time as the transferee owns neither the former property nor a similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property related;

(c) for the purpose of calculating the amount deductible under paragraph a of section 130 in respect of the former property in computing the transferee's income, the useful life of the former property remaining on its acquisition by the transferee is deemed to be equal to the period that was the useful life of the former property remaining on its acquisition by the transferor; and

(d) any amount that would, but for this paragraph, be included in the cost of a property of the transferor included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) (including a deemed acquisition under section 93.15) or included in the proceeds of disposition of a property of the transferee included in that class (including a deemed disposition under section 93.17) in respect of the disposition or termination of the former property by the transferor is deemed to be

i. neither included in the cost nor in the proceeds of disposition of property included in that class, ii. an amount required to be included in computing the capital cost to the transferee of the former property, and

iii. an amount required to be included in computing the proceeds of disposition to the transferor in respect of a disposition of the former property.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under paragraph c of subsection 4.2 of section 13 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

2009, c. 15, s. 53; 2019, c. 14, s. 75.

96.1. Notwithstanding sections 1010 to 1011, where a taxpayer has made an election under subsection 2 of section 96, the Minister shall make such reassessments of tax, interest and penalties under this Part as are necessary for any taxation year to take into account that election.

1979, c. 18, s. 8; 2002, c. 40, s. 21; 2009, c. 5, s. 54.

96.2. For the purpose of determining whether property meets the prescribed criteria in respect of prescribed energy conservation property, the Technical Guide to Class 43.1 and 43.2, as amended from time to time and published by the Department of Natural Resources of Canada, applies conclusively, with the necessary modifications, with respect to engineering and scientific matters.

97. Where one or more depreciable properties of a taxpayer that were included in a prescribed class, in this section referred to as the "old class", become included at any time, in this section referred to as the "transfer time", in another prescribed class, in this section referred to as the "new class", the following rules apply for the purpose of determining at any subsequent time the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of the old class and the new class:

(a) for the purposes of subparagraph i of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 93, each of those depreciable properties is deemed to be property of the new class acquired before the subsequent time and never to have been included in the old class; and

(b) the taxpayer shall deduct in computing the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer before the subsequent time in respect of property of the old class, and add in computing the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer before the subsequent time in respect of property of the new class, an amount equal to the greater of

i. the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the capital cost to the taxpayer of each of those depreciable properties exceeds the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of the old class at the transfer time, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that would have been deducted under paragraph a of section 130 in respect of a depreciable property that is one of those depreciable properties in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ended before the transfer time and at the end of which the property was included in the old class, had the property been the only property included in a separate prescribed class and had the rate prescribed by the regulations made under that paragraph a in respect of that separate prescribed class been the effective rate that was used by the taxpayer to determine the amounts deducted by the taxpayer under that paragraph a in respect of property of the old class for the year.

97.1. Where at any time in a taxation year, a taxpayer acquires a particular property in respect of which, immediately before that time, he had a leasehold interest that was included in a prescribed class, for the purposes of this division, sections 130.1, 142 and 149 and the regulations made under paragraph a of section 130, the following rules apply:

(a) the leasehold interest is deemed to have been disposed of by the taxpayer at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to the amount by which the capital cost of the leasehold interest, immediately before that time, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts claimed by the taxpayer in respect of the leasehold interest that were deductible under paragraph a of section 130 in computing his income for previous taxation years;

(b) the property is deemed to be depreciable property of a prescribed class of the taxpayer acquired by him at that time and the taxpayer shall add to the capital cost of that property an amount equal to the capital cost referred to in paragraph a; and

(c) the taxpayer shall add the aggregate referred to in paragraph a to the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer before that time in respect of the class to which that property belongs.

97.2. Where, at any time, a taxpayer acquires a capital property that is depreciable property or immovable property in respect of which, before that time, the taxpayer or any person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length was entitled to a deduction in computing his income in respect of any amount paid or payable for the use of, or the right to use, the property and the cost or the capital cost, determined without reference to this section, at that time of the property to the taxpayer is less than the fair market value thereof at that time determined without reference to any option with respect to that property, for the purposes of this division, sections 130, 130.1, 142 and 149 and any regulations made under paragraph a of section 130 or under section 130.1, the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed to acquire the property at that time at a cost equal to the lesser of the fair market value of the property at that time determined without reference to any option with respect to that property, and the aggregate of the cost or the capital cost, determined without reference to this section, of the property to the taxpayer and all amounts each of which is an outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer or by a person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length at any time for the use of, or the right to use, the property, other than amounts paid or payable to a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length;

(b) the taxpayer shall add, to the total depreciation allowed to him before that time in respect of the prescribed class to which the property belongs, the amount by which the cost of the property determined under paragraph a exceeds the cost or the capital cost thereof, determined without reference to this section; and

(c) where the property would, but for this paragraph, not be depreciable property of the taxpayer, it is deemed to be depreciable property of a separate prescribed class of the taxpayer.

97.3. Where, in a taxation year, a taxpayer disposes of a capital property that is an option with respect to depreciable property or immovable property in respect of which the taxpayer or any person with whom he is not dealing at arm's length is entitled to a deduction in computing his income in respect of any amount paid for the use of, or the right to use, the property, for the purposes of this division, the amount, if any, by which the proceeds of disposition to the taxpayer of the option exceed his cost in respect thereof is deemed to be an excess referred to in section 94 in respect of the taxpayer for the year.

97.4. For the purposes of paragraph a of section 97.2 and section 97.3, where a particular corporation has been incorporated or otherwise formed after the time any other corporation, with which the particular corporation would not have been dealing at arm's length had the particular corporation been in existence before such time, was formed, the particular corporation is deemed to have been in existence from the time of the formation of the other corporation and to have been not dealing at arm's length with the other corporation.

97.5. Where, before the disposition of a capital property that was depreciable property of a taxpayer, the taxpayer, or any person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length, was entitled to a deduction in computing his income in respect of any outlay or expense made or incurred for the use of, or the right to use, during a period of time, that capital property, other than an outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer or a person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length before the acquisition of the property, except where the taxpayer disposes of the property to a person with whom he is not dealing at arm's length and that person is subject to the provisions of sections 97.2 and 97.4 with respect to the acquisition by him of the property, the following rules apply:

(a) the person who owned the property immediately before the disposition shall at that time add to the capital cost of the property the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts, other than amounts paid or payable to the taxpayer or a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, each of which was a deductible outlay or expense made or incurred before the disposition by the taxpayer, or by a person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length, for the use of, or the right to use, during the period of time, the property, and

ii. the amount by which the fair market value of the property at the earlier of the expiration of the last period of time in respect of which the deductible outlay or expense referred to in subparagraph i was made or incurred, and the time of the disposition exceeds the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property immediately before that time; and

(b) the taxpayer shall add, immediately before the disposition, to the total depreciation allowed to him before the disposition in respect of the prescribed class to which the property belongs, the amount added to the capital cost to him of the property pursuant to paragraph a.

97.6. For the purposes of section 97.5, an amount deductible by a taxpayer under paragraph g or g.1 of section 157 is deemed not to be an outlay or expense that was made or incurred by him for the use of, or the right to use, the property.

1984, c. 15, s. 23.

98. Where, in calculating the amount of a deduction allowed under section 130.1 or regulations made under paragraph a of section 130 in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class, in this section referred to as the "particular class", there has been added to the capital cost of depreciable property of the particular class the capital cost of depreciable property, in this section referred to as "added property", of another prescribed class, for the purposes of this division, sections 130.1, 142 and 149 and any regulations made under paragraph a of section 130, the added property is, if the Minister so directs with respect to any taxation year for which the Minister may make any assessment, reassessment or additional assessment, in accordance with section 1010, deemed to have been, at all times before the beginning of that year, property of the particular class and not of the other class.

Except to the extent that the added property or any part thereof has been disposed of by the taxpayer before the beginning of the year, the added property is deemed to have been transferred from the particular class to the other class at the beginning of that year.

1972, c. 23, s. 88; 1974, c. 18, s. 4; 1978, c. 26, s. 19; 1997, c. 14, s. 33.

99. Subject to section 450.10, for the purposes of this division, Chapter III, sections 64 and 78.4 and any regulations made under paragraph a of section 130, the following rules apply:

(a) where a taxpayer, having acquired property to gain income, begins at a later time to use it for some other purpose, the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of it at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value and to have reacquired it immediately thereafter at a cost equal to that fair market value;

(b) subject to section 284, where a taxpayer, having acquired property for some other purpose, begins at a particular time to use it to gain income, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired it at that time at a capital cost to the taxpayer equal to the lesser of

i. its fair market value at that time;

ii. the aggregate of its cost to the taxpayer at that time determined without reference to this paragraph, paragraph a and subparagraph ii of paragraph d, and, subject to section 99.1, 1/2 of the amount by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the aggregate of the cost to the taxpayer of the property at that time determined without reference to this paragraph, paragraph a and subparagraph ii of paragraph d, and, subject to section 99.1, twice the amount deducted by the taxpayer under Title VI.5 of Book IV in respect of the amount by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the cost to the taxpayer of the property at that time determined without reference to this paragraph, paragraph a and subparagraph ii of paragraph d;

(c) where property has, since it was acquired by a taxpayer, been regularly used in part to gain income and in part for some other purpose, the proportion of the property acquired by the taxpayer to gain such income, the proportion of its capital cost and the proportion of the proceeds of disposition of such property, as the case may be, are deemed to be the same as the proportion that its use to gain income is of its whole use;

(d) where there has been a change in the relation between the proportion of the use made of the property to gain income and the proportion of the use made of it for some other purpose, the following rules apply:

i. where the proportion of the use made of the property to gain income has increased at a particular time, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired at that time depreciable property of that class at a capital cost equal to the aggregate of the proportion of the lesser of its fair market value at that time, and its cost to the taxpayer at that time determined without reference to this subparagraph, subparagraph ii and paragraph a that the amount of the increase in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property to gain income is of the whole of the use regularly made of the property, and, subject to section 99.1, 1/2 of the amount by which the amount deemed under section 283 to be the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property in respect of the change in the use made of the property exceeds the aggregate of that proportion of the cost to the taxpayer of the property at that time determined without reference to this subparagraph, subparagraph ii and paragraph a, that the amount of the increase in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property to gain income is of the whole of the use regularly made of the property, and, subject to section 99.1, twice the amount deducted by the taxpayer under Title VI.5 of Book IV in respect of the amount by which the amount deemed under section 283 to be the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property in respect of the change in the use made of the property exceeds that proportion of the cost to the taxpayer of the property at that time determined without reference to this subparagraph, subparagraph ii and paragraph a that the amount of the increase in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property to gain income is of the whole of the use regularly made of the property;

i.1. for greater certainty, where the property is a passenger vehicle in respect of which paragraph d.3 or d.4 applies or a zero-emission passenger vehicle in respect of which paragraph d.5 applies, the capital cost established under subparagraph i must in no case be greater than the proportion referred to in that subparagraph i of the capital cost of the property established under paragraph d.3, d.4 or d.5, as the case may be;

ii. where the proportion of the use made of the property to gain income has decreased at a particular time, the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed at that time of depreciable property of that class and the proceeds of disposition are deemed to be an amount equal to the proportion of the fair market value of the property as of that time that the amount of the decrease in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property to gain income is of the whole of the use regularly made of it;

(d.1) notwithstanding any other provision of this Part except section 450.10, where at any time a particular person or partnership has, in any manner whatever, acquired, otherwise than as a consequence of the death of the transferor, a depreciable property of a prescribed class, other than a timber resource property or a passenger vehicle in respect of which paragraph d.3 or d.4 or section 525.1 applies, from a transferor being a person or partnership with whom the particular person or partnership did not deal at arm's length and the property was, immediately before the transfer, a capital property of the transferor, the following rules apply:

i. where the transferor was an individual resident in Canada or a partnership any member of which was either an individual resident in Canada or another partnership and the cost of the property to the particular person or partnership at that time determined without reference to this paragraph exceeds the cost or, where the property was depreciable property, the capital cost of the property to the transferor immediately before the transferor disposed of it, the capital cost of the property to the particular person or partnership at that time is deemed to be the amount, in this subparagraph referred to as "the particular amount", that is equal to the aggregate of the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before that time and, subject to section 99.1, 1/2 of the amount by which the transferor's proceeds of disposition of the property exceed the aggregate of the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before that time, the amount required by section 726.9.4 to be deducted in computing the capital cost to the particular person or partnership of the property at that time, and, subject to section 99.1, twice the amount deducted by any person under Title VI.5 of Book IV in respect of the amount by which the transferor's proceeds of disposition of the property exceed the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before that time and, for the purposes of paragraph b and subparagraph i of paragraph d, the cost of the property to the particular person or partnership is deemed to be equal to the particular amount,

ii. where the transferor was not a transferor described in subparagraph i, the rules provided in that subparagraph, which shall be read as if the reference therein to "exceed the aggregate of the cost or capital cost" were a reference to "exceed the cost or capital cost" and without reference to ", the amount required by section 726.9.4 to be deducted in computing the capital cost to the particular person or partnership of the property at that time, and, subject to section 99.1, twice the amount deducted by any person under Title VI.5 of Book IV in respect of the amount by which the transferor's proceeds of disposition of the property exceed the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before that time", apply in the same manner, and

iii. where the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before the transferor disposed of it exceeds the capital cost of the property to the particular person or partnership at that time determined without reference to this paragraph, the capital cost of the property to the particular person or partnership at that time is deemed to be an amount equal to the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property to the transferor immediately before the transferor disposed of it and the excess is deemed to have been allowed as depreciation to the particular person or partnership in respect of the property under regulations made under paragraph a of section 130 in computing the income of the particular person or partnership for taxation years ending before the acquisition of the property by the particular person or partnership;

(d.1.1*)* where a taxpayer is deemed by subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.9.2 to have disposed of and reacquired a property that immediately before the disposition was a depreciable property, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the property from himself, herself or itself and, in so having acquired the property, not to have been dealing with himself, herself or itself at arm's length;

(d.2*)* where a taxpayer is deemed under subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 736 to have disposed of and reacquired depreciable property, other than a timber resource property, the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property at the time of the reacquisition is deemed to be equal to the aggregate of

i. the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property at the time of the disposition, and

ii. subject to section 99.1, 1/2 of the amount by which the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property exceed the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property at the time of the disposition;

(d.3*)* where the cost to a taxpayer of a passenger vehicle exceeds $20,000 or such other amount as may be prescribed, the capital cost to the taxpayer of the passenger vehicle is deemed to be equal to $20,000 or to that other amount, as the case may be;

(d.4*)* notwithstanding paragraph d.3, where a passenger vehicle is acquired at any time by a taxpayer from a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length and this paragraph, paragraph d.3 or section 525.1 applies to the person in respect of that passenger vehicle, the capital cost thereof to the taxpayer is deemed to be equal to the least of the following amounts:

i. the fair market value of the passenger vehicle at that time,

ii. the amount that immediately before that time was the cost amount to that person of the passenger vehicle minus, as the case may be, the amount deducted by that person under paragraph a of section 130 in respect of the passenger vehicle in computing income for that person's taxation year in which that person disposed of the passenger vehicle, and

iii. $20,000 or such other amount as may be prescribed for the purposes of paragraph d.3;

(d.5) where the cost to a taxpayer of a zero-emission passenger vehicle exceeds the prescribed amount that is determined, in respect of the taxpayer, under section 99R1.1 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1), or where the cost to a taxpayer of a passenger vehicle that was, at any time, designated immediate expensing property, within the meaning of section 130R3 of that Regulation, exceeds the prescribed amount that is determined in its respect under section 99R1 of that Regulation, the following rules apply:

i. the capital cost to the taxpayer of the vehicle is deemed to be equal to the prescribed amount that is determined, in respect of the taxpayer, under section 99R1 or 99R1.1 of that Regulation, as the case may be, and

ii. for the purposes of subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 93, the proceeds of disposition of the vehicle are deemed to be equal to the amount determined under section 99.2;

(e) for the purposes of this Part, a taxpayer who has acquired prescribed property between 3 December 1970 and 1 April 1972 for use in a prescribed manufacturing or processing business carried on by the taxpayer, is deemed to have acquired that property at a capital cost equal to 115% of the amount that, but for this paragraph and section 180, would have been the capital cost of that property, if that property was not used for any purpose whatever before it was acquired by the taxpayer;

(f) where any part of a self-contained domestic establishment (in this paragraph referred to as the "work space") in which an individual resides is the principal place of business of the individual or a partnership of which the individual is a member, or is used exclusively for the purpose of earning income from a business and on a regular and continuous basis for meeting clients, customers or patients of the individual or partnership in the course of the business, as the case may be, except a work space that relates to the operation of a private residential home or a tourist accommodation establishment that is a principal residence establishment, bed and breakfast establishment or tourist home, within the meaning of the regulations made under the Tourist Accommodation Act (chapter H-1.01), where the tourist accommodation establishment is duly registered under that Act, the following rules apply:

i. the capital cost at any time of the work space to the individual or partnership is deemed to be equal to the aggregate of

(1) 50% of the portion of the capital cost of the work space to the individual or partnership, determined without reference to this subparagraph i, that cannot reasonably be considered to be attributable to the amount of an expenditure of a capital nature relating solely to the work space that the individual or partnership made before that time, and

(2) the portion of the capital cost of the work space to the individual or partnership, determined without reference to this subparagraph i, that may reasonably be considered to be attributable to the amount of an expenditure of a capital nature relating solely to the work space that the individual or partnership made before that time,

ii. the proceeds of disposition of the work space to the individual or partnership, reduced by the total of all expenditures made or incurred by the individual or partnership for the purpose of making the disposition, are deemed to be equal to the aggregate of

(1) 50% of such proportion of the proceeds of disposition to the individual or partnership of the work space so reduced, determined without reference to this subparagraph ii, as the portion of the capital cost of the work space to the individual or partnership immediately before the disposition, determined without reference to this paragraph, that cannot reasonably be considered to be attributable to the amount of an expenditure of a capital nature relating solely to the work space that the individual or partnership made is of the capital cost of the work space to the individual or partnership immediately before the disposition, determined without reference to this paragraph, and

space to the individual or partnership immediately before the disposition, determined without reference to this paragraph, that may reasonably be considered to be attributable to the amount of an expenditure of a capital nature relating solely to the work space that the individual or partnership made is of the capital cost of the work space to the individual or partnership immediately before the disposition, determined without reference to this paragraph, and

iii. each of the amounts that increased or reduced the undepreciated capital cost to an individual or a partnership of the class that includes the work space, for a taxation year or a fiscal period, as the case may be, that begins before 10 May 1996, otherwise than because of subparagraph i of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 93 or subparagraph c of the second paragraph of that section, to the extent that it may reasonably be considered that the amount is attributable to an expenditure of a capital nature which does not relate solely to the work space that the individual or partnership made, is deemed, for a taxation year or a fiscal period, as the case may be, that begins after 9 May 1996, to be equal to 50% of that amount.

99.1. For the purposes of paragraphs b, d, d.1 and d.2 of section 99, the rules provided for in the second paragraph apply where

(a) in the case of paragraphs b and d, the change in use of property occurs during a taxpayer's taxation year that includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or that begins after 28 February 2000 and ends before 17 October 2000;

(b) in the case of paragraph d.1, the acquisition of property occurs during a transferor's taxation year that includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or that begins after 28 February 2000 and ends before 17 October 2000; and

(c) in the case of paragraph d.2, the acquisition of property occurs during a corporation's taxation year that includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or that begins after 28 February 2000 and ends before 17 October 2000.

The fraction "1/2" and the word "twice" in paragraphs b, d and d.1 of section 99, and the fraction "1/2" in paragraph d.2 of that section shall be replaced, with the necessary modifications, by

(a) in the case of the fraction "1/2" in paragraphs b and d, the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the taxpayer for the year in which the change in use of property occurs;

(b) in the case of the fraction "1/2" in paragraph d.1, the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the transferor of the property for the year in which the transferor disposed of the property;

(c) in the case of the fraction "1/2" in paragraph d.2, the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the corporation for the year in which the acquisition of the property occurs;

(d) in the case of the word "twice" in paragraphs b and d, the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the taxpayer for the year in which the change in use of property occurs; and

(e) in the case of the word "twice" in paragraph d.1, the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the transferor of the property for the year in which the transferor disposed of the property.

99.2. The amount to which subparagraph ii of paragraph d.5 of section 99 refers in respect of a zero-emission passenger vehicle of a taxpayer is equal to the amount determined by the formula

A × B/C.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount that would, in the absence of subparagraph ii of paragraph d.5 of section 99, be the proceeds of disposition of the vehicle;

(b) B is

i. where the vehicle is disposed of to a person or partnership with which the taxpayer deals at arm's length, the capital cost to the taxpayer of the vehicle, and

ii. in any other case, the amount determined under subparagraph c; and

(c) C is the amount determined by the formula

D + (E + F) − (G + H).

In the formula in subparagraph c of the second paragraph,

(a) D is the cost to the taxpayer of the vehicle;

(b) E is the amount of repaid assistance referred to in the portion of section 101 before paragraph a and determined in respect of the vehicle at the time of the disposition;

(c) F is the maximum amount determined under subparagraph ii.1 of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 93 in respect of the vehicle;

(d) G is the amount of assistance referred to in paragraph b of section 101 and determined in respect of the vehicle at the time of the disposition; and

(e) H is the maximum amount determined under subparagraph g of the second paragraph of section 93 in respect of the vehicle.

2021, c. 18, s. 24; 2021, c. 36, s. 55.

100. For the purposes of paragraphs a to d of section 99, where a taxpayer is not resident in Canada, the expression "to gain income", in relation to a business, shall be construed as meaning to gain income from a business wholly carried on in Canada or from such part of a business as is so carried on.

101. For the purposes of this Part, where the capital cost to a taxpayer of a depreciable property was reduced, because of sections 485 to 485.18 or a taxpayer deducted a particular amount, other than a prescribed amount, under subsection 5 or 6 of section 127 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) in respect of a depreciable property in computing his tax payable under the said Act or received or is entitled to receive assistance, other than prescribed assistance, from a government, municipality or other public authority in respect of, or for the acquisition of, depreciable property, whether as a subsidy, grant, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, investment allowance or as any other form, the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer at any particular time is deemed to be the amount by which the aggregate of the capital cost of the property, determined without reference to this section and sections 101.6, 101.7 and 485 to 485.18 and the amount of the assistance, in respect of that property, repaid by the taxpayer, pursuant to an obligation to do so, before the disposition of the property and before the particular time, exceeds the aggregate of

(a) where the property was acquired in a taxation year ending before the particular time, all particular amounts deducted under the said subsections 5 and 6 by the taxpayer, in respect of that property, for a taxation year ending before the particular time and before the disposition of that property;

(b) the amount of assistance the taxpayer has received or is entitled, before the particular time, to receive in respect of that property before the disposition thereof; and

(c) any amount by which the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer is required, because of sections 485 to 485.18, to be reduced at or before that particular time.

1975, c. 22, s. 14; 1982, c. 5, s. 30; 1987, c. 67, s. 25; 1990, c. 59, s. 57; 1992, c. 1, s. 24; 1996, c. 39, s. 31; 2001, c. 53, s. 260.

101.1. (Repealed).

1978, c. 26, s. 21; 2001, c. 53, s. 34; 2019, c. 14, s. 76.

101.2. (Repealed).

1978, c. 26, s. 21; 2001, c. 53, s. 35; 2019, c. 14, s. 76.

101.3. For the purposes of section 101, where a prescribed amount must be taken into account to determine a prescribed tax deduction to which a member of a partnership or beneficiary of a trust, as the case may be, is entitled at the end of his taxation year, such portion of that amount as can reasonably be considered to relate to depreciable property is deemed to have been received by the partnership or trust, as the case may be, at the end of its fiscal period ending in that taxation year, as assistance from a government for the acquisition of depreciable property.

101.4. For the purposes of section 101, where at a particular time a taxpayer who is a beneficiary of a trust or a member of a partnership has received or is entitled to receive assistance from a government, municipality or other public authority whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, investment allowance or as any other form of assistance, the amount of the assistance that may reasonably be considered to be in respect of, or for the acquisition of, depreciable property of the trust or partnership is deemed to have been received at that time by the trust or partnership, as the case may be, as assistance from the government, municipality or other public authority for the acquisition of depreciable property.

101.5. For the purposes of paragraph d.1 of section 99, two corporations are deemed not to be related to each other at a particular time where, but for this section, they would be related to one another by reason of their being controlled by the same trustee, liquidator of a succession or executor and it is established that

(a) the trustee, liquidator of a succession or executor did not acquire control of the corporations as a result of one or more trusts or successions created by the same individual or by two or more individuals not dealing with each other at arm’s length; and

(b) the trust or succession under which the trustee, liquidator of a succession or executor acquired control of each of the corporations arose only on the death of the individual creating the trust or succession.

101.6. Notwithstanding section 101, where a taxpayer has in a taxation year received an amount that would, but for this section, be included in his income under paragraph w of section 87 in respect of the cost of a depreciable property acquired by him in the year, in the three taxation years immediately preceding the year or in the taxation year immediately following the year, he may elect under this section on or before his filing-due date for the year, or, where the property is acquired in the taxation year immediately following the year, for that following year, that the capital cost of the property to him be deemed to be the amount by which the aggregate of the following amounts exceeds the amount elected by him under this section:

(a) the capital cost of the property to him otherwise determined, applying section 101, where necessary;

(b) such part, if any, of the amount so received by the taxpayer as has been repaid by him pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or any part of that amount, in respect of that property and before the disposition thereof by him, and as may reasonably be considered to be in respect of the amount elected under this section in respect of the property.

101.7. For the purposes of section 101.6, in no case shall the amount elected by the taxpayer under this section exceed the least of

(a) the amount received by the taxpayer and to which that section refers;

(b) the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer otherwise determined;

(c) where the taxpayer has disposed of the property before the year, nil.

101.7.1. Section 93.18 applies in respect of an amount repaid after 31 December 2016 as if that amount was repaid immediately before 1 January 2017, if

(a) the amount is repaid by the taxpayer under a legal obligation to repay all or part of an amount the taxpayer received or was entitled to receive that was assistance from a government, municipality or other public authority (whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, investment allowance or as any other form of assistance) in respect of, or for the acquisition of, property the cost of which was an incorporeal capital amount of the taxpayer in respect of a business, within the meaning of section 106, as it read before being repealed;

(b) the incorporeal capital amount of the taxpayer in respect of the business was reduced in accordance with paragraph b of section 106.2, as it read before being repealed, because of the assistance referred to in paragraph a; and

(c) paragraph o.1 of section 157 does not apply in respect of the amount repaid.

2019, c. 14, s. 77.

101.7.2. No amount may be deducted under paragraph a of section 130 in respect of an amount of repaid assistance referred to in section 101.7.1 for any taxation year prior to the taxation year in which the assistance is repaid.

2019, c. 14, s. 77.

101.8. For the purposes of this Part,

(a) where a taxpayer, to acquire a property prescribed in respect of the taxpayer, is required under the terms of a contract entered into after 6 March 1996 to make a payment to the State, to Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, other than Québec, or to a Canadian municipality in respect of costs incurred or to be incurred by the recipient of the payment, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the property at the later of the time the payment is made and the time at which those costs are incurred at a capital cost equal to the portion of that payment made by the taxpayer that can reasonably be regarded as being in respect of those costs;

(b) where at any time after 6 March 1996 a taxpayer incurs a cost on account of capital for the building of, for the right to use or in respect of, a prescribed property, and the amount of the cost would, if this paragraph did not apply, not be included in the capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of a prescribed class, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the property at that time at a capital cost equal to the amount of the cost;

(c) where a taxpayer acquires an incorporeal property as a consequence of making a payment to which subparagraph a of this paragraph applies or incurring a cost to which subparagraph b of this paragraph applies,

i. the property referred to in subparagraph a or b of this paragraph is deemed to include the incorporeal property, and

ii. the portion of the capital cost referred to in subparagraph a or b of this paragraph that applies to the incorporeal property is deemed to be equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B / C;$$

(d) any property deemed by subparagraph a or b of this paragraph to have been acquired at any time by a taxpayer as a consequence of making a payment or incurring a cost is deemed

i. to have been acquired for the purpose for which the payment was made or the cost was incurred, and

ii. to be owned by the taxpayer at any subsequent time that the taxpayer benefits from the property.

In the formula provided for in subparagraph ii of subparagraph c of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the lesser of the amount of the payment made or cost incurred and the amount described in subparagraph c of this paragraph;

(b) B is the fair market value of the incorporeal property at the time the payment was made or the cost was incurred; and

(c) C is the fair market value at the time the payment was made or the cost was incurred of all incorporeal properties acquired as a consequence of making the payment or incurring the cost.

1998, c. 16, s. 88; 2001, c. 7, s. 169; 2005, c. 1, s. 35.

102. For the purposes of this division, every deduction as amortization made under section 64 or 78.4, section 12 of the Corporation Tax Act (Revised Statutes, 1964, chapter 67) or section 13 of the Provincial Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes, 1964, chapter 69) is deemed to have been made in accordance with the regulations made under paragraph a of section 130.

1972, c. 23, s. 91; 1972, c. 26, s. 41; 1987, c. 21, s. 12; 1990, c. 59, s. 58.

103. The amount deducted under section 155 or for which a deduction is made under section 156 is deemed, if it is a payment on account of the capital cost of depreciable property, to have been allowed the taxpayer in respect of such property, under regulations made under paragraph a of section 130, in computing his income for the year, or for the year in which the property was acquired, whichever is more recent.

1972, c. 23, s. 92.

104. The rules contained in this division apply to the disposition of a vessel that is a depreciable property, subject to the regulations.

1972, c. 23, s. 93.

DIVISION II.I

INCLUSIONS IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN INVESTMENTS

1989, c. 5, s. 35.

104.1. Where an amount in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class is included under section 94 in computing the income for a taxation year of a taxpayer, whether that taxpayer is an individual or a corporation, and an amount was deducted or is deemed, pursuant to section 104.3, to have been deducted under section 156.1 or 156.1.1 in respect of that property in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a preceding taxation year, there shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for the year an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the aggregate of the amounts determined in accordance with any of sections 156.2 to 156.3.1 in respect of the property for a preceding taxation year by the amount determined by the formula

A / B × C / D.

For the purposes of the formula provided in the first paragraph,

(a) the letter A represents the amount included under section 94 in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year in respect of the property referred to in the first paragraph;

(b) the letter B represents the total depreciation, within the meaning of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 93, allowed to the taxpayer in respect of the property referred to in the first paragraph;

(c) the letter C represents

i. where the taxpayer is an individual, the aggregate of the income earned in Québec and elsewhere by the individual for the year;

ii. where the taxpayer is a corporation, the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the corporation in the year;

(d) the letter D represents

i. where the taxpayer is an individual, the income earned in Québec by the individual for the year;

ii. where the taxpayer is a corporation, the business carried on in Québec by the corporation in the year.

104.1.1. A partnership shall include in computing the partnership's income from a business for a fiscal period, in this section referred to as the "particular fiscal period", the amount determined under the second paragraph, if

(a) an amount in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class is included under section 94 in computing the partnership's income for the particular fiscal period; and

(b) an amount was deducted or is deemed, pursuant to section 104.3, to have been deducted, in respect of the property referred to in subparagraph a, in computing the partnership's income from a business for a fiscal period preceding the particular fiscal period under any of sections 156.1 and 156.1.1.

The amount to which the first paragraph refers that the partnership is required to include in computing its income for the particular fiscal period is equal to the amount determined by the formula

In the formula provided for in the second paragraph,

(a) A is the product obtained by multiplying the aggregate of the amounts determined under any of sections 156.2 to 156.3.1, in respect of the depreciable property for a fiscal period preceding the particular fiscal period, by the quotient obtained by dividing the amount included in computing the partnership's income for the particular fiscal period under section 94 in respect of the property by the total depreciation, within the meaning of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 93, allowed to the partnership in respect of the property;

(b) B is the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the partnership in the particular fiscal period;

(c) C is the business carried on in Québec by the partnership in the particular fiscal period.

1993, c. 16, s. 61; 1995, c. 1, s. 199; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1999, c. 83, s. 32; 2001, c. 53, s. 37.

104.2. For the purposes of sections 104.1 and 104.1.1, the following rules apply:

(a) the computation of income earned in Québec and of income earned in Québec and elsewhere is made in the manner prescribed in the regulations made pursuant to section 22, with the necessary modifications; and

(b) the computation of business carried on in Canada, of business carried on in Québec and of business carried on in Québec and elsewhere by a corporation is made in the manner prescribed by the regulations made pursuant to section 771, with the necessary modifications, and the computation of business carried on in Canada, of business carried on in Québec and of business carried on in Québec and elsewhere by a partnership is made in the manner so prescribed by those regulations, with the necessary modifications, as if the partnership were a corporation and its fiscal period were a taxation year.

104.3. For the purposes of this division, where at any time a taxpayer or a partnership has, in any manner whatever, acquired depreciable property of a prescribed class from a transferor, any of sections 7.6, 99, 439, 444, 450, 455, 462, 527, 565, 617, 624, 630, 688, 690.1 to 690.3 and 832.4 applied in respect of the acquisition, the property was, immediately before its acquisition by the taxpayer or the partnership, a capital property of the transferor and an amount was deducted under section 156.1 or 156.1.1 in respect of the property in computing the income of the transferor for any taxation year or fiscal period, the taxpayer or the partnership, as the case may be, is deemed to have deducted under section 156.1 or 156.1.1, as the case may be, in respect of the property in computing his or its income from a business for the taxation years or the fiscal periods preceding the taxation year or the fiscal period in which the taxpayer or the partnership, as the case may be, acquired the property, an amount equal to the amount so allowed as a deduction under those sections 156.1 and 156.1.1 in respect of the property in computing the income of the transferor.

1989, c. 5, s. 35; 1993, c. 16, s. 63; 1999, c. 83, s. 33.

DIVISION II.2

AMOUNT TO BE INCLUDED IN RESPECT OF THE SUPPLEMENTARY DEDUCTION FOR CERTAIN INVESTMENTS

2000, c. 39, s. 11.

104.4. A taxpayer, who is an individual or a corporation, shall include in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business the amount referred to in the second paragraph, if

(a) an amount was deducted, in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a preceding taxation year under section 156.5; and

(b) an amount in respect of the depreciable property, in this section referred to as the "particular amount", that is an amount of assistance described in section 101 or an amount deducted by the taxpayer in respect of the property under subsection 5 or 6 of section 127 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), is taken into account for the first time for the purpose of determining, at any time in the year, the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property or the undepreciated capital cost of the taxpayer's property of that class.

The amount referred to in the first paragraph that the taxpayer is required to include in computing the taxpayer's income for the year is equal to 25% of the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times (B / C).$$

In the formula provided for in the second paragraph,

(a) A is the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is, for the taxpayer, a particular amount in respect of the depreciable property for the year, and

ii. the amount included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under section 94 in respect of the depreciable property;

(b) B is

i. where the taxpayer is an individual, the aggregate of the individual's income earned in Québec and elsewhere for the year, and

ii. where the taxpayer is a corporation, the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the corporation in the year; and

(c) C is

i. where the taxpayer is an individual, the individual's income earned in Québec for the year, and

ii. where the taxpayer is a corporation, the business carried on in Québec by the corporation in the year.

2000, c. 39, s. 11.

104.5. A partnership shall include in computing the partnership's income from a business for a fiscal period, in this section referred to as the "particular period", the amount referred to in the second paragraph, if

(a) an amount was deducted, in respect of depreciable property of a prescribed class, in computing the partnership's income from a business for a preceding fiscal period under section 156.5.1; and

(b) an amount in respect of the depreciable property, in this section referred to as the "particular amount", that is an amount of assistance described in section 101 or an amount that is deemed to be such an amount of assistance because of the application of section 101.3 or 101.4, is taken into account for the first time for the purpose of determining, at any time in the particular period, the capital cost to the partnership of the property or the undepreciated capital cost of the partnership's property of that class.

The amount to which the first paragraph refers that the partnership is required to include in computing its income for the particular period is equal to 25% of the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B / C.$$

In the formula provided for in the second paragraph,

(a) A is the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is, for the partnership, a particular amount in respect of the depreciable property for the particular period, and

ii. the amount included in computing the partnership's income for the particular period under section 94 in respect of the depreciable property;

(b) B is the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the partnership in the particular period; and

(c) C is the business carried on in Québec by the partnership in the particular period.

2000, c. 39, s. 11.

104.6. For the purposes of sections 104.4 and 104.5, the following rules apply:

(b) the computation of business carried on in Canada, of business carried on in Québec and of business carried on in Québec and elsewhere by a corporation is made in the manner prescribed by the regulations made pursuant to subsection 2 of section 771, with the necessary modifications, and the computation of business carried on in Canada, of business carried on in Québec and of business carried on in Québec and elsewhere by a partnership is made in the manner so prescribed by those regulations, with the necessary modifications, as if the partnership were a corporation and its fiscal period were a taxation year.

DIVISION IV

BENEFITS CONFERRED ON A SHAREHOLDER

1972, c. 23; 1990, c. 59, s. 64.

111. Where, at any time, a benefit is conferred by a corporation on a shareholder of the corporation, on a member of a partnership that is a shareholder of the corporation or on a contemplated shareholder of the corporation, the amount or value of the benefit must be included in computing the income of the shareholder, member or contemplated shareholder, as the case may be, for its taxation year that includes the time.

111.1. For the purposes of section 111, the value of the benefit where an obligation issued by a debtor is settled or extinguished at any time is deemed to be the forgiven amount at that time in respect of the obligation.

In the first paragraph, the "forgiven amount" at any time in respect of an obligation issued by a debtor has the meaning that would be assigned by section 485 if

(a) the obligation were a commercial obligation, within the meaning assigned by section 485, issued by the debtor;

(b) no amount included in computing income, otherwise than pursuant to section 37, because of the obligation being settled or extinguished at that time were taken into account;

(c) the definition of "forgiven amount" in section 485 were read without reference to paragraphs f and h; and

(d) section 485.3 were read without reference to subparagraphs b and r of the first paragraph of that section.

1989, c. 77, s. 18; 1996, c. 39, s. 38.

112. Section 111 does not apply in respect of a benefit conferred by a corporation to the extent that the amount or value of the benefit is deemed to be a dividend under Chapter III of Title IX or if it arises out of,

(a) where the corporation is resident in Canada at the time referred to in section 111:

i. the reduction of the paid-up capital of the corporation, ii. the acquisition, cancellation or redemption by the corporation of shares of its capital stock,

iii. the winding-up, discontinuance or reorganization of the corporation's business, or

iv. a transaction to which Chapter VII or VIII of Title IX applies,

(a.1) where the corporation is not resident in Canada at the time referred to in section 111:

i. a distribution to which section 578.4 applies,

ii. a reduction of the paid-up capital of the corporation to which subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of paragraph j of section 257 would apply if that subparagraph 2 were read without reference to "after 31 December 1971 and before 20 August 2011, or" or to which subparagraph ii of that paragraph j applies,

iii. the acquisition, cancellation or redemption by the corporation of shares of its capital stock, or

iv. the winding-up, or liquidation and dissolution, of the corporation,

(b) the payment of a dividend or a stock dividend;

(c) the conferring, on all owners of common shares of the capital stock of the corporation at the time referred to in section 111, of a right in respect of each common share, that is identical to every other right conferred at that time in respect of each other such share, to acquire additional shares of the capital stock of the corporation; or

(d) a transaction described in any of paragraphs d to f of subsection 2 of section 504.

For the purposes of subparagraph c of the first paragraph,

(a) where the voting rights attached to a particular class of common shares of the capital stock of a corporation differ from the voting rights attached to another class of common shares of the capital stock of the corporation and there are no other differences between the terms and conditions of the classes of shares that could cause the fair market value of a share of the particular class to differ materially from the fair market value of a share of the other class, the common shares of the particular class are deemed to be identical to those of the other class; and

(b) rights are not considered identical if the cost of acquiring the rights differs.

112.1. Notwithstanding sections 111 and 112, a person shall include in computing his income for a taxation year the fair market value of a stock dividend paid to him by a corporation in the year, except to the extent that it is otherwise included in computing that person's income under the first paragraph of section 497, if it may reasonably be considered that one of the purposes of such payment was to significantly alter the value of the interest of any specified shareholder of the corporation.

112.3. To the extent that the cost to a person of purchasing a property or service or an amount payable by a person for the purpose of leasing property is taken into account in determining an amount required under this division to be included in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year, other than such an amount that is the value of a benefit determined under section 117, that cost or that amount payable, as the case may be, shall include any tax that was payable by the person in respect of the property or service or that would have been so payable if the person were not exempt from the payment of that tax because of the nature of the person or the use to which the property or service is to be put.

112.3.1. For the purposes of this section and sections 111 and 112, the following rules apply:

(a) a contemplated shareholder of a corporation is

i. a person or partnership on whom a benefit is conferred by the corporation in contemplation of the person or partnership becoming a shareholder of the corporation, or

ii. a member of a partnership on whom a benefit is conferred by the corporation in contemplation of the partnership becoming a shareholder of the corporation;

(b) a person or partnership that is (or is deemed by this subparagraph to be) a member of a particular partnership that is a member of another partnership is deemed to be a member of the other partnership;

(c) a benefit conferred by a corporation on an individual is a benefit conferred on a shareholder of the corporation, a member of a partnership that is a shareholder of the corporation or a contemplated shareholder of the corporation–except to the extent that the amount or value of the benefit is included in computing the income of the individual or any other person–if the individual is an individual, other than an excluded trust in respect of the corporation, who does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, the shareholder, member of the partnership or contemplated shareholder, as the case may be; and

(d) (subparagraph repealed).

For the purposes of subparagraph c of the first paragraph, an excluded trust in respect of a corporation is a trust in which no individual (other than an excluded trust in respect of the corporation) who does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, a shareholder of the corporation, a member of a partnership that is a shareholder of the corporation or a contemplated shareholder of the corporation, is beneficially interested.

112.3.2. If a corporation that is not resident in Canada (in this section referred to as the "original corporation") and that is governed by the laws of a foreign jurisdiction undergoes a division under those laws that results in all or part of its property and liabilities becoming the property and liabilities of one or more other corporations not resident in Canada (each of which is referred to in this section as a "new corporation") and, as a consequence of the division, a shareholder of the original corporation acquires one or more shares (in this section referred to as "new shares") of the capital stock of a new corporation at a particular time, the following rules apply:

(a) except to the extent that any of subparagraphs i to iii of subparagraph a.1 of the first paragraph of section 112 or subparagraph b of that first paragraph applies, without reference to this section, to the acquisition of the new shares

i. in the case where, for each class of shares of the capital stock of the original corporation of which shares are held by the shareholder immediately before the division, new shares are received at the particular time by shareholders of that class on a pro rata basis in respect of all the shares (in this section referred to as the "original shares") of that class, the following presumptions apply:

(1) at the particular time, the original corporation is deemed to have distributed, and the shareholder is deemed to have received, as a dividend in kind in respect of the original shares, the new shares acquired by the shareholder at that time, and

(2) the amount of the dividend in kind received by the shareholder in respect of an original share is deemed to be equal to the fair market value, immediately after the particular time, of the new shares acquired by the shareholder at the particular time in respect of the original share, and

ii. in any case where subparagraph i does not apply, the original corporation is deemed, at the particular time, to have conferred a benefit on the shareholder equal to the fair market value, at that time, of the new shares acquired by the shareholder as a consequence of the division;

(b) any gain or loss of the original corporation from a distribution of the new shares as a consequence of the division is deemed to be nil; and

(c) each property of the original corporation that becomes at any time property of the new corporation as a consequence of the division is deemed

i. to have been disposed of by the original corporation immediately before that time for proceeds of disposition equal to the property's fair market value, and

ii. to have been acquired by the new corporation at that time at a cost equal to the proceeds of disposition determined in accordance with subparagraph i.

2021, c. 18, s. 26.

113. Where a person or a partnership is a shareholder of a corporation, is a person or a partnership that does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, a shareholder of a corporation, or is a member of a partnership, or a beneficiary of a trust, that is a shareholder of a corporation and the person or partnership has in a taxation year received a loan from or become indebted to the corporation, any other corporation related to the corporation or a partnership of which the corporation or a corporation related to the corporation is a member, the amount of the loan or indebtedness (other than a pertinent loan or indebtedness) must be included in computing the income for the year of the person or partnership.

113.1. For the purposes of section 113 and subject to section 127.19, "pertinent loan or indebtedness" means a loan received, or an indebtedness incurred, at any time, by a corporation not resident in Canada (in this section referred to as the "subject corporation"), or by a partnership of which the subject corporation is, at that time, a member, if the loan or indebtedness is an amount owing to a corporation resident in Canada (in this section and sections 113.2 and 113.3 referred to as the "Canadian corporation") or to a qualifying Canadian partnership in respect of a Canadian corporation and if

(a) section 113 would, in the absence of this section, apply to the amount owing;

(b) the amount becomes owing after 28 March 2012;

(c) at that time, the Canadian corporation is controlled by

i. the subject corporation, or

ii. a corporation not resident in Canada that does not deal at arm's length with the subject corporation; and

(d) a valid election has been made, in relation to the amount owing, under subparagraph i or ii of paragraph d of subsection 2.11 of section 15 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) by

i. where the amount is owing to the Canadian corporation, the Canadian corporation and a corporation not resident in Canada that controls the Canadian corporation, or

ii. where the amount is owing to the qualifying Canadian partnership, all the members of the qualifying Canadian partnership and a corporation not resident in Canada that controls the Canadian corporation.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subparagraph i or ii of paragraph d of subsection 2.11 of section 15 of the Income Tax Act.

2017, c. 29, s. 36.

113.2. Where an election referred to in subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 113.1 is, as a consequence of the application of subsection 2.12 of section 15 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), deemed to have been made on or before the date on which it had to be made, the Canadian corporation that is one of the electors incurs a penalty of $100 for each month or part of a month during the period beginning on that date and ending on the day on which the election was actually made.

2017, c. 29, s. 36.

113.3. For the purposes of this section and section 113.1:

(a) "qualifying Canadian partnership", at any time, in respect of a Canadian corporation, means a partnership each member of which is, at that time, the Canadian corporation or another corporation resident in Canada to which the Canadian corporation is, at that time, related; and

(b) any person who is (or is deemed under this paragraph to be) a member of a partnership that is a member of a particular partnership is deemed to be a member of the particular partnership.

2017, c. 29, s. 36.

113.4. Where, at a particular time, a person or partnership (in this section and sections 113.5 to 113.7 referred to as the "intended borrower") owes an amount as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount (in this section and sections 113.5 to 113.7 referred to as the "shareholder debt") to another person or partnership (in this section and sections 113.5 to 113.7 referred to as the "immediate funder") and the conditions of the second paragraph are met at that time, the intended borrower is, for the purposes of this division and sections 487.1 to 487.5.4, deemed to receive a loan at that time from each particular ultimate funder to whom the second paragraph refers, the amount of which is equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$(A \times B / C) - (D - E).$$

The conditions referred to in the first paragraph are as follows:

(a) in the absence of this section, section 113 would not apply in respect of the shareholder debt;

(b) at the particular time, a funder, in respect of a particular funding arrangement,

i. owes an amount to a person or partnership as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount that is not a debt or other obligation in respect of which section 113 applies, or would apply if it were not a pertinent loan or indebtedness within the meaning of section 113.1, and that is a debt or other obligation in respect of which either of the following conditions is met:

(1) recourse in respect of the debt or other obligation is limited in whole or in part, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to a funding arrangement, or

(2) it can reasonably be concluded that all or a portion of the particular funding arrangement was entered into or was permitted to remain owing because all or a portion of the debt or other obligation was entered into or was permitted to remain owing, or the funder anticipated that all or a portion of the debt or other obligation would become owing or remain owing, or

ii. has a specified right in respect of a particular property that was granted directly or indirectly by a person or partnership and

(1) the existence of the specified right is required under the terms and conditions of the particular funding arrangement, or

(2) it can reasonably be concluded that all or a portion of the particular funding arrangement was entered into, or was permitted to remain in effect, because the specified right was granted or the funder anticipated that it would be granted; and

(c) at the particular time, one or more funders is an ultimate funder.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the lesser of

i. the amount owing as or on account of the shareholder debt at the particular time, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is, at the particular time,

(1) an amount owing as or on account of a debt or other obligation that is owed by a funder (other than an ultimate funder) to an ultimate funder under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt, or

(2) the fair market value of a particular property in respect of which an ultimate funder has granted a specified right to a funder (other than an ultimate funder) under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt;

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is, at the particular time,

i. an amount owing as or on account of a debt or other obligation that is owed by a funder (other than an ultimate funder) to the particular ultimate funder under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt, or

ii. the fair market value of a particular property in respect of which the particular ultimate funder has granted a specified right to a funder (other than an ultimate funder) under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt;

(c) C is the aggregate determined under subparagraph ii of subparagraph a;

(d) D is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is, in respect of the shareholder debt, an amount that the intended borrower has been deemed under this section to have received from the particular ultimate funder as a loan at any time before the particular time; and

(e) E is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a repayment deemed, under section 113.5 or 113.6, to have occurred before the particular time, in respect of a loan that has been deemed to have been received from the particular ultimate funder and that is referred to in subparagraph d.

2020, c. 16, s. 36.

113.5. Where section 113.4 has applied, before a particular time, in respect of a shareholder debt to deem one or more loans to have been received by an intended borrower from a particular ultimate funder and, at that time, any of the conditions of the second paragraph is met, the intended borrower is, for the purposes of this division and sections 177 and 487.1 to 487.5.4, deemed to repay at that time, in whole or in part, one or more of the deemed loans, and the total amount of the deemed repayments is determined by the formula

$$A - B - (C \times D / E).$$

The conditions to which the first paragraph refers are as follows:

(a) an amount owing in respect of the shareholder debt is repaid in whole or in part;

(b) an amount owing as or on account of a debt or other obligation that is owed by a funder (other than an ultimate funder) to the particular ultimate funder under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt is repaid in whole or in part; and

(c) either

i. there is a decrease in the fair market value of a property in respect of which a specified right was granted by the particular ultimate funder to a funder (other than an ultimate funder) under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt, or

ii. a right described in subparagraph i is extinguished.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of a loan deemed, under section 113.4, to have been received, at any time before the particular time, by an intended borrower from the particular ultimate funder in respect of the shareholder debt;

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts deemed under this section to have been repaid, at any time before the particular time, by the intended borrower in respect of a loan referred to in subparagraph a;

(c) C is the lesser of

i. the amount owing as or on account of the shareholder debt, immediately after the particular time, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is, immediately after the particular time,

(1) an amount owing as or on account of a debt or other obligation that is owed by a funder (other than an ultimate funder) to an ultimate funder under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt, or

(2) the fair market value of a particular property in respect of which an ultimate funder has granted a specified right to a funder (other than an ultimate funder) under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt;

(d) D is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is, immediately after the particular time,

i. an amount owing as or on account of a debt or other obligation that is owed by a funder (other than an ultimate funder) to the particular ultimate funder under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt, or

ii. the fair market value of a particular property in respect of which the particular ultimate funder has granted a specified right to a funder (other than an ultimate funder) under a funding arrangement in respect of the shareholder debt; and

(e) E is the aggregate determined under subparagraph ii of subparagraph c.

2020, c. 16, s. 36.

113.6. Where the amount determined, at a particular time, by the formula in the first paragraph of section 113.4 would, but for section 7.5, be less than zero, the intended borrower is, for the purposes of this division and sections 177 and 487.1 to 487.5.4, deemed to repay, in whole or in part, one or more of the loans deemed under section 113.4 to have been received, before that time, by the intended borrower from the particular ultimate funder and the total amount of the deemed repayments is equal to the absolute value of that negative amount.

2020, c. 16, s. 36.

113.7. In this section and sections 113.4 to 113.6,

"funder", in respect of a funding arrangement, means

(a) if the funding arrangement is described in paragraph a of the definition of that expression, the immediate funder;

(b) if the funding arrangement is described in paragraph b of the definition of that expression, the creditor in respect of the debt or other obligation or the grantor of the specified right, as the case may be; or

(c) a person or partnership who does not deal at arm's length with a person or partnership referred to in paragraph a or b;

"funding arrangement" means

(a) the shareholder debt; and

(b) each debt or other obligation or specified right, owing by or granted to a funder, in respect of a particular funding arrangement, if the conditions of subparagraph i or ii, as the case may be, of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 113.4 are met in respect of the debt or other obligation or specified right;

"specified right" has the meaning assigned by subparagraph b.5.1 of the first paragraph of section 172, with the necessary modifications;

"ultimate funder" means a funder whose substitution to the immediate funder as creditor of the shareholder debt would result in the application of section 113 in respect of the shareholder debt.

2020, c. 16, s. 36.

114. Section 113 does not apply if the loan was made or the indebtedness arose in the ordinary course of the lender's or creditor's business, and bona fide arrangements were made, at the time the loan was made or the indebtedness arose, for repayment thereof within a reasonable time and, in the case of a loan, if the lending of money was part of the lender's ordinary business.

Section 113 does not apply if the conditions set out in the third paragraph are met and the loan was made or the indebtedness arose

(a) in respect of a person who is an employee of the lender or creditor to enable or assist the person to acquire a motor vehicle to be used by him in the performance of his duties;

(a.1*)* in respect of a person who is an individual and an employee of the lender or creditor but not a specified employee of the lender or creditor;

(b) where the lender or creditor is a corporation, in respect of a person who is an employee of the lender or creditor or of another corporation that is related to the lender or creditor, to enable or assist the person to acquire shares, described in any of the following subparagraphs, to be held by the person for the person's own benefit:

i. a previously unissued fully paid share of the capital stock of the lender or creditor, which share is acquired from the lender or creditor, or

ii. a previously unissued fully paid share of the capital stock of a corporation related to the lender or creditor, which share is acquired from the related corporation,

iii. (subparagraph repealed);

(c) in respect of a person who is an employee of the lender or creditor or who is the spouse of an employee of the lender or creditor to enable or assist the person to acquire a dwelling or a share of the capital stock of a housing cooperative acquired for the sole purpose of acquiring the right to inhabit a dwelling owned by the cooperative, where the dwelling is for the person's habitation.

The conditions to which the second paragraph refers are as follows:

(a) at the time the loan was made or the indebtedness arose, bona fide arrangements were made for repayment of the loan or debt within a reasonable time; and

(b) it is reasonable to conclude that the employee or the employee's spouse received the loan, or became indebted, because of the employee's employment and not because of any person's share-holdings.

1972, c. 23, s. 103; 1978, c. 26, s. 28; 1979, c. 18, s. 10; 1982, c. 5, s. 35; 1984, c. 15, s. 25; 1988, c. 4, s. 26; 1990, c. 59, s. 67; 1993, c. 16, s. 69; 1994, c. 22, s. 81; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 85, s. 330; 1999, c. 83, s. 34; 2000, c. 5, s. 38.

114.1. Section 113 does not apply to a loan made or a debt that arose in respect of a trust where

(a) the lender or creditor is a private corporation;

(b) the corporation is the settlor and sole beneficiary of the trust;

(c) the sole purpose of the trust is to facilitate the purchase and sale of the shares of the corporation, or of another corporation related to the corporation, for an amount equal to their fair market value at the time of the purchase or sale, as the case may be, from or to the employees of the corporation or of the related corporation, other than employees who are specified employees of the corporation or of another corporation related to the corporation, as the case may be; and

(d) at the time the loan was made or the indebtedness arose, bona fide arrangements were made for repayment of the loan or debt within a reasonable time.

2000, c. 5, s. 39.

115. Section 113 does not apply if the loan or indebtedness was repaid within one year from the end of the taxation year of the lender or creditor in which it was made or incurred and it is established that the repayment was not made as part of a series of transactions and repayments.

1972, c. 23, s. 104; 1978, c. 26, s. 28; 1984, c. 15, s. 25; 1994, c. 22, s. 82.

116. Section 113 does not apply where the loan was made to

(a) a corporation resident in Canada or a partnership each member of which is such a corporation;

(b) a person not resident in Canada, if the lender is also such a person; or

(c) a person that does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, a shareholder of a corporation, if that person is a foreign affiliate of the corporation or a foreign affiliate of a person resident in Canada that does not deal at arm's length with that corporation.

In addition, section 113 does not apply where the debtor is a person or partnership described in subparagraph a or c of the first paragraph or a person not resident in Canada, if the creditor is also such a person.

116.1. For the purposes of this division, an individual who is an employee of a partnership is deemed to be a specified employee of the partnership where the individual is a specified shareholder of one or more corporations that, in total, are entitled, directly or indirectly, to a share of any income or loss of the partnership, which share is not less than 10% of the income or loss.

117. If a corporation has made, in the year, an automobile available to a shareholder, or a person related to the shareholder, the value of the benefit to be included in computing the shareholder's income for the year under section 111 is, except when an amount has been included in computing the shareholder's income under section 41 in respect of the automobile, computed on the assumption that Divisions I and II of Chapter II of Title II, except section 41.0.2, apply in respect of that benefit, with the necessary modifications, and by replacing any reference to an employer by a reference to the corporation.

1972, c. 23, s. 106; 1984, c. 15, s. 25; 1986, c. 15, s. 48; 1995, c. 49, s. 41; 1995, c. 63, s. 261; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2021, c. 14, s. 27.

118. Sections 111 to 117 apply to the computing, for the purposes of this Part, of the income of a shareholder, of a person or of a partnership, whether or not the corporation or the creditor, as the case may be, has resided or carried on business in Canada.

119. An amount paid as interest or a dividend by a corporation resident in Canada to a taxpayer in respect of an income bond or income debenture is deemed to have been paid by the corporation and received by the taxpayer as a dividend on a share of the capital stock of the corporation, unless the corporation is entitled to deduct the amount in computing its income.

The same applies if the corporation is not resident in Canada unless the amount so paid is, under the laws of the country in which that corporation resides, deductible in computing the amount for the year on which the corporation is liable to pay income tax to the government of that country.

119.1. For the purposes of section 111, a person or a partnership referred to in section 487.3 is deemed to receive the benefit provided for in the said section 487.3 as a shareholder.

1978, c. 26, s. 30; 1983, c. 44, s. 21, 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

DIVISION IV.1

DEVELOPMENT BONDS

1982, c. 5, s. 36.

119.2. In this division,

"development bond" at any time means an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation issued

(a) after 31 December 1981 and before 1 January 1988 by a Canadian-controlled private corporation and in respect of which a joint election was made within 90 days after the later of its issue date and 30 March 1983;

(b) after 25 February 1992 by a Canadian-controlled private corporation and in respect of which a joint election was made within 90 days after its issue date; or

(c) by a Canadian-controlled private corporation if

i. it is reasonable to consider that the corporation and the holder of the obligation intended that this division apply to the obligation, having regard to such factors as may be relevant, including the rate of interest stipulated under the terms of the obligation and the manner in which the corporation and the holder have treated the obligation for the purposes of this Part, and

ii. the holder files with the Minister a joint election in respect of the obligation within 90 days from the date of notification by the Minister that a joint election in respect of the obligation has not been filed;

"joint election" in respect of any obligation means an election that is made in prescribed form, containing prescribed information, jointly by the issuer corporation of the obligation and the person who is the holder of the obligation at the time of the election, that is filed with the Minister by the holder and in which the holder and the issuer corporation elect that this division apply to the obligation;

"qualified corporation" has the meaning assigned by the regulations;

"qualifying debt obligation" of a corporation at a particular time means an obligation that is a bond, debenture, bill, note, hypothecary claim, mortgage or similar obligation issued between 25 February 1992 and

1 January 1995 and not more than five years before the particular time, the principal amount of which is not less than $10,000 nor more than $500,000, that is issued for a term of not more than five years and, except in the event of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the obligation, not less than one year, if the obligation is issued by the corporation

(a) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, its creditors that has been approved by a competent court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter B-3);

(b) at a time when all or substantially all of its assets are under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy; or

(c) in whole or in part, directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for a debt held by a person with whom the corporation was dealing at arm's length at a time when, by reason of financial difficulties, the corporation

i. is in default on that debt, or

ii. could reasonably be expected to default on that debt.

1982, c. 5, s. 36; 1984, c. 15, s. 26; 1985, c. 25, s. 28; 1987, c. 67, s. 28; 1989, c. 5, s. 36; 1994, c. 22, s. 83; 1995, c. 49, s. 42; 1995, c. 63, s. 27; 1996, c. 39, s. 39; 1997, c. 3, s. 19; 2000, c. 5, s. 41; 2005, c. 1, s. 51.

119.3. Where a corporation pays an amount to a taxpayer as interest on a development bond it has issued, that amount is deemed to have been received by the taxpayer as a taxable dividend.

119.4. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, where a corporation has issued an obligation that is at any time a development bond, the following rules apply:

(a) no deduction may be made in computing its income for a taxation year in respect of an amount paid or payable as interest on that bond, depending on the method regularly followed by the corporation in computing its income for a period that includes that time;

(b) any amount paid by the corporation as interest on the bond, to the extent that it is not allowed as a deduction by virtue of paragraph a is, when paid, deemed to have been paid as a taxable dividend.

119.5. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, except for the purposes of subparagraph i of paragraph d.2 of subsection 1 of section 771 and sections 771.2.1.2, 771.8.3 and 771.8.5, the taxable income of a corporation that has issued an obligation that is at any time a development bond is deemed, for a taxation year that includes a period throughout which the obligation was a development bond, to be an amount equal to the aggregate of its taxable income otherwise determined for the year and the amount paid or payable, depending on the method regularly followed in computing the income of the corporation, as interest on the obligation in respect of that period, at a time when

(a) the corporation was not a qualified corporation; or

(b) (paragraph repealed);

(c) all or substantially all of the proceeds from the issue of the obligation cannot reasonably be regarded as having been used by the corporation or a corporation with which it was not dealing at arm's length in the financing of a qualified business carried on in Canada immediately before the time of the issue of the obligation.

1982, c. 5, s. 36; 1984, c. 15, s. 27; 1987, c. 67, s. 30; 1989, c. 5, s. 37; 1992, c. 1, s. 25; 1994, c. 22, s. 84; 1995, c. 63, s. 28; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 85, s. 50; 2000, c. 39, s. 12; 2005, c. 38, s. 61.

119.6. (Repealed).

1982, c. 5, s. 36; 1994, c. 22, s. 85.

119.7. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, an amount paid or payable by a taxpayer pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest on borrowed money used for the purpose of acquiring a development bond is deemed to be an amount paid or payable, as the case may be, on borrowed money used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property.

119.8. Where the Minister establishes that a corporation has, knowingly or under circumstances amounting to gross negligence, made a false declaration in a joint election in respect of an obligation it has issued, the reference in section 119.5 to "the amount paid" shall be read, in respect of that obligation, as a reference to "three times the amount paid".

119.9. Where at any particular time a corporation makes a joint election in respect of an obligation it has issued and at or before that time the corporation or a person or partnership described in the second paragraph made a joint election in respect of any development bond or small business bond, as the case may be, the corporation, for the purposes of this division, is deemed not to be a qualified corporation in respect of the obligation.

The person or partnership referred to in the first paragraph is a corporation associated with the corporation at the time the obligation was issued, an individual who controls or is a member of a related group that controls the corporation, or a partnership any member of which, who is a majority-interest partner of the partnership, controls or is a member of a related group that controls the corporation.

1982, c. 5, s. 36; 1989, c. 5, s. 38; 1994, c. 22, s. 86; 1995, c. 63, s. 261; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

119.10. (Repealed).

1982, c. 5, s. 36; 1994, c. 22, s. 87.

119.11. Section 119.9 does not apply to an obligation issued at any time where the issue price of the obligation does not exceed the amount by which $500,000 exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the principal amount outstanding, immediately after that time, of

(a) another development bond issued by the corporation or a corporation associated with the corporation; or

(b) a small business bond issued by an individual who controls or is a member of a related group that controls the corporation, or by a partnership any member of which, who is a majority-interest partner of the partnership, controls or is a member of a related group that controls the corporation.

1984, c. 15, s. 28; 1987, c. 67, s. 31; 1989, c. 5, s. 39; 1994, c. 22, s. 88; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

119.12. (Repealed).

DIVISION IV.2

SMALL BUSINESS BOND

1984, c. 15, s. 28.

119.15. In this division,

"eligible issuer" at any time means

(a) an individual, other than a trust, who is resident in Canada and who

i. has not made a joint election before that time in respect of a small business bond,

ii. is not a majority-interest partner of a partnership that has made a joint election before that time in respect of a small business bond, and

iii. neither controls nor is a member of a related group that controls a corporation that has made a joint election before that time in respect of a small business development bond, or a corporation that is associated with such a corporation; or

(b) a partnership

i. each member of which is an individual, other than a trust, who is resident in Canada,

ii. each majority-interest partner, if any, of which is an eligible issuer, and

iii. that has not made a joint election before that time in respect of a small business bond;

"joint election" in respect of any obligation means an election that is made in prescribed form, containing prescribed information, jointly by the issuer of the obligation and the person who is the holder of the obligation at the time of the election, that is filed with the Minister by the holder and in which the holder and the issuer elect that this division apply to the obligation;

"qualifying debt obligation" of an individual or a partnership at a particular time means an obligation that is a bill, note, hypothecary claim, mortgage or similar obligation issued between 25 February 1992 and 1 January 1995 and not more than five years before the particular time, the principal amount of which is not less than $10,000 nor more than $500,000, that is issued for a term of not more than five years and, except in the event of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the obligation, not less than one year, if the proceeds from the issue of the obligation are used in Canada in a business the individual or partnership carried on immediately before the time of issue, and if the obligation is issued by the individual or partnership

(a) as part of a proposal to, or an arrangement with, his or its creditors that has been approved by a competent court under the Bankruptcy and Insolvency Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter B-3);

(b) at a time when all or substantially all of his or its assets are under the control of a receiver, receiver-manager, sequestrator or trustee in bankruptcy; or

(c) in whole or in part, directly or indirectly in exchange or substitution for a debt incurred in the course of the business of the individual or partnership and held by a person with whom the individual or each member of the partnership was dealing at arm's length, at a time when, because of financial difficulty, the individual or partnership

i. is in default on that debt, or

ii. could reasonably be expected to default on that debt;

"small business bond" at any time means an obligation that is at that time a qualifying debt obligation issued by

(a) an individual or a partnership in respect of which a joint election was made within 90 days after its issue date; or

(b) an individual or a partnership if

i. it is reasonable to consider that the holder of the obligation and the individual or partnership, as the case may be, intended that this division apply to the obligation, having regard to such factors as may be relevant, including the rate of interest stipulated under the terms of the obligation and the manner in which the holder and the individual or partnership, as the case may be, have treated the obligation for the purposes of this Part, and

ii. the holder files with the Minister a joint election in respect of the obligation within 90 days from the date of notification by the Minister that a joint election in respect of the obligation has not been filed in accordance with paragraph a.

1984, c. 15, s. 28; 1985, c. 25, s. 29; 1987, c. 67, s. 32; 1994, c. 22, s. 90; 1995, c. 49, s. 43; 1996, c. 39, s. 40; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 41; 2005, c. 1, s. 52.

119.16. Where an individual or partnership pays any amount to a taxpayer as or on account of interest in respect of a small business bond, the amount is deemed to have been received by the taxpayer as a taxable dividend from a taxable Canadian corporation.

119.17. Where an individual or partnership has issued an obligation that is at any time a small business bond, notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, in computing his or its income for a taxation year, no deduction may be made in respect of any amount paid or payable as or on account of interest on the bond, depending on the method regularly followed by the individual or the partnership in computing his or its income, for a period that includes that time.

119.18. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, where an issuer that is an individual or partnership has issued an obligation that is at any time a small business bond, the issuer shall add to his or its tax otherwise payable for a taxation year under this Part an amount equal to 24% of the amount of interest paid or payable in respect of the obligation, depending on the method regularly followed by the issuer in computing his or its income, in respect of a period of the taxation year throughout which the obligation was a small business bond and throughout which

(a) the issuer is not an eligible issuer, or

(b) all or substantially all of the proceeds from the issue of the obligation are not used by the eligible issuer in the financing of a qualified business carried on by him or it in Canada immediately before the time of the issue of the obligation.

1984, c. 15, s. 28; 1987, c. 67, s. 34; 1989, c. 5, s. 40; 1994, c. 22, s. 91; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

119.19. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, an amount paid or payable by a taxpayer pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest on borrowed money used for the purpose of acquiring a small business bond is deemed to be an amount paid or payable, on borrowed money used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property.

119.20. Where the Minister establishes that an individual or partnership has, knowingly or under circumstances amounting to gross negligence, made a false declaration in a joint election in respect of an obligation that was issued by the individual or partnership, the reference in section 119.18 to "24%" shall be read, in respect of that obligation, as a reference to "72%".

1984, c. 15, s. 28; 1987, c. 67, s. 35; 1994, c. 22, s. 92; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

119.21. For the purposes of section 119.18, where the issuer is a partnership, the reference therein to "the issuer shall add" shall be read as a reference to "each member of the partnership shall add", and each member shall add to his tax otherwise payable under this Part for the taxation year that includes the period described in section 119.18 the amount that can reasonably be regarded as his share of the amount determined under that section 119.18 in respect of the partnership.

119.22. Where, but for subparagraphs i to iii of paragraph a and subparagraph ii of paragraph b of the definition of "eligible issuer" in section 119.15, an individual or a partnership would be an eligible issuer, the individual or partnership is deemed to be an eligible issuer in respect of a small business bond at any time where the issue price of the bond does not exceed the amount by which $500,000 exceeds the aggregate determined in the second paragraph.

The aggregate referred to in the first paragraph is

(a) where the issuer is an individual, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the principal amount outstanding immediately after that time in respect of

i. another obligation that is a small business bond issued by the individual, or by a partnership of which the individual is a majority-interest partner, or

ii. a development bond issued by a corporation that is controlled by the individual or by a related group of which the individual is a member, or by a corporation that is associated with such a corporation; or

(b) where the issuer is a partnership, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the principal amount outstanding immediately after that time in respect of

i. another obligation that is a small business bond issued by

(1) the partnership,

(2) an individual who is a majority-interest partner of the partnership, or

(3) a partnership of which the individual referred to in subparagraph 2 is a majority-interest partner, or

ii. a development bond issued by a corporation that is controlled by the individual referred to in subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i or by a related group of which the individual is a member, or by a corporation that is associated with such a corporation.

119.23. (Repealed).

1984, c. 15, s. 28; 1994, c. 22, s. 93.

119.24. (Repealed).

1984, c. 15, s. 28; 1994, c. 22, s. 93.

DIVISION V

AMOUNTS INCLUDING CAPITAL AND INTEREST

1972, c. 23; 1990, c. 59, s. 68.

120. Except in the cases in which section 123 applies, where, under a contract or other arrangement, an amount can reasonably be regarded as being in part an amount of capital and in part interest or other amount of an income nature, the following rules apply:

(a) the part of the amount that can reasonably be regarded as interest is, irrespective of when the contract or arrangement was made or the form or legal effect thereof, deemed to be interest on a debt obligation held by the person to whom the amount is paid or payable;

(b) the part of the amount that can reasonably be regarded as an amount of an income nature, other than interest, shall, irrespective of when the contract or arrangement was made or the form or legal effect thereof, be included in computing the income of the taxpayer to whom the amount is paid or payable for the taxation year in which the amount is received or has become due, to the extent that it has not otherwise been included in computing the taxpayer's income.

1972, c. 23, s. 109; 1984, c. 15, s. 29; 1990, c. 59, s. 69.

121. Section 120 does not apply to any amount received by a taxpayer

(a) as an annuity payment;

(b) in satisfaction of his rights under an annuity contract.

1972, c. 23, s. 110; 1978, c. 26, s. 31; 1984, c. 15, s. 30.

122. For the purposes of sections 123 to 125, "obligation" means a bond, debenture, bill, hypothecary claim, mortgage or other similar obligation issued by a person exempt from tax under sections 980 to 998, a person not resident in Canada who is not carrying on business in Canada, or a government, municipality or public body performing a function of government.

123. Where an obligation is issued at a discount, the first owner of the obligation who is resident in Canada, who is not a person exempt, because of sections 980 to 998, from tax on part or on all of the person's taxable income and of whom the obligation is a capital property shall include, in computing his income for the taxation year in which he has become the owner of the obligation, the amount by which the principal amount of the obligation exceeds the amount for which the obligation was issued,

(a) in the case of an obligation issued after 20 December 1960 and before 19 June 1971, if the stipulated rate of interest payable on the obligation is less than 5% annually and if the yield from the obligation, expressed in terms of an annual rate on the amount for which the obligation was issued, exceeds such annual rate of interest by more than one-third; or

(b) in the case of an obligation issued after 18 June 1971, other than an obligation that is a prescribed debt obligation for the purposes of section 92.5, if the yield from the obligation, expressed in the same manner, exceeds by more than one-third the stipulated rate of interest payable on such obligation.

1972, c. 23, s. 112; 1973, c. 17, s. 11; 1994, c. 22, s. 94; 1995, c. 49, s. 44; 1996, c. 39, s. 42.

124. For the purposes of section 123, the stipulated rate of interest means the annual percentage rate payable on the principal amount of the obligation if no amount is payable as principal before the maturity of such obligation or on the amount outstanding as principal in other cases.

1972, c. 23, s. 113; 1996, c. 39, s. 43.

125. For the purposes of section 123, the annual yield rate must, if the terms of the obligations or any related contract would empower its holder to require payment of the principal amount of the obligation or the amount outstanding as principal before such obligation comes to maturity, be calculated on the basis of the yield that produces the highest annual rate obtainable either on the maturity of the obligation or conditional upon the exercise of the right mentioned in this section.

125.0.1. For the purposes of this Part and subject to section 125.0.3, where at any time in a taxpayer's taxation year an interest in an indexed debt obligation is held by the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) an amount determined in prescribed manner is deemed to be received or receivable by the taxpayer in the year as interest in respect of the obligation; and

(b) an amount determined in prescribed manner is deemed to be paid or payable in respect of the year by the taxpayer as interest pursuant to a legal obligation of the taxpayer to pay interest on borrowed money used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property.

125.0.2. For the purposes of this Part, where at any time in a taxation year of a taxpayer an indexed debt obligation is an obligation of the taxpayer,

(a) an amount determined in prescribed manner is deemed to be payable in respect of the year by the taxpayer as interest in respect of the obligation; and

(b) an amount determined in prescribed manner is deemed to be received or receivable by the taxpayer in the year as interest in respect of the obligation.

Where the taxpayer pays or credits an amount in respect of an amount determined under subparagraph a of the first paragraph in respect of an indexed debt obligation, the payment or crediting is deemed to be a payment or crediting of interest on the obligation.

1994, c. 22, s. 95.

125.0.3. Section 125.0.1 does not apply to a taxpayer in respect of an indexed debt obligation for the part of a taxation year throughout which the obligation is impaired where an amount in respect of the obligation is deductible because of paragraph b of section 140 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

2001, c. 7, s. 20.

DIVISION V.1

LEASING PROPERTIES

1991, c. 25, s. 42.

125.1. Where a taxpayer, in this division referred to as the "lessee", has leased corporeal property, other than prescribed property, that would, if the lessee had acquired the property, have been depreciable property of the lessee, from a person resident in Canada other than a person whose taxable income is exempt from tax under this Part, or from a person not resident in Canada who holds the lease in the course of carrying on a business through an establishment in Canada any income from which is subject to tax under Part I of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), who owns the property and with whom the lessee was dealing at arm's length, in this division referred to as the "lessor", for a term of more than one year, the following rules apply for the purpose of computing the income of the lessee for the taxation year that includes the particular time when the lease began and for all subsequent taxation years, if the lessee and the lessor have jointly so elected in a prescribed form filed with their fiscal returns under this Part for their respective taxation years that include the particular time:

(a) in respect of any amount paid or payable for the use of, or for the right to use, the property, the lease is deemed not to be a lease;

(b) the lessee is deemed to have acquired the property from the lessor at the particular time at a cost equal to its fair market value at that time;

(c) the lessee is deemed to have borrowed money from the lessor at the particular time, for the purpose of acquiring the property, in a principal amount equal to the fair market value of the property at that time;

(d) interest, capitalized semi-annually, not in advance, is deemed to accrue on the principal amount of the borrowed money outstanding from time to time, at the prescribed rate in effect at the beginning of the period for which the interest is being calculated, where the lease provides that the amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property varies according to prevailing interest rates in effect from time to time, and the lessee so elects, in respect of all of the property that is subject to the lease, in his fiscal return under this Part for his taxation year in which the lease commenced, or at the prescribed rate in effect on the earlier of the particular time and the time, before the particular time, at which the lessee last entered into an agreement to lease the property;

(e) the amounts paid or payable by or on behalf of the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property in the year are deemed to be blended payments, paid or payable by the lessee, of principal and interest on the borrowed money outstanding from time to time, calculated in accordance with paragraph d, applied firstly on account of interest on principal, secondly on account of interest on unpaid interest and thirdly on account of unpaid principal, if any, and the amount by which the aggregate of such amounts paid or payable exceeds the aggregate of the amounts so applied is deemed to be paid or payable on account of interest, and any amount deemed by reason of this paragraph to be a payment of interest is deemed to have been an amount paid or payable, as the case may be, pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest in respect of the year on the borrowed money;

(f) at the time of the expiration or cancellation of the lease, the assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property by the lessee, the lessee is deemed, except where section 125.4 applies, to dispose of the property at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to the amount by which the aggregate of the amount referred to in paragraph c and the amounts received or receivable by the lessee in respect of the cancellation or assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property exceeds the aggregate of the amounts deemed under paragraph e to have been paid or payable, as the case may be, by the lessee on account of the principal amount of the borrowed money and the amounts paid or payable by or on behalf of the lessee in respect of the cancellation or assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property;

(g) for the purposes of sections 97.2 to 97.4, each amount paid or payable by or on behalf of the lessee that would, but for this section, have been an amount paid or payable for the use of, or the right to use of, the property is deemed to have been deducted in computing the lessee's income as an amount paid or payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property after the particular time;

(h) any amount paid or payable by or on behalf of the lessee in respect of the granting or assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property that would, but for this paragraph, be the capital cost to the lessee of a leasehold interest in the property is deemed to be an amount paid or payable, as the case may be, by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property for the remaining term of the lease;

(i) where the lessee has made an election under this section in respect of a property and, at any time after the lease was entered into, the owner of the property is a person not resident in Canada who does not hold the lease in the course of carrying on a business through an establishment in Canada any income from which is subject to tax under Part I of the Income Tax Act, the lease is deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have been cancelled at that time.

125.2. Subject to sections 125.3 and 125.4, where at any particular time a lessee who has made an election under section 125.1 in respect of a leased property assigns the lease or subleases the property to another person, in this division referred to as the "assignee", the following rules apply:

(a) section 125.1 does not apply in computing the income of the lessee in respect of the lease for any period after the particular time;

(b) if the lessee and the assignee have jointly so elected by filing the prescribed form with their fiscal returns under this Part for their respective taxation years that include the particular time, section 125.1 applies to the assignee as if

i. the assignee had leased the property at the particular time from the owner of the property for a term of more than one year, and

ii. the assignee and the owner of the property had jointly elected under the said section 125.1 in respect of the property by filing the prescribed form with their fiscal returns under this Part for their respective taxation years that include the particular time.

125.3. Subject to section 125.4, where at any particular time a lessee who has made an election under section 125.1 in respect of a leased property assigns the lease or subleases the property to another person with whom he is not dealing at arm's length, the other person is deemed, for the purposes of section 125.1 and for the purposes of computing his income in respect of the lease for any period after the particular time, to be the same person as, and the continuation of, the lessee.

However, notwithstanding paragraph b of section 125.1, that other person is deemed to have acquired the property from the lessee at the time that it was acquired by the lessee, at a cost equal to the lessee's proceeds of disposition of the property that would be determined under paragraph f of section 125.1 if the said paragraph f were read without reference to "and the amounts received or receivable by the lessee in respect of the cancellation or assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property" and to "and the amounts paid or payable by or on behalf of the lessee in respect of the cancellation or assignment of the lease or the sublease of the property", with the necessary modifications.

125.4. Notwithstanding section 125.2, where at any time a particular corporation that has made an election under section 125.1 in respect of a lease assigns the lease by reason of an amalgamation, within the meaning of subsections 1 and 2 of section 544, or in the course of the winding-up of a Canadian corporation in respect of which sections 556 to 564.1 and 565 apply, to another corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length, the other corporation is deemed, for the purposes of section 125.1 and for the purposes of computing its income in respect of the lease after that time, to be the same person as, and a continuation of, the particular corporation.

125.5. For the purposes of section 125.1, property that is provided at any time by a lessor to a lessee as a replacement for a similar property of the lessor that was leased by the lessor to the lessee is deemed to be the same property as the similar property where the amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the replacement property is the same as the amount that was payable in respect of the similar property.

125.6. For the purposes of section 125.1, where at any particular time, an addition or alteration, in this section referred to as the "additional property", is made by a lessor to a property, in this section referred to as the "original property", of the lessor that is the subject of a lease, the lessor and the lessee of the original property have filed the joint election referred to in section 125.1 in respect of the original property, and, as a consequence of the addition or alteration, the total amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the original property and the additional property exceeds the amount so payable in respect of the original property, the following rules apply:

(a) the lessee is deemed to have leased the additional property from the lessor at the particular time,

(b) the term of the lease of the additional property is deemed to be greater than one year,

(c) the lessor and the lessee are deemed to have jointly elected in accordance with section 125.1 in respect of the additional property,

(d) the prescribed rate in effect at the particular time in respect of the additional property is deemed to be equal to the prescribed rate in effect in respect of the original property at the particular time,

(e) the additional property is deemed, for the purposes of section 125.1, not to be prescribed property, and

(f) the amount by which the total amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the original property and the additional property exceeds the amount so payable in respect of the original property is deemed to be an amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the additional property.

125.7. For the purposes of section 125.1, where at any time a lease, in this section referred to as the "original lease", is renegotiated in the course of a bona fide renegotiation and, as a result of the renegotiation, the amount payable by the lessee for the use of, or the right to use, the property that is the subject of the lease is altered in respect of a period after that time, otherwise than by reason of an addition or alteration in respect of which section 125.6 applies, the original lease is deemed to have expired and the renegotiated lease is deemed to be a new lease of the property entered into at that time.

DIVISION VII

AMOUNT OWING BY A PERSON NOT RESIDENT IN CANADA

2001, c. 53, s. 41.

127.1. In this division,

"active business" has the meaning assigned by subsection 1 of section 95 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement);

"controlled foreign affiliate", at any time, of a taxpayer resident in Canada, means a corporation that would, at that time, be a controlled foreign affiliate of the taxpayer within the meaning of section 572 if that section were read as if "resident in Canada" were inserted after "any person" in subparagraphs ii and iv of its paragraph b;

"exempt loan or transfer" means

(a) a loan made by a corporation resident in Canada where the interest rate charged on the loan is not less than the interest rate that a lender and a borrower would have been willing to agree to if they were dealing with each other at arm's length at the time the loan was made;

(b) a transfer of property by a corporation resident in Canada, other than a transfer of property made for the purpose of acquiring shares of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of a corporation or a foreign affiliate of a person resident in Canada with whom the corporation was not dealing at arm's length, or payment of an amount by a corporation resident in Canada pursuant to an agreement made on terms and conditions that persons who were dealing with each other at arm's length at the time the agreement was entered into would have been willing to agree to;

(c) a dividend paid by a corporation resident in Canada on shares of a class of its capital stock; or

(d) a payment made by a corporation resident in Canada on a reduction of the paid-up capital in respect of shares of a class of its capital stock, not exceeding the total amount of the reduction;

"income from an active business" has the meaning assigned by subsection 1 of section 95 of the Income Tax Act;

"non-discretionary trust", at any time, means a trust in which all interests were vested indefeasibly at the beginning of the trust's taxation year that includes that time;

"settlor" in respect of a trust, at any time, means any person or partnership that has made a loan or transfer of property, either directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, to or for the benefit of the trust at or before that time, other than, where the person or partnership deals at arm's length with the trust at that time,

(a) a loan made by the person or partnership to the trust at a reasonable rate of interest; or

(b) a transfer of property made by the person or partnership to the trust for fair market value consideration.

2001, c. 53, s. 41; 2004, c. 8, s. 22; 2010, c. 25, s. 13.

127.2. For the purposes of this division, the following rules apply in determining whether persons are related to each other and whether a corporation not resident in Canada is a controlled foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada at any time:

(a) each member of a partnership is deemed to own that proportion of the number of shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that are owned by the partnership at that time that the fair market value at that time of the member's interest in the partnership is of the fair market value at that time of the interests of all members in the partnership; and

(b) each beneficiary of a non-discretionary trust is deemed to own that proportion of the number of shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that are owned by the trust at that time that the fair market value at that time of the beneficiary's beneficial interest in the trust is of the fair market value at that time of all the beneficial interests in the trust.

2001, c. 53, s. 41.

127.3. For the purposes of this division, in determining whether persons are related to each other at any time, each settlor in respect of a trust, other than a non-discretionary trust, is deemed to own the shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation owned by the trust at that time.

2001, c. 53, s. 41.

127.3.1. For the purposes of this division, in determining whether persons are related to each other at any time, any rights referred to in paragraph b of section 20 that exist at that time are deemed not to exist at that time to the extent that the exercise of those rights is prohibited at that time under a law of the country under the jurisdiction of which the corporation was formed or last continued and is governed, that restricts the foreign ownership or control of the corporation.

127.3.2. For the purposes of section 127.7 and paragraph b of section 127.8, where an intermediate lender makes a loan to an intended borrower, and that loan arises out of another loan which the intermediate lender received from an initial lender, the following rules apply:

(a) the loan made by the intermediate lender to the intended borrower is deemed to have been made by the initial lender to the intended borrower, to the extent of the lesser of the amount of that loan and the amount of the loan made by the initial lender to the intermediate lender, under the same terms and conditions and at the same time as it was made by the intermediate lender; and

(b) the loan made by the initial lender to the intermediate lender and the loan made by the intermediate lender to the intended borrower are deemed not to have been made to the extent of the amount of the loan deemed to have been made under subparagraph a.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, the expressions “intermediate lender”, “intended borrower” and “initial lender” refer to a person not resident in Canada or a partnership each member of which is not resident in Canada.

2004, c. 8, s. 23.

127.3.3. For the purpose of applying paragraph b of section 127.8 in respect of a corporation resident in Canada, in determining whether persons described in subparagraph i of that paragraph b are related to each other at any time, any rights referred to in paragraph b of section 20 that otherwise exist at that time are deemed not to exist at that time where, if the rights were exercised immediately before that time,

(a) all of those persons would at that time be controlled foreign affiliates of the corporation resident in Canada; and

(b) because of section 127.13, section 127.6 would not apply to the corporation in respect of the amount that would, but for this section, have been deemed to have been owing at that time to the corporation by the person not resident in Canada described in subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 127.8.

2004, c. 8, s. 23.

127.4. For the purposes of this division, in determining whether a person who is not resident in Canada is a controlled foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada at any time, each settlor in respect of a trust, other than a non-discretionary trust, is deemed to own that proportion of the number of shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation owned by the trust at that time that one is of the number of settlors in respect of the trust at that time.

2001, c. 53, s. 41.

127.5. For the purposes of this division, where, at any time, two corporations resident in Canada are related, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, any corporation that is a controlled foreign affiliate of one of the corporations at that time is deemed to be a controlled foreign affiliate of the other corporation at that time.

2001, c. 53, s. 41.

127.6. Where the conditions of the third paragraph are met in respect of a corporation resident in Canada in relation to an amount owing to the corporation (in this section referred to as the "debt"), the corporation shall include in computing its income for a taxation year the amount determined by the formula

A – B.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount of interest that would be included in computing the corporation's income for the year in respect of the debt if interest on the debt were computed at the prescribed rate for the period in the year during which the debt was outstanding; and

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

i. an amount included in computing the corporation's income for the year as, on account of, in lieu of or in satisfaction of, interest in respect of the debt,

ii. an amount received or receivable by the corporation from a trust that is included in computing the corporation's income for the year or a subsequent year and that can reasonably be attributed to interest on the debt for the period in the year during which the debt was outstanding, or

iii. an amount included in computing the corporation's income for the year or a subsequent taxation year under section 580 that can reasonably be attributed to interest on an amount owing (in this section referred to as the "original debt")—or if the amount of the original debt exceeds the amount of the debt, a portion of the original debt that is equal to the amount of the debt—for the period in the year during which the debt was outstanding if

(1) without the existence of the original debt, section 127.7 would not have deemed the debt to be owed by a person not resident in Canada and referred to in subparagraph a of the third paragraph,

(2) the original debt was owed by a person not resident in Canada or a partnership each member of which is such a person, and

(3) where section 127.3.2 applies in respect of the original debt, an amount determined under subparagraph a or b of the first paragraph of that section in respect of the original debt is an amount referred to in paragraph a of section 127.7 and, because of the amount referred to in that paragraph a, the debt is deemed to be owed by the person not resident in Canada and referred to in subparagraph a of the third paragraph, and the original debt was owing by an intermediate lender to an initial lender or by an intended borrower to an intermediate lender, within the meaning assigned to those expressions by the second paragraph of section 127.3.2.

The conditions to which the first paragraph refers in relation to a debt contracted with a corporation resident in Canada are met if at any time in a taxation year of the corporation,

(a) a person not resident in Canada owes the amount to the corporation;

(b) the amount has been or remains outstanding for more than a year; and

(c) the amount that would be determined under subparagraph b of the second paragraph, if the first and second paragraphs of this section applied, for the year in respect of a debt is less than the amount of interest that would be included in computing the corporation's income for the year in respect of the debt if that interest were computed at a reasonable rate for the period in the year during which the amount was outstanding.

127.7. For the purposes of this division and subject to section 127.8, a person not resident in Canada is deemed at any time to owe to a corporation resident in Canada an amount equal to the amount, or a portion of the amount, as the case may be, owing to a particular person or partnership where

(a) the person not resident in Canada owes an amount at that time to the particular person or partnership, other than a corporation resident in Canada; and

(b) it may reasonably be considered that the amount or a portion of the amount became owing, or was permitted to remain owing, to the particular person or partnership because a corporation resident in Canada made a loan or transfer of property, or the particular person or partnership anticipated that a corporation resident in Canada would make a loan or transfer of property, either directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, to or for the benefit of any person or partnership (other than an exempt loan or transfer).

127.8. Section 127.7 does not apply to an amount owing at any time by a person not resident in Canada to a particular person or partnership where

(a) at that time, the person not resident in Canada and the particular person or each member of the particular partnership, as the case may be, are controlled foreign affiliates of the corporation resident in Canada; or

(b) at that time,

i. the person not resident in Canada and the particular person are not related or the person not resident in Canada and each member of the particular partnership are not related, as the case may be,

ii. the terms and conditions made or imposed in respect of the amount owing, determined without reference to any loan or transfer of property by a corporation resident in Canada described in paragraph b of section 127.7 in respect of the amount owing, are such that persons dealing at arm's length would have been willing to enter into them at the time that they were entered into, and

iii. if there were an amount of interest payable on the amount owing at that time that would be required to be included in computing the income of a foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year, that amount of interest would not be required to be included in computing the foreign accrual property income, within the meaning of section 579, of the foreign affiliate for that year.

2001, c. 53, s. 41.

127.9. For the purposes of this division, where a person not resident in Canada owes a particular amount at any time to a partnership and section 127.7 does not deem the person not resident in Canada to owe an amount equal to that particular amount to a corporation resident in Canada, the person not resident in Canada is deemed to owe at that time to each member of the partnership, on the same terms and conditions as those that apply in respect of the amount owing to the partnership, that proportion of the amount owing to the partnership at that time that the fair market value at that time of the member's interest in the partnership is of the fair market value at that time of the interests of all members in the partnership.

127.10. For the purposes of this division, where a person not resident in Canada owes a particular amount at any time to a trust and section 127.7 does not deem that person to owe an amount equal to that particular amount to a corporation resident in Canada, the following rules apply:

(a) where the trust is a non-discretionary trust at that time, the person not resident in Canada is deemed to owe at that time to each beneficiary of the trust, on the same terms and conditions as those that apply in respect of the amount owing to the trust, an amount equal to that proportion of the amount owing to the trust at that time that the fair market value at that time of the beneficiary's beneficial interest in the trust is of the fair market value at that time of all the beneficial interests in the trust; and

(b) in any other case, the person not resident in Canada is deemed to owe at that time to each settlor in respect of the trust, on the same terms and conditions as those that apply in respect of the amount owing to the trust, an amount equal to the amount owing to the trust.

2001, c. 53, s. 41.

127.11. For the purposes of this division, where a particular partnership owes an amount at any time to any person or any other partnership, in this section referred to as the "lender", each member of the particular partnership is deemed to owe at that time to the lender, on the same terms and conditions as those that apply in respect of the amount owing by the particular partnership to the lender, an amount equal to that proportion of the amount owing to the lender at that time that the fair market value at that time of the member's interest in the particular partnership is of the fair market value at that time of the interests of all members in the particular partnership.

127.12. Section 127.6 does not apply to an amount owing to a corporation resident in Canada by a person not resident in Canada if a prescribed tax has been paid on the amount owing.

For the purposes of this section, a prescribed tax is deemed not to have been paid on that portion of the amount owing in respect of which an amount was repaid or applied in accordance with subsection 6.1 of section 227 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement).

127.13. Section 127.6 does not apply to a corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year of the corporation in respect of an amount owing to the corporation by a person not resident in Canada if that person is a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation throughout the period in the year during which the amount is owing to the extent that it is established that the amount owing

(a) arose as a loan or advance of money to the affiliate that the affiliate has used, throughout the period that began when the loan or advance was made and that ended at the earlier of the end of the year and the time at which the amount was repaid,

i. for the purpose of earning income from an active business of the affiliate or income that was included under subsection 2 of section 95 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)) in computing the income from an active business of the affiliate, or

ii. for the purpose of making a loan or advance to another controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation where, if interest became payable on the loan or advance at any time in the period and the affiliate was required to include the interest in computing its income for a taxation year, that interest would not be required to be included in computing the affiliate's foreign accrual property income, within the meaning of section 579, for that year; or

(b) arose in the course of an active business carried on by the affiliate throughout the period that began when the amount owing arose and that ended at the earlier of the end of the year and the time at which the amount was repaid.

127.13.1. The presumption in the second paragraph applies in respect of money (in this section referred to as "new borrowings") that a controlled foreign affiliate of a particular corporation resident in Canada has borrowed from the particular corporation to the extent that the affiliate has used the new borrowings

(a) to repay money (in this section referred to as "previous borrowings") previously borrowed from any person or partnership, if

i. the previous borrowings became owing after the last time at which the affiliate became a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular corporation, and

ii. the previous borrowings were, at all times after they became owing, used for any of the purposes described in subparagraphs i and ii of paragraph a of section 127.13; or

(b) to pay an amount owing (in this section referred to as the "unpaid purchase price") by the affiliate for a property previously acquired from any person or partnership, if

i. the property was acquired, and the unpaid purchase price became owing, by the affiliate after the last time at which it became a controlled foreign affiliate of the particular corporation, ii. the unpaid purchase price is in respect of the property, and

iii. throughout the period that began when the unpaid purchase price became owing by the affiliate and ended when the unpaid purchase price was so paid, the property was used principally to earn income described in subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 127.13.

For the purposes of section 127.13, the new borrowings are deemed to have been used for the purposes for which the previous borrowings were used or were deemed by this paragraph to have been used, or to acquire the property in respect of which the unpaid purchase price was payable, as the case may be.

2010, c. 25, s. 15.

127.14. Section 127.6 does not apply to a corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year of the corporation in respect of an amount owing to the corporation by a person not resident in Canada if

(a) the corporation is not related to the person not resident in Canada throughout the period in the year during which the amount owing remains outstanding;

(b) the amount owing arose in respect of goods sold or services provided to the person not resident in Canada by the corporation in the ordinary course of the business carried on by the corporation; and

(c) the terms and conditions in respect of the amount owing are such that persons dealing at arm's length would have been willing to enter into them at the time that they were entered into.

2001, c. 53, s. 41.

127.15. For the purposes of this division,

(a) where any person or partnership has a right under a contract or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of a corporation, that person or partnership is deemed to own those shares if it can reasonably be considered that the principal purpose for the existence of the right is to avoid or reduce the amount of income that a corporation would otherwise be required to include in computing its income for a taxation year under section 127.6; and

(b) where any person or partnership acquires or disposes of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, either directly or indirectly, and it can reasonably be considered that the principal purpose for the acquisition or disposition of the shares is to avoid or reduce the amount of income that a corporation would otherwise be required to include in computing its income for a taxation year under section 127.6, those shares are deemed not to have been acquired or disposed of, as the case may be, and where the shares were unissued by the corporation immediately before the acquisition, those shares are deemed not to have been issued.

2001, c. 53, s. 41.

DIVISION VIII

DEEMED INTEREST INCOME

2017, c. 29, s. 37.

127.16. In this division,

"Canadian corporation" means a corporation resident in Canada;

"qualifying Canadian partnership", at any time, in respect of a Canadian corporation, means a partnership each member of which is, at that time, the Canadian corporation or another corporation resident in Canada to which the Canadian corporation is, at that time, related.

For the purposes of this division,

(a) either of the following is a pertinent loan or indebtedness:

i. a pertinent loan or indebtedness within the meaning of section 113.1, or

ii. a pertinent loan or indebtedness within the meaning of subsection 11 of section 212.3 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)); and

(b) any person who is (or is deemed under this subparagraph to be) a member of a partnership that is a member of a particular partnership is deemed to be a member of the particular partnership.

Where a loan or indebtedness is a pertinent loan or indebtedness within the meaning of subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph, Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under paragraph c of subsection 11 of section 212.3 of the Income Tax Act in respect of the loan or indebtedness.

127.16.1. For the purposes of this division in respect of a pertinent loan or indebtedness, within the meaning of subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 127.16, the following rules apply:

(a) any transaction entered into, or event participated in, by a partnership is deemed to have been entered into, or participated in, as the case may be, by each member of the partnership in the proportion that the fair market value, at the time of the transaction or event, of the member's interest—held directly or indirectly through one or more other partnerships—in the partnership is of the fair market value, at that time, of the interests in the partnership held directly by all the members of the partnership;

(b) a property that, based on the assumptions contained in paragraph c of section 600, would be owned at a particular time by a partnership, is deemed to be owned at the particular time by each member of the partnership in the proportion that the fair market value, at the particular time, of the member's interest—held directly or indirectly through one or more other partnerships—in the partnership is of the fair market value, at that time, of the interests in the partnership held directly by all the members of the partnership;

(c) where the portion of a property that is deemed under paragraph b to be owned by a member of a partnership increases at a particular time (with the understanding that such an increase includes that resulting from the acquisition of an interest in a partnership in which, immediately prior to the acquisition, the member did not have an interest), the member is deemed at the particular time to acquire the additional portion of the property;

(d) an amount that, based on the assumptions contained in paragraph c of section 600, would be owing by a partnership at a particular time is deemed to be owed by each member of the partnership in the proportion that the fair market value, at the particular time, of the member's interest—held directly or indirectly through one or more other partnerships—in the partnership is of the fair market value, at that time, of the interests in the partnership held directly by all the members of the partnership; and

(e) if a member of a partnership enters into a transaction, or participates in an event, with the partnership, paragraph a does not apply in respect of the transaction or event to the extent that the transaction or event would be deemed, under paragraph a if this section were read without reference to this paragraph, to have been entered into, or participated in, as the case may be, by the member.

127.16.2. For the purposes of this division in respect of a pertinent loan or indebtedness, within the meaning of subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 127.16, and for the purpose of determining, for the purposes of this division, whether two persons are related to each other and consequently, under paragraph a of section 18, do not deal with each other at arm's length, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purpose of determining, at any time, whether two persons are related to each other or whether any person is controlled by any other person or group of persons, the following presumptions apply:

i. each trust is deemed to be a corporation having a capital stock of a single class of voting shares divided into 100 issued shares, and

ii. each beneficiary under a trust is deemed to own at that time a number of issued shares of that class of shares equal to the proportion of 100 that the fair market value at that time of the beneficiary's interest in the trust is of the fair market value at that time of all beneficiaries' interests in the trust;

(b) for the purpose of determining, at any time, the extent to which any person owns shares of the capital stock of a corporation, if at that time a trust resident in Canada owns, but for this subparagraph, shares of the capital stock of the corporation, each beneficiary of the trust is deemed to own, and the trust is deemed not to own, at that time, the shares of each class of the capital stock of the corporation that are owned, but for this subparagraph, by the trust, the number of which is equal to the proportion of the total number of shares of the class of the capital stock of the corporation that are owned, but for this subparagraph, by the trust at that time that the fair market value, at that time, of the beneficiary's interest in the trust is of the fair market value, at that time, of all beneficiaries' interests in the trust; and

(c) where a beneficiary's share of the income or capital of a trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, a power to appoint, the proportion to which subparagraph ii of subparagraph a and subparagraph b refer is deemed to be equal to 1, unless

i. the trust is resident in Canada, and

ii. it cannot reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of the power to appoint is to avoid or limit the application of paragraph c.3 of subsection 1 of section 128.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) or of subsection 2 of sections 212.3 and 219.1 of that Act.

2021, c. 36, s. 56.

127.17. Where, at any time in a taxation year of a Canadian corporation or in a fiscal period of a qualifying Canadian partnership in respect of a Canadian corporation, a corporation not resident in Canada, or a partnership of which a corporation not resident in Canada is a member, owes an amount to the Canadian corporation or the qualifying Canadian partnership, as the case may be, and the amount owing is a pertinent loan or indebtedness, the following rules apply:

(a) Division VII does not apply in respect of the amount owing; and

(b) subject to section 127.18, the amount, if any, determined by the following formula is to be included in computing the income of the Canadian corporation for the year or of the qualifying Canadian partnership for the fiscal period, as the case may be:

A − B.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount that is the greater of

i. the amount of interest that should be included in computing the income of the Canadian corporation for the year or of the qualifying Canadian partnership for the fiscal period, as the case may be, in respect of the amount owing for the period in the year, or the fiscal period, during which the amount owing was a pertinent loan or indebtedness (in this paragraph referred to as the "particular period") if that interest were computed at the prescribed rate for that period, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts of interest payable for the particular period by the Canadian corporation, the qualifying Canadian partnership, a particular person resident in Canada with which the Canadian corporation did not, at the time the amount owing arose, deal at arm's length or a partnership of which the Canadian corporation or the particular person is a member, in respect of a debt obligation—arisen as part of a series of transactions or events that includes the transaction by which the amount owing arose—to the extent that the proceeds of the debt obligation may reasonably be considered to have directly or indirectly funded, in whole or in part, the amount owing; and

(b) B is an amount included in computing the income of the Canadian corporation for the year or of the qualifying Canadian partnership for the fiscal period, as the case may be, as, or in lieu of, full or partial payment of interest on the amount owing for the particular period.

2017, c. 29, s. 37.

127.18. No amount is to be included under section 127.17 in computing the income of a Canadian corporation in respect of a pertinent loan or indebtedness, within the meaning of subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 127.16, for the 180-day period that begins at any time a parent or group of parents referred to in section 212.3 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) acquires control of the Canadian corporation, if the Canadian corporation was not controlled by a person not resident in Canada, or a group of persons not resident in Canada and not dealing with each other at arm's length, immediately before that time.

127.19. A particular loan or indebtedness is deemed not to be a pertinent loan or indebtedness if, because of a provision of a tax agreement, the amount that would, but for this section, be included in computing the income of the Canadian corporation for any taxation year or of the qualifying Canadian partnership for any fiscal period, as the case may be, in respect of the particular loan or indebtedness is less than it would be if no tax agreement applied.

2017, c. 29, s. 37.

CHAPTER III

DEDUCTIONS

1972, c. 23.

DIVISION I

GENERALITIES

1972, c. 23.

128. A taxpayer may deduct, in computing his income from a business or property for a taxation year, only the outlays or expenses made or incurred by him during such year or payable in respect of such year, to the extent that they may reasonably be regarded as being related to such business or property and that they were made or incurred to gain income from such business or property and to the extent provided in this chapter, unless otherwise provided in this Part.

1972, c. 23, s. 117; 1997, c. 85, s. 330.

129. Such amounts shall not include any loss or replacement of capital, a payment or amount disbursed on account of capital or an allowance in respect of depreciation, obsolescence or depletion except as expressly permitted by this Part.

1972, c. 23, s. 118.

130. A taxpayer may however deduct:

(a) subject to section 130.0.1, the prescribed part or amount of the capital cost of property to the taxpayer; and

(b) the lesser of

i. the portion of the amount (that is not otherwise deductible in computing the income of the taxpayer) that is an expense incurred in the year for the incorporation of a corporation, and

ii. the amount by which $3,000 exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by another taxpayer in respect of the incorporation of the corporation.

130.0.1. An individual shall not however deduct under paragraph a of section 130, in computing his income from a business or property for a taxation year subsequent to his taxation year 1987, the prescribed part or amount of the capital cost of property that is a certified Québec film within the meaning of the regulations under the said section.

1989, c. 5, s. 43.

130.1. Notwithstanding sections 128, 129 and 133, no amount may be deducted by a taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year under paragraph a of section 130 in respect of the taxpayer's depreciable property of a prescribed class where, at the end of the year, the aggregate of the amounts determined under subparagraphs i to ii.3 of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 93 exceeds the amount determined under the second paragraph of that section in respect of the taxpayer's depreciable property of that class and, at that time, the taxpayer no longer owns any property of that class.

However, subject to the third and fourth paragraphs, the taxpayer shall deduct that excess amount in computing his income for the year.

Where the excess amount referred to in the first paragraph concerns a prescribed class that includes an automobile acquired by the taxpayer before 18 June 1987 or after 17 June 1987 pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into before 18 June 1987, no amount shall be deducted by the taxpayer in computing his income for the year other than an amount equal to what the excess amount would be if the capital cost of the automobile did not exceed the prescribed amount and, subject to the fifth paragraph, where the excess amount referred to in the first paragraph concerns a prescribed class that includes either an automobile, other than an automobile used under a permit for the transportation of passengers for remuneration, acquired by the taxpayer before 18 June 1987 or after 17 June 1987 pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into before 18 June 1987, or an automobile that would have been such an automobile had it been acquired by the taxpayer before 18 June 1987 and that is a passenger vehicle acquired by him in his taxation year 1987, and the taxpayer is an individual who used the automobile partly to gain income from a business or property and partly for his personal use, no amount shall be deducted by the taxpayer in computing his income for the year other than an amount equal to the prescribed part of the excess amount.

Where the excess amount referred to in the first paragraph concerns a prescribed class and includes a certified Québec film within the meaning of the regulations under section 130, a taxpayer shall not deduct that excess amount in computing his income from a business or property for a taxation year subsequent to his taxation year 1987.

This section does not apply

(a) in respect of a prescribed class that includes a passenger vehicle of a taxpayer in respect of which paragraph d.3 or d.4 of section 99 or section 525.1 applied to the taxpayer; or

(b) in respect of a taxation year in relation to a property that was a former property deemed by subparagraph a or b of the second paragraph of section 96.0.2 to be owned by a taxpayer, if

i. within 24 months after the taxpayer last owned the former property, the taxpayer or a person not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer acquires a similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property related, and

ii. at the end of the taxation year, the taxpayer or the person owns the similar property or another similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property related;

(c) in respect of a taxation year in relation to a property included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1), unless the taxpayer has ceased to carry on the business to which the class relates.

1978, c. 26, s. 33; 1982, c. 5, s. 37; 1989, c. 5, s. 44; 1990, c. 59, s. 71; 1991, c. 25, s. 187; 1993, c. 16, s. 73; 1994, c. 22, s. 101; 2001, c. 53, s. 42; 2009, c. 15, s. 55; 2019, c. 14, s. 80.

131. No outlay or expense may be deducted to the extent that it may reasonably be regarded as having been made or incurred to gain or produce exempt income or in connection with property the income from which is exempt.

1972, c. 23, s. 120.

132. The annual value of property shall not be deducted except rent for property leased by the taxpayer for use in his business.

The same applies to any amount as, or in full or partial payment of, a reserve, a contingent liability or amount or a sinking fund, except as expressly permitted by this Part.

1972, c. 23, s. 121; 1990, c. 59, s. 72.

132.1. A taxpayer who is an insurer shall not deduct, in computing his income from a business or property for a taxation year, an amount in respect of claims that were received by him before the end of the year under insurance policies and that are unpaid at the end of the year, except as expressly permitted by this Part.

132.2. A taxpayer shall not deduct, in computing his income from a business or property for a taxation year, an amount in respect of any loss, depreciation or reduction in the value or amortized cost of a loan or lending asset made or acquired by him in the ordinary course of his business of insurance or the lending of money and not disposed of by him in the taxation year, except as expressly permitted by this Part.

132.3. A taxpayer shall not deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year, an amount in respect of which a valid election was made by or on behalf of the taxpayer under subsection 1.1 of section 110 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)).

2011, c. 34, s. 25.

132.4. A taxpayer shall not deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year, the amount of a contribution the taxpayer paid, directly or indirectly, for political purposes.

2017, c. 1, s. 93.

133. A taxpayer shall not deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year, personal or living expenses of the taxpayer, other than travel expenses incurred by the taxpayer while away from home in the course of carrying on the taxpayer's business.

1972, c. 23, s. 122; 1990, c. 59, s. 74; 1997, c. 85, s. 51.

133.1. (Repealed).

1978, c. 26, s. 34; 1979, c. 38, s. 8; 1984, c. 35, s. 11; 1990, c. 59, s. 75.

133.2. (Repealed).

1978, c. 26, s. 34; 1990, c. 59, s. 75.

133.2.1. A taxpayer shall not deduct, in computing his income from a business or property for a taxation year, any portion in excess of the prescribed amount of an amount paid or payable by him as an allowance for the use by an individual of an automobile, except where the amount so paid or payable is required to be included in computing the individual's income.

1990, c. 59, s. 76.

133.3. (Repealed).

1978, c. 26, s. 34; 1984, c. 15, s. 31; 1994, c. 22, s. 103; 1998, c. 16, s. 89; 2005, c. 1, s. 56.

133.4. A taxpayer shall not, in computing the income of the taxpayer from a business or property for a taxation year, deduct any amount paid or payable by the taxpayer for services in respect of a retirement savings plan, retirement income fund, tax-free savings account or first home savings account under or of which the taxpayer is the annuitant or holder.

1998, c. 16, s. 90; 2009, c. 15, s. 56; 2023, c. 19, s. 17.

133.5. An individual, other than a performing artist, shall not deduct any amount in computing the individual's income from a business or property, in respect of an outlay or an expense made or incurred by the individual in respect of an article of clothing to be worn by the individual, except where it may reasonably be considered that the article of clothing cannot be worn by the individual otherwise than for the purpose of earning income from a business or property, or of earning income from a business or property and from another source.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, "performing artist" means an individual who is an artist within the meaning of the Act respecting the professional status of artists in the visual arts, film, the recording arts, literature, arts and crafts and the performing arts (chapter S-32.1) and who is engaged in activities as a program host or who performs in a field that is, for the purposes of that Act, any of the following fields of artistic endeavour:

(a) the stage, including the theater, the opera, music, dance and variety entertainment;

(b) multimedia;

(c) the making of films;

(d) dubbing; or

(e) the recording of commercial advertisements.

2000, c. 39, s. 13; 2005, c. 38, s. 62; 2021, c. 18, s. 27; 2022, c. 20, s. 34.

133.6. A taxpayer that is an authorized foreign bank, shall not deduct an amount in respect of interest that would otherwise be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income from a business the taxpayer carries on in Canada, except as provided in sections 175.2.8 to 175.2.11.

2004, c. 8, s. 24.

133.7. A taxpayer shall not deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year, an amount that is deemed under section 21.32 to have been received by another person as an amount described in any of subparagraphs a to c of the first paragraph of that section, except as expressly permitted by this Part.

2015, c. 24, s. 27.

133.8. A taxpayer shall not deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year, an amount that corresponds to a reduction in the year in the value of a property if

(a) the method used by the taxpayer to value the property at the end of the year for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's profit from a business or property consists in valuing the property at the cost at which the taxpayer acquired it or its fair market value at the end of the year, whichever is lower;

(b) the property is described in section 83.0.7; and

(c) the property is not disposed of by the taxpayer in the year.

2019, c. 14, s. 81.

133.9. A taxpayer shall not deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year, an amount referred to in section 93.16.

2019, c. 14, s. 81.

134. No amount disbursed or expended by the taxpayer after 1971 for the use or maintenance of a yacht, a lodge, a camp or a golf course or facility may be deducted unless the taxpayer's business provides any of the foregoing for hire or reward and such outlay or expense is made or incurred in the ordinary course of such business.

The same applies to such an amount when expended or disbursed as fees or dues, whether membership dues, initiation fees or otherwise, in any club the main purpose of which is to provide dining, recreational or sporting facilities for its members.

However, this section does not apply to such an amount that is a gift or award referred to in section 37.1.5.

1972, c. 23, s. 123; 1986, c. 19, s. 23; 2003, c. 9, s. 20.

134.1. An individual shall not deduct, in computing his income for a taxation year, any amount paid by him in the year, or payable by him in respect of that year, as

(a) annual professional membership dues the payment of which was necessary to maintain a professional status recognized by statute;

(a.1) dues the individual is required to pay to a recognized association under the Act respecting the representation of certain home educational childcare providers and the negotiation process for their group agreements (chapter R-24.0.1) as a home educational childcare provider represented by that association;

(b) annual dues the payment of which was necessary to maintain membership in an artists' association recognized by the Minister on the recommendation of the Minister of Culture and Communications;

(c) a contribution the individual was required to pay under section 10 of the Act to amend the Professional Code (1995, chapter 50) or section 196.2 of the Professional Code (chapter C-26).

The dues described in any of subparagraphs a to b of the first paragraph do not include the portion thereof that is, in effect, levied under a retirement plan, a plan for annuities, insurance or similar benefits, or for any other purpose not directly related to the ordinary operating expenses of the entity to which they were paid, or that corresponds to the Québec sales tax or the goods and services tax in respect of such dues.

134.2. A partnership shall not deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, any amount paid by it in the year, or payable by it in respect of the year, on behalf of an individual who is a member of the partnership, as

(a) annual professional membership dues the payment of which was necessary for the individual to maintain a professional status recognized by statute;

(b) annual dues the payment of which was necessary for membership of the individual in an artists' association recognized by the Minister on the recommendation of the Minister of Culture and Communications;

(c) a contribution the individual was required to pay under section 10 of the Act to amend the Professional Code (1995, chapter 50) or section 196.2 of the Professional Code (chapter C-26).

The annual dues described in subparagraph a or b of the first paragraph do not include the portion thereof that is, in effect, levied under a retirement plan, a plan for annuities, insurance or similar benefits, or for any other purpose not directly related to the ordinary operating expenses of the entity to which they were paid, or that corresponds to the Québec sales tax or the goods and services tax in respect of such dues.

134.3. Where an amount would, but for section 134.2, be deductible in computing the income of a partnership for a particular taxation year as dues described in subparagraph a or b of the first paragraph of that section or as a contribution described in subparagraph c of that paragraph, the following rules apply:

(a) where a corporation is a member of the partnership at the end of the particular taxation year, the corporation's share of the amount shall be deductible in computing the corporation's income for the taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends;

(b) where a particular partnership is a member of the partnership at the end of the particular taxation year, the particular partnership's share of the amount is deemed to be an amount paid by the particular partnership in the particular partnership's taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends, or an amount payable by the particular partnership in respect of the particular partnership's taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends, as dues described in subparagraph a or b of the first paragraph of section 134.2 or as a contribution described in subparagraph c of that paragraph, as the case may be;

(c) where an individual is a member of the partnership at the end of the particular taxation year, the individual's share of the amount is deemed to be an amount paid by the individual in the individual's taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends, or an amount payable by the individual in respect of the individual's taxation year in which the particular taxation year ends, as dues described in subparagraph a or b of the first paragraph of section 134.1 or as a contribution described in subparagraph c of that paragraph, as the case may be.

1997, c. 14, s. 39.

135. A taxpayer shall not deduct:

(a) (paragraph repealed);

(b) an amount paid in respect of patronage dividends granted to his customers, except as provided in section 786;

(c) an amount paid or payable as a contribution to an employee benefit plan;

(d) an outlay or expense made or incurred under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of another person, except as expressly permitted by paragraphs p and q of section 157;

(e) except as expressly permitted by section 139.1, contributions made under a retirement compensation arrangement;

(f) except as expressly permitted by section 139.2, contributions made to an employee life and health trust.

1972, c. 23, s. 124; 1979, c. 18, s. 11; 1982, c. 5, s. 38; 1987, c. 67, s. 37; 1988, c. 18, s. 9; 1989, c. 5, s. 45; 1989, c. 77, s. 19; 1991, c. 25, s. 176; 1993, c. 16, s. 75; 2011, c. 6, s. 119.

135.1. Paragraph c of section 135 does not apply in respect of a contribution made to an employee benefit plan, to the extent that

(a) the contribution

i. is made in respect of services performed by an employee who is not resident in Canada and is regularly employed in a country other than Canada, and

ii. cannot reasonably be regarded as having been made in respect of services performed or to be performed during a period when the employee is resident in Canada;

(b) when the custodian of the plan is not resident in Canada, the contribution

i. is made in respect of an employee who is not resident in Canada at the time the contribution is made, and

ii. cannot reasonably be regarded as having been made in respect of services performed or to be performed during a period when the employee is resident in Canada; or

(c) when the custodian of the plan is not resident in Canada, the contribution can reasonably be regarded as having been made in respect of services performed by an employee during a particular month, if the employee

i. was resident in Canada throughout no more than 60 of the 72 calendar months ending with the particular month, and

ii. became a member of the plan before the end of the month after the month in which he became resident in Canada.

For the purposes of subparagraph c of the first paragraph, where the benefits provided in respect of an employee under a particular employee benefit plan are replaced by the benefits provided under another employee benefit plan, the other plan is deemed, in respect of the employee, to be the same plan as the particular plan.

135.1.1. Paragraph d of section 135 does not apply to an outlay or expense made or incurred under a salary deferral arrangement that was established primarily for the benefit of one or more employees not resident in Canada in respect of services to be rendered outside Canada.

1988, c. 18, s. 10; 1993, c. 16, s. 76.

135.2. A corporation which carries on a personal services business may deduct in respect of that business under this chapter, only the following amounts to the extent that they would otherwise be deductible:

(a) a salary, wages or other remuneration paid in the year to its incorporated employee;

(b) the cost to the corporation of an allowance or a benefit granted in the year to an incorporated employee;

(c) an expense which, had it been made by an individual, would have been deductible in computing his income for the year under section 62;

(d) an amount it pays during the year as judicial or extrajudicial expenses to recover an amount owing to it for services it provided.

1983, c. 44, s. 22; 1997, c. 3, s. 20; 1997, c. 14, s. 40; I.N. 2016-01-01 (NCCP); 2017, c. 29, s. 38.

135.3. A taxpayer shall not deduct an amount paid or payable for the cancellation of a lease of property of the taxpayer leased by him to another person, except to the extent permitted by paragraph g or g.1 of section 157.

1984, c. 15, s. 32.

135.3.1. A taxpayer shall not deduct any amount paid or payable under Part VI.1, or under Part I.3 or VI of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement).

1990, c. 59, s. 77; 1991, c. 25, s. 43; 1997, c. 14, s. 41.

135.3.2. No individual may deduct, in computing the individual's income from a business or property for a taxation year, an amount paid in that year or payable in respect of that year as safety deposit box rental fees with a financial institution.

1997, c. 85, s. 52.

135.3.3. A taxpayer who, under section 350.49 of the Act respecting the Québec sales tax (chapter T-0.1), is required to file an information return in respect of a supply referred to in that section, may not deduct or otherwise take into account in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, an amount that the taxpayer is required to declare in the information return if the taxpayer has not filed the information return in accordance with that section 350.49 or if, in the information return, the taxpayer did not declare the amount or did not furnish any of the other information required in respect of the amount.

135.4. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year, no deduction shall be made in respect of any outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer, other than an amount deductible by reason of paragraph a of section 130, paragraphs h, h.1 and h.1.1 of section 157 or section 157.14, that may reasonably be regarded as a cost attributable to the period of the construction, renovation or alteration of a building by or on behalf of the taxpayer, a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, a corporation of which the taxpayer is a specified shareholder or a partnership of which the taxpayer's share of any income or loss is 10% or more and relating to the construction, renovation or alteration, or a cost attributable to that period and relating to the ownership during that period of land that is subjacent to the building or that is contiguous land necessary for the use or intended use of the building and used or intended to be used for a parking area, driveway, yard or garden or any similar use.

135.5. The amount referred to in section 135.4 shall, to the extent that it would, but for section 135.4, be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, be included in the cost or the capital cost, as the case may be, of the building to the taxpayer, to a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to a corporation of which the taxpayer is a specified shareholder or to a partnership of which the taxpayer's share of any income or loss is 10% or more, as the case may be.

135.6. For the purposes of sections 135.4 and 135.5, costs relating to the construction, renovation or alteration of a building or to the ownership of land include

(a) interest paid or payable by a taxpayer in respect of borrowed money that cannot be identified with a particular building or particular land, but that can reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, as interest on borrowed money used by the taxpayer in respect of the construction, renovation or alteration of a building or the ownership of land; and

(b) interest paid or payable by a taxpayer in respect of borrowed money that can reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances, to have been used to assist, directly or indirectly, a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, a corporation of which the taxpayer is a specified shareholder, or a partnership of which the taxpayer's share of any income or loss is 10% or more, to construct, renovate or alter a building or to purchase land, except where the assistance is in the form of a loan to that person, corporation or partnership and a reasonable rate of interest thereon is charged by the taxpayer.

135.7. For the purposes of sections 135.4 and 135.5, the construction, renovation or alteration of a building is completed at the earlier of the day on which the construction, renovation or alteration is actually completed and the day on which all or substantially all of the building is used for the purpose for which it was constructed, renovated or altered.

135.8. Sections 135.4 and 135.5 do not apply to prohibit a deduction in a taxation year of an amount corresponding to the product obtained by multiplying by the percentage specified in the second paragraph any outlay or expense made or incurred before 1 January 1992 by

(a) a corporation whose principal business is throughout the year the leasing, rental or sale, or the development for lease, rental or sale, or any combination thereof, of immovable property owned by it, to or for a person with whom it is dealing at arm's length, or

(b) a partnership each member of which is a corporation described in subparagraph a if the principal business of the partnership is throughout the year the leasing, rental or sale, or the development for lease, rental or sale, or any combination thereof, of immovable property held by it, to or for a person with whom each member of the partnership is dealing at arm's length.

The percentage to which the first paragraph refers is equal to

(a) 80%, in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred after 31 December 1987 and before 1 January 1989;

(b) 60%, in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred after 31 December 1988 and before 1 January 1990;

(c) 40%, in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred after 31 December 1989 and before 1 January 1991;

(d) 20%, in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred after 31 December 1990 and before 1 January 1992.

1984, c. 15, s. 32; 1990, c. 59, s. 80; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

135.9. Sections 135.4 and 135.5 do not apply in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred in respect of a building or land described in section 135.4 in respect of the building

(a) where the construction, renovation or alteration of the building was in progress on 12 November 1981;

(b) where the installation of the footings or other base support of the building commenced between 12 November 1981 and 1 January 1982;

(c) if, in the case of a new building being constructed in Canada or an existing building being renovated or altered in Canada, arrangements, evidenced in writing, for such construction, renovation or alteration were substantially advanced before 13 November 1981 and the installation of footings or other base support for the new building or the renovation or alteration of the existing building, as the case may be, commenced before 1 June 1982; or

(d) if, in the case of a new building being constructed in Canada, the taxpayer was obligated to construct the building under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into before 13 November 1981, and arrangements, evidenced in writing, respecting the construction of the building were substantially advanced before 1 June 1982 and the installation of footings or other base support therefor commenced before 1 January 1983.

The first paragraph applies only if the construction, renovation or alteration of the building proceeds after 31 December 1982 without undue delay, having regard to superior force, labour disputes, fire, accidents or unusual delay by common carriers or suppliers of materials or equipment.

135.10. For the purposes of section 135.9, where more than one building is being constructed under any of the circumstances described in that section on one site or on contiguous sites, no undue delay is regarded as occurring in the construction of any such building if construction of at least one such building proceeds after 31 December 1982 without undue delay and continuous construction of all other such buildings proceeds after 31 December 1983 without undue delay.

1984, c. 15, s. 32.

135.11. For the purposes of sections 135.4 to 135.10, the installation of footings or other base support for a building is deemed to commence on the first placement of concrete, pilings or other material that is to provide permanent support for the building.

1984, c. 15, s. 32.

DIVISION II

RETIREMENT PLANS

1972, c. 23.

136. No employer may deduct an amount paid under a retirement plan except as provided in this division.

1972, c. 23, s. 125.

137. There may be deducted in computing an employer's income for a taxation year such amount as is deductible in computing that income for the year to the extent provided in section 965.0.2 or 965.0.23.

1972, c. 23, s. 126; 1976, c. 18, s. 3; 1979, c. 38, s. 9; 1991, c. 25, s. 44; 2015, c. 21, s. 121.

DIVISION II.1

RETIREMENT COMPENSATION ARRANGEMENT

1989, c. 77, s. 20.

139.1. A taxpayer may deduct, in computing his income for a taxation year, the amount deductible under section 890.12 in computing his income for the year.

1989, c. 77, s. 20.

DIVISION II.2

EMPLOYEE LIFE AND HEALTH TRUST

2011, c. 6, s. 120.

139.2. An employer may deduct, in computing the employer's income for a taxation year, an amount in respect of employer contributions paid to a trustee under an employee life and health trust as is permitted by sections 869.4 to 869.7.

2011, c. 6, s. 120.

DIVISION III

DOUBTFUL OR BAD DEBTS AND CREDIT RISKS

1972, c. 23; 1990, c. 59, s. 81; 1995, c. 63, s. 29.

140. A taxpayer may deduct in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, as a reserve, the aggregate of

(a) a reasonable amount in respect of doubtful debts, other than a debt in respect of which paragraph b applies, that have been included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, and

(b) where the taxpayer is a financial institution, within the meaning of section 851.22.1, in the year or a taxpayer whose ordinary business includes the lending of money, an amount not exceeding the particular amount determined for the year under section 140.1 in respect of properties, other than mark-to-market properties, as defined in the first paragraph of that section 851.22.1, that are impaired loans or lending assets that are specified debt obligations, as defined in that paragraph, of the taxpayer, or impaired loans or lending assets that were made or acquired by the taxpayer in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's business of insurance or the lending of money.

140.1. The particular amount, referred to in paragraph b of section 140, for a taxation year in respect of impaired loans or lending assets of a taxpayer is equal to the aggregate of

(a) the percentage, not exceeding 100%, that the taxpayer claims of the prescribed reserve amount for the taxpayer for the year, and

(b) in respect of loans, lending assets or specified debt obligations that are impaired and for which no amount was deductible for the year under subparagraph a, each of which in this paragraph is referred to as a "particular loan", the taxpayer's specified percentage for the year of the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a reasonable amount as a reserve, other than any portion of which is in respect of a sectoral reserve, for a particular loan in respect of the amortized cost of the particular loan to the taxpayer at the end of the year, and

ii. the amount determined by the formula

$$0.9\ A - B.$$

In the formula provided for in subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount that is the taxpayer's reserve or allowance for impairment, other than any portion of the amount that is in respect of a sectoral reserve, for all of the taxpayer's particular loans that is determined for the year in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles; and

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the specified reserve adjustment for a particular loan, other than an income bond, an income debenture, a small business bond or small business development bond, for the year or a preceding taxation year.

1990, c. 59, s. 83; 2001, c. 7, s. 22.

140.1.1. For the purposes of subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 140.1, a sectoral reserve is a reserve or an allowance for impairment for a loan that is determined on a sector-by-sector basis, including a geographic sector, an industrial sector or a sector of any other nature, and not on a property-by-property basis.

2001, c. 7, s. 23.

140.1.2. For the purposes of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 140.1, a taxpayer's specified percentage for a taxation year is

(a) where the taxpayer has a prescribed reserve amount for the year for the purposes of subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 140.1, the percentage that is the percentage of the prescribed reserve amount of the taxpayer for the year claimed by the taxpayer under that subparagraph a for the year; and

(b) in any other case, 100%.

2001, c. 7, s. 23.

140.1.3. For the purposes of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 140.1, the specified reserve adjustment for a loan of a taxpayer for a taxation year is the amount determined by the formula

$$0.1 (A \times B \times C / 365).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the carrying amount of the impaired loan that is used or would be used in determining the interest income on the loan for the taxation year in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles;

(b) B is the effective interest rate on the loan for the year determined in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles; and

(c) C is the number of days in the taxation year on which the loan is impaired.

2001, c. 7, s. 23.

140.2. A taxpayer who is an insurer or whose ordinary business includes the lending of money may deduct in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, as a reserve in respect of credit risks under guarantees, indemnities, letters of credit or other credit facilities, bankers' acceptances, interest rate or currency swaps, foreign exchange or other future or option contracts, interest rate protection agreements, risk participations and other similar instruments or commitments issued, made or assumed by the taxpayer in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's business of insurance or the lending of money in favour of persons with whom the taxpayer deals at arm's length, an amount not exceeding the lesser of

(a) a reasonable amount as a reserve for credit risk losses of the taxpayer expected to arise after the end of the year in respect of those instruments or commitments, and

(b) 90% of the reserve for credit risk losses referred to in paragraph a determined for the year in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

1990, c. 59, s. 83; 2001, c. 7, s. 24.

141. A taxpayer may deduct in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year the aggregate of

(a) all debts owing to the taxpayer that have been included by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year and that are established by the taxpayer to have become bad debts in the year, and

(b) all amounts each of which is that part of the amortized cost to the taxpayer at the end of the year of a loan or lending asset, other than a mark-to-market property, as defined in section 851.22.1, that is established in the year by the taxpayer to have become uncollectible and that,

i. where the taxpayer is an insurer or a taxpayer whose ordinary business includes the lending of money, was made or acquired in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's business of insurance or the lending of money, or

ii. where the taxpayer is a financial institution, within the meaning of section 851.22.1, in the year, is a specified debt obligation, as defined in the first paragraph of that section, of the taxpayer.

141.1. For the purposes of computing a deduction under sections 140 to 141 from the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year who is an insurer or whose ordinary business includes the lending of money, an instrument or commitment described in section 140.2 or a loan or lending asset acquired by the taxpayer from a person with whom he is not dealing at arm's length for an amount equal to its fair market value is deemed to have been acquired by the taxpayer in the ordinary course of his business of insurance or the lending of money where

(a) the person from whom the instrument or commitment or loan or lending asset is acquired carries on the business of insurance or the lending of money; and

(b) the instrument or commitment has been issued, made or assumed, or the loan or lending asset has been made or acquired, by the person in the ordinary course of his business of insurance or the lending of money.

1990, c. 59, s. 85.

142. Where a taxpayer to whom an amount is owing as proceeds of disposition of depreciable property of a prescribed class of the taxpayer, other than a passenger vehicle to which paragraph d.3 of section 99 applies or a zero-emission passenger vehicle to which paragraph d.5 of section 99 applies, establishes that the amount has become a bad debt in a taxation year, there may be deducted, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, the lesser of the amount so owing to the taxpayer and the amount by which the capital cost to the taxpayer of that property exceeds the aggregate of the amounts realized by the taxpayer as proceeds of disposition.

However, in the case of a bad debt resulting from the disposition of a timber resource property, the taxpayer may deduct the amount so owing to him.

142.0.1. Where a taxpayer to whom an amount is owing as proceeds of disposition of a zero-emission passenger vehicle to which paragraph d.5 of section 99 applies establishes that the amount has become a bad debt in a taxation year, there may be deducted, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, the lesser of

(a) the amount that would be determined by the formula in the first paragraph of section 99.2 in respect of the disposition if the amount determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph of that section were the amount owing to the taxpayer; and

(b) the amount by which the capital cost to the taxpayer of the vehicle exceeds the amount that would be determined by the formula in the first paragraph of section 99.2 in respect of the disposition if the amount determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph of that section were the total amount realized by the taxpayer as proceeds of disposition.

2021, c. 18, s. 29.

142.1. Where an amount is deductible under section 142 in respect of the disposition of a depreciable property to which section 93.19 applied, the amount deductible under section 142 is equal to 3/4 of the amount that would be deductible, but for this section.

1990, c. 59, s. 86; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 1996, c. 39, s. 47; 2003, c. 2, s. 45; 2004, c. 21, s. 56; 2005, c. 1, s. 57; 2017, c. 29, s. 39; 2019, c. 14, s. 82.

142.2. (Repealed).

2003, c. 2, s. 46; 2005, c. 1, s. 58; 2019, c. 14, s. 83.

DIVISION IV

INCOME TAX, DUTIES AND OTHER PAYMENTS

1972, c. 23; 1975, c. 22, s. 16.

143. A taxpayer may deduct any amount allowed by regulation in respect of taxes on income for the year from mining operations.

1972, c. 23, s. 132.

144. (1) A taxpayer shall not, in computing the income of the taxpayer from a business or property for a taxation year that begins before 1 January 2008, deduct any amount paid or payable in the year to a person referred to in section 90 and that can reasonably be considered to be a royalty, tax, rental or bonus, or to be in respect of the late receipt or non-receipt of such an amount, in relation to

(a) the acquisition, development or ownership of a Canadian resource property; or

(b) the production in Canada of

i. petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas in Canada other than a mineral resource or from an oil or gas well in Canada;

i.1. sulphur from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas situated in Canada, from an oil or gas well situated in Canada or from a mineral resource situated in Canada;

ii. metal, minerals other than iron, petroleum or other related hydrocarbons, or coal from a mineral resource in Canada to any stage that is not beyond the prime metal stage or its equivalent;

iii. iron from a mineral resource in Canada to any stage that is not beyond the pellet stage or its equivalent;

iv. petroleum or related hydrocarbons from a deposit of bituminous sands or oil shales in Canada to any stage that is not beyond the crude oil stage or its equivalent.

(2) Subsection 1 does not apply to a prescribed amount for the purposes of section 91 or to a tax or part thereof that may reasonably be considered to be a municipal or school tax.

(3) Where the taxation year referred to in subsection 1 ends after 31 December 2006, subsection 1, except for the purposes of the regulations made under paragraph z.4 of section 87 or section 145 or 360, applies despite section 143 and only in respect of the proportion of each amount referred to in subsection 1 that the number of days in the year that precede 1 January 2007 is of the number of days in the year.

1975, c. 22, s. 17; 1978, c. 26, s. 35; 1984, c. 15, s. 33; 1986, c. 19, s. 25; 1987, c. 67, s. 38; 1993, c. 16, s. 80; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1998, c. 16, s. 91; 2005, c. 1, s. 59; 2015, c. 24, s. 28.

144.1. (Repealed).

1982, c. 5, s. 43; 2005, c. 1, s. 60.

145. A taxpayer may, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year that begins before 1 January 2007, deduct the amount determined under the regulations in respect of a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas, an oil or gas well or mineral resource in Canada.

Such regulations may allow an amount for any or all accumulations, wells or mineral resources and the Government may prescribe a formula to determine such amount.

Where the taxation year referred to in the first paragraph includes 1 January 2007, that paragraph shall be read with "the proportion that the number of days in the year that precede that date is of the number of days in the year, of" inserted before "the amount".

1975, c. 22, s. 17; 1987, c. 67, s. 39; 2005, c. 1, s. 61.

146. An individual may, in computing his income from property other than immovable property for a taxation year after 1975 and from a source outside Canada, deduct such part of all the income or profits tax for the year that he paid to the government of a country other than Canada as may reasonably be regarded as having been paid in respect of an amount that has been included in computing his income for the year from the property, to the extent that such part exceeds 15% of that amount.

146.1. Subject to section 772.6.1, a taxpayer who is resident in Canada at any time in a taxation year may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from a business or property, such amount not exceeding the non-business-income tax, within the meaning assigned by section 772.2 read without reference to paragraph c and subparagraphs iii and v of paragraph d of the definition of "non-business-income tax", paid by the taxpayer for the year to the government of a foreign country or political subdivision of a foreign country in respect of the income from a business or property, to the extent that such tax

(a) cannot reasonably be regarded as having been paid by a corporation in respect of income from a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation; and

(b) is not deducted under section 126 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) nor an amount determined under subsection 2 of section 127.54 of that Act and deducted, in computing any tax payable by the taxpayer for the year under that Act.

1979, c. 18, s. 12; 1982, c. 5, s. 44; 1994, c. 22, s. 104; 1995, c. 1, s. 25; 1995, c. 63, s. 30; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2003, c. 2, s. 47; 2004, c. 8, s. 26; 2015, c. 21, s. 122.

146.2. Subject to section 772.6.1, a taxpayer may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year, an amount not exceeding the lesser of

(a) the amount of income or profits tax described in section 772.5.1 that

i. is in respect of a property used in the business for a period of ownership by the taxpayer or in respect of a related transaction, as defined in section 772.2,

ii. is paid by the taxpayer for the year,

iii. is, because of section 772.5.1, not included in computing the taxpayer's business-income tax or non-business-income tax, as defined in section 772.2, and

iv. where the taxpayer is a corporation, is not an amount that can reasonably be regarded as having been paid in respect of income from a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer; and

(b) the portion of the taxpayer's income for the year from the business that is attributable to the property for the period or to a related transaction, as defined in section 772.2.

2001, c. 53, s. 43; 2004, c. 8, s. 27.

DIVISION V

EXPENSES IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN SECURITIES

1972, c. 23; 1980, c. 13, s. 8.

147. Subject to section 147.1, a taxpayer may deduct the portion of an amount, other than an amount referred to in the second paragraph of section 176, that is not otherwise deductible in computing the taxpayer's income and that is an expense incurred in the year or a preceding taxation year in the course of an issuance or sale of a unit of a trust or of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, if the taxpayer is a unit trust or a corporation, or in the course of an issuance or sale, by a partnership, of an interest in the partnership or, by a syndicate, of a share in the syndicate.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, an expense incurred in a particular taxation year or any preceding taxation year by a taxpayer does not include an expense to which relates

(a) an amount renounced under section 726.4.17.12 or 716.4.17.13, as the case may be, by the taxpayer at or before the end of the year that follows the particular year, in respect of an issue of flow-through shares or an issue of securities that are interests in a partnership; or

(b) an amount, not greater than the amount that would be determined under the second paragraph of section 965.31.5 in respect of a qualified investment made by a Québec business investment company entirely out of the proceeds of a share issue if the amount of the qualified investment were equal to the amount, in respect of the share issue, by which the aggregate referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 965.31.5 exceeds the aggregate referred to in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of the said section 965.31.5, renounced under the said section 965.31.5 by the taxpayer at or before the end of the particular year, in respect of the share issue.

1972, c. 23, s. 135; 1980, c. 13, s. 8; 1990, c. 59, s. 87; 1992, c. 1, s. 26; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 42; 2007, c. 12, s. 40.

147.1. The amount deductible under section 147 shall not exceed the lesser of

(a) that proportion of 20% of the expense that the number of days in the year is of 365, and

(b) the amount by which the amount of the expense exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deductible, in respect of the expense, in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year.

1990, c. 59, s. 88.

147.2. For the purposes of sections 147 and 147.1, where a partnership has ceased to exist at any particular time in a fiscal period of the partnership,

(a) no amount may be deducted by the partnership under section 147 in computing its income for the fiscal period, and

(b) any person or partnership that was a member of the partnership immediately before that time may deduct, for a taxation year ending at or after that time, that proportion of the amount that would, but for this section, have been deductible under section 147 by the partnership in the fiscal period in the year had it continued to exist and had the partnership interest not been redeemed, acquired or cancelled, that the fair market value of such member's interest in the partnership immediately before that time is of the fair market value of all the interests in the partnership immediately before that time.

1990, c. 59, s. 88; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

148. A corporation may deduct:

(a) an amount payable as a fee for services rendered by a person as an agent for the transfer of the shares of its capital stock or as an agent for the remittance to its shareholders of the dividends declared by it;

(b) an amount payable as a fee to a stock exchange for the listing of the shares of its capital stock; and

(c) an expense incurred for the printing and issuing of a financial report to its shareholders or to any other person entitled by law to receive such report.

1972, c. 23, s. 136; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

DIVISION VI

SALE OF CERTAIN PROPERTY

1972, c. 23.

149. Where a taxpayer has in a taxation year disposed of depreciable property to a person with whom he was dealing at arm's length and the proceeds of disposition, within the meaning assigned by subparagraph f of the first paragraph of section 93, include an agreement to sell, or a hypothecary claim or mortgage on, land that the taxpayer has, in a subsequent taxation year, sold to a person with whom he was dealing at arm's length, he may deduct in computing his income for the subsequent year the lesser of

(a) the amount by which the principal amount of the agreement to sell or the obligation outstanding at the time of the sale exceeds the consideration paid by the purchaser to the taxpayer for the agreement to sell or the obligation; and

(b) the amount determined under subparagraph a less the amount by which the proceeds of disposition of the depreciable property exceed the capital cost of that property.

However, in the case of the disposition of a timber resource property, the taxpayer may deduct the amount described in subparagraph a of the first paragraph.

1972, c. 23, s. 137; 1975, c. 22, s. 18; 1996, c. 39, s. 48; 2001, c. 53, s. 260; 2005, c. 1, s. 62.

DIVISION VII

RESERVES

1972, c. 23; 1997, c. 14, s. 42.

150. Where amounts contemplated in paragraph a of section 87 have been included in computing the income from a business of the taxpayer for the year or a previous year, he may deduct a reasonable amount as a reserve in respect of

(a) goods or services that it is reasonably anticipated will be delivered or rendered after the end of the year;

(b) periods for which rent or other amounts for the possession or use of land or movable property have been paid in advance; or

(c) repayments under arrangements or understandings contemplated in subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 87 that it is reasonably anticipated will have to be made after the end of the year on the return or resale to the taxpayer of articles other than bottles.

150.1. Where an amount described in paragraph a of section 87 has been included in computing a taxpayer's income from a business for the year or a preceding taxation year, the taxpayer may deduct a reasonable amount as a reserve in respect of goods or services that it is reasonably anticipated will have to be delivered or rendered after the end of the year pursuant to an agreement for an extended warranty entered into by the taxpayer with a person with whom he was dealing at arm's length, and under which the only obligation of the taxpayer is to provide such goods or services with respect to property manufactured by the taxpayer or by a corporation related to the taxpayer.

In no case may the reserve exceed that portion of the amount paid or payable by the taxpayer to an insurer that carries on an insurance business in Canada to insure his liability under the agreement in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred after 11 December 1979 and in respect of the period after the end of the year.

150.2. In computing income for a taxation year, a taxpayer may deduct the undepreciated amount at the end of the taxation year in respect of the amount received in excess of the principal amount of a bond (in this section referred to as the "premium") which the taxpayer received as an issuer in the year, or a previous year, for issuing the bond (in this section referred to as the "new bond") if

(a) the terms of the new bond are identical to the terms of bonds previously issued by the taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "old bonds"), except for the date of issuance and total principal amount of the bonds;

(b) the old bonds were part of an issuance (in this section referred to as the "original issuance") of bonds by the taxpayer;

(c) the interest rate on the old bonds was reasonable at the time of the original issuance;

(d) the new bond is issued on the reopening of the original issuance;

(e) the amount of the premium at the time of issuance of the new bond is reasonable; and

(f) the amount of the premium has been included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a previous year.

2021, c. 18, s. 30.

151. Where an amount is deductible under section 150 in respect of articles of food or drink or transportation that it is reasonably anticipated will have to be delivered or provided after the end of the year, there shall be substituted for the amount determined thereunder an amount not exceeding the aggregate of amounts included in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the year that were received or receivable in the year, depending on the method regularly followed by the taxpayer in computing his income from the business, in respect of articles of food or drink or transportation not delivered or provided before the end of the year, as the case may be.

152. No deduction is allowed under section 150 in respect of guarantees or indemnities, in respect of a reclamation obligation, or in the case of a farming business if the taxpayer uses the cash method of accounting in accordance with section 194.

The same applies to reserves in respect of insurance policies, except that in computing an insurer's income for a taxation year from an insurance business, other than a life insurance business, carried on by it, there may be deducted any amount not exceeding the amount prescribed in respect of the insurer for the year.

153. Where an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for the year or for a preceding taxation year in respect of a property sold in the course of the business is payable to the taxpayer after the end of the year and, except where the property is immovable property, all or part of the amount was, at the time of the sale, not due until at least two years after that time, the taxpayer may deduct a reasonable amount as a reserve in respect of such part of the amount so included in computing his income as can reasonably be regarded as a portion of the profit from the sale.

However, no deduction is allowed to a taxpayer under this section in respect of a property sold in the course of a business if

(a) the taxpayer, at the end of the taxation year or in the following year,

i. is exempt from tax under this Part, or

ii. is not resident in Canada and does not carry on the business in Canada;

(b) the sale of the property occurred more than 36 months before the end of the year;

(c) the purchaser of the property sold is a corporation that, immediately after the sale,

i. is controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by the taxpayer,

ii. is controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by a person or group of persons that controls the taxpayer, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, or

iii. controls the taxpayer, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever; or

(d) the purchaser of the property sold is a partnership in which the taxpayer is, immediately after the sale, a majority-interest partner.

1972, c. 23, s. 141; 1975, c. 22, s. 19; 1984, c. 15, s. 35; 1986, c. 19, s. 26; 1996, c. 39, s. 49; 2009, c. 5, s. 58; 2020, c. 16, s. 190.

154. A taxpayer may deduct any amount prescribed as an allowance for expenses to be incurred by him by reason of quadrennial or special surveys concerning a vessel, if such surveys are required under the law.

1972, c. 23, s. 142.

154.1. (Repealed).

DIVISION VIII

REPRESENTATION EXPENSES

1972, c. 23.

155. A taxpayer may deduct any amount the taxpayer pays as expenses incurred in making any representation relating to a business carried on by the taxpayer or to obtain a license, permit, franchise or trademark relating to that business if such representation is made

(a) to the government of a country, province or state or to a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada; or

(b) to a mandatary of a government or body mentioned in paragraph a, if such a mandatary is authorized by law to make rules or regulations relating to the business carried on by the taxpayer.

1972, c. 23, s. 143; 2017, c. 29, s. 40.

156. Instead of deducting any amount deductible under section 155, the taxpayer may, if he so elects in prescribed manner, deduct one-tenth of that amount in computing his income for that year and make a similar deduction in computing his income for each of the nine subsequent years.

1972, c. 23, s. 144.

DIVISION VIII.1

ADDITIONAL DEDUCTION IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN INVESTMENTS

1989, c. 5, s. 46.

156.1. A taxpayer, other than a trust, may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year,

(a) where the taxpayer is an individual, the proportion of the amount determined for the year in his respect under section 156.2 that the aggregate of the income earned in Québec and elsewhere by the individual for the year is of the income earned in Québec by the individual for the year;

(b) where the taxpayer is a corporation, the proportion of the amount determined for the year in its respect under section 156.3 that the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the corporation in the year is of the business carried on in Québec by the corporation in the year.

156.1.1. A partnership may deduct, in computing the partnership's income from a business for a fiscal period, the proportion of the amount determined in its respect for the period under section 156.3.1 that the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the partnership in the period is of the business carried on in Québec by the partnership in the period.

1999, c. 83, s. 36.

156.2. The amount referred to in paragraph a of section 156.1 is, in respect of an individual for a taxation year, equal to 20% of the amount determined in respect of the individual for the year according to the following formula:

A × (B / C).

For the purposes of the formula provided in the first paragraph,

(a) the letter A represents the amount deducted by the individual, in computing his income for the year, under paragraph a of section 130 or the second paragraph of section 130.1 in respect of a prescribed depreciable property;

(b) the letter B represents the amount by which the aggregate of the income earned in Québec and elsewhere by the individual for the year exceeds the income earned in Québec by the individual for the year;

(c) the letter C represents the aggregate of the income earned in Québec and elsewhere by the individual for the year.

1989, c. 5, s. 46; 1993, c. 19, s. 18; 1997, c. 85, s. 53.

156.3. The amount referred to in paragraph b of section 156.1 is, in respect of a corporation for a taxation year, equal to 20% of the amount determined in respect of the corporation for the year according to the following formula:

A × (B / C).

For the purposes of the formula provided in the first paragraph,

(a) the letter A represents the amount deducted by the corporation, in computing its income for the year, under paragraph a of section 130 or the second paragraph of section 130.1 in respect of a prescribed depreciable property;

(b) the letter B represents the amount by which the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the corporation in the year exceeds the business carried on in Québec by the corporation in the year;

(c) the letter C represents the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the corporation in the year.

1989, c. 5, s. 46; 1993, c. 19, s. 19; 1995, c. 1, s. 199; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 85, s. 54.

156.3.1. The amount to which section 156.1.1 refers is, in respect of a partnership for a fiscal period, equal to 20% of the amount determined for the fiscal period in respect of the partnership according to the formula

$$A \times (B / C).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount deducted by the partnership, in computing its income for the fiscal period, under paragraph a of section 130 or the second paragraph of section 130.1 in respect of a property that would, if the partnership were a corporation, be a prescribed depreciable property for the purposes of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 156.3;

(b) B is the amount by which the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the partnership in the fiscal period exceeds the business carried on in Québec by the partnership in the fiscal period; and

(c) C is the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the partnership in the fiscal period.

1999, c. 83, s. 37.

156.4. For the purposes of sections 156.1 to 156.3.1, the following rules apply:

(a) the computation of income earned in Québec and of income earned in Québec and elsewhere is made in the manner prescribed in the regulations made pursuant to section 22, with the necessary modifications; and

(b) the computation of the business carried on in Canada, in Québec and in Québec and elsewhere by a corporation is made in the manner prescribed in the regulations made under subsection 2 of section 771, with the necessary modifications, and the computation of the business carried on in Canada, in Québec and in Québec and elsewhere by a partnership is made in the manner so prescribed in those regulations, with the necessary modifications, as if the partnership were a corporation and if its fiscal period were a taxation year.

DIVISION VIII.2

SUPPLEMENTARY DEDUCTION IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN INVESTMENTS

1997, c. 85, s. 55.

156.5. Subject to the second paragraph, a taxpayer other than a trust may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year,

(a) where the taxpayer is an individual, the proportion of the amount determined for the year in respect of the individual under the first paragraph of section 156.6 that the aggregate of the income earned in Québec and elsewhere by the individual for the year is of the income earned in Québec by the individual for the year;

(b) where the taxpayer is a corporation, the proportion of the amount determined for the year in respect of the corporation under the first paragraph of section 156.6 that the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the corporation in the year is of the business carried on in Québec by the corporation in the year;

(c) (subparagraph repealed).

No deduction may be made by a taxpayer under the first paragraph, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year, in respect of property acquired from a person or partnership with whom or with which the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length at the time of acquisition if

(a) the property is property acquired by the person or partnership before 26 March 1997 or after 25 March 1997 pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into before 26 March 1997 or the construction of which, by or on behalf of the person or partnership, had begun by 25 March 1997;

(b) the person or partnership was entitled to deduct, for a taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, preceding the taxation year or fiscal period in which the property was disposed of, an amount in computing the person's or partnership's income from a business under the first paragraph or under the first paragraph of section 156.5.1, as the case may be, in respect of the property; or

(c) this paragraph or the second paragraph of section 156.5.1 applied to the person or partnership in respect of the property.

156.5.1. Subject to the second paragraph, a partnership may deduct, in computing its income from a business for a fiscal period the proportion of the amount determined for the fiscal period in its respect under the second paragraph of section 156.6 that the aggregate of the business carried on in Canada or in Québec and elsewhere by the partnership in the fiscal period is of the business carried on in Québec by the partnership in the fiscal period.

No deduction may be made by a partnership under the first paragraph, in computing the partnership's income from a business for a fiscal period, in respect of property acquired from a person or partnership with whom or with which the partnership was not dealing at arm's length at the time of acquisition if

(a) the property is property acquired by the person or partnership before 26 March 1997 or after 25 March 1997 pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into before 26 March 1997 or the construction of which, by or on behalf of the person or partnership, had begun by 25 March 1997;

(b) the person or partnership was entitled to deduct, for a taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, preceding the taxation year or fiscal period in which the property was disposed of, an amount in computing the person's or partnership's income from a business under the first paragraph or under the first paragraph of section 156.5, as the case may be, in respect of the property; or

(c) this paragraph or the second paragraph of section 156.5 applied to the person or partnership in respect of the property.

156.6. The amount to which subparagraphs a and b of the first paragraph of section 156.5 refer in relation to a taxpayer for a taxation year, is equal to 25% of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the taxpayer under paragraph a of section 130 or the second paragraph of section 130.1, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, in respect of property which is prescribed depreciable property for the purpose, where the taxpayer is an individual, of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 156.2, and where the taxpayer is a corporation, of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 156.3.

The amount to which the first paragraph of section 156.5.1 refers, in relation to a partnership for a fiscal period, is equal to 25% of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the partnership under paragraph a of section 130 or the second paragraph of section 130.1 in computing the partnership's income for the fiscal period, in respect of property that would be prescribed depreciable property for the purpose of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 156.3 if the partnership were a corporation.

156.7. For the purposes of sections 156.5 and 156.5.1, the following rules apply:

(a) the computation of income earned in Québec and of income earned in Québec and elsewhere is made in the manner prescribed in the regulations made under section 22, with the necessary modifications; and

(b) the computation of the business carried on in Canada, in Québec and in Québec and elsewhere by a corporation is made in the manner prescribed in the regulations made under subsection 2 of section 771, with the necessary modifications, and the computation of the business carried on in Canada, in Québec and in Québec and elsewhere by a partnership is made in the manner so prescribed in those regulations as if the partnership were a corporation and if its fiscal period were a taxation year, and with the necessary modifications.

DIVISION VIII.2.1

OTHER DEDUCTION IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN INVESTMENTS

2011, c. 1, s. 23.

156.7.1. A taxpayer, other than a trust, may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year, an amount equal to 85% of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under paragraph a of section 130 or the second paragraph of section 130.1, in respect of the taxpayer's prescribed depreciable property.

2011, c. 1, s. 23.

DIVISION VIII.2.2

ADDITIONAL DEDUCTION RELATING TO CANADIAN VESSELS

2015, c. 21, s. 124.

156.7.2. For the purposes of this division,

"eligible work" means work that a taxpayer has carried out by a corporation under a contract entered into after 4 June 2014 and before 1 January 2024 in a qualified shipyard that the corporation operates;

"qualified shipyard" has the meaning assigned by section 979.24.

2015, c. 21, s. 124.

156.7.3. In computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business, there may be deducted an amount equal to 50% of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the portion of the amount deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under paragraph a of section 130 or the second paragraph of section 130.1, in respect of the taxpayer's prescribed depreciable property, that relates to the cost of eligible work.

2015, c. 21, s. 124.

DIVISION VIII.2.3

ADDITIONAL DEDUCTION OF 35% OR 60% IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN INVESTMENTS

2020, c. 16, s. 37.

156.7.4. Subject to section 156.7.5, a taxpayer may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year, an amount equal to the amount determined, in respect of a prescribed depreciable property, by the formula

$A \times (B / C)$.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the amount deducted by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under paragraph a of section 130 in respect of the prescribed class that includes the property by

i. 35%, where the property is acquired after 28 March 2017 and before 28 March 2018, or

ii. 60%, where the property is acquired after 27 March 2018 and before

(1) 1 July 2019, if the property was acquired pursuant to an obligation in writing entered into before 4 December 2018 or if the construction of the property, by or on behalf of the taxpayer, began before 4 December 2018, or

(2) 4 December 2018, in any other case;

(b) B is

i. where the taxation year includes the time at which the property is considered to have become available for use, within the meaning of section 93.7, either of the following amounts:

(1) if the property is acquired after 20 November 2018, the amount attributable to the property that is added to the undepreciated capital cost of the prescribed class that includes the property, determined for the purpose of computing the amount that is deductible by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under paragraph a of section 130, or

(2) in any other case, one half of the capital cost of the property at the end of the year,

ii. where the taxation year is the particular year that follows the year referred to in subparagraph i, the amount by which the capital cost of the property at the end of the particular year exceeds the portion of the amount deducted by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income for the preceding year under paragraph a of section 130 that is attributable to the property, or

iii. in any other case, zero; and

(c) C is the undepreciated capital cost at the end of the year of property of the prescribed class that includes the property, determined for the purpose of computing the amount that is deductible by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under paragraph a of section 130 before any deduction under that paragraph a for the year.

2020, c. 16, s. 37.

156.7.5. The amount that a taxpayer may deduct in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a particular taxation year under section 156.7.4, in respect of a property acquired after 20 November 2018, may not exceed

(a) where the particular year includes the time at which the property is considered to have become available for use, within the meaning of section 93.7,

i. in the case where the property is included in Class 50 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1), the product obtained by multiplying 16.5% of the capital cost of the property at the end of the particular year by the proportion that the number of days in the particular year is of 365, or

ii. in the case where the property is included in Class 53 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act, the product obtained by multiplying 15% of the capital cost of the property at the end of the particular year by the proportion that the number of days in the particular year is of 365; or

(b) where the particular year is the year following the year referred to in subparagraph a, the lesser of

i. the total of

(1) the amount by which the amount computed under section 156.7.4 in respect of the property for the year referred to in subparagraph a exceeds the amount determined under that subparagraph in respect of the property for that year, and

(2) the amount computed under section 156.7.4 in respect of the property for the particular year, and

ii. the total of

(1) the amount by which the amount computed under subparagraph a in respect of the property for the year referred to in that subparagraph exceeds the amount computed under section 156.7.4 in respect of the property for that year, and

(2) the product obtained by multiplying the amount determined under the second paragraph in respect of the property by the proportion that the number of days in the particular year is of 365.

The amount to which subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph refers is

(a) 23.9% of the capital cost of the property at the end of the particular year, if it is included in Class 50 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act; or

(b) 22.5% of the capital cost of the property at the end of the particular year, if it is included in Class 53 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act.

2020, c. 16, s. 37.

DIVISION VIII.2.4

ADDITIONAL DEDUCTION OF 30% IN RESPECT OF CERTAIN INVESTMENTS

2020, c. 16, s. 37.

156.7.6. A taxpayer may deduct, in computing a taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year, an amount equal to 30% of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the taxpayer in computing income for the preceding taxation year under paragraph a of section 130 or the second paragraph of section 130.1, in respect of a prescribed depreciable property acquired after 3 December 2018.

2020, c. 16, s. 37.

DIVISION VIII.3

ADDITIONAL DEDUCTION RELATING TO PUBLIC TRANSIT PASSES

2006, c. 36, s. 27.

156.8. A taxpayer may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount otherwise deductible in computing that income for that taxation year and that is

(a) an amount paid to an employee, after 23 March 2006, as the total or partial reimbursement of the cost of an eligible transit pass taking the form of a subscription for a minimum period of one month, valid after that date, that the employee acquired with a view to using it to commute between the employee's ordinary place of residence and the employee's work location;

(b) an amount paid to an employee, after 23 March 2006, as the total or partial reimbursement of the cost of an eligible paratransit pass, valid after that date, that the employee acquired with a view to using it to commute between the employee's ordinary place of residence and the employee's work location; or

(c) the cost to the taxpayer of an eligible transit pass or eligible paratransit pass that is supplied, after 23 March 2006, to an employee primarily to commute between the employee's ordinary place of residence and the employee's work location.

2006, c. 36, s. 27.

156.9. In section 156.8,

"eligible paratransit pass" means a transit pass that allows the use of a paratransit service provided by a public entity authorized under an Act of Québec to organize such a service;

"eligible transit pass" means a transit pass that allows the use of a public transit service, other than paratransit, provided by a public entity authorized under an Act of Québec to organize such a service.

2006, c. 36, s. 27.

DIVISION VIII.4

ADDITIONAL DEDUCTION RELATING TO THE ORGANIZATION OF AN INTERMUNICIPAL SHARED TRANSPORTATION SERVICE

2013, c. 10, s. 18.

156.10. A taxpayer may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount otherwise deductible in computing that income for that taxation year in respect of the setting up or operation of a shared transportation service of the taxpayer.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, a shared transportation service of a taxpayer means a transportation service organized by the taxpayer, alone or jointly with others, for the benefit of employees whose place of residence is outside the local municipal territory where their employer's establishment to which they ordinarily report for work is located, if

(a) the shared transportation service is provided at least five days a week, except during holiday periods or a slowdown in the business' activities;

(b) employees are transported in a coach, minibus or van or any other vehicle with a design capacity of at least 15 people; and

(c) employees can get on and off the vehicle only at predetermined places.

2013, c. 10, s. 18.

DIVISION VIII.5

ADDITIONAL DEDUCTION FOR TRANSPORTATION COSTS INCURRED BY REMOTE SMALL AND MEDIUM-SIZED BUSINESSES

2015, c. 21, s. 125; 2017, c. 29, s. 41.

156.11. In this division,

"additional deduction rate" that applies to a qualified corporation or a manufacturing corporation for a taxation year means, in the case of a qualified corporation for the year, 10% and, in the case of a manufacturing corporation for the year, subject to sections 156.12 and 156.13,

(a) 0%, if the major portion of the corporation's cost of manufacturing and processing capital for the year is attributable to property it uses outside the central area, the intermediate area, the remote area and the special remote area;

(a.1) 1%, if the major portion of the corporation's cost of manufacturing and processing capital for the year is attributable to property it uses in the central area;

(b) 3%, if the major portion of the corporation's cost of manufacturing and processing capital for the year is attributable to property it uses in the intermediate area;

(c) 5%, if the major portion of the corporation's cost of manufacturing and processing capital for the year is attributable to property it uses in the remote area; or

(d) 10%, if the major portion of the corporation's cost of manufacturing and processing capital for the year is attributable to property it uses in the special remote area;

"central area" means an area that includes the part of the territory of Québec that is not included in the intermediate area, the remote area and the special remote area;

"cost of capital" of a qualified corporation for a taxation year means the amount determined in respect of the corporation for the year under the definition of "cost of capital" in section 5202 of the Income Tax Regulations made under the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.));

"cost of labour" of a qualified corporation for a taxation year means the amount determined in respect of the corporation for the year under the definition of "cost of labour" in section 5202 of the Income Tax Regulations made under the Income Tax Act;

"cost of manufacturing and processing capital" of a manufacturing corporation for a taxation year means the amount determined in respect of the corporation for the year under the definition of "cost of manufacturing and processing capital" in section 5202 of the Income Tax Regulations made under the Income Tax Act;

"intermediate area" means an area that is

(a) the territory of any of the following regions described in the Décret concernant la révision des limites des régions administratives du Québec (chapter D-11, r. 1), or any part of such a region:

i. administrative region 03 Capitale-Nationale, except the part of the territory comprising the territory of the municipalities in the Québec census metropolitan area as described in the Standard Geographical Classification (SGC) 2011 published by Statistics Canada and the territory of Municipalité régionale de comté de Charlevoix-Est,

ii. the southern part of administrative region 04 Mauricie that includes the territory of the cities of Trois-Rivières and Shawinigan and the territory of the regional county municipalities of Chenaux and Maskinongé,

iii. the western part of administrative region 05 Estrie that includes the territory of Ville de Sherbrooke and of the regional county municipalities of Memphrémagog, Val-Saint-François, des Sources and Coaticook,

iv. administrative region 12 Chaudière-Appalaches, except the part of the territory comprising the territory of the municipalities in the Québec census metropolitan area as described in the Standard Geographical Classification (SGC) 2011 published by Statistics Canada,

v. administrative region 14 Lanaudière, except the part of the territory comprising the territory of the municipalities in the Montréal census metropolitan area as described in the Standard Geographical Classification (SGC) 2011 published by Statistics Canada,

vi. administrative region 15 Laurentides, except the part of the territory comprising the territory of the municipalities in the Montréal census metropolitan area as described in the Standard Geographical Classification (SGC) 2011 published by Statistics Canada, and the territory of Municipalité régionale de comté d'Antoine-Labelle, vii. administrative region 16 Montérégie, except the part of the territory comprising the territory of the municipalities in the Montréal census metropolitan area as described in the Standard Geographical Classification (SGC) 2011 published by Statistics Canada, and

viii. administrative region 17 Centre-du-Québec; or

(b) the territory of Municipalité régionale de comté de Papineau;

"manufacturing corporation" for a taxation year means a Canadian-controlled private corporation the proportion of the manufacturing or processing activities of which for the year is greater than 25%;

"proportion of the manufacturing or processing activities" of a manufacturing corporation for a taxation year means the proportion that the amount determined in respect of the corporation for the year under paragraph a of section 5200 of the Income Tax Regulations made under the Income Tax Act is of the amount determined in respect of the corporation for the year under paragraph b of section 5200 of those Regulations;

"qualified corporation" for a taxation year means a Canadian-controlled private corporation more than 50% of the cost of labour or cost of capital of which for the taxation year is attributable to a business that it operates in a special remote area;

"remote area" means an area that is

(a) the territory of any of the following regions described in the Décret concernant la révision des limites des régions administratives du Québec, or any part of such a region:

i. administrative region 01 Bas-Saint-Laurent,

ii. administrative region 02 Saguenay–Lac-Saint-Jean,

iii. the eastern part of administrative region 05 Estrie that includes the territory of the regional county municipalities of Granit and Haut-Saint-François,

iv. administrative region 08 Abitibi-Témiscamingue,

v. administrative region 09 Côte-Nord, except the part of the region within the territory of Municipalité de l'Île-d'Anticosti and of Municipalité régionale de comté du Golfe-du-Saint-Laurent, vi. administrative region 10 Nord-du-Québec, except the part of the region within the territory of the Kativik Regional Government, and

vii. the part of administrative region 11 Gaspésie–Îles-de-la-Madeleine comprising the territory of the regional county municipalities of Avignon, Bonaventure, Côte-de-Gaspé, Haute-Gaspésie and Rocher-Percé;

(b) the territory of any of the following regional county municipalities:

i. Municipalité régionale de comté d'Antoine-Labelle,

ii. Municipalité régionale de comté de Charlevoix-Est,

iii. Municipalité régionale de comté de La Vallée-de-la-Gatineau, iv. Municipalité régionale de comté de Mékinac, and

v. Municipalité régionale de comté de Pontiac; or

(c) the territory of the urban agglomeration of La Tuque as described in section 8 of the Act respecting certain municipal powers in certain urban agglomerations (chapter E-20.001);

"special remote area" means an area that is

(a) the territory of Municipalité de l'Île-d'Anticosti;

(b) the territory of the urban agglomeration of Îles-de-la-Madeleine as described in section 9 of the Act respecting certain municipal powers in certain urban agglomerations;

(c) the territory of Municipalité régionale de comté du Golfe-du-Saint-Laurent; or

(d) the territory of the Kativik Regional Government.

2015, c. 21, s. 125; 2015, c. 24, s. 29; 2017, c. 29, s. 42.

156.12. For the purposes of the definition of "additional deduction rate" in section 156.11, a manufacturing corporation for a taxation year may determine the part of its cost of manufacturing and processing capital for the year attributable to goods it uses in a particular area by adding to it the portion of the corporation's cost of manufacturing and processing capital for the year attributable to goods it uses in another area for which a higher additional deduction rate for the year is provided.

2015, c. 21, s. 125.

156.13. Despite the definition of "additional deduction rate" in section 156.11, the additional deduction rate applicable to a manufacturing corporation for a taxation year is, for the year, equal to the rate determined by the formula

$$A \times [(B - 25\%)/25\%].$$

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the additional deduction rate applicable to the manufacturing corporation for the year, determined without reference to this section; and

(b) B is the lesser of 50% and the proportion of the manufacturing or processing activities of the manufacturing corporation for the year.

For the taxation year of a manufacturing corporation that ends after 4 June 2014 and that includes that date, the additional deduction rate applicable to the corporation for the year is equal to the rate of the deduction, determined for the year with reference to the first and second paragraphs, multiplied by the proportion that the number of days in the year that follow 4 June 2014 is of the number of days in the year.

156.14. Subject to section 156.15, a manufacturing corporation for a taxation year may deduct, in computing its income from a business for the year, an amount equal to

(a) the amount obtained by multiplying its gross revenue for the year by the additional deduction rate applicable to it for the year, if 10% is the additional deduction rate that would be applicable to it for the year in the absence of section 156.13; or

(b) in any other case, the lesser of

i. the amount obtained by multiplying its gross revenue for the year by the additional deduction rate applicable to it for the year, and

ii. the regional limit that is applicable to it for the year.

In this section and in section 156.14.1, "regional limit" applicable to a manufacturing corporation for a taxation year means

(a) $50,000, if 1% is the additional deduction rate that would be applicable to the corporation for the year in the absence of section 156.13;

(b) $150,000, if 3% is the additional deduction rate that would be applicable to the corporation for the year in the absence of section 156.13; or

(c) $350,000, if 5% is the additional deduction rate that would be applicable to the corporation for the year in the absence of section 156.13.

For the purposes of the definition of "regional limit" in the second paragraph, if the number of days in the manufacturing corporation's taxation year is less than 365, the amount of $50,000, $150,000 or $350,000, as the case may be, is to be replaced by the proportion of that amount that the number of days in the year is of 365.

156.14.1. For the purposes of section 156.14, if a manufacturing corporation for a taxation year to which a regional limit is applicable for the year is associated in the year with one or more other manufacturing corporations for the year to which a regional limit is applicable for the year, the regional limit that is applicable to each of those corporations for the year is equal to zero, unless all of those corporations file with the Minister in the prescribed form containing prescribed information an agreement whereby, for the purposes of this division, they allocate a particular percentage to one or more of them, in which case the following rules apply:

(a) where the percentage or the aggregate of the percentages so allocated, as the case may be, does not exceed 100%, the regional limit applicable to each of those corporations for the year is deemed to be equal to the product obtained by multiplying the amount corresponding to the regional limit that is applicable to it for the year, determined without reference to this section, by the percentage so allocated to it; and

(b) in any other case, the regional limit applicable to the corporation for the year is deemed to be equal to zero.

If one of the corporations fails to file with the Minister the agreement within 30 days after notice in writing by the Minister has been sent to any of them that such an agreement is required for the purposes of any assessment of tax under this Part, the Minister shall, for the purposes of this division, allocate a percentage to one or more of those corporations for the taxation year, which percentage or the aggregate of which percentages, as the case may be, is to be equal to 100% and, in such a case, the regional limit that is applicable to each of those corporations for the year is deemed to be equal to the product obtained by multiplying the amount corresponding to the regional limit applicable to it for the year, determined without reference to this section, by the percentage so allocated to it by the Minister.

2015, c. 24, s. 31.

156.14.2. Subject to section 156.15, a qualified corporation for a taxation year that does not deduct any amount under section 156.14 for the year may deduct, in computing its income from a business for the year, an amount equal to the amount obtained by multiplying its gross revenue for the year by the additional deduction rate applicable to it for the year.

156.15. Despite sections 156.14 and 156.14.2, the amount of the deduction to which a corporation is entitled under each of those sections is equal, for a taxation year that ends in a calendar year, to the amount by which the amount of the deduction, determined without reference to this section, exceeds the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times [(B - $10{,}000{,}000)/$40{,}000{,}000].$$

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount of the deduction to which the corporation is entitled for the taxation year under section 156.14 or 156.14.2, as the case may be, determined without reference to this section; and

(b) B is,

i. if the corporation is not associated with any other corporation in the taxation year for the purposes of section 771.2.1.8, the corporation's paid-up capital determined as provided in section 771.2.1.9 for its preceding taxation year or, if the corporation is in its first fiscal period, on the basis of its financial statements prepared at the beginning of the fiscal period in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, and

ii. if the corporation is associated with one or more other corporations in the taxation year for the purposes of section 771.2.1.8, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is, for the corporation or any of the other corporations, the amount of its paid-up capital determined as provided in section 771.2.1.9 for its last taxation year ending in the preceding calendar year or, if the corporation is in its first fiscal period, on the basis of its financial statements prepared at the beginning of the fiscal period in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

2015, c. 21, s. 125; 2017, c. 29, s. 45; 2023, c. 19, s. 18.

DIVISION IX

OTHER DEDUCTIONS

1972, c. 23; 1977, c. 26, s. 16.

157. A taxpayer may deduct:

(a) (paragraph repealed);

(b) (paragraph repealed);

(c) despite section 128, an amount that the taxpayer pays to attend, in connection with the taxpayer's business, not more than two conventions held during the year by a business or professional organization at a place that may reasonably be regarded as consistent with the territorial scope of its activities;

(d) an amount, other than a commission, that is paid by the taxpayer to a person or a partnership for advice as to the advisability for the taxpayer of purchasing or selling a specific share or security or for services in respect of the administration or management of the taxpayer's shares or securities, if that person's or partnership's principal business is to so advise or includes the provision of such services;

(e) an amount that the taxpayer pays for investigating the suitability of a site for a building or other structure planned by the taxpayer for use in connection with a business carried on by the taxpayer;

(f) an amount that the taxpayer pays to a person with whom the taxpayer deals at arm's length for the purpose of making a service connection to the taxpayer's place of business for the supply, by means of wires, pipes or conduits, of water, electricity, gas, telephone service or sewers supplied by that person, to the extent that such amount is not paid to enable the taxpayer to acquire property or as consideration for the goods or services for the supply of which the service connection has been made;

(g) the proportion of an amount not otherwise deductible that was paid or that became payable by the taxpayer before the end of the year to a person for the cancellation of a lease of property of the taxpayer leased by the taxpayer to that person that the number of days that remained in the term of the lease, including all renewal periods of the lease, not exceeding 40 years, immediately before its cancellation and that were in the year is of the total number of days in any case if the property was owned at the end of the year by the taxpayer or by a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length and no part of the amount was deductible by the taxpayer under paragraph g.1 in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year;

(g.1*)* an amount not otherwise deductible that was paid or that became payable by the taxpayer before the end of the year to a person for the cancellation of a lease of property of the taxpayer leased by the taxpayer to that person, to the extent of that amount or, in the case of capital property, 1/2 of that amount that was not deductible by the taxpayer under paragraph g in computing the taxpayer's income for any preceding taxation year in any case if the property was not owned at the end of the year by the taxpayer or by a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, and no part of the amount was deductible by the taxpayer under this paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income for any preceding taxation year;

(h) an amount paid by the taxpayer for the landscaping of grounds around a building or other structure owned by the taxpayer and that the taxpayer uses primarily to gain income from it or from a business;

(h.1*)* an amount paid by the taxpayer in the year for prescribed renovations or alterations to a building that is used by the taxpayer primarily for the purpose of gaining or producing income from the property or from a business that are made to enable individuals who have a mobility impairment to gain access to the building or be mobile within it, to the extent that the amount was not deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year under paragraph h. 1.1;

(h.1.1*)* the portion of an amount paid by the taxpayer in the year for renovations or alterations to a building that is used by the taxpayer primarily for the purpose of gaining or producing income from the property or from a business, in respect of which an architect, an engineer or a professional technologist certifies in the prescribed form that the renovation or alteration work was carried out in accordance with the barrier-free design standards set out in the Construction Code (chapter B-1.1, r. 2);

(h.2*)* an amount paid by the taxpayer in the year for any prescribed disability-specific device or equipment;

(i) an amount paid by the taxpayer in the year as a levy under the Western Grain Stabilization Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. W-7), as a premium in respect of the gross revenue insurance program established under the Farm Income Protection Act (S.C. 1991, c. 22) or as an administration fee in respect of a net income stabilization account;

(i.1) an amount that is paid by the taxpayer in the year as a contribution under the Farm Income Stabilization Account program established under the Act respecting La Financière agricole du Québec (chapter L-0.1) and that is

i. a contribution referred to in section 15 of that program,

ii. an additional contribution referred to in section 16 of that program,

iii. a special contribution referred to in section 16.1 or 50 of that program, or

iv. a special contribution referred to in the first paragraph of section 50.1 of that program, where the special contribution is made by a partnership;

(j) (paragraph repealed);

(k) (paragraph repealed);

(k.1) a repayment in the year by the taxpayer of an amount the taxpayer is required by paragraph a of section 87 to include in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for the year or a preceding taxation year;

(l) any amount included by the taxpayer under paragraph q of section 87 in computing the taxpayer's income for the preceding taxation year;

(l.1) such part of any amount paid in the year by the taxpayer on an amount payable by the taxpayer under section 32 of the Tax Administration Act (chapter A-6.002) if that section applies to an excess in relation to this Part, or under a prescribed disposition and as may reasonably be considered to be a repayment of interest that the taxpayer included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year;

(m) the amount of any assistance or benefit received by the taxpayer in the year as a deduction from or reimbursement of an expense that is either a tax, other than the Québec sales tax or the goods and services tax, or royalty to the extent that

i. the tax or royalty is, by reason of the receipt of the amount by the taxpayer, not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, and

ii. the deduction or reimbursement was included by the taxpayer in the amount determined under paragraph e of section 399, paragraph h of section 412 or paragraph e of section 418.6;

(n) such portion claimed by the taxpayer of an amount that is an outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer before the end of the year that is a cost to the taxpayer of any substance injected before that time into a natural reservoir to assist in the recovery of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons to the extent that that portion was not otherwise deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for any preceding taxation year;

(n.1) the tax, if any, under Part III.14, under Part XII.6 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) or under a law of a province other than Québec under which tax similar to that payable under Part III. 14 is imposed, paid in the year or payable in respect of the year by the taxpayer, depending on the method regularly followed by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income;

(o) an amount repaid by the taxpayer in the year pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or part of a particular amount

i. included under paragraph w of section 87 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, or

ii. that is, by reason of subparagraph ii of paragraph w of section 87 or section 87.4, not included in computing the taxpayer's income under paragraph w for the year or a preceding taxation year, if the particular amount relates to an outlay or expense, other than an outlay or expense described in section 157.2.1, that would have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year were it not for the receipt of the particular amount;

(o.1) 3/4 of any amount repaid by the taxpayer in the year, on or after the time the taxpayer ceases to carry on a business, pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or part of an amount the taxpayer received or was entitled to receive that was assistance from a government, municipality or other public authority (whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, investment allowance or as any other form of assistance) in respect of, or for the acquisition of, property the cost of which was an incorporeal capital amount of the taxpayer in respect of the business, within the meaning of section 106, as it read before being repealed, if the incorporeal capital amount of the taxpayer in respect of the business was reduced under paragraph b of section 106.2, as it read before being repealed, because of the amount of the assistance the taxpayer received or was entitled to receive;

(p) any deferred amount under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of another person to the extent that the deferred amount is in respect of services rendered to the taxpayer and is included under section 37 as a benefit in computing the income of the other person for the taxation year of the other person that ends in the taxpayer's taxation year;

(q) any amount under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of another person, other than an arrangement established primarily for the benefit of one or more employees not resident in Canada in respect of services to be rendered outside Canada, to the extent that the amount was in respect of services rendered to the taxpayer and was included under section 47.10 in computing the income of the other person for the taxation year of the other person that ends in the taxpayer's taxation year;

(r) a contribution made in the year by the taxpayer to an environmental trust under which the taxpayer is a beneficiary;

(s) the consideration paid by the taxpayer in the year for the acquisition from another person or partnership of all or part of the taxpayer's interest as a beneficiary under an environmental trust, other than consideration that is the assumption of a reclamation obligation in respect of the trust;

(t) any amount deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year because of paragraph a of section 485.15 or section 485.27; and

(u) an amount paid in the year by the taxpayer as or on account of an existing or proposed countervailing or anti-dumping duty in respect of property other than depreciable property.

157.2.0.1. For the purposes of paragraph n of section 157, where the year referred to therein is less than 51 weeks, the amount that may be claimed under the said paragraph by the taxpayer for the year shall not exceed the greater of

(a) that proportion of the maximum amount that may otherwise be claimed under the said paragraph n by the taxpayer for the year that the number of days in the year is of 365, and

(b) the amount of such outlay or expense described in that paragraph n that was made or incurred by the taxpayer in the year and not otherwise deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

157.2.2. There may be deducted in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year in respect of a derivative forward agreement, the amount determined by the formula

A - B.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the lesser of

i. the total of all amounts each of which is

(1) if the taxpayer acquires a property under the agreement in the year or a preceding taxation year, the portion of the amount by which the cost to the taxpayer of the property exceeds the fair market value of the property at the time it is acquired by the taxpayer that is attributable to an underlying interest other than an underlying interest referred to in any of subparagraphs i to iii of paragraph b of the definition of "derivative forward agreement" in section 1, or

(2) if the taxpayer disposes of a property under the agreement in the year or a preceding taxation year, the portion of the amount by which the fair market value of the property at the time the agreement is entered into by the taxpayer exceeds the proceeds of disposition, within the meaning of section 251, of the property that is attributable to an underlying interest other than an underlying interest referred to in any of subparagraphs 1 to 3 of subparagraph i of paragraph c of the definition of "derivative forward agreement" in section 1, and

ii. the amount that is,

(1) if final settlement of the agreement occurs in the year and it cannot reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for entering into the agreement is to obtain a deduction under this section, the amount determined under subparagraph i, or

(2) in any other case, the total of all amounts included in computing the taxpayer's income under paragraph z.7 of section 87 in respect of the agreement for the year or a preceding taxation year; and

(b) B is the total of all amounts deducted under this section in respect of the agreement for a preceding taxation year.

2015, c. 24, s. 32; 2021, c. 14, s. 28.

157.3. Where a taxpayer in a particular taxation year receives an amount under an annuity contract in respect of which an amount was by virtue of section 92 included in computing his income for a taxation year commencing before 1 January 1983, there may be deducted in computing his income for the particular year such amount as is allowed by regulation.

157.4. A taxpayer who has acquired as the first purchaser a film certified as a Québec film within the meaning of the regulations made under section 130, may deduct, in computing his income for a taxation year at the end of which he is the owner of that film and has been so without interruption from that acquisition, an amount not exceeding the amount by which 50% of the aggregate of the amounts deducted by him in computing his income for that year or for a previous taxation year, in respect of the film, under paragraph a of section 130 exceeds any amount deducted under this section, in respect of the film, in computing his income for a previous taxation year.

Furthermore, where the taxpayer disposes of the film for the first time, he may deduct, in computing his income for the taxation year in which he disposes of the film, the amount by which 50% of the aggregate of the amount he could have deducted in such computation, in respect of the film, under paragraph a of section 130, had it not been for the disposition, and the amounts deducted by him in computing his income for a previous taxation year, in respect of the film, under the said paragraph a, exceeds any amount deducted under this section, in respect of the film, in computing his income for a previous taxation year.

157.4.1. Where a taxpayer is a member of a partnership at the end of a particular fiscal period of that partnership during which it acquired as the first purchaser a film certified as a Québec film within the meaning of the regulations made under section 130, he may deduct, in computing his income for a taxation year in which a fiscal period of the partnership ends and at the end of which he is a member thereof and has been a member without interruption from the end of the particular fiscal year, an amount not exceeding the amount by which his share of 50% of the aggregate of the amounts deducted by the partnership in computing its income for that fiscal period or a previous fiscal period, in respect of the film, under paragraph a of section 130, exceeds any amount deducted by the taxpayer under this section or section 157.4, in respect of the film, in computing his income for a previous taxation year.

Furthermore, where the partnership disposes of the film for the first time, the taxpayer contemplated in the first paragraph may deduct, in computing his income for the taxation year in which the fiscal period of the partnership ends and during which the disposition occurs, the amount by which his share of 50% of the aggregate of the amount that the partnership could have deducted in computing its income for that fiscal period, in respect of the film, under paragraph a of section 130, had it not been for the disposition, and the amounts deducted by the partnership in computing its income for a previous fiscal period, in respect of the film, under the said paragraph a, exceeds any amount deducted by the taxpayer under this section or section 157.4, in respect of the film, in computing his income for a previous taxation year.

For the purposes of this section, the share of a taxpayer is deemed to be equal to the lesser of:

(a) his share in the profits of the partnership determined in the absence of this paragraph; and

(b) his share in the profits of the partnership determined in respect of the fiscal period of the partnership during which it acquired the film.

1984, c. 35, s. 12; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

157.4.2. Notwithstanding sections 157.4 and 157.4.1, no amount may be deducted under those sections in computing the income of a taxpayer in respect of a film certified as a Québec film, within the meaning of the regulations under section 130, acquired after 31 December 1986, except in respect of the first purchaser of such a film certified as a Québec film by the Société générale du cinéma du Québec not later than 31 December 1987 where

(a) production work on the film was sufficiently advanced on 11 December 1986, or

(b) the sums collected for that purpose were collected through the sale of units in respect of which the receipt for the final prospectus was issued not later than 31 December 1986 and the receipt for the preliminary prospectus was issued before 11 December 1986.

1988, c. 4, s. 27.

157.4.3. Notwithstanding sections 157.4 to 157.4.2, no individual may deduct any amount under the said sections in computing his income for a taxation year from his taxation year 1988.

1989, c. 5, s. 48.

157.5. Where a taxpayer disposes of an interest in a life insurance policy that is not an annuity contract, otherwise than as a consequence of a death, or of an interest in an annuity contract, other than a prescribed annuity contract, there may be deducted in computing his income for the taxation year in which the disposition occurs an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that was included by virtue of sections 92.11 to 92.19 or paragraph c.1 of section 312 in respect of that interest in computing his income for the year or any preceding taxation year, and

(b) the amount by which the adjusted cost basis, within the meaning assigned by sections 976 to 977.1, to him of that interest immediately before the disposition exceeds the proceeds of the disposition, within the meaning assigned by paragraph b.4 of section 966, of the interest that the policyholder, a beneficiary or an assignee became entitled to receive.

157.6. Where a taxpayer disposes of a property that is a right in a debt obligation for consideration equal to its fair market value at the time of disposition, there may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year in which the disposition occurs the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which was included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year as interest on the property exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

(a) such portion of an amount that was received or became receivable by him in the year or in a preceding taxation year as can reasonably be considered to be in respect of an amount that was included in computing his income for the year or a preceding taxation year as interest on the property and that was not repaid by the taxpayer to the issuer of the debt obligation because of an adjustment in respect of interest received before the time of disposition by the taxpayer, or

(b) an amount in respect of the property that was deductible by him by virtue of the second paragraph of section 167 in computing his income for the year or a preceding taxation year.

157.6.1. An insurer may, in computing the income of the insurer for a taxation year, deduct the amount included under paragraph e.1 of section 87 by the insurer in computing the insurer's income for the preceding taxation year.

157.10. Where an amount is included under paragraph a of section 87 in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year in respect of an undertaking to which subparagraph i or ii of that paragraph applies and the taxpayer paid a reasonable amount in a particular taxation year to another person as consideration for the assumption by that other person of the taxpayer's obligations in respect of the undertaking, the following rules apply if the taxpayer and the other person make a valid election under subsection 24 of section 20 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in relation to the undertaking:

(a) the payment may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular year;

(b) no amount is deductible under section 150 or 150.1 in computing the taxpayer's income for the particular year or any subsequent taxation year in respect of the undertaking; and

(c) where the amount was received by the other person in carrying on a business, it is deemed to be an amount described in subparagraph i or ii of paragraph a of section 87.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 24 of section 20 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

157.13. In computing a taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year ending before the time at which a building or a part thereof acquired after 31 December 1989 by the taxpayer has become available for use by the taxpayer, there may be deducted an amount not exceeding the amount by which

(a) the lesser of

i. the amount that would have been deductible under paragraph a of section 130 for the year in respect of the building if section 93.6 were not applicable, and

ii. the taxpayer's income for the year from renting the building, computed without reference to this section and before deducting any amount in respect of the building under paragraph a of section 130, exceeds

(b) the amount deductible for the year under paragraph a of section 130 in respect of the building, computed without reference to this section.

The amount deducted under the first paragraph is deemed to be an amount deducted by the taxpayer by reason of paragraph a of section 130 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

1993, c. 16, s. 86.

157.14. Where, by reason of section 135.4, no amount would, but for this section, be deductible by a taxpayer in respect of an outlay or expense in respect of a building, or part thereof, and the outlay or expense would, but for section 135.4 and this section, be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, there may be deducted in respect of such an outlay or expense in computing the taxpayer's income for the year an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is such an outlay or expense, and

(b) the taxpayer's income for the year from renting the building or the part thereof, computed without reference to section 157.13 and this section.

1993, c. 16, s. 86.

157.15. Notwithstanding sections 128 and 133, a taxpayer may deduct, in computing the income of the taxpayer from a business for a taxation year, the portion, which can reasonably be attributed to a plan for the insurance of persons, otherwise than in relation to coverage against the loss of all or part of the income from a business, of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the total contribution relating to work performed in connection with that business and payable by the taxpayer for a period in the year, otherwise than because of a previous, the current or an intended office or employment of another person, to the administrator of a multi-employer insurance plan, within the meaning of section 43.1, and of the tax, within the meaning of subparagraph d of the second paragraph of section 37.0.1.1, relating thereto.

1995, c. 63, s. 31; 1998, c. 16, s. 98.

157.16. A corporation may, in computing its income for a taxation year, deduct an additional amount equal to half the contribution, otherwise deductible in computing its income from a business, that is made in the year by the corporation to the Réseau d'investissement social du Québec.

1999, c. 83, s. 43.

157.17. Where a corporation is a member of a partnership at the end of a fiscal period of the partnership during which the partnership made a contribution to the Réseau d'investissement social du Québec, the corporation may, in computing its income for a taxation year in which that fiscal period ends, deduct an amount equal to half the corporation's share of the contribution, otherwise deductible in computing the income of the partnership from a business.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, the share of a corporation in a contribution made by a partnership of which the corporation is a member is equal to the agreed proportion of the contribution in respect of the corporation for the fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the taxation year of the corporation.

157.17.1. For the purposes of section 157.17, the following rules apply in respect of a corporation if one or more partnerships (each of which is in this section referred to as an "interposed partnership") are interposed between the corporation and a given partnership, for a given fiscal period of the given partnership:

(a) the corporation is deemed to be a member of a particular partnership at the end of a particular fiscal period of the particular partnership and that particular fiscal period is deemed to end in the corporation's taxation year in which ends the fiscal period of the interposed partnership of which it is directly a member, if

i. the particular fiscal period is that which ends in the fiscal period (in this section referred to as the "interposed fiscal period") of the interposed partnership that is a member of the particular partnership at the end of that particular fiscal period, and

ii. the corporation is a member, or deemed to be a member under this paragraph, of the interposed partnership described in subparagraph i at the end of the interposed partnership's interposed fiscal period; and

(b) for the purpose of determining the corporation's share in an amount in respect of the given partnership for the given fiscal period, the agreed proportion in respect of the corporation for that fiscal period of the given partnership is deemed to be equal to the product obtained by multiplying the agreed proportion in respect of the corporation for the interposed fiscal period of the interposed partnership of which it is directly a member, by

i. if there is only one interposed partnership, the agreed proportion in respect of the interposed partnership for the given partnership's given fiscal period, or

ii. if there is more than one interposed partnership, the result obtained by multiplying together all proportions each of which is the agreed proportion in respect of an interposed partnership for the particular fiscal period of the particular partnership referred to in paragraph a of which the interposed partnership is a member at the end of that particular fiscal period.

2009, c. 15, s. 60.

157.17.2. Section 157.17.1 does not apply in respect of a corporation, in relation to a given partnership, if the Minister is of the opinion that the interposition, between the corporation and the given partnership, of one or more other partnerships is part of an operation or transaction or of a series of operations or transactions, one of the purposes of which is to cause the corporation to be able to deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year under section 157.17, an amount greater than the amount that the corporation could have so deducted for that taxation year, but for that interposition.

DIVISION X

SOCIAL BENEFIT PLANS

1972, c. 23.

158. An employer shall not deduct, for the purposes of this chapter, an amount which he pays to a trustee:

(a) under a supplementary unemployment benefit plan, except to the extent allowed under section 964;

(b) under a deferred profit sharing plan, except to the extent provided in section 881;

(c) on behalf of his employees or those of a corporation with whom he does not deal at arm's length under a profit sharing plan except to the extent provided for in section 856.

1972, c. 23, s. 146; 1973, c. 17, s. 13; 1991, c. 25, s. 51; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

DIVISION X.1

EXPENDITURES MATCHABLE WITH A RIGHT TO RECEIVE PRODUCTION

2001, c. 7, s. 26.

158.1. In this division,

"matchable expenditure" of a taxpayer means the amount of an expenditure that is made by the taxpayer to

(a) acquire a right to receive production;

(b) fulfil a covenant or obligation in circumstances in which it is reasonable to consider that a relationship exists between the covenant or obligation and a right to receive production; or

(c) preserve or protect a right to receive production;

"right to receive production" means a right under which a taxpayer is entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive an amount all or a portion of which is established by reference to use of property, production, revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price, cost or value of property or any other similar criterion or by reference to dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares where the amount is in respect of another taxpayer's activity, property or business but such a right does not include an income interest in a trust, a Canadian resource property or a foreign resource property;

"tax benefit" means a reduction, avoidance or deferral of tax or other amount payable under this Act or an increase in a refund of tax or other amount under this Act;

"tax shelter" means a property that would be a tax shelter, as defined in section 1079.1, if

(a) the cost of a right to receive production were equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a matchable expenditure to which the right relates; and

(b) sections 158.2 to 158.12 did not apply for the purpose of computing an amount, or in the case of a partnership a loss, represented to be deductible;

"taxpayer" includes a partnership.

For the purposes of the definition of "matchable expenditure" in the first paragraph, the amount of an expenditure that a taxpayer may deduct in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year under this chapter, otherwise than under this division, is not a matchable expenditure.

2001, c. 7, s. 26; 2003, c. 2, s. 51.

158.2. Subject to section 158.3, no amount of a matchable expenditure may be deducted by a taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year.

2001, c. 7, s. 26.

158.3. If a taxpayer's matchable expenditure would, but for section 158.2 and this section, be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, the taxpayer may deduct in respect of the matchable expenditure in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year the amount that is determined under section 158.4 for the year in respect of the expenditure.

2001, c. 7, s. 26.

158.4. The amount to which section 158.3 refers for a taxation year in respect of a taxpayer's matchable expenditure is the amount that is the least of

(a) the aggregate of the amount by which the amount determined under this subparagraph for the preceding taxation year in respect of the matchable expenditure exceeds the amount of the matchable expenditure deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year and the lesser of

i. 1/5 of the matchable expenditure, and

ii. the amount determined by the formula

(A / B) × C;

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, other than any portion of such amount that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act, in respect of the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates and the amount by which the amount determined under this subparagraph for the preceding taxation year in respect of the matchable expenditure exceeds the amount of the matchable expenditure deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year; and

(c) the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of the matchable expenditure that would, but for this division, have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of the matchable expenditure deductible under section 158.3 in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year.

In the formula provided for in subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the number of months that are in the taxation year and after the day on which the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates is acquired;

(b) B is the lesser of 240 and the number of months that are in the period that begins on the day on which the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates is acquired and that ends on the day the right is to terminate; and

(c) C is the amount of the matchable expenditure.

2001, c. 7, s. 26.

158.5. For the purposes of this division, the following rules apply:

(a) where a taxpayer's matchable expenditure is made before the day on which the related right to receive production is acquired by the taxpayer, the expenditure is deemed to have been made on that day;

(b) where a taxpayer has one or more rights to renew a particular right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure relates for one or more additional terms, after the term that includes the time at which the particular right was acquired, the particular right is deemed to terminate on the latest day on which the latest possible such term could terminate if all rights to renew the particular right were exercised;

(c) where a taxpayer has more than one right to receive production that can reasonably be considered to be related to each other, the rights are deemed to be one right; and

(d) where the term of a taxpayer's right to receive production is for an indeterminate period, the right is deemed to terminate 20 years after it is acquired.

2001, c. 7, s. 26.

158.6. Where in a taxation year a taxpayer disposes of all or part of a right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure relates, the proceeds of the disposition shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

2001, c. 7, s. 26.

158.7. Subject to sections 158.8 and 158.9, the amount that a taxpayer may deduct, under section 158.3, in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, in respect of a matchable expenditure, other than a matchable expenditure no portion of which would, if this division were read without reference to this section, be deductible under section 158.3 in computing the taxpayer's income, is deemed to be the amount determined under subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 158.4 for the year in respect of the matchable expenditure where in the year

(a) the taxpayer disposes, otherwise than in a disposition to which subsections 1 and 2 of section 544 or sections 556 to 564.1 and 565 apply, of all of the taxpayer's right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates; or

(b) the taxpayer's right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates has expired.

2001, c. 7, s. 26.

158.8. Section 158.9 applies where a taxpayer's particular right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure, other than a matchable expenditure no portion of which would, if this division were read without reference to sections 158.7 and 158.9, be deductible under section 158.3 in computing the taxpayer's income, relates has expired or the taxpayer has disposed of all of the right, otherwise than in a disposition to which subsections 1 and 2 of section 544 or sections 556 to 564.1 and 565 apply, and

(a) where

i. during the period that begins 30 days before and ends 30 days after the disposition or expiry, the taxpayer or a person affiliated, or who does not deal at arm's length, with the taxpayer acquires a right to receive production, in this section and section 158.9 referred to as the "substituted property", that is, or is identical to, the particular right, and

ii. at the end of the period referred to in subparagraph i, the taxpayer or a person affiliated, or who does not deal at arm's length, with the taxpayer owns the substituted property; or

(b) during the period that begins at the time of the disposition or expiry and ends 30 days after that time, a taxpayer that had an interest, directly or indirectly, in the right to receive production has another interest, directly or indirectly, in another right to receive production, which other interest is a tax shelter or a tax shelter investment as defined by section 851.38.

158.9. Where this section applies because of section 158.8 to a disposition or expiry in a taxation year or a preceding taxation year of a taxpayer's right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure relates, the following rules apply:

(a) the amount that may be deducted under section 158.3 in respect of the expenditure in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ends at or after the disposition or expiry of the right is the amount determined under section 158.4 for the year in respect of the expenditure; and

(b) the amount determined under section 158.4 in respect of the expenditure for a taxation year is deemed to be the amount determined under subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 158.4 in respect of the expenditure for the year where the year includes the time that is immediately before the first time, after the disposition or expiry,

i. at which the right would, if it were owned by the taxpayer, be deemed by Chapter I of Title I.1 of Book VI or section 999.1 to have been disposed of by the taxpayer,

ii. that is immediately before the taxpayer is subject to a loss restriction event,

iii. at which winding-up of the taxpayer begins, other than a winding-up to which sections 556 to 564.1 and 565 apply, if the taxpayer is a corporation,

iv. where section 158.8 applies otherwise than because of paragraph b thereof, at which a 30-day period begins throughout which neither the taxpayer nor a person affiliated, or who does not deal at arm's length, with the taxpayer owns the substituted property, or a property that is identical to the substituted property and that was acquired after the day that is 31 days before the period began, or

v. where section 158.8 applies otherwise than because of paragraph a thereof, at which a 30-day period begins throughout which no taxpayer who had an interest, directly or indirectly, in the right has an interest, directly or indirectly, in another right to receive production if one or more of those direct or indirect interests in the other right is a tax shelter or tax shelter investment as defined by section 851.38.

158.10. For the purposes of paragraph b of section 158.9, where a partnership ceases to exist at any time after a disposition or expiry referred to in section 158.9, the partnership is deemed not to have ceased to exist, and each taxpayer who was a member of the partnership immediately before the partnership would, but for this section, have ceased to exist is deemed to remain a member of the partnership until the time that is immediately after the first of the times described in subparagraphs i to v of paragraph b of section 158.9.

158.11. For the purpose of applying section 158.8, otherwise than because of paragraph b thereof, and section 158.9, a right to acquire a particular right to receive production, other than a right, as security only, derived from a hypothec, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar obligation, is deemed to be a right to receive production that is identical to the particular right.

2001, c. 7, s. 26; 2005, c. 1, s. 64.

158.12. For the purpose of applying Title VIII of Book VI to an amount that would, if this division were read without reference to this section, be a matchable expenditure any portion of the cost of which is deductible under section 158.3, the expenditure is deemed to be a tax shelter investment and that Title VIII shall be read without reference to paragraph b of section 851.41.

2001, c. 7, s. 26.

158.13. Where the rate of return on a taxpayer's right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure, other than a matchable expenditure no portion of which would, if this division were read without reference to this section, be deductible under section 158.3 in computing the taxpayer's income, relates is reasonably certain at the time the taxpayer acquires the right, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purposes of section 92.5 and the regulations made under that section,

i. the right is deemed to be a debt obligation in respect of which no interest is stipulated to be payable in respect of the principal amount, and

ii. the obligation is deemed to be satisfied at the time the right terminates for an amount equal to the total of the return on the debt obligation and the amount that would otherwise be the matchable expenditure that is related to the right; and

(b) notwithstanding section 158.3, no amount may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income in respect of any matchable expenditure that relates to the right.

2001, c. 7, s. 26.

158.14. Sections 158.2 to 158.12 do not apply to a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) no portion of the expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person or partnership with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right to receive production from the other taxpayer and

i. no portion of the expenditure can reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter or a tax shelter investment, within the meaning of section 851.38, and

ii. none of the main purposes for making the expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been to obtain a tax benefit for the taxpayer, a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, or a person or partnership that holds, directly or indirectly, an interest in the taxpayer; or

(b) the expenditure is in respect of commissions or other expenses related to the issuance of an insurance policy for which all or a portion of a risk has been ceded to the taxpayer and both the taxpayer and the person to whom the expenditure is made or is to be made are insurers subject to the supervision of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions of Canada, in the case of an insurer that is required by law to report to the Superintendent of Financial Institutions of Canada, or where the insurer is an insurance corporation incorporated under the laws of a province, the superintendent of insurance or another officer or authority of that province or the Autorité des marchés financiers.

158.15. Subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 158.4 does not apply in determining the amount that a taxpayer may deduct for a taxation year in respect of a matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) before the end of the taxation year in which the expenditure is made, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, other than the portion of such an amount that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act, in respect of the right to receive production that relates to the matchable expenditure exceeds 80% of the expenditure; and

(b) no portion of the expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person or partnership with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right to receive production from the other taxpayer.

2009, c. 5, s. 64.

DIVISION X.2

STAPLED SECURITIES

2017, c. 1, s. 95.

158.16. In this division,

"entity" has the meaning assigned by the first paragraph of section 1129.70;

"equity value" has the meaning assigned by the first paragraph of section 1129.70;

"real estate investment trust" has the meaning assigned by the first paragraph of section 1129.70;

"security", of an entity, means

(a) a liability of the entity;

(b) if the entity is a corporation,

i. a share of the capital stock of the corporation, and

ii. a right to control in any manner whatever the voting rights of a share of the capital stock of the corporation if it can reasonably be concluded that one of the reasons that a person or partnership holds the right to control is to avoid the application of the second paragraph of section 92.31 or section 158.18;

(c) if the entity is a trust, a capital or income interest in the trust; and

(d) if the entity is a partnership, an interest as a member of the partnership;

"stapled security", of a particular entity at a particular time, means a particular security of the particular entity if at that time

(a) another security (in this division referred to as the "reference security")

i. is or may be required to be transferred together or concurrently with the particular security as a term or condition of the particular security, the reference security, or an agreement or arrangement to which the particular entity (or if the reference security is a security of another entity, the other entity) is a party, or

ii. is listed or traded with the particular security on a stock exchange or other public market under a single trading symbol;

(b) the particular security or the reference security is listed or traded on a stock exchange or other public market; and

(c) any of the following subparagraphs applies:

i. the particular security and the reference security are securities of the particular entity and the particular entity is a corporation, SIFT partnership or SIFT trust,

ii. the reference security is a security of another entity, one of the particular entity or the other entity is a subsidiary of the other, and the particular entity or the other entity is a corporation, SIFT partnership or SIFT trust, or

iii. the reference security is a security of another entity and the particular entity or the other entity is a real estate investment trust or a subsidiary of a real estate investment trust;

"subsidiary", of a particular entity at a particular time, means

(a) any entity in which the particular entity holds at the particular time securities that have a total fair market value greater than the amount that is 10% of the equity value of the entity; or

(b) an entity that at that time is a subsidiary of an entity that is a subsidiary of the particular entity;

"transition period", in relation to an entity, means

(a) if one or more securities of the entity would have been stapled securities of the entity on 31 October 2006 and 19 July 2011 had the definition of "stapled security" had effect from 31 October 2006, the period that begins on 20 July 2011 and ends on the earliest of

i. 1 January 2016,

ii. the first day after 20 July 2011 on which any of those securities is materially altered, and

iii. the day described in the second paragraph;

(b) if paragraph a does not apply in respect of the entity and one or more securities of the entity would have been stapled securities on 19 July 2011 had the definition of "stapled security" had effect from that date, the period that begins on 20 July 2011 and ends on the earliest of

i. 20 July 2012,

ii. the first day after 20 July 2011 on which any of those securities is materially altered, and

iii. the day described in the second paragraph; and

(c) in any other case, if the entity is a subsidiary of another entity on 20 July 2011 and the other entity has a transition period, the period that begins on 20 July 2011 and ends on the earliest of

i. the day on which the other entity's transition period ends,

ii. the first day after 20 July 2011 on which the entity ceases to be a subsidiary of the other entity, and

iii. the day described in the second paragraph.

The day to which subparagraph iii of paragraphs a to c of the definition of "transition period" in the first paragraph refers is the first day after 20 July 2011 on which a security of the entity becomes a stapled security other than by way of

(a) a transaction that is completed under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into before 20 July 2011 if no party to the agreement may be excused from completing the transaction as a result of amendments to the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), and that is not the issuance of a security in satisfaction of a right to enforce payment of an amount by the entity; or

(b) the issuance of the security in satisfaction of a right to enforce payment of an amount that became payable by the entity on another security of the entity before 20 July 2011, if the other security was a stapled security on 20 July 2011 and the issuance was made under a term or condition of the other security in effect on that date.

158.17. Where a receipt or similar property (in this section referred to as the "receipt") represents all or a portion of a particular security of an entity and the receipt would be described in paragraphs a and b of the definition of "stapled security" in the first paragraph of section 158.16 if it were a security of the entity, the following rules apply for the purpose of determining whether the particular security is a stapled security:

(a) the particular security is deemed to be described in those paragraphs a and b; and

(b) any security that would be a reference security in respect of the receipt is deemed to be a reference security in respect of the particular security.

2017, c. 1, s. 95.

158.18. Despite any other provision of this Act, in computing the income of a particular entity for a taxation year from a business or property, no deduction may be made in respect of an amount

(a) that is paid or payable after 19 July 2011, unless the amount is paid or payable in respect of the particular entity's transition period; and

(b) that is

i. interest paid or payable on a liability of the particular entity that is a stapled security, unless each reference security in respect of the stapled security is a liability, or

ii. if a security of the particular entity, a subsidiary of the particular entity or an entity of which the particular entity is a subsidiary is a reference security in respect of a stapled security of a real estate investment trust or a subsidiary of a real estate investment trust, an amount paid or payable to

(1) the real estate investment trust,

(2) a subsidiary of the real estate investment trust, or

(3) any person or partnership on condition that any person or partnership pays or makes payable an amount to the real estate investment trust or a subsidiary of the real estate investment trust.

2017, c. 1, s. 95.

DIVISION XI

RESTRICTIONS ON ADVERTISING EXPENSES

1972, c. 23.

§ 1. — Canadian newspapers

2003, c. 2, s. 53.

159. In this subdivision,

"Canadian citizen" includes the following persons and entities:

(a) a corporation or trust described in paragraph c.1 or d of section 998 formed in connection with a pension plan that exists for the benefit of individuals a majority of whom are Canadian citizens;

(b) a trust described in paragraph h or i.1 of section 998 the annuitant in respect of which is a Canadian citizen;

(c) a mutual fund trust, other than a mutual fund trust the majority of the units of which are held by citizens or subjects of a country other than Canada;

(d) a trust, each beneficiary of which is a person, partnership, association or society described in any of paragraphs a to e of the definition of "Canadian newspaper" ; and

(e) an association, society or person described in paragraph c or d of the definition of "Canadian newspaper" ;

"Canadian issue" of a newspaper means an issue, including a special issue, that is typeset, printed and published in Canada and that is edited in Canada by individuals resident in Canada;

"Canadian newspaper" means a newspaper the exclusive right to produce and publish issues of which is held by one or more of the following persons or entities:

(a) a Canadian citizen;

(b) a partnership in which interests representing in value at least 3/4 of the total value of the partnership property are beneficially owned by one or more corporations described in paragraph e, one or more Canadian citizens or any combination thereof, and at least 3/4 of each income or loss of the partnership from any source is included in computing the income of one or more of those persons;

(c) an association or society of which at least 3/4 of the members are Canadian citizens;

(d) the State, Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, other than Québec, or a municipality in Canada;

(e) a corporation that is incorporated under the laws of Canada or a province of which the chairperson or other presiding officer and at least 3/4 of the directors or other similar officers are Canadian citizens and that, if it is a corporation having capital stock, is

i. a public corporation a class or classes of shares of the capital stock of which are listed on a designated stock exchange located in Canada other than a corporation controlled by citizens or subjects of a country other than Canada, or

ii. a corporation of which at least 3/4 of the shares having full voting rights under all circumstances, and shares having a fair market value of at least 3/4 of the fair market value of all of the issued shares of the corporation, are beneficially owned by Canadian citizens or by public corporations a class or classes of shares of the capital stock of which are listed on a designated stock exchange located in Canada, other than a public corporation controlled by citizens or subjects of a country other than Canada;

"United States" means

(a) the United States of America, but does not include Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam or any other United States territory or possession; and

(b) any areas beyond the territorial seas of the United States within which, in accordance with international law and its domestic laws, the United States may exercise rights with respect to the sea-bed and subsoil and the natural resources of those areas.

For the purposes of the definition of "Canadian issue" in the first paragraph, a newspaper issue is a Canadian issue of that newspaper even if the type for the advertisements and features is not set in Canada and if the comics supplements of that issue are not printed in Canada.

For the purposes of subparagraph ii of paragraph e of the definition of "Canadian newspaper" in the first paragraph, the following rules apply:

(a) where shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or deemed under this paragraph to be owned, at any time by another corporation, other than a public corporation a class or classes of shares of the capital stock of which are listed on a designated stock exchange located in Canada, each shareholder of that other corporation shall be deemed to own at that time that proportion of the number of such shares of that class that the fair market value of the shares of the capital stock of the other corporation owned at that time by the shareholder is of the fair market value of all the issued shares of the capital stock of the other corporation outstanding at that time; and

(b) where at any time shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation are owned, or deemed under this paragraph to be owned, by a partnership, each member of the partnership shall be deemed to own at that time the least proportion of the number of such shares of that class that the member's share of the income or loss of the partnership from any source for its fiscal period that includes that time is of the income or loss of the partnership from that source for its fiscal period that includes that time.

For the purposes of subparagraph b of the third paragraph, where the income and loss of a partnership from any source for a fiscal period are nil, the partnership shall be deemed to have had income from that source for that fiscal period in the amount of $1,000,000.

159.1. Where the right to produce or publish a newspaper is held by a person, partnership, association or society described in the definition of "Canadian newspaper" in section 159 on behalf of a trust or a succession, the newspaper is not a Canadian newspaper unless each beneficiary under the trust or succession is a person, partnership, association or society described in that definition.

159.2. A newspaper is deemed to be a Canadian newspaper until the end of the twelfth month that follows the month in which it would, but for this section, cease to be a Canadian newspaper.

2003, c. 2, s. 55.

159.3. Where at any time one or more persons or entities that are not described in any of paragraphs a to e of the definition of "Canadian newspaper" in section 159 have any direct or indirect influence that, if exercised, would result in control in fact of a person or entity that holds a right to produce or publish issues of a newspaper, the newspaper is deemed not to be a Canadian newspaper at that time.

2003, c. 2, s. 55.

159.4. In computing income, no deduction shall be made by a taxpayer in respect of an otherwise deductible outlay or expense of the taxpayer for advertising space in an issue of a newspaper for an advertisement directed primarily to a market in Canada unless

(a) the issue is a Canadian issue of a Canadian newspaper; and

(b) the issue would be a Canadian issue of a Canadian newspaper were it not that the issue was typeset or printed entirely in the United States or partly in the United States and partly in Canada.

2003, c. 2, s. 55.

159.5. Section 159.4 does not apply in respect of an advertisement in a special issue or edition of a newspaper that is edited in whole or in part and printed and published outside Canada if that special issue or edition is devoted to features or news related primarily to Canada and the publishers thereof publish such issue or edition not more frequently than twice a year.

2003, c. 2, s. 55.

§ 2. — Periodicals

2003, c. 2, s. 55.

159.6. In this subdivision,

"advertisement directed at the Canadian market" has the meaning assigned by subsection 1 of section 19.01 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement);

"author" includes a writer, a journalist, an illustrator and a photographer;

"original editorial content" of an issue of a periodical means non-advertising content

(a) the author of which is a Canadian citizen or a permanent resident within the meaning of the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act (Statutes of Canada, 2001, chapter 27); or

(b) that is created for the Canadian market and has not been published in any other edition of that issue published outside Canada;

"periodical" has the meaning assigned by subsection 1 of section 19.01 of the Income Tax Act.

For the purposes of the definition of "original editorial content" in the first paragraph, the following rules apply:

(a) where an issue of a periodical is published in several versions, each version is an edition of that issue; and

(b) where an issue of a periodical is published in only one version, that version is an edition of that issue.

2003, c. 2, s. 55; 2007, c. 12, s. 42.

159.7. A taxpayer may deduct in computing income, in respect of an outlay or expense of the taxpayer for advertising space in an issue of a periodical for an advertisement directed at the Canadian market, only 1/2 of the amount of that outlay or expense if

(a) the space occupied by the original editorial content in the issue is less than 80% of the space occupied by the total non-advertising content in the issue; and

(b) the outlay or expense would, but for this section, be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income.

2003, c. 2, s. 55.

§ 3. — Broadcasting

2003, c. 2, s. 55.

159.8. In this subdivision,

"foreign broadcasting undertaking" means a broadcasting undertaking or a network operation located outside Canada or on a ship or aircraft not registered in Canada;

"operation of a broadcasting network" includes any activity involving two or more broadcasting undertakings whereby control over all or any part of the programs or program schedules of any of the broadcasting undertakings is delegated to a network operator.

2003, c. 2, s. 55.

159.9. In computing income, no deduction shall be made by a taxpayer in respect of an outlay or expense of the taxpayer for an advertisement directed primarily to a market in Canada and broadcast by a foreign broadcasting undertaking.

2003, c. 2, s. 55.

DIVISION XII

INTEREST AND CERTAIN PROPERTY TAXES

1972, c. 23; 2004, c. 21, s. 61.

160. A taxpayer may deduct the lesser of a reasonable amount and the amount paid in the year or payable in respect of the year, depending on the method that he regularly follows in computing his income, pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest on:

(a) borrowed money used to earn income from a business or property;

(b) an amount payable for property acquired to gain or produce income from it or from a business;

(c) an amount paid to the taxpayer under a law to advance or sustain the technological capacity of any industry or for any other reason, to the extent prescribed; or

(d) borrowed money used to acquire an interest in an annuity contract in respect of which sections 92.11 to 92.19 apply, or would apply if the contract had an anniversary day in the year at a time when the taxpayer held the interest, except that, where annuity payments have commenced under the contract in a preceding taxation year, the amount of interest paid or payable in the year shall not be deducted to the extent that it exceeds the amount included under the said sections in computing the taxpayer's income for the year with respect to his interest in the contract.

161. No amount may be deducted under paragraphs a and b of section 160 to the extent that it represents interest on

(a) borrowed money used to acquire property the income from which would be exempt from tax or to acquire a life insurance policy which does not include a policy that is an annuity contract issued before 1 January 1978 providing for annuity payments to commence not later than the day on which the policy holder attains 75 years of age, a policy that is a registered pension plan, a pooled registered pension plan, a registered retirement savings plan, a deferred profit sharing plan, an income-averaging annuity contract or a policy issued under any such plan or contract, or a policy that is an annuity contract all or part of the insurer's reserves for which vary in amount depending on the fair market value of a specified group of properties;

(b) an amount payable for property referred to in paragraph a or for property representing an interest in a life insurance policy referred to in the said paragraph; or

(c) borrowed money used to acquire a share of the capital stock of the corporation governed by the Act constituting Capital régional et coopératif Desjardins (chapter C-6.1), a class "A" or class "B" share issued by the corporation governed by the Act to establish Fondaction, le Fonds de développement de la Confédération des syndicats nationaux pour la coopération et l'emploi (chapter F-3.1.2) or a class "A" share issued by the corporation governed by the Act to establish the Fonds de solidarité des travailleurs et des travailleuses du Québec (FTQ) (chapter F-3.2.1), or an amount payable for such shares.

1972, c. 23, s. 149; 1978, c. 26, s. 37; 1980, c. 13, s. 10; 1984, c. 35, s. 13; 1991, c. 25, s. 53; 1993, c. 16, s. 88; 2001, c. 53, s. 45; 2004, c. 21, s. 62; 2005, c. 1, s. 66; 2010, c. 25, s. 17; 2015, c. 21, s. 129; 2024, c. 11, s. 49.

162. For the purposes of section 160, where a person borrows money in consideration of a promise by him to repay a larger amount and pay interest on the larger amount, the amount borrowed is deemed the larger amount. However, where the amount actually borrowed has been used in part only to earn income from a business or property, the amount so used is deemed the proportion of the larger amount that the amount actually so used is of the amount actually borrowed.

1972, c. 23, s. 150.

163. There shall be deductible an amount paid in the year pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest on an amount that would be deductible under section 160 if it were paid in the year or payable in respect of the year.

1972, c. 23, s. 151.

163.0.1. For the purposes of sections 160 and 163, an amount is not an amount paid or payable as interest if

(a) the amount

i. is paid, after 20 March 2013 in respect of a period that begins after 31 December 2013, in respect of a life insurance policy that is, at the time of the payment, a leveraged insurance policy, and

ii. is described in paragraph a of the definition of "leveraged insurance policy" in section 1; or

(b) the amount

i. is payable, in respect of a life insurance policy, after 20 March 2013 in respect of a period that begins after 31 December 2013 during which the policy is a leveraged insurance policy, and

ii. is described in paragraph a of the definition of "leveraged insurance policy" in section 1.

2017, c. 1, s. 96.

163.1. For the purposes of sections 160 and 163, an amount paid in the year by a taxpayer pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest includes an amount paid by the taxpayer in the year, after 1980 and in respect of a period commencing after 1980, which is an interest, within the meaning of subparagraph i of the first paragraph of section 835, in respect of a policy loan, within the meaning that it would be given under subparagraph h of the first paragraph of the same section if that subparagraph did not refer to an advance granted in accordance with the terms and conditions of an annuity contract granted by an insurer to the extent that the amount is verified by the insurer in prescribed form and within the prescribed time to be

(a) such an interest paid in the year on the loan;

(b) such an interest that is not included in the computation of the adjusted cost basis, within the meaning of sections 976 and 976.1, to the taxpayer, of his interest in the policy; and

(c) an interest that is not paid on money borrowed before 1978 to acquire a life insurance policy that is an annuity contract issued before 1978 under which pension payments are to begin not later than on the day the policyholder reaches 75 years of age or on an amount payable in respect of property acquired before 1978 which is an interest in such a contract.

1981, c. 12, s. 1; 1986, c. 19, s. 31; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 2001, c. 53, s. 46; 2005, c. 1, s. 67; 2010, c. 25, s. 18.

163.2. (Repealed).

164. Notwithstanding section 160, no amount shall be deducted by a taxpayer in computing his income for a particular taxation year in respect of an expense incurred by him in the year as, or in lieu of, full or partial payment of interest on debt relating to the acquisition of land or as, or in lieu of, full or partial payment of property taxes paid or payable by him in respect of land to a province or to a Canadian municipality, except to the extent of the amount determined in the second paragraph, unless, having regard to all the circumstances, including the cost to the taxpayer of the land in relation to his gross revenue therefrom for the particular year or any preceding taxation year, the land can reasonably be considered to have been, in the year,

(a) used in the course of a business carried on in the particular year by the taxpayer, other than a business in the ordinary course of which land is held primarily for the purposes of resale or development, or

(b) held primarily by the taxpayer for the purposes of gaining or producing income therefrom for the particular year.

The amount referred to in the first paragraph is equal to the aggregate of

(a) the amount by which the taxpayer's gross revenue from the land for the particular year exceeds the aggregate of all other amounts deducted in computing his income from the land for the year;

(b) where the taxpayer is a corporation whose principal business is the leasing, rental or sale, or the development for lease, rental or sale, or any combination thereof, of immovable property owned by it, to or for a person with whom it is dealing at arm's length, the corporation's base level deduction for the particular year.

1972, c. 23, s. 152; 1975, c. 22, s. 20; 1980, c. 13, s. 11; 1990, c. 59, s. 92; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

165. For the purposes of section 164:

(a) the word "land", except to the extent that it is used for the provision of parking facilities for a fee or charge, does not include:

i. any building or other structure affixed to land;

ii. the land subjacent to any property described in subparagraph i; or

iii. the land immediately contiguous to the land contemplated in subparagraph ii that is a parking area, driveway, yard, garden or similar land necessary for the use of any property described in subparagraph i;

(b) the expression "property taxes" does not include an income or profits tax or a tax relating to the transfer of property;

(c) the expression "interest on debt relating to the acquisition of land" includes interest paid or payable in the year in respect of borrowed money that may reasonably be considered, having regard to all the circumstances:

i. to be borrowed money used in respect of the acquisition of land, even if it cannot be identified with particular land; or

ii. to have been used to assist, directly or indirectly, any person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, a corporation of which the taxpayer is a specified shareholder or a partnership of which the taxpayer's share of any income or loss is 10% or more, to acquire land to be used or held by that person, corporation or partnership otherwise than as provided for in subparagraph a or b of the first paragraph of section 164, except where the assistance is in the form of a loan to that person, corporation or partnership and a reasonable rate of interest thereon is charged by the taxpayer.

165.1. Where a taxpayer who is a member of a partnership is obligated to pay an amount as interest or in full or partial payment of interest on money that was borrowed by him before 1 April 1977 and that was used by him to acquire land owned by the partnership before that day or pursuant to an obligation entered into by him before 1 April 1977 to pay for such land, and, in a taxation year of the taxpayer, the partnership disposes of all or part of the land, or the taxpayer disposes of all or part of his interest in the partnership, to a person other than a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, the taxpayer may, in computing his income for the year or any subsequent taxation year, deduct such part of the amount as may reasonably be attributed to the part of the land or interest in the partnership, as the case may be, that is so disposed of and that was not

(a) deductible under section 164 in computing the income of the taxpayer for any previous year,

(b) deductible in computing the income of another taxpayer for any taxation year,

(c) included in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of any property, nor

(d) deductible, under this section, in computing the income of the taxpayer for a previous taxation year.

1978, c. 26, s. 38; 1995, c. 49, s. 48; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

165.2. For the purposes of this division, a corporation's base level deduction for a taxation year is equal to the amount that would be the amount of interest for the year, computed at the prescribed rate, in respect of a loan of $1,000,000 outstanding throughout the year, unless the corporation is associated in the year with one or more other corporations in which case, subject to sections 165.3 to 165.5, its base level deduction for the year is nil.

165.3. Notwithstanding section 165.2, where none of the corporations that are associated with each other in a taxation year has, in that year, an establishment in a province other than Québec and all of those corporations have filed with the Minister, in prescribed form, an agreement whereby, for the purposes of this division, they allocate an amount to one or more of them for the taxation year and the amount so allocated or the aggregate of the amounts so allocated, as the case may be, does not exceed $1,000,000, the base level deduction for each of the corporations for the year is equal to the base level deduction that would be computed under section 165.2 in respect of the corporation if the reference in that section to an amount of $1,000,000 were read as a reference to the amount so allocated to it.

1990, c. 59, s. 94; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1999, c. 83, s. 44.

165.4. Where any of the corporations referred to in section 165.3 has failed to file with the Minister an agreement referred to in that section within 30 days after notice in writing by the Minister has been forwarded to any of them that such an agreement is required for the purposes of any assessment of tax under this Part, the Minister shall, for the purposes of this division, allocate an amount to one or more of them for the taxation year, which amount or the aggregate of which amounts, as the case may be, shall be equal to $1,000,000 and, in any such case, the amount so allocated to any such corporation is deemed to be an amount allocated to the corporation pursuant to section 165.3.

165.4.1. Notwithstanding section 165.2, where one of the corporations that are associated with each other in a taxation year has, in that year, an establishment in a province other than Québec and an amount is, pursuant to subsection 2.3 of section 18 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), allocated to one or more such corporations for the year, the base level deduction for the year for each such corporation shall be equal to its base level deduction determined for that year for the purposes of paragraph f of subsection 2 of the said section 18.

Where, for a taxation year, a corporation referred to in the first paragraph files an agreement with the Minister of Revenue of Canada in accordance with paragraph 2.3 of section 18 of the Income Tax Act, the corporation shall file with the Minister, for that year, a copy of that agreement.

165.5. Notwithstanding any other provision of this division,

(a) where a corporation to which section 165.3 or 165.4 applies, in this section referred to as "the first corporation", has more than one taxation year ending in the same calendar year and is associated in two or more of those taxation years with another corporation that has a taxation year ending in that calendar year, the base level deduction of the first corporation for each taxation year in which it is associated with the other corporation ending in that calendar year is, subject to paragraph b, an amount equal to its base level deduction for the first such taxation year determined without reference to paragraph b; and

(b) where a corporation to which any of sections 165.2 to 165.4 applies, other than a corporation to which section 165.4.1 applies, has a taxation year that is less than 51 weeks, its base level deduction for the year is equal to that proportion of its base level deduction for the year, determined without reference to this paragraph, that the number of days in the year is of 365.

1990, c. 59, s. 94; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1999, c. 83, s. 46.

166. A corporation shall not deduct an amount paid as interest or otherwise to the holders of its income bonds or income debentures unless they have been issued or their provisions in respect of interest have been adopted since 1930 to provide the debtor with assistance in meeting his financial difficulties and to replace or alter bonds or debentures which, at the end of 1930, were bearing a fixed unconditional rate of interest.

1972, c. 23, s. 154; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 14, s. 46.

167. Where, by virtue of the disposition of a debt obligation other than an income bond, an income debenture, a development bond or a small business bond, the transferee has become entitled to an amount of interest that accrued thereon for a period ending at the time of the disposition and that is not payable until after that time, such amount shall be included as interest in computing the transferor's income for his taxation year in which the disposition occurred, except to the extent that it was otherwise included in computing his income for the year or a preceding taxation year.

In that case, the transferee may, in computing his income for a taxation year, deduct the amount of any interest accrued at the time of the disposition to the extent that the amount was included as interest in computing his income for the year.

167.1. Where a person who has issued a debt obligation, other than an income bond, an income debenture, a small business development bond or a small business bond, is obligated to pay an amount that is stipulated to be interest on that debt obligation in respect of a period before its issue and it is reasonable to consider that the consideration paid to the issuer by the person to whom the debt obligation was issued includes that interest, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purposes of sections 87, 87.2, 89 to 92.7 and 167, the issue of the debt obligation is deemed to be a disposition of the debt obligation from the issuer, as transferor, to the person to whom the obligation is issued, as transferee, and that interest is deemed to be interest that accrued on the debt obligation for a period ending at the time of the disposition; and

(b) notwithstanding paragraph a or any other provision of this Act, the issuer shall not deduct or include that interest in computing his income.

1985, c. 25, s. 34; 1991, c. 25, s. 54.

167.1.1. For the purposes of section 167, the amount determined by the following formula is deemed to be interest that accrued on a disposed debt obligation—that is, at any time, described in section 92.5R3 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) because of subparagraph d of the first paragraph of that section—that the transferee has become entitled to receive for a period commencing before the time of the disposition (in this section referred to as the "particular time") and ending at the particular time and that is not payable until after the particular time:

A – B.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the price for which the debt obligation was disposed of at the particular time; and

(b) B is the amount by which the price (converted to Canadian currency using the exchange rate prevailing at the particular time, if the debt obligation is denominated in a foreign currency) for which the debt obligation was issued exceeds the portion of the principal amount of the debt obligation (converted to Canadian currency using the exchange rate prevailing at the particular time, if the debt obligation is denominated in a foreign currency) that was repaid by the issuer on or before the particular time.

2019, c. 14, s. 85.

168. (Repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 156; 1984, c. 15, s. 41.

169. Despite any other provision of this Act (other than section 174.2), a corporation or a trust shall not make any deduction in respect of the proportion, determined in accordance with section 170, of any amount otherwise deductible in computing its income from a business (other than the Canadian banking business of an authorized foreign bank) or property for a taxation year, in respect of interest paid or payable by it on outstanding debts to specified persons not resident in Canada.

1972, c. 23, s. 157; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2015, c. 21, s. 130; 2015, c. 24, s. 33.

170. The proportion to which section 169 refers is the proportion that the amount described in the second paragraph is of the average (in this section referred to as the "average outstanding debts") of all amounts each of which is, in respect of a month that ends in the year, the greatest amount at any time in the month of the corporation's or trust's outstanding debts to specified persons not resident in Canada.

The amount to which the first paragraph refers is equal to the amount by which the corporation's or trust's average outstanding debts for the year exceeds the amount equal to 150% of the corporation's or trust's equity amount for the year.

171. For the purposes of sections 169, 170 and 172, a corporation's or trust's outstanding debts at any particular time in a taxation year to specified persons not resident in Canada are the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount outstanding at that time in respect of any debt or other obligation to pay an amount payable by the corporation or trust to a person who is, in the year, a specified person not resident in Canada, on which interest paid or payable is or would be, but for section 169, deductible in computing the corporation's or trust's income for the year.

However, the outstanding debts referred to in sections 169 and 170 do not include an amount outstanding at the particular time in relation to a debt or other obligation that is

(a) an obligation to pay an amount to

i. an insurance corporation not resident in Canada to the extent that the amount outstanding was, for the insurance corporation's taxation year that included the particular time, designated insurance property in relation to an insurance business carried on in Canada through an establishment, or

ii. an authorized foreign bank, if the bank uses or holds the amount outstanding at the particular time in its Canadian banking business; or

(b) a debt obligation described in subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 127.17, to the extent that the proceeds of the debt obligation can reasonably be considered to directly or indirectly fund at the particular time, in whole or in part, a pertinent loan or indebtedness (as defined in subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 127.16) owing to the corporation or another corporation resident in Canada that does not, at the particular time, deal at arm's length with the corporation.

1972, c. 23, s. 159; 1975, c. 22, s. 22; 1984, c. 15, s. 42; 1990, c. 59, s. 95; 1994, c. 22, s. 108; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 99; 2004, c. 8, s. 30; 2015, c. 24, s. 35; 2017, c. 29, s. 46.

172. Despite any other provision of this Act, other than section 173.1, for the purposes of this section, sections 169 to 171 and 173.2 to 174.0.1,

(a) "specified shareholder" of a corporation at any time means a person who at that time, either alone or together with persons with whom that person is not dealing at arm's length, owns shares of the capital stock of the corporation

i. that give the holders thereof 25% or more of the votes that could be cast at an annual meeting of the shareholders of the corporation, or

ii. that have a fair market value of 25% or more of the fair market value of all of the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the corporation;

(b) "specified shareholder not resident in Canada" of a corporation at any time means a specified shareholder of the corporation who was at that time a person not resident in Canada or an investment corporation owned by persons not resident in Canada;

(b.1*)* "equity contribution", to a trust, means a transfer of property to the trust that is made

i. in exchange for an interest as a beneficiary under the trust,

ii. in exchange for a right to acquire an interest as a beneficiary under the trust, or

iii. gratuitously by a person beneficially interested in the trust;

(b.2*)* "tax-paid earnings", of a trust resident in Canada for a taxation year, means the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount, in respect of a particular taxation year of the trust that ended before the year, determined by the formula

A - B;

(b.3*)* "beneficiary" means a beneficiary within the meaning of the second paragraph of section 646;

(b.4*)* "specified beneficiary", of a trust at any time, means a person who at that time, either alone or together with persons with whom that person does not deal at arm's length, has an interest as a beneficiary under the trust with a fair market value that is not less than 25% of the fair market value of all interests as a beneficiary under the trust;

(b.5*)* "specified beneficiary not resident in Canada", of a trust at any time, means a specified beneficiary of the trust who at that time is a person not resident in Canada;

(b.5.1*)* "specified right", at any time in respect of a property, means a right to, at that time, hypothecate, mortgage, assign, pledge or in any way encumber the property to secure payment of an obligation—other than a particular debt or other particular obligation described in paragraph a of section 174 or a debt or other obligation described in subparagraph ii of paragraph d of that section—or to use, invest, sell or otherwise dispose of the property unless it is established by the taxpayer that all of the proceeds (net of costs) received, or that would be received, from exercising the right must first be applied to reduce an amount described in subparagraph i or ii of paragraph d of section 174;

(b.5.2*)* "security interest", in respect of a property, means a right in the property that secures payment of an obligation;

(b.6*)* "equity amount", of a corporation or a trust for a taxation year, means

i. in the case of a corporation resident in Canada, the aggregate of

(1) the retained earnings of the corporation at the beginning of the year, except to the extent that those earnings include retained earnings of any other corporation,

(2) the average of all amounts each of which is the corporation's contributed surplus (other than any portion of that contributed surplus that arose at a time when the corporation was not resident in Canada, or that arose in connection with a disposition to which subsection 1.1 of section 212.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) applies or an investment to which subsection 2 of section 212.3 of that Act applies) at the beginning of a month that ends in the year, to the extent that it was contributed by a specified shareholder not resident in Canada of the corporation, and

(3) the average of all amounts each of which is the corporation's paid-up capital at the beginning of a month that ends in the year, excluding the paid-up capital in respect of shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation owned by a person other than a specified shareholder not resident in Canada of the corporation, ii. in the case of a trust resident in Canada, the amount determined by the formula

C - D, or

iii. in the case of a corporation or trust that is not resident in Canada, the amount determined by the formula

40% × (E - F);

(c) "specified person not resident in Canada" in respect of a corporation or a trust means

i. a specified shareholder not resident in Canada of the corporation or a specified beneficiary not resident in Canada of the trust, or

ii. a person not resident in Canada not dealing at arm's length with a specified shareholder of the corporation or with a specified beneficiary of the trust, as the case may be.

In the formulas in subparagraphs b.2 and b.6 of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the taxable income of the trust under this Part for the particular year;

(b) B is the total of tax payable under this Part by the trust for the particular year, tax payable by the trust for the particular year under Part I of the Income Tax Act and all income taxes payable by the trust for the particular year under the laws of a province, other than Québec;

(c) C is the total of the average of all amounts each of which is the total amount of all equity contributions to the trust made before a month that ends in the year, to the extent that the contributions were made by a specified beneficiary not resident in Canada of the trust, and the tax-paid earnings of the trust for the year;

(d) D is the average of all amounts each of which is the total of all amounts that were paid or became payable by the trust to a beneficiary of the trust in respect of the beneficiary's interest under the trust before a month that ends in the year except to the extent that the amount is

i. included in computing the beneficiary's income for a taxation year because of section 663,

ii. an amount in respect of which tax was deducted under Part XIII of the Income Tax Act because of paragraph c of subsection 1 of section 212 of that Act, or

iii. paid or payable to a person other than a specified beneficiary not resident in Canada of the trust;

(e) E is the average of all amounts each of which is the cost of a property, other than an interest as a member of a partnership, owned by the corporation or trust at the beginning of a month that ends in the year, that is used by the corporation or trust in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of, carrying on a business in Canada; and

(f) F is the average of all amounts each of which is the total of all amounts outstanding, at the beginning of a month that ends in the year, in relation to a debt or other obligation to pay an amount that was payable by the corporation or trust and that may reasonably be regarded as relating to a business carried on by it in Canada, other than a debt or obligation that is included in the outstanding debts to specified persons not resident in Canada of the corporation or trust.

For the purpose of determining whether a particular person is a specified shareholder of a corporation at any time, the particular person or the person with whom the particular person is not dealing at arm's length, as the case may be, is deemed at that time to own the shares referred to in subparagraph a of the first paragraph and the corporation referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph is deemed at that time to have redeemed, acquired or cancelled the shares referred to in the said subparagraph b, where the particular person or the person with whom the particular person is not dealing at arm's length has at that time a right under a contract or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, other than a right that is not exercisable at that time because the exercise thereof is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual,

(a) to, or to acquire, shares in a corporation or to control the voting rights of shares in a corporation; or

(b) to cause a corporation to redeem, acquire or cancel any of its shares, other than shares held by the particular person or the person with whom the particular person is not dealing at arm's length.

For the purpose of determining whether a particular person is a specified beneficiary of a trust at any time, the following rules apply:

(a) if the particular person, or a person with whom the particular person does not deal at arm's length, has at that time a right under a contract or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to acquire an interest as a beneficiary under the trust, the particular person or the person with whom the particular person does not deal at arm's length, as the case may be, is deemed at that time to own the interest;

(b) if the particular person, or a person with whom the particular person does not deal at arm's length, has at that time a right under a contract or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to cause a trust to redeem, acquire or cancel any interest in it as a beneficiary (other than an interest held by the particular person or a person with whom the particular person does not deal at arm's length), the trust is deemed at that time to have redeemed, acquired or cancelled the interest, unless the right is not exercisable at that time because the exercise of the right is contingent on the death, bankruptcy or permanent disability of an individual; and

(c) if the amount of income or capital of the trust that the particular person, or a person with whom the particular person does not deal at arm's length, may receive as a beneficiary of the trust depends on the exercise by any person of, or the failure by any person to exercise, a discretionary power, that person is deemed to have fully exercised, or to have failed to exercise, the power, as the case may be.

For the purposes of subparagraph e of the second paragraph, the following rules apply:

(a) if a property is partly used or held by a taxpayer in a taxation year in the course of carrying on a business in Canada, the cost of the property to the taxpayer is deemed for the year to be equal to the proportion of the cost to the taxpayer of the property (determined without reference to this paragraph) that the proportion of the use or holding made of the property in the course of carrying on a business in Canada in the year is of the whole use or holding made of the property in the year; and

(b) if a corporation or trust is deemed to own a portion of a property of a partnership because of section 174.1 at any time,

i. the property is deemed to have, at that time, a cost to the corporation or trust equal to the proportion of the cost of the property to the partnership that is the proportion that the debts and other obligations to pay an amount of the partnership allocated to it under section 174.1 is of the total amount of all debts and other obligations to pay an amount of the partnership, and

ii. in the case of a partnership that carries on a business in Canada, the corporation or trust is deemed to use or hold the property in the course of carrying on a business in Canada to the extent the partnership uses or holds the property in the course of carrying on a business in Canada for the fiscal period of the partnership that includes that time.

173. (Repealed).

173.1. For the purposes of this section and sections 169 to 172 and 173.2 to 174, where a particular person would, but for this section, be a specified shareholder of a corporation or a specified beneficiary of a trust at any time, the particular person is deemed not to be a specified shareholder of the corporation or a specified beneficiary of the trust, as the case may be, at that time if

(a) there was in effect at that time an agreement or arrangement under which, on the satisfaction of a condition or the occurrence of an event that it is reasonable to expect will be satisfied or will occur, the particular person ceases to be a specified shareholder of the corporation or a specified beneficiary of the trust; and

(b) the purpose for which the particular person became a specified shareholder of the corporation or a specified beneficiary of the trust was the safeguarding of rights or interests of the particular person or a person with whom the particular person is not dealing at arm's length in respect of any indebtedness owing at any time to the particular person or a person with whom the particular person is not dealing at arm's length.

173.2. For the purposes of sections 169 to 173.1, 173.3 and 174, a corporation not resident in Canada is deemed to be a specified shareholder not resident in Canada of itself and a trust not resident in Canada is deemed to be a specified beneficiary not resident in Canada of itself.

2015, c. 24, s. 38.

173.3. For the purposes of this Act, where a trust that is resident in Canada designates, for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)), an amount for a taxation year in accordance with subsection 5.4 of section 18 of that Act in respect of all or any portion of an amount paid or credited as interest by the trust, or by a partnership, in the year to a person not resident in Canada, the amount so designated is deemed to be income of the trust that has been paid to the person not resident in Canada as a beneficiary of the trust, and not to have been paid or credited by the trust or the partnership as interest, to the extent that an amount in respect of the interest

(a) is included in computing the income of the trust for the year under paragraph m.1 of section 87; or

(b) is not deductible in computing the income of the trust for the year because of section 169.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to a designation made under subsection 5.4 of section 18 of the Income Tax Act.

2015, c. 24, s. 38.

174. For the purposes of sections 169 to 172, the rules set out in section 174.0.1 apply at any time in respect of a taxpayer if at that time

(a) the taxpayer owes a particular amount as or on account of a particular debt or other particular obligation to pay an amount to a person (in this section and section 174.0.1 referred to as the "intermediary");

(b) the intermediary is neither

i. a person resident in Canada with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, nor

ii. a person that is, in respect of the taxpayer, a specified person not resident in Canada;

(c) the intermediary or a person that does not deal at arm's length with the intermediary

i. owes an amount to a particular person that is, in respect of the taxpayer, a specified person not resident in Canada as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount (in this section and section 174.0.1 referred to as the "intermediary debt"), in respect of which any of the following conditions is met:

(1) recourse in respect of the debt or other obligation is limited in whole or in part, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to the particular debt or other particular obligation, or

(2) it can reasonably be concluded that all or a portion of the particular amount became owing, or was permitted to remain owing, because all or a portion of the debt or other obligation was entered into or was permitted to remain owing, or the intermediary anticipated that all or a portion of the debt or other obligation would become owing or remain owing, or

ii. has a specified right in respect of a particular property that was granted directly or indirectly by a particular person that is, in respect of the taxpayer, a specified person not resident in Canada and in respect of which any of the following conditions is met:

(1) the existence of the specified right is required under the terms and conditions of the particular debt or other particular obligation, or

(2) it can reasonably be concluded that all or a portion of the particular amount became owing, or was permitted to remain owing, because the specified right was granted or the intermediary anticipated that it would be granted; and

(d) the aggregate of all amounts—each of which is, in respect of the particular debt or other particular obligation, an amount owing as or on account of an intermediary debt or the fair market value of a particular property described in subparagraph ii of paragraph c—is equal to at least 25% of the total of

i. the particular amount, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount (other than the particular amount) that the taxpayer, or a person that does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer, owes to the intermediary as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount under the agreement, or an agreement that is connected to the agreement, under which the particular debt or other particular obligation was entered into if

(1) the intermediary is granted a security interest in respect of a property that is the intermediary debt or the particular property, as the case may be, and the security interest secures the payment of two or more debts or other obligations that include the debt or other obligation and the particular debt or other particular obligation, and

(2) each security interest that secures the payment of a debt or other obligation referred to in subparagraph 1 secures the payment of every debt or other obligation referred to in that subparagraph.

1972, c. 23, s. 161; 1977, c. 26, s. 18; 1984, c. 15, s. 43; 1986, c. 19, s. 32; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2015, c. 24, s. 39; 2017, c. 29, s. 48; 2020, c. 16, s. 43.

174.0.1. The rules to which section 174 refers in respect of a taxpayer at any time are as follows:

(a) the portion of the particular amount, at that time, referred to in paragraph a of section 174 that is equal to the lesser of the following amounts is deemed to be an amount owing as or on account of a debt or other obligation to pay an amount to the particular person referred to in subparagraph i or ii of paragraph c of section 174 and not to the intermediary:

i. the amount owing as or on account of the intermediary debt or the fair market value of the particular property referred to in subparagraph ii of paragraph c of section 174, as the case may be, and

ii. the proportion of the particular amount that the amount owing or the fair market value, as the case may be, is of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

(1) an amount owing as or on account of an intermediary debt in respect of the particular debt or other particular obligation that is owed to the particular person or any other person that is, in respect of the taxpayer, a specified person not resident in Canada, or

(2) the fair market value of a particular property referred to in subparagraph ii of paragraph c of section 174 in respect of the particular debt or other particular obligation, and

(b) the portion of the interest paid or payable by the taxpayer, in respect of a period throughout which subparagraph a applies, on the particular debt or other particular obligation referred to in paragraph a of section 174 that is equal to the amount determined by the following formula is deemed to be paid or payable by the taxpayer to the particular person, and not to the intermediary, as interest for the period on the amount that is deemed under subparagraph a to be owing to the particular person:

A × B/C.

In the formula in subparagraph b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the interest paid or payable;

(b) B is the average of all amounts each of which is an amount that is deemed under subparagraph a of the first paragraph to be owing to the particular person at a time during the period; and

(c) C is the average of all amounts each of which is the particular amount owing at a time during the period.

2017, c. 29, s. 49; 2020, c. 16, s. 44.

174.1. For the purposes of sections 87.0.1 and 169 to 174.0.1 and this section, each member of a partnership at a particular time is deemed at that time

(a) to owe the portion (in this section referred to as the "debt amount") of any debt or other obligation to pay an amount of the partnership and to own the portion of each property of the partnership that is equal to the following proportion of the debt or other obligation:

i. the agreed proportion, in respect of the member of the partnership, determined for the partnership's last fiscal period ending at or before the end of the taxation year referred to in section 169 and at a time when the member is a member of the partnership, and

ii. if no agreed proportion may be determined, in respect of the member of the partnership, in accordance with subparagraph i, the proportion that the fair market value of the member's interest in the partnership at the particular time is of the fair market value of all interests in the partnership at the particular time;

(b) to owe the debt amount to the person to whom the partnership owes the debt or other obligation to pay an amount; and

(c) to have paid interest on the debt amount that is deductible in computing the member's income to the extent that an amount in respect of interest paid or payable on the debt amount by the partnership is deductible in computing the partnership's income.

2015, c. 21, s. 132; 2015, c. 24, s. 40; 2017, c. 29, s. 50.

174.2. Any amount in respect of interest paid or payable to a controlled foreign affiliate of a corporation resident in Canada that would otherwise not be deductible by the corporation for a taxation year because of section 169 may be deducted to the extent that an amount included under section 580 in computing the corporation's income for the year or a subsequent year can reasonably be considered to be in respect of the interest.

2015, c. 21, s. 132.

175. (Repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 162; 1982, c. 5, s. 47; 1986, c. 19, s. 33.

175.1. (1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, a taxpayer shall not, in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business or property other than income from a business computed in accordance with the method authorized by section 194, make any deduction in respect of an outlay or expense to the extent that it can reasonably be regarded as having been made or incurred

(a) as consideration for services to be rendered after the end of the year;

(b) as consideration for insurance in respect of a period after the end of the year, other than, where the taxpayer is an insurer, consideration for reinsurance;

(c) as, or in lieu of, full or partial payment of interest, tax or taxes, other than taxes payable by an insurer in relation to the insurance premiums of a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness insurance policy or of a life insurance policy other than a group term life insurance policy that provides coverage for a period of 12 months or less, rent or royalty in respect of a period that is after the end of the year; or

(d) as consideration, subject to sections 869.4 to 869.7, for a "designated employee benefit" (as defined in section 869.1) required to be provided after the end of the year (other than consideration payable in the year, to a corporation that is licensed to provide insurance, for coverage in respect of the year).

(2) The portion of any outlay or expense, other than an outlay or expense of a corporation, partnership or trust as, or in lieu of, full or partial payment of interest, that, but for subsection 1, would have been deductible in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year is deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the subsequent taxation year to which it can reasonably be considered to relate.

(3) For the purposes of subsection 1, an outlay or expense is deemed not to include a payment that is referred to in paragraph d or e of subsection 1 of section 222 and that

(a) is made by the taxpayer to a person or partnership with which the taxpayer deals at arm's length; and

(b) is not an expenditure in respect of scientific research and experimental development related to a business of the taxpayer and undertaken in Canada on behalf of the taxpayer.

(4) For the purposes of this section, an outlay or expense made or incurred by an insurer in a taxation year on account of the acquisition of an insurance policy at any time prior to the issuance of the policy is deemed to be an expense incurred as consideration for services rendered in the taxation year in which the policy is issued.

1982, c. 5, s. 47; 1988, c. 18, s. 12; 1990, c. 59, s. 96; 1994, c. 22, s. 111; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 31, s. 20; 2004, c. 8, s. 31; 2011, c. 6, s. 121; 2015, c. 21, s. 133; 2023, c. 19, s. 19.

175.1.1. Subject to section 851.22.13.1, where, at any time, a payment is made to a person or partnership by a taxpayer in the course of carrying on a business or earning income from property in respect of borrowed money or on an amount payable for property acquired by the taxpayer, in this section referred to as a "debt obligation", as consideration for a reduction in the rate of interest payable by the taxpayer on the debt obligation, or as a penalty or bonus payable by the taxpayer by reason of the repayment by the taxpayer of all or part of the principal amount of the debt obligation before its maturity, the payment is deemed, to the extent that it may reasonably be considered to relate to, and does not exceed the value at that time of, an amount that, but for the reduction or the repayment, would have been paid or payable by the taxpayer as interest on the debt obligation for a taxation year of the taxpayer ending after that time,

(a) for the purposes of this Part, to have been paid by the taxpayer and received by the person or partnership at that time as interest on the debt obligation, and

(b) for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income in respect of the business or property for the year, to have been paid or payable by the taxpayer in that year as interest pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest,

i. in the case of any such reduction, on the debt obligation, and

ii. in the case of any such repayment, where the repayment was in respect of all or part of the principal amount of the debt obligation that was

(1) borrowed money, except to the extent that the borrowed money was used by the taxpayer to acquire property, on borrowed money used in the year for the purpose for which the borrowed money that was repaid was used, or

(2) either borrowed money used to acquire property or an amount payable for property acquired by the taxpayer, on the debt obligation to the extent that the property or property substituted therefor is used by the taxpayer in the year for the purpose of earning income therefrom or for the purposes of gaining and producing income from a business.

The first paragraph does not apply where the payment

(a) may reasonably be considered to have been made in respect of the extension of the term of a debt obligation or in respect of the substitution or conversion of a debt obligation to another debt obligation or share, or

(b) is contingent or dependent on the use of or production from property or is computed by reference to revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price or any other similar criterion or by reference to dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation.

175.1.2. For the purposes of this Part, the amount of interest payable on borrowed money or on an amount payable for property, in this section and sections 175.1.3 to 175.1.8 referred to as the "debt obligation", by a corporation, partnership or trust, in this section and sections 175.1.3 to 175.1.7 referred to as the "borrower", in respect of a taxation year is, notwithstanding subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 175.1.1, deemed to be an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount of interest, not in excess of a reasonable amount, that would have been payable on the debt obligation by the borrower in respect of the year if no amount had been paid before the end of the year in satisfaction of the obligation to pay interest on the debt obligation in respect of the year and if the amount outstanding at each particular time in the year that is after 31 December 1991 on account of the principal amount of the debt obligation were the amount by which the amount outstanding at the particular time on account of the principal amount of the debt obligation exceeds the total of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid before the particular time in satisfaction, in whole or in part, of the obligation to pay interest on the debt obligation in respect of a period or part thereof that is after 31 December 1991, after the beginning of the year, and after the time the amount was so paid, other than a period or part thereof that is in the year where no such amount has been paid before the particular time in respect of a period or part thereof that is after the end of the year, and

ii. the amount by which

(1) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of interest payable on the debt obligation, determined without reference to this section, by the borrower in respect of a taxation year ending after 31 December 1991 and before the year, to the extent that such interest does not exceed a reasonable amount, exceeds

(2) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of interest deemed by this section to have been payable on the debt obligation by the borrower in respect of a taxation year ending before the year; and

(b) the amount by which

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount of interest payable on the debt obligation, determined without reference to this section, by the borrower in respect of the year or a taxation year ending after 31 December 1991 and before the year, to the extent that such interest does not exceed a reasonable amount, exceeds

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of interest deemed by this section to be payable on the debt obligation by the borrower in respect of a taxation year ending before the year.

175.1.3. Where at any time in a taxation year of a borrower a debt obligation of the borrower is settled or extinguished or the holder of the obligation acquires or reacquires property of the borrower in circumstances in which sections 484 to 484.6 apply in respect of the debt obligation and, at that time, the aggregate determined in the second paragraph exceeds the aggregate determined in the third paragraph, which excess is in this section referred to as the "excess amount", the following rules apply:

(a) for the purpose of applying sections 484 to 484.6 in respect of the borrower, the principal amount at that time of the debt obligation is deemed to be equal to the amount by which the principal amount at that time of the debt obligation exceeds the excess amount; and

(b) the excess amount shall be deducted at that time in computing the forgiven amount in respect of the obligation, within the meaning assigned by section 485.

The aggregate first referred to in the first paragraph, at any particular time, is equal to the total of the following amounts:

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid at or before that time in satisfaction, in whole or in part, of the obligation to pay interest on the debt obligation in respect of a period or part of a period that is after the particular time; and

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of interest payable on the debt obligation, determined without reference to section 175.1.2, by the borrower in respect of a taxation year ending after 31 December 1991 and before the particular time, or in respect of a period or part thereof that is in the year and before the particular time, to the extent that such interest does not exceed a reasonable amount.

The second aggregate referred to in the first paragraph, at any particular time, is equal to the total of the following amounts:

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount of interest deemed by section 175.1.2 to have been payable on the debt obligation by the borrower in respect of a taxation year ending before the particular time; and

(b) the amount of interest that would be deemed by section 175.1.2 to have been payable on the debt obligation by the borrower in respect of the year if the year had ended immediately before the particular time.

175.1.4. Where an amount is paid at any time by a person or partnership in respect of a debt obligation of a borrower as, or in lieu of, full or partial payment of interest on the debt obligation in respect of a period or part thereof that is after 31 December 1991 and after the time the amount was so paid, or as consideration for a reduction in the rate of interest payable on the debt obligation, excluding a payment described in the second paragraph of section 175.1.1, in respect of a period or part thereof that is after 31 December 1991 and after the time the amount was so paid, that amount is deemed,

(a) for the purposes of section 175.1.5 and, subject to that section, for the purposes of subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 175.1.2, subparagraph i of paragraph b of that section, subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 175.1.3 and section 175.1.6, to be an amount of interest payable on the debt obligation by the borrower in respect of that period or part thereof; and

(b) for the purposes of subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 175.1.2 and subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 175.1.3, to be an amount paid at that time in satisfaction of the obligation to pay interest on the debt obligation in respect of that period or part thereof.

175.1.5. Where an amount of interest payable on a debt obligation, determined without reference to section 175.1.2, by a borrower in respect of a particular period or part thereof that is after 31 December 1991 can reasonably be regarded as an amount payable as consideration for a reduction in the amount of interest that would otherwise be payable on the debt obligation in respect of a subsequent period, or a reduction in the amount that was or may be paid before the beginning of a subsequent period in satisfaction of the obligation to pay interest on the debt obligation in respect of that subsequent period, such reductions being determined without reference to the existence of, or the amount of any interest paid or payable on, any other debt obligation, that amount,

(a) for the purposes of subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 175.1.2, subparagraph i of paragraph b of that section, subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 175.1.3 and section 175.1.6, is deemed to be an amount of interest payable on the debt obligation by the borrower in respect of the subsequent period and not to be an amount of interest payable on the debt obligation by the borrower in respect of the particular period; and

(b) when paid, is deemed for the purposes of subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 175.1.2 and subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 175.1.3 to be an amount paid in satisfaction of the obligation to pay interest on the debt obligation in respect of the subsequent period.

175.1.6. Where liability in respect of a debt obligation of a person or partnership is assumed by a borrower at any time,

(a) the amount of interest payable on the debt obligation, determined without reference to section 175.1.2, by any person or partnership in respect of a period is, to the extent that that period is included in a taxation year of the borrower ending after 31 December 1991, deemed, for the purposes of subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 175.1.2, subparagraph i of paragraph b of that section and subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 175.1.3, to be an amount of interest payable on the debt obligation by the borrower in respect of that year; and

(b) the application of sections 175.1.2 and 175.1.3 to the borrower in respect of the debt obligation after that time shall be determined on the assumption that section 175.1.2 applied to the borrower in respect of the debt obligation before that time.

For the purposes of this section, where the borrower came into existence at a particular time that is after the beginning of the particular period commencing at the beginning of the first period in respect of which interest was payable on the debt obligation by any person or partnership and ending at the particular time, the borrower is deemed to have been in existence throughout the particular period, and to have had, throughout the particular period, taxation years ending on the day of the year on which its first taxation year ended.

175.1.7. Where the amount paid by a borrower at any particular time, in satisfaction of the obligation to pay a particular amount of interest on a debt obligation in respect of a subsequent period or part thereof, exceeds the particular amount of that interest, discounted for the particular period beginning at the particular time and ending at the end of the subsequent period or part thereof, and at the rate or rates of interest applying under the debt obligation during the particular period or, where the rate of interest in respect of any part of the particular period is not fixed at the particular time, at the prescribed rate of interest in effect at the particular time, such excess is deemed

(a) for the purposes of sections 175.1.2 to 175.1.6 and 175.1.8, to be neither an amount of interest payable on the debt obligation nor an amount paid in satisfaction of the obligation to pay interest on the debt obligation; and

(b) to be a payment as a penalty or bonus, described in section 175.1.1, in respect of the debt obligation.

1994, c. 22, s. 112.

175.1.8. Notwithstanding sections 175.1.2 to 175.1.7, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount of interest payable on a debt obligation by an individual, other than a trust, or deemed by section 175.1.2 to be payable on the debt obligation by a corporation, partnership or trust, in respect of a taxation year ending after 31 December 1991 and before any particular time, shall not exceed the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount of interest payable on the debt obligation, determined without reference to section 175.1.2, by a person or partnership in respect of a taxation year ending after 31 December 1991 and before that particular time.

175.2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, a taxpayer shall not, in computing his income for a taxation year, deduct any amount under section 147, 160, 163, 176, 176.4 or 179 in respect of borrowed money, or other property acquired by the taxpayer, in respect of any period after which the money or other property is used by the taxpayer for the purpose of

(a) making a payment after 12 November 1981 as consideration for an income-averaging annuity contract, unless such contract was acquired pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before 13 November 1981;

(a.1) making a payment to acquire an income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities;

(b) paying a premium referred to in paragraph b of subsection 11 of section 18 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.));

(c) making a contribution to a registered pension plan, a pooled registered pension plan or a deferred profit sharing plan, other than a contribution described in paragraph b or c of section 71, as they read for the taxation year 1990, that was required to be made pursuant to an obligation entered into before 13 November

1981, or an amount deductible under section 137 or paragraph b of section 158 in computing the taxpayer's income;

(d) making a payment as consideration for an annuity the payment for which deductible in computing his income by virtue of paragraph f of section 339;

(d.1) making a contribution to a net income stabilization account;

(d.1.0.1) paying an amount as a contribution to a farm income stabilization account;

(d.1.1) making a contribution to a retirement compensation arrangement where the contribution was deductible under section 70.2 in computing his income;

(d.2) (paragraph repealed);

(d.3) making a contribution to a registered education savings plan;

(d.4) making a contribution to a registered disability savings plan;

(d.5) making a contribution to a tax-free savings account;

(d.5.1) making a contribution to a first home savings account; and

(d.6) allocating an amount to a tax-free reserve within the meaning of section 979.25;

(e) (paragraph repealed);

(f) (paragraph repealed);

(g) (paragraph repealed);

(h) (paragraph repealed).

1984, c. 15, s. 44; 1985, c. 25, s. 35; 1987, c. 67, s. 41; 1990, c. 59, s. 97; 1991, c. 25, s. 55; 1993, c. 16, s. 90; 1994, c. 22, s. 113; 1995, c. 49, s. 50; 1997, c. 14, s. 47; 2000, c. 5, s. 44; 2004, c. 21, s. 63; 2005, c. 23, s. 41; 2009, c. 15, s. 61; 2013, c. 10, s. 19; 2015, c. 21, s. 134; 2023, c. 19, s. 20.

175.2.1. For the purposes of section 175.2, to the extent that an indebtedness is incurred by a taxpayer in respect of a property and at any time that property or a property substituted therefor is used for any of the purposes referred to in the said section, the indebtedness is deemed to be incurred at that time and for that purpose.

1993, c. 16, s. 91; 1994, c. 22, s. 114.

175.2.2. Where at any time after 31 December 1993 borrowed money ceases to be used by a taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from a capital property, other than depreciable property or immovable property, and the amount of the borrowed money that was so used by the taxpayer immediately before that time exceeds the amount determined under the second paragraph, the amount of the excess, to the extent that it is outstanding after that time, is deemed to be borrowed money used by the taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from the property.

The amount referred to in the first paragraph as being determined in the second paragraph is the aggregate of

(a) where the taxpayer disposed of the property at the particular time for an amount of consideration that is not less than the fair market value of the property at that time, the amount of the borrowed money used to acquire the consideration;

(b) where the taxpayer disposed of the property at the particular time and paragraph a does not apply, the amount of the borrowed money that, if the taxpayer had received as consideration an amount of money equal to the amount by which the fair market value of the property at that time exceeds the amount included in the aggregate determined under this paragraph by reason of paragraph c, would be considered to be used to acquire the consideration;

(c) where the taxpayer disposed of the property at the particular time for consideration that includes a reduction in the amount of the borrowed money, the amount of the reduction; and

(d) where the taxpayer did not dispose of the property at the particular time, the amount of the borrowed money that, if the taxpayer had disposed of the property at that time and received as consideration an amount of money equal to the fair market value of the property at that time, would be considered to be used to acquire the consideration.

175.2.3. Where at any particular time after 31 December 1993 a taxpayer ceases to carry on a business and, as a consequence, borrowed money ceases to be used by the taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from the business, the following rules apply:

(a) where, at any time, in this paragraph referred to as the "time of disposition", at or after the particular time, the taxpayer disposes of property that was last used by the taxpayer in the business, an amount of the borrowed money equal to the lesser of the following amounts is deemed to have been used by the taxpayer immediately before the time of disposition to acquire the property:

i. the fair market value of the property at the time of disposition, and

ii. the amount of the borrowed money outstanding at the time of disposition that is not deemed by this paragraph to have been used before the time of disposition to acquire any other property;

(b) subject to paragraph a, the borrowed money is deemed, after the particular time, not to have been used to acquire property that was used by the taxpayer in the business;

(c) the amount of the borrowed money outstanding at any time after the particular time that is not deemed by paragraph a to have been used before that subsequent time to acquire property is deemed to be used by the taxpayer at that subsequent time for the purpose of earning income from the business; and

(d) the business is deemed to have fiscal periods after the particular time that coincide with the taxation years of the taxpayer, except that the first such fiscal period is deemed to begin at the end of the business's last fiscal period that began before the particular time.

1995, c. 49, s. 51.

175.2.4. For the purposes of paragraph a of section 175.2.3,

(a) where a property was used by a taxpayer in a business that the taxpayer has ceased to carry on, the taxpayer is deemed to dispose of the property at the time at which the taxpayer begins to use the property in another business or for any other purpose;

(b) where a taxpayer, who has at any particular time ceased to carry on a business, regularly used a property in part in the business and in part for some other purpose,

i. the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of the property at that time, and

ii. the fair market value of the property at that time is deemed to equal the proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the use regularly made of the property in the business was of the whole use regularly made of the property; and

(c) where the taxpayer is a trust, sections 653 to 656.3.1 do not apply.

1995, c. 49, s. 51; 2004, c. 21, s. 64.

175.2.5. Where an amount is payable by a taxpayer for property, the amount is deemed, for the purposes of sections 175.2.2 to 175.2.7 and, where section 175.2.3 applies with respect to the amount, for the purposes of this Part, to be payable in respect of borrowed money used by the taxpayer to acquire the property.

1995, c. 49, s. 51.

175.2.6. For the purposes of sections 175.2.2 to 175.2.7, where borrowed money that has been used to acquire an interest in a partnership is, as a consequence, considered to be used at any time for the purpose of earning income from a business or property of the partnership, the borrowed money is deemed to be used at that time for the purpose of earning income from property that is the interest in the partnership and not to be used for the purpose of earning income from the business or property of the partnership.

175.2.7. Where at any time a taxpayer uses borrowed money to repay money previously borrowed that was deemed by paragraph c of section 175.2.3 immediately before that time to be used for the purpose of earning income from a business, the following rules apply:

(a) paragraphs a to c of section 175.2.3 apply with respect to the borrowed money; and

(b) section 183 does not apply with respect to the borrowed money.

175.2.8. For the purposes of this section and sections 175.2.9 to 175.2.11,

"branch advance" of an authorized foreign bank means an amount allocated or provided by, or on behalf of, the bank to, or for the benefit of, its Canadian banking business under terms that were documented, before the amount was so allocated or provided, to the same extent as, and in a form similar to the form in which, the bank would ordinarily document a loan by it to a person with whom it deals at arm's length;

"branch financial statements" of an authorized foreign bank for a taxation year means the unconsolidated statements of assets and liabilities and of income and expenses, in relation to its Canadian banking business,

(a) that form part of the bank's annual report for the year filed with the Superintendent of Financial Institutions of Canada as required under section 601 of the Bank Act (Statutes of Canada, 1991, chapter 46), and accepted by the Superintendent; and

(b) if such a report is not required to be filed for the year, that are prepared in a manner consistent with the statements in the annual report or reports so filed and accepted for the period or periods in which the year falls;

"calculation period" of an authorized foreign bank for a taxation year means any one of a series of regular periods into which the year is divided in a designation by the bank in its fiscal return for the year or, in the absence of such a designation, by the Minister,

(a) none of which is longer than 31 days;

(b) the first of which commences at the beginning of the year and the last of which ends at the end of the year; and

(c) that are, unless the Minister otherwise agrees in writing, consistent with the calculation periods designated by the bank for its preceding taxation year.

If the Minister demonstrates that the statements referred to in the definition of "branch financial statements" in the first paragraph are not prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles in Canada as modified by any specifications applicable to the bank made by the Superintendent of Financial Institutions of Canada under subsection 4 of section 308 of the Bank Act, in this paragraph referred to as "modified accounting principles", the expression "branch financial statements" means the statements subject to such modifications as are required to make them comply with modified accounting principles.

2004, c. 8, s. 32.

175.2.9. In computing the income of an authorized foreign bank from its Canadian banking business for a taxation year, there may be deducted on account of interest for each calculation period of the bank for the year,

(a) where the total amount at the end of the period of its branch advances and debts to other persons and partnerships is 95% or more of the amount of its assets at that time, an amount not exceeding

i. if the amount of debts to other persons and partnerships at that time is less than 95% of the amount of its assets at that time, the amount determined by the formula

$$E + D \times (0.95 \times A - C) / B, \text{ and}$$

ii. if the amount of debts to other persons and partnerships at that time is equal to or greater than 95% of the amount of its assets at that time, the amount determined by the formula

$$E \times (0.95 \times A) / C; \text{ and}$$

(b) in any other case, the aggregate of

i. the amount determined by the formula

$$D + E, \text{ and}$$

ii. the product obtained by multiplying the average, based on daily observations, of the Bank of Canada bank rate for the period by the lesser of the amount claimed by the authorized foreign bank in its fiscal return it is required to file for the year under section 1000 and the amount determined by the formula

$$(0.95 \times A) - (B + C).$$

In the formulas provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount of the bank's assets at the end of the period;

(b) B is the amount of the bank's branch advances at the end of the period;

(c) C is the amount of the bank's debts to other persons and partnerships at the end of the period;

(d) D is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a reasonable amount on account of notional interest for the period, in respect of a branch advance, that would be deductible in computing the bank's income for the year if it were interest payable by, and the advance were indebtedness of, the bank to another person and if this Act were read without reference to sections 133.6 and 175.2.8 to 175.2.11; and

(e) E is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount on account of interest for the period in respect of a debt of the bank to another person or partnership that would be deductible in computing the bank's income for the year if this Act were read without reference to sections 133.6 and 175.2.8 to 175.2.11.

2004, c. 8, s. 32.

175.2.10. Only amounts that are in respect of an authorized foreign bank's Canadian banking business, and that are entered in the accounting records of the business in a manner consistent with the manner in which they are required to be treated for the purposes of the branch financial statements, shall be used to determine the amounts referred to in the first paragraph of section 175.2.9 of an authorized foreign bank's assets, debts to other persons and partnerships, and branch advances, and the amounts in the second paragraph of section 175.2.9.

175.2.11. For the purposes of subparagraph d of the second paragraph of section 175.2.9, a reasonable amount on account of notional interest for a calculation period in respect of a branch advance is the amount that would be payable on account of interest for the period by a notional borrower, having regard to the duration of the advance, the currency in which repayment is required and all other terms, as determined with reference to paragraph c, of the advance, if

(a) the borrower were a person that carried on the bank's Canadian banking business, that dealt at arm's length with the bank and that had the same credit-worthiness and borrowing capacity as the bank;

(b) the advance were a loan by the bank to the borrower; and

(c) any of the terms of the advance, excluding the rate of interest, but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating and the choice of any reference rate referred to, that are not terms that would be made between the bank as lender and the borrower, having regard to all the circumstances, including the nature of the Canadian banking business, the use of the advanced funds in the business and normal risk management practices for banks, were instead terms that would be agreed to by the bank and the borrower.

175.2.12. For the purposes of this section and sections 175.2.13 to 175.2.15,

"exchange date" in respect of a debt of a taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt means,

(a) if the debt is incurred or assumed by the taxpayer in relation to borrowed money that is denominated in the final currency, the day that the debt is incurred or assumed by the taxpayer; and

(b) if the debt is incurred or assumed by the taxpayer in relation to borrowed money that is not denominated in the final currency, or in relation to the acquisition of property, the day on which the taxpayer uses the borrowed money or the acquired property, directly or indirectly, to acquire funds that are, or to settle an obligation that is, denominated in the final currency;

"hedge" in respect of a debt of a taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt means any agreement entered into by the taxpayer

(a) that can reasonably be regarded as having been entered into by the taxpayer primarily to reduce the taxpayer's risk, in relation to payments of principal or interest in respect of the debt, of fluctuations in the value of the weak currency; and

(b) that is designated by the taxpayer as a hedge in respect of the debt in prescribed form filed with the Minister on or before the 30th day after the day on which the taxpayer entered into the agreement;

"weak currency debt" of a taxpayer at a particular time means a particular debt in a foreign currency, in this section and sections 175.2.13 to 175.2.15 referred to as the "weak currency", incurred or assumed by the taxpayer at a time, in this section and sections 175.2.13 to 175.2.15 referred to as the "commitment time", after 27 February 2000, in relation to borrowed money or an acquisition of property, where

(a) any of the following applies, namely,

i. the borrowed money is denominated in a currency, in this section and sections 175.2.13 to 175.2.15 referred to as the "final currency", other than the weak currency, is used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property and is not used to acquire funds in a currency other than the final currency,

ii. the borrowed money or the acquired property is used, directly or indirectly, to acquire funds that are denominated in a currency, in this section and sections 175.2.13 to 175.2.15 also referred to as the "final currency", other than the weak currency, that are used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property and that are not used to acquire funds in a currency other than the final currency,

iii. the borrowed money or the acquired property is used, directly or indirectly, to settle an obligation that is denominated in a currency, in this section and sections 175.2.13 to 175.2.15 also referred to as the "final currency", other than the weak currency, that is incurred or assumed for the purpose of earning income from a business or property and that is not incurred or assumed to acquire funds in a currency other than the final currency, or

iv. the borrowed money or the acquired property is used, directly or indirectly, to settle another debt of the taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt in respect of which the final currency is a currency other than the currency of the particular debt and is deemed to be the final currency in respect of the particular debt;

(b) the amount of the particular debt together with any other debt that would, but for this paragraph, be at any time a weak currency debt, and that can reasonably be regarded as having been incurred or assumed by the taxpayer as part of a series of transactions that includes the incurring or assumption of the particular debt, exceeds $500,000; and

(c) either of the following applies, namely,

i. if the rate at which interest is payable at the particular time in the weak currency in respect of the particular debt is determined under a formula based on the value from time to time of a reference rate, other than a reference rate the value of which is established or materially influenced by the taxpayer, the interest rate at the commitment time, as determined under the formula as though interest were then payable, exceeds by more than two percentage points the rate at which interest would have been payable at the commitment time in the final currency if

(1) the taxpayer had, at the commitment time, instead incurred or assumed an equivalent amount of debt in the final currency on the same terms as the particular debt, excluding the rate of interest but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating, with those modifications that the difference in currency requires, and

(2) interest on the equivalent amount of debt referred to in subparagraph 1 was payable at the commitment time, and

ii. in any other case, the rate at which interest is payable at the particular time in the weak currency in respect of the particular debt exceeds by more than two percentage points the rate at which interest would have been payable at the particular time in the final currency if at the commitment time the taxpayer had instead incurred or assumed an equivalent amount of debt in the final currency on the same terms as the particular debt, excluding the rate of interest but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating, with those modifications that the difference in currency requires.

175.2.13. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the following rules apply in respect of a particular debt of a taxpayer, other than a corporation described in any of paragraphs a, b, c and e of the definition of "specified financial institution" in section 1, that is at any time a weak currency debt:

(a) no deduction on account of interest that accrues on the debt for any period that begins after the day that is the later of 30 June 2000 and the exchange date during which it is a weak currency debt shall exceed the amount of interest that would, if at the commitment time the taxpayer had instead incurred or assumed an equivalent amount of debt in the final currency on the same terms as the particular debt, excluding the rate of interest but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating, have accrued on the equivalent debt during that period, with those modifications that the difference in currency requires;

(b) the amount of the taxpayer's gain or loss, in this section and section 175.2.14 referred to as a "foreign exchange gain" or "foreign exchange loss", for a taxation year on the settlement or extinguishment of the debt that is due to the fluctuation in the value of any currency shall be included or deducted, as the case may be, in computing the taxpayer's income from the business or the property to which the debt relates; and

(c) the amount of any interest on the debt that is, because of this section, not deductible is deemed, for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's foreign exchange gain or foreign exchange loss on the settlement or extinguishment of the debt, to be an amount paid by the taxpayer to settle or extinguish the debt.

2004, c. 8, s. 32.

175.2.14. In applying section 175.2.13 in circumstances where a taxpayer has entered into a hedge in respect of a debt of the taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt, the amount paid or payable in the weak currency for a taxation year on account of interest on the debt, or paid in the weak currency for a taxation year on account of the debt's principal, shall be decreased by the amount of any foreign exchange gain, or increased by the amount of any foreign exchange loss, on the hedge in respect of the amount so paid or payable.

2004, c. 8, s. 32.

175.2.15. Where the amount, expressed in the weak currency, outstanding on account of principal in respect of a debt that is at any time a weak currency debt is reduced before maturity, whether by repayment or otherwise, the amount, expressed in the weak currency, of the reduction is deemed, except for the purpose of determining the rate of interest that would have been charged on an equivalent debt in the final currency and applying paragraph b of the definition of "weak currency debt" in section 175.2.12, to have been a separate debt from the commitment time.

2004, c. 8, s. 32.

DIVISION XII.0.1

TRANSITIONAL RULES RELATING TO AN INSURER

2010, c. 25, s. 20.

175.2.16. In sections 175.2.17 to 175.2.19, "insurance business", "reserve transition amount" and "transition year" have the meaning assigned by section 92.23.

2010, c. 25, s. 20.

175.2.17. If an insurer's reserve transition amount in respect of an insurance business carried on by it in Canada is negative, the reserve transition amount, expressed as a positive number, must be deducted in computing the insurer's income for its transition year from the insurance business.

2010, c. 25, s. 20.

175.2.18. If an amount has been included under section 92.24 in computing an insurer's income for its transition year from an insurance business carried on by it in Canada, there must be deducted in computing the insurer's income, for each particular taxation year of the insurer that ends after the beginning of the transition year, from that insurance business, the amount determined by the formula

A × B/1,825.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount included under section 92.24 in computing the insurer's income for its transition year from that insurance business; and

(b) B is the number of days in the particular taxation year that are before the day that is 1,825 days after the first day of the transition year.

2010, c. 25, s. 20.

175.2.19. If at any time an insurer ceases (otherwise than as a result of an amalgamation within the meaning of subsections 1 and 2 of section 544) to carry on all or substantially all of an insurance business (in this section referred to as the "discontinued business"), and neither section 92.26 nor 92.27 applies, there must be deducted in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for the insurer's taxation year that includes the time that is immediately before that time, the amount determined by the formula

A - B.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount included under section 92.24 in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for its transition year; and

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted under section 175.2.18 in computing the insurer's income from the discontinued business for a taxation year that began before that time.

2010, c. 25, s. 20.

DIVISION XII.1

WORKSPACE IN HOME

1990, c. 59, s. 98; 1999, c. 83, s. 47.

175.4. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, an individual or a partnership of which the individual is a member shall not, in computing his or its income from a business for a taxation year or a fiscal period, as the case may be, deduct an amount in respect of an amount otherwise deductible for any part, in this division referred to as the "work space", of a self-contained domestic establishment in which the individual resides, except to the extent that the work space is either

(a) the principal place of business of the individual or partnership, as the case may be; or

(b) used

i. exclusively for the purposes of earning income from a business, and

ii. on a regular and continuous basis for meeting clients, customers or patients of the individual or partnership in respect of the business, as the case may be.

1990, c. 59, s. 98; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1997, c. 14, s. 48; 1997, c. 31, s. 21.

175.5. Where a work space is described in paragraph a or b of section 175.4, the amount in respect of the work space that is deductible by the individual or partnership referred to in that section in computing the income of the individual or partnership from the business referred to in that section for a taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, shall not exceed the lesser of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is,

i. where the individual or the partnership has made an expenditure, other than an expenditure of a capital nature, that may reasonably be considered to relate

(1) both to the part of the establishment, other than the work space, and to the work space, the product obtained by multiplying the amount that would, but for this section, be deductible in computing the income of the individual or partnership from the business for the taxation year or the fiscal period, as the case may be, in respect of the expenditure, by 50%, or

(2) solely to the work space, the amount that would, but for this section, be deductible in computing the income of the individual or partnership from the business for the taxation year or the fiscal period, as the case may be, in respect of the expenditure, and

ii. the amount deducted by the individual or the partnership in computing the income of the individual or partnership from the business for the taxation year or the fiscal period, as the case may be, under paragraph a of section 130 or the second paragraph of section 130.1, in respect of the work space; and;

(b) the income of the individual or partnership from the business for the taxation year or the fiscal period, as the case may be, computed before deducting any amount referred to in subparagraphs i and ii of subparagraph a and without reference to sections 217.2 to 217.9.1.

For the purposes of subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) an amount paid or payable by the individual or partnership as rent pertaining to the work space is deemed to be an expenditure that may reasonably be considered to relate to both the part of the establishment, other than the work space, and the work space;

(b) an expenditure, other than an expenditure of a capital nature, made by the individual or partnership, that may reasonably be considered to relate to both the work space in connection with the operation of a tourist accommodation establishment that is a principal residence establishment, bed and breakfast establishment or tourist home, within the meaning of the regulations made under the Tourist Accommodation Act (chapter H-1.01), and the part of the establishment, other than the work space, is deemed to be an expenditure relating solely to the work space if the tourist accommodation establishment is duly registered under that Act;

*(b.1)* an expenditure, other than an expenditure of a capital nature, made by the individual or partnership, that may reasonably be considered to relate to both the work space in connection with the operation of a private residential home and the part of the establishment, other than the work space, is deemed to be an expenditure relating solely to the work space; and

(c) an expenditure, other than an expenditure of a capital nature, made by the individual or partnership, that may reasonably be considered to relate both to the part of the establishment, other than the work space, and to the work space, including an amount paid or payable by the individual or partnership as lighting or heating costs, and that is not an expenditure in relation to the maintenance of the establishment, is deemed to be an expenditure that may reasonably be considered to relate solely to the work space.

For the purposes of subparagraph c of the second paragraph, an amount paid or payable by the individual or partnership as maintenance and repairs costs, rent, interest on a hypothecary loan, property and school taxes or insurance premiums, relating to both the part of the establishment, other than the work space, and the work space, is deemed to be an expenditure relating to the maintenance of the establishment.

1990, c. 59, s. 98; 1997, c. 14, s. 49; 1997, c. 31, s. 22; 1999, c. 83, s. 48; 2000, c. 5, s. 293; 2000, c. 39, s. 16; 2001, c. 51, s. 27; 2002, c. 9, s. 7; 2006, c. 13, s. 29; 2015, c. 24, s. 41; 2017, c. 29, s. 51; 2023, c. 2, s. 6.

175.6. Where the amount determined under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 175.5, in respect of a business of an individual or partnership for the taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, preceding a particular taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph b of that first paragraph, in respect of the business of the individual or partnership for that preceding taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purposes of section 175.4, the excess amount is deemed, for the purpose of computing the income of the individual or partnership from the business for the particular taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, to be an amount otherwise deductible for the particular taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be, in respect of a work space that is described in paragraph a or b of section 175.4 for the particular taxation year or fiscal period, as the case may be;

(b) in applying section 175.5, the excess amount is deemed to be an expenditure, other than an expenditure of a capital nature, that may reasonably be considered to relate solely to the work space and that is deductible in computing the income of the individual or partnership from the business for the particular taxation year or the particular fiscal period, as the case may be.

1990, c. 59, s. 98; 1997, c. 14, s. 49; 1997, c. 31, s. 22; 2000, c. 39, s. 17.

DIVISION XII.1.1

EXPENSES FOR FOOD, BEVERAGES AND ENTERTAINMENT

2004, c. 21, s. 65.

175.6.1. The aggregate of all amounts that a taxpayer may deduct in computing income from a business or property for a taxation year, each of which is an amount to which section 421.1 applies for the year, shall not exceed

(a) in respect of a business of the taxpayer that consists in acting as an intermediary in selling property included in the inventory of another taxpayer,

i. if the taxpayer's deemed gross revenue for the year from the business referred to in this subparagraph does not exceed $32,500, the amount determined by the formula

$$[2\% \times (A/B)] + [2\% \times (C - A)],$$

ii. if the taxpayer's deemed gross revenue for the year from the business referred to in this subparagraph exceeds $32,500 but does not exceed $51,999, $650, and

iii. if the taxpayer's deemed gross revenue for the year from the business referred to in this subparagraph exceeds $51,999, the amount determined by the formula

$$[1.25\% \times (A/B)] + [1.25\% \times (C - A)];$$

(b) in any other case,

i. if the taxpayer's gross revenue for the year from the business or property does not exceed $32,500, an amount equal to 2% of that gross revenue,

ii. if the taxpayer's gross revenue for the year from the business or property exceeds $32,500 but does not exceed $51,999, $650, and

iii. if the taxpayer's gross revenue for the year from the business or property exceeds $51,999, an amount equal to 1.25% of that gross revenue.

For the purposes of subparagraphs i to iii of subparagraph a of the first paragraph, the taxpayer's deemed gross revenue for the year from the business referred to in that subparagraph a is the amount determined by the formula

$$(A/B) + (C - A).$$

In the formulas in subparagraphs i and iii of subparagraph a of the first paragraph and in the second paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of a commission that the taxpayer included in computing income for the year from the business referred to in that subparagraph a;

(b) B is the average percentage of the aggregate of all the commissions in respect of which the taxpayer included the amount in computing income for the year from the business referred to in that subparagraph a; and

(c) C is the taxpayer's gross revenue for the year from the business referred to in that subparagraph a.

If the number of days in the taxation year of the taxpayer is less than 365, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purposes of subparagraphs a and b of the first paragraph, the taxpayer's deemed gross revenue or gross revenue for the year from a business or property is deemed to be equal to the amount obtained by multiplying that revenue by the proportion that 365 is of the number of days in the year; and

(b) the amount determined under subparagraph a or b of the first paragraph is deemed to be equal to that amount, otherwise determined, multiplied by the proportion that the number of days in the year is of 365.

However, an amount to which section 421.1 applies for a taxation year must not be included in computing the aggregate referred to in the first paragraph, in relation to a business of the taxpayer, where it is an amount in respect of food or beverages consumed by a person in a place that is at least 40 km from the taxpayer's place of business where that person ordinarily works or to which that person is ordinarily attached and to the extent that the amount is paid or payable in connection with activities related to the business that are ordinarily carried on by a person in a place so remotely located from that place of business.

In addition, no taxpayer who is a member of a partnership at the end of a fiscal period of the partnership may, in respect of a business carried on by the partnership or of property owned by the partnership, deduct an amount incurred by the taxpayer and to which section 421.1 applies, in computing income from the business or property for the taxpayer's taxation year in which that fiscal period ends.

DIVISION XII.2

SUPERFICIAL LOSSES

1990, c. 59, s. 98.

175.7. Section 175.9 applies, subject to section 851.22.28, where

(a) a taxpayer, in this section and section 175.9 referred to as the "transferor", disposes of a particular property;

(b) the disposition is not described in any of paragraphs a to e of section 238;

(c) the transferor is not an insurer;

(d) the ordinary business of the transferor includes the lending of money and the particular property was used or held in the course of that business;

(e) the particular property is a share, or a loan, bond, debenture, note, hypothecary claim, mortgage, agreement of sale or any other indebtedness;

(f) the particular property was, immediately before the disposition, not a capital property of the transferor;

(g) during the period that begins 30 days before and ends 30 days after the time of disposition, the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor acquires a property, in this section and section 175.9 referred to as the "substituted property", that is, or is identical to, the particular property; and

(h) at the end of the 30 days following the time of disposition, the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor owns the substituted property.

1990, c. 59, s. 98; 1996, c. 39, s. 53; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 45; 2005, c. 1, s. 68.

175.8. Section 175.9 also applies where

(a) a person, in this section and section 175.9 referred to as the "transferor", disposes of a particular property;

(b) the particular property is described in an inventory of a business that is an adventure or concern in the nature of trade;

(c) the disposition is not a disposition that is deemed to have occurred under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 85.7, paragraph a of section 85.9, any of Divisions I to III of Chapter III of Title VII, section 653, Chapter I of Title I.1 of Book VI, paragraph a or c of section 785.5, or any of sections 832.1, 851.22.0.4 and 999.1;

(d) during the period that begins 30 days before and ends 30 days after the time of disposition, the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor acquires property, in this section and section 175.9 referred to as the "substituted property", that is, or is identical to, the particular property; and

(e) at the end of the 30 days following the time of disposition, the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor owns the substituted property.

2000, c. 5, s. 46; 2004, c. 8, s. 33; 2015, c. 36, s. 11; 2020, c. 16, s. 45.

175.9. If this section applies because of section 175.7 or 175.8 in respect of a disposition of a particular property,

(a) the transferor's loss from the disposition is deemed to be nil; and

(b) the transferor's loss from the disposition, determined without reference to this section, is deemed to be a loss of the transferor from a disposition of the particular property at the first time, after the time of disposition,

i. at which a 30-day period begins throughout which neither the transferor nor a person affiliated with the transferor owns the substituted property, or a property that is identical to the substituted property and that was acquired after the day that is 31 days before the period begins,

ii. at which the substituted property would, if it were owned by the transferor, be deemed under Chapter I of Title I.1 of Book VI or section 999.1 to have been disposed of by the transferor,

iii. that is immediately before the transferor is subject to a loss restriction event, or

iv. at which the winding-up of the transferor begins, other than a winding-up referred to in section 556, where the transferor is a corporation.

For the purposes of subparagraph b of the first paragraph, where a partnership otherwise ceases to exist at any time after the time of disposition,

(a) the partnership is deemed not to have ceased to exist until the time that is immediately after the first time described in subparagraphs i to iv of subparagraph b; and

(b) each person who was a member of the partnership immediately before the partnership would, but for this section, have ceased to exist is deemed to remain a member of the partnership, until the time that is immediately after the first time described in subparagraphs i to iv of subparagraph b.

2000, c. 5, s. 46; 2004, c. 8, s. 34; 2017, c. 1, s. 97.

175.10. For the purposes of sections 175.7 to 175.9, a right to acquire a property, other than a right, as security only, derived from a hypothec, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar obligation, is deemed to be a property that is identical to the property.

DIVISION XII.3

STRADDLE LOSSES

2020, c. 16, s. 46.

175.11. For the purposes of this division,

"offsetting position", in respect of a particular position of a person or partnership (in this definition referred to as the "holder"), means one or more positions that

(a) are held by

i. the holder,

ii. another person or partnership that does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, the holder (that other person or partnership being referred to in this section and sections 175.13 and 175.15 as the "connected person"), or

iii. any combination of the holder and one or more connected persons;

(b) have the effect, or would have the effect if each of the positions held by a connected person were held by the holder, of eliminating all or substantially all of the holder's risk of loss and opportunity for gain or profit in respect of the particular position; and

(c) if held by a connected person, can reasonably be considered to have been held with the purpose of obtaining the effect described in paragraph b;

"position", of a person or partnership, means one or more properties, obligations or liabilities of the person or partnership, where

(a) each property, obligation or liability is

i. a share of the capital stock of a corporation,

ii. an interest in a partnership,

iii. an interest in a trust,

iv. a commodity,

v. foreign currency,

vi. a swap agreement, a forward purchase or sale agreement, a forward rate agreement, a futures agreement, an option agreement or a similar agreement,

vii. a debt owed to or owing by the person or partnership that, at any time,

(1) is denominated in a foreign currency,

(2) would be described in subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 92.5R3 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) if that subparagraph were read without reference to ", other than one described in any of subparagraphs a to c,", or

(3) is convertible into or exchangeable for a right in any property that is described in any of subparagraphs i to iv, viii. an obligation to transfer or return to another person or partnership a property identical to a particular property described in any of subparagraphs i to vii that was previously transferred or lent to the person or partnership by that other person or partnership, or

ix. a right in any property that is described in any of subparagraphs i to vii; and

(b) it is reasonable to conclude that, if there is more than one property, obligation or liability, each of them is held in connection with each other;

"successor position", in respect of a position (in this definition referred to as the "initial position"), means a particular position if

(a) the particular position is an offsetting position in respect of a second position;

(b) the second position was an offsetting position in respect of the initial position that was disposed of at a particular time; and

(c) the particular position was entered into during the period that begins 30 days before, and ends 30 days after, the particular time;

"unrecognized loss", in respect of a position of a person or partnership at a particular time in a taxation year, means the loss, if any, that would be deductible in computing the income of the person or partnership for the year with respect to the position if it were disposed of immediately before the particular time for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value at the time of disposition;

"unrecognized profit", in respect of a position of a person or partnership at a particular time in a taxation year, means the profit, if any, that would be included in computing the income of the person or partnership for the year with respect to the position if it were disposed of immediately before the particular time for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value at the time of disposition.;

2020, c. 16, s. 46.

175.12. Subject to section 175.13, the rule set out in the second paragraph applies in respect of the disposition of a particular position by a person or partnership (in this section and sections 175.13 and 175.15 referred to as the "transferor"), if

(a) the disposition is not a deemed disposition under any of Divisions I to III of Chapter III of Title VII, section 653, Chapter I of Title I.1 of Book VI or section 832.1 or 999.1;

(b) the transferor is not a financial institution (within the meaning of section 851.22.1), a mutual fund corporation or a mutual fund trust; and

(c) the particular position was, immediately before its disposition, not a capital property, or an obligation or liability on account of capital, of the transferor.

Where the conditions of the first paragraph are met in respect of the disposition of a particular position by a transferor, the portion of the transferor's loss, if any, from the disposition of the particular position that is deductible in computing the transferor's income for a particular taxation year is equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$A + B - C.$$

In the formula in the second paragraph,

(a) A is

i. if the particular taxation year is the taxation year in which the disposition occurs, the amount of the loss determined with reference to section 175.9 but without reference to this section, and

ii. in any other taxation year, nil;

(b) B is

i. if the disposition occurred in a taxation year preceding the particular taxation year, the amount determined under subparagraph c in respect of the disposition for the taxation year preceding the particular taxation year, and

ii. in any other case, nil; and

(c) C is the lesser of

i. the amount determined under subparagraph a for the taxation year in which the disposition occurs, and

ii. the amount determined by the formula

D − (E + F).

In the formula in subparagraph ii of subparagraph c of the third paragraph,

(a) D is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is equal to the amount of unrecognized profit at the end of the particular taxation year in respect of

i. the particular position,

ii. positions that are offsetting positions in respect of the particular position or those that would be such offsetting positions, to the extent that there is no successor position in respect of the particular position, if the particular position continued to be held by the transferor,

iii. successor positions in respect of the particular position, and

iv. positions that are offsetting positions in respect of any successor position referred to in subparagraph iii or those that would be such offsetting positions if any such successor position continued to be held by the transferor;

(b) E is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is equal to the amount of unrecognized loss at the end of the particular taxation year in respect of positions referred to in subparagraphs i to iv of subparagraph a; and

(c) F is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is equal to the amount determined by the formula

G − H.

In the formula in subparagraph c of the fourth paragraph,

(a) G is the amount determined under subparagraph a of the third paragraph for the taxation year in which the disposition occurs in respect of another position that was disposed of prior to the disposition of the particular position, if

i. the particular position was a successor position in respect of the other position, and

ii. the other position was

(1) an offsetting position in respect of the particular position,

(2) an offsetting position in respect of a position in respect of which the particular position was a successor position, or

(3) the particular position; and

(b) H is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is, in respect of another position described in subparagraph a, an amount determined under the second paragraph for the particular taxation year or a preceding taxation year.

For the purposes of subparagraph iii of subparagraph a of the fourth paragraph, subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the fifth paragraph and subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of that subparagraph a, a successor position in respect of a position includes a successor position that is in respect of a successor position in respect of the position.

2020, c. 16, s. 46.

175.13. Section 175.12 does not apply in respect of a particular position of a transferor if

(a) the following conditions are met:

i. either the particular position, or the offsetting position in respect of the particular position, consists of

(1) commodities that the holder of the position manufactures, produces, grows, extracts or processes, or

(2) debt that the holder of the position incurs in the course of a business that consists of one or any combination of the activities described in subparagraph 1, and

ii. it can reasonably be considered that the position not described in subparagraph i—the particular position if the position that is described in subparagraph i is the offsetting position, or the offsetting position if the position that is described in that subparagraph i is the particular position—is held to reduce the risk, with respect to the position described in subparagraph i, from

(1) in the case of a position described in subparagraph i that consists of commodities described in subparagraph 1 of that subparagraph i, price changes or fluctuations in the value of currency with respect to such commodities, or

(2) in the case of a position described in subparagraph i that consists of a debt described in subparagraph 2 of that subparagraph i, fluctuations in interest rates or in the value of currency with respect to the debt;

(b) the transferor or a connected person (in this subparagraph referred to as the "holder") continues to hold a position—that would be an offsetting position in respect of the particular position if the particular position continued to be held by the transferor—throughout a 30-day period beginning on the date of disposition of the particular position, and at no time during the period

i. is the holder's risk of loss or opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the position reduced in any material respect by another position entered into or disposed of by the holder, or

ii. would the holder's risk of loss or opportunity for gain or profit with respect to the position be reduced in any material respect by another position entered into or disposed of by a connected person, if the other position were entered into or disposed of by the holder; or

(c) it can reasonably be considered that none of the main purposes of the series of transactions or events, or any of the transactions or events in the series, of which the holding of both the particular position and offsetting position are part, is to avoid, reduce or defer tax that would otherwise be payable under this Act.

2020, c. 16, s. 46.

175.14. For the purposes of this division,

(a) if a position of a person or partnership is not a property of the person or partnership, the person or partnership is deemed

i. to hold the position at any time while it is a position of the person or partnership, and

ii. to have disposed of the position when the position is settled or extinguished in respect of the person or partnership;

(b) the disposition of a position is deemed to include the disposition of a portion of the position;

(c) a first position held by one or more persons or partnerships referred to in paragraph a of the definition of "offsetting position" in section 175.11 is deemed to be an offsetting position in respect of a particular position of a person or partnership if

i. there is a high degree of negative correlation between changes in value of the first position and that of the particular position, and

ii. it can reasonably be considered that the principal purpose of the series of transactions or events, or any of the transactions in the series, of which the holding of both the first position and the particular position are part, is to avoid, reduce or defer tax that would otherwise be payable under this Act; and

(d) one or more positions held by one or more persons or partnerships referred to in paragraph a of the definition of "offsetting position" in section 175.11 are deemed to be a successor position in respect of a particular position of a person or partnership if

i. a portion of the particular position was disposed of at a particular time,

ii. the position is, or the positions include, as the case may be, a position that consists of the portion of the particular position that was not disposed of (in this paragraph referred to as the "remaining portion of the particular position"),

iii. where there is more than one position, any position that does not consist of the remaining portion of the particular position was entered into during the period that begins 30 days before, and ends 30 days after, the particular time referred to in subparagraph i,

iv. the position is, or the positions taken together would be, as the case may be, an offsetting position in respect of a second position (within the meaning assigned by the definition of "successor position" in section 175.11),

v. the second position described in subparagraph iv was an offsetting position in respect of the particular position, and

vi. it can reasonably be considered that the principal purpose of the series of transactions or events, or any of the transactions in the series, of which the disposition of a portion of the particular position and the holding of one or more positions are part, is to avoid, reduce or defer tax that would otherwise be payable under this Act.

2020, c. 16, s. 46.

175.15. The presumption provided for in the second paragraph applies where

(a) at any time in a particular taxation year of a transferor, a position referred to in any of subparagraphs ii to iv of subparagraph a of the fourth paragraph of section 175.12 (in this section referred to as the "gain position") is held by a connected person;

(b) the connected person disposes of the gain position in the particular taxation year; and

(c) the taxation year of the connected person in which the disposition referred to in subparagraph b occurs ends after the end of the particular taxation year.

Where the conditions of the first paragraph are met, the portion of the profit, if any, realized from the disposition of the gain position referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph that is determined by the following formula is deemed, for the purposes of the definition of "unrecognized profit" in section 175.11 and the second paragraph of section 175.12, to be unrecognized profit in respect of the gain position until the end of the taxation year of the connected person in which the disposition occurs:

$$A \times B / C.$$

In the formula in the second paragraph,

(a) A is the amount of the profit otherwise determined;

(b) B is the number of days in the taxation year of the connected person in which the disposition referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph occurs that are after the end of the particular taxation year; and

(c) C is the total number of days in the taxation year of the connected person in which the disposition referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph occurs.

2020, c. 16, s. 46.

DIVISION XIII

BORROWINGS

1972, c. 23.

176. Subject to section 176.1, a taxpayer may deduct such part of an amount, other than an amount referred to in the second paragraph, that is not otherwise deductible in computing the income of the taxpayer and that is an expense incurred by the taxpayer in the year or a preceding taxation year

(a) in the course of a borrowing of money used by the taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from a business or property, other than money used by the taxpayer for the purpose of acquiring property the income from which is exempt from tax;

(b) in the course of incurring indebtedness that is an amount payable for property acquired for the purpose of earning income therefrom or for the purpose of earning income from a business, other than property the income from which would be exempt from tax or property that is an interest in a life insurance policy; or

(c) in the course of a rescheduling or restructuring of a debt obligation of the taxpayer or an assumption of a debt obligation by the taxpayer, where

(1) the debt obligation is in respect of a borrowing described in paragraph a or in respect of an amount payable described in paragraph b, and

(2) in the case of a rescheduling or restructuring, the rescheduling or restructuring, as the case may be, provides for the modification of the terms or conditions of the debt obligation or the substitution or conversion of the debt obligation with or to another debt obligation or a share.

The amount to which the first paragraph refers is

(a) an amount paid or payable as or on account of the principal amount of a debt obligation or interest in respect of a debt obligation;

(b) an amount that is contingent or dependent on the use of, or production from, property; or

(c) an amount that is computed by reference to revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price or any other similar criterion or by reference to dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation.

1972, c. 23, s. 163; 1980, c. 13, s. 12; 1990, c. 59, s. 99; 1995, c. 49, s. 53; 2001, c. 7, s. 28; 2003, c. 2, s. 61.

176.1. The amount deductible under section 176 shall not exceed the lesser of

(a) that proportion of 20% of the expense that the number of days in the year is of 365, and

(b) the amount by which the expense exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deductible in respect of the expense in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year.

1990, c. 59, s. 100.

176.2. For the purposes of sections 176, 176.1 and 176.3, where in a taxation year all debt obligations in respect of a borrowing of money described in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 176 or in respect of an amount payable described in subparagraph b of that first paragraph are settled or extinguished by the taxpayer, otherwise than in a transaction made as part of a series of borrowings or other transactions and repayments, for consideration that does not include any property described in the second paragraph, of the taxpayer or any person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length or any partnership or trust of which the taxpayer or any person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length is a member or beneficiary, section 176.1 shall be read without reference to the words "the lesser of" and to paragraph a.

The property referred to in the first paragraph is a unit of a unit investment trust, an interest in a partnership, a share in a syndicate, a share in the capital stock of a corporation or a debt obligation.

1990, c. 59, s. 100; 1995, c. 49, s. 54; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

176.3. For the purposes of sections 176 to 176.2, where a partnership has ceased to exist at any particular time in a fiscal period of the partnership,

(a) no amount may be deducted by the partnership under section 176 in computing its income for that fiscal period, and

(b) any person or partnership that was a member of the partnership immediately before that time may deduct, for a taxation year ending at or after that time, that proportion of the amount that would, but for this section, have been deductible under section 176 by the partnership in the fiscal period ending in the year had it continued to exist and had the partnership interest not been redeemed, acquired or cancelled, that the fair market value of such member's interest in the partnership immediately before that time is of the fair market value of all the interests in the partnership immediately before that time.

176.4. A taxpayer may deduct an amount payable by him, other than an amount referred to in section 176.5, as a registrar fee, transfer agent fee, standby charge, guarantee fee, filing fee, service fee or any similar fee, that may reasonably be considered to relate solely to the year and that is incurred by the taxpayer

(a) in the course of a borrowing of money to be used by the taxpayer for the purpose of earning income from a business or property, other than money used by the taxpayer for the purpose of acquiring property the income from which is exempt from tax;

(b) in the course of incurring indebtedness that is an amount payable for property acquired for the purpose of earning income therefrom or for the purpose of earning income from a business, other than property the income from which is exempt from tax or property that is an interest in a life insurance policy; or

(c) in the course of rescheduling or restructuring a debt obligation of the taxpayer or an assumption of a debt obligation by the taxpayer, where

(1) the debt obligation is in respect of a borrowing described in paragraph a, or in respect of an amount payable described in paragraph b, and

(2) in the case of a rescheduling or restructuring, the rescheduling or restructuring, as the case may be, provides for the modification of the terms or conditions of the debt obligation or the substitution or conversion of the debt obligation with or to another debt obligation or a share.

1990, c. 59, s. 100; 1995, c. 49, s. 55.

176.5. The amount to which section 176.4 refers is

(a) a payment that is contingent or dependent upon the use of or production from property,

(b) a payment that is computed by reference to revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price or any other similar criterion, or

(c) a payment that is computed by reference to dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation.

1990, c. 59, s. 100; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2003, c. 2, s. 62.

176.6. A taxpayer may deduct the least of the following amounts in respect of a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a leveraged insured annuity policy):

(a) the premium payable by the taxpayer under the life insurance policy in respect of the year, where

i. an interest in the policy is assigned to a restricted financial institution in the course of a borrowing from the institution, ii. the interest payable in respect of the borrowing is or would, but for sections 135.4, 164, 180 to 182 and 194 to 197, be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, and

iii. the assignment referred to in subparagraph i is required by the restricted financial institution as collateral for the borrowing;

(b) the net cost of pure insurance in respect of the year (other than in respect of a period that begins after 31 December 2013 during which the policy is a leveraged insurance policy), as determined in accordance with the regulations, in respect of the interest in the policy referred to in subparagraph i of paragraph a; and

(c) the portion, of the lesser of the amounts determined in accordance with paragraphs a and b in respect of the policy, that can reasonably be considered to relate to an amount owing from time to time during the year by the taxpayer to the restricted financial institution under the borrowing.

1993, c. 16, s. 92; 1995, c. 49, s. 56; 2017, c. 1, s. 98.

177. A taxpayer may deduct the part of any loan or indebtedness repaid by him in the year and which he included under section 113 in computing his income for a preceding taxation year, if it is established that the repayment was not made as part of a series of transactions and repayments.

This section applies only to the extent that the amount of the loan or indebtedness was not deductible for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's taxable income for that preceding taxation year.

1972, c. 23, s. 164; 1973, c. 17, s. 15; 1984, c. 15, s. 45; 1985, c. 25, s. 37; 1994, c. 22, s. 115.

178. (Repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 165; 1990, c. 59, s. 101.

179. (1) A taxpayer may deduct an amount paid in the year to pay the principal amount of a bond, debenture, bill, hypothecary claim, mortgage or other similar obligation, but only if they have been issued by the taxpayer after 18 June 1971 and call for the payment of interest and only to the extent that the amount so paid does not exceed:

(a) where such security has been issued for an amount not less than 97% of its principal amount, and its yield, expressed in yearly percentage on the amount for which it has been issued does not exceed 4/3 of the annual rate of interest stipulated, the amount according to which the lesser of the principal amount of such security and the aggregate of amounts paid in the year or in a previous year to repay its principal amount exceeds the amount for which it has been issued; and

(b) in all other cases, the lesser of 1/2 of the amount so paid and 1/2 of the amount by which the lesser of the principal amount of the security and the aggregate of the amounts paid in the year or in any preceding taxation year in satisfaction of the principal amount thereof exceeds the amount for which it has been issued.

(2) Sections 124 and 125 apply to this section.

180. A taxpayer who during a taxation year acquires depreciable property may elect, in his fiscal return filed under this Part for the year, to have the following rules apply:

(a) in computing his income for the year and for such of the three immediately preceding taxation years as the taxpayer had, sections 160, 163, 176 and 176.4 do not apply to the amount specified in his election that, but for the election, would have been deductible in computing his income, other than exempt income, for any such year in respect of borrowed money used to acquire the depreciable property or the amount payable for the depreciable property;

(b) the amount referred to in paragraph a shall be included in computing the capital cost to him of the depreciable property.

1972, c. 23, s. 167; 1982, c. 5, s. 48; 1984, c. 15, s. 46; 1986, c. 19, s. 34; 1993, c. 16, s. 93.

181. Where in a taxation year a taxpayer has used borrowed money for the purpose of exploration, development or the acquisition of property and the expenses incurred by the taxpayer in respect of those activities are Canadian exploration and development expenses, foreign exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses, foreign resource expenses in relation to a country or Canadian oil and gas property expenses, as the case may be, the taxpayer may elect in the taxpayer's fiscal return filed under this Part for the year, to have the following rules apply:

(a) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year and for such of the three immediately preceding taxation years as the taxpayer had, sections 160, 163, 176 and 176.4 do not apply to the amount specified in the taxpayer's election that, but for that election, would be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income, other than exempt income or income that is exempt from tax under this Part, for any such year in respect of the borrowed money used for the exploration, development or acquisition of property, as the case may be; and

(b) the amount described in paragraph a is deemed to be Canadian exploration and development expenses, foreign exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses, foreign resource expenses in relation to a country or Canadian oil and gas property expenses, as the case may be, incurred by the taxpayer in the year.

182. A taxpayer described in the second paragraph may elect, in the taxpayer's fiscal return filed under this Part for a particular taxation year, to have rules similar to those provided by paragraphs a and b of section 180 or of section 181, as the case may be, apply for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income for the particular year in respect of an amount that, but for this section, would be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income, other than exempt income or, if subparagraph iii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph applies to the taxpayer, income that is exempt from tax under this Part, for the particular year, in respect of the borrowed money or payable amount referred to in the second paragraph.

The first paragraph applies to a taxpayer who

(a) in any taxation year preceding the particular year,

i. made an election under section 180 in respect of borrowed money used to acquire depreciable property or the amount payable for the depreciable property;

ii. was required under section 135.4 to include, in respect of the construction of depreciable property for the acquisition of which he borrowed money or for which an amount was payable by him, an amount in computing the cost to him of the depreciable property; or

iii. made an election under section 181 in respect of borrowed money used for the exploration, development or acquisition of property; and

(b) in each taxation year, if any, after the preceding taxation year referred to in subparagraph a and before the particular year, made an election under this section covering the total amount that, but for this section, would have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income, other than exempt income or, if subparagraph iii of subparagraph a applies to the taxpayer, income that is exempt from tax under this Part, for each such year in respect of the borrowed money used to acquire the depreciable property, the amount payable for the depreciable property or the borrowed money used for the exploration, development or acquisition of property.

183. Subject to section 175.2.7, borrowed money used by a taxpayer to repay money previously borrowed or to pay an amount payable for property referred to in paragraph b of section 160 or 161 and previously acquired (which previously borrowed money or amount payable in respect of previously acquired property is, in this section, referred to as the "previous indebtedness") is deemed, for the purposes of this division and sections 160, 161, 175.2.2 and 175.2.3, to be used for the purposes for which the previous indebtedness was used or incurred, or was deemed, under this section, to have been used or incurred.

1972, c. 23, s. 170; 1990, c. 59, s. 103; 1995, c. 49, s. 57; 2010, c. 5, s. 23.

CHAPTER IV

CEASING TO CARRY ON BUSINESS

1972, c. 23.

184. If the sale of all or substantially all the property of a business includes debts that have been or will be included in computing the vendor's income for a previous year or for the taxation year or debts arising from loans made in the ordinary course of the business if part of the vendor's ordinary business has been the lending of money, the purchaser proposes to continue to carry on the business, and the vendor and the purchaser make a valid election under subsection 1 of section 22 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in relation to the sale, the following rules apply:

(a) the vendor may deduct and the buyer must include, in computing their income for the taxation year, an amount equal to the excess of the face value of the debts so sold, other than debts in respect of which a deduction has already been made under section 141 by the vendor over the consideration paid by the purchaser for such debts;

(b) for the purposes of sections 140 and 141, the debts so sold are deemed to have been included in computing the income of the purchaser for the taxation year or a previous year, but the latter shall not make any deduction under section 141 respecting a debt in respect of which the vendor has previously made a deduction;

(c) for the purposes of paragraph i of section 87 the purchaser is deemed to have himself deducted the amount deducted by the vendor under section 141 in computing his income for a previous year in respect of any of the debts sold.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 1 of section 22 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

1972, c. 23, s. 171; 1974, c. 18, s. 10; 1994, c. 22, s. 116; 2009, c. 5, s. 65.

185. Subject to section 422, a declaration made by the vendor and the purchaser, in respect of the amount paid for the debts assigned, under this section, as it read before 20 December 2006, or, in the case of a valid election made under subsection 1 of section 22 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006, under subsection 2 of section 22 of that Act, is binding on the parties as against the Minister to the extent that it may be relevant in respect of any matter arising under this Part.

1972, c. 23, s. 172; 1975, c. 22, s. 24; 2009, c. 5, s. 66.

186. When a taxpayer ceases to carry on a business or sells all or part of it and thereupon or subsequently sells any property included in the inventory of such business, he is deemed to have sold such property in the course of carrying on the business.

1972, c. 23, s. 173.

187. For the purposes of section 186, any property that would have been included in the inventory of a business if the income from it had not been computed in accordance with the method authorized by section 194 or by section 215, as it read before being repealed, is deemed to have been so included.

1972, c. 23, s. 176; 1975, c. 22, s. 26; 1986, c. 19, s. 35; 2021, c. 36, s. 58.

189. Where, at any time, an individual ceases to carry on a business and the individual's spouse, or a corporation controlled directly or indirectly in any manner whatever by the individual, subsequently carries on the business and acquires all of the property included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) in respect of the business owned by the individual immediately before that time and that had value at that time, the following rules apply:

(a) the individual is deemed to have, immediately before that time, disposed of the property and received proceeds of disposition equal to the lesser of the capital cost and the cost amount to the individual of the property immediately before the disposition;

(b) the spouse or corporation, as the case may be, is deemed to have acquired the property at a cost equal to those proceeds; and

(c) for the purposes of sections 93 to 104, Chapter III of Title III and any regulations enacted under paragraph a of section 130, if the amount that was the capital cost to the individual of the property exceeds the amount determined under section 436 to be the cost to the person that acquired the property,

i. the capital cost to the person of the property is deemed to be the amount that was the capital cost to the individual of the property, and

ii. the excess is deemed to have been allowed to the person as depreciation under paragraph a of section 130 in respect of the property for taxation years that ended before the person acquired the property.

190. Where an individual who was the sole proprietor of a business disposed of it during a fiscal period of the business, the fiscal period is referred to in the third or fourth paragraph of section 7 and the individual makes a valid election under subsection 1 of section 25 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in relation to the fiscal period, Division II of Chapter II is to be read without reference to the exception provided for in paragraph a of section 95, for the purpose of computing the individual's income for the fiscal period.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 1 of section 25 of the Income Tax Act.

CHAPTER V

SPECIAL CASES

1972, c. 23.

DIVISION I

BANKS

1972, c. 23.

191. (Repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 180; 1982, c. 5, s. 49; 1989, c. 77, s. 21; 1990, c. 59, s. 105; 1997, c. 31, s. 25.

191.1. A bank shall include in computing its income for its first taxation year that commences after 17 June 1987 and ends after 31 December 1987, referred to in sections 191.2 and 191.3 as the "first year", the aggregate of

(a) all the specific provisions of the bank at the end of its preceding taxation year, as determined, or as would have been determined if such a determination had been required, under the Minister's rules,

(b) all general provisions of the bank at the end of its preceding taxation year, as determined, or as would have been determined if such a determination had been required, under the Minister's rules,

(c) the amount by which

i. the amount of the special provision for losses on transborder claims of the bank, as determined, or as would have been determined if such a determination had been required, under the Minister's rules, that was deductible under section 191 in computing its income for its preceding taxation year, exceeds

ii. that part of the amount determined under subparagraph i that was a realized loss of the bank for its preceding taxation year, and

(d) the amount of the tax allowable appropriations account of the bank at the end of its preceding taxation year, as determined, or as would have been determined if such a determination had been required, under the Minister's rules.

1990, c. 59, s. 106.

191.2. A bank may deduct in computing its income for a taxation year an amount not exceeding the aggregate of

(a) that part, that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year, of the aggregate of the amounts of the five-year average loan loss experiences of the bank, as determined, or as would have been determined if such a determination had been required, under the Minister's rules, for all taxation years before its first year,

(b) that part, that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year, of the aggregate of the amounts transferred by the bank to its tax allowable appropriations account, as permitted under the Minister's rules, for all taxation years before its first year,

(c) that part, that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year, of the amount by which

i. the amount of the special provision for losses on transborder claims, as determined, or as would have been determined if such a determination had been required, under the Minister's rules, that was deductible by the bank under section 191 in computing its income for its last taxation year before its first year, exceeds

ii. that part of the amount determined under subparagraph i that was a realized loss of the bank for its last taxation year before its first year,

(d) where the tax allowable appropriations account of the bank at the end of its last taxation year before its first year, as determined, or as would have been determined if such a determination had been required, under the Minister's rules, is a negative amount, that part of such amount expressed as a positive number that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year, and

(e) that part, that is specified by the bank for the year and was not deducted by the bank in computing its income for any preceding taxation year, of the aggregate of the amounts calculated in respect of the bank for the purposes of the Minister's rules, or that would have been calculated if such a calculation had been required, under Procedure 8 of the Procedures for the Determination of the Provision for Loan Losses as set out in Appendix 1 of those rules, for all taxation years before its first year.

191.3. For the purposes of computing the income of a bank, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purposes of paragraph i of section 87 and section 92.22, any amount that was recorded by the bank as a realized loss or a write-off of an asset and that was included by the bank in the calculation of an amount deductible under the Minister's rules, or would have been included therein if such a calculation had been required, for any taxation year before its first year is deemed to have been deducted under section 141 in computing its income for the year for which it was so recorded;

(b) for the purposes of section 92.22, any amount that was recorded by the bank as a recovery of a realized loss or a write-off of an asset and that was included by the bank in the calculation of an amount deductible under the Minister's rules, or would have been included if such a calculation had been required, for any taxation year before its first year is deemed to have been included under paragraph i of section 87 in computing its income for the year for which it was so recorded.

1990, c. 59, s. 106.

191.4. In this division, "Minister's rules" means the "Rules for the Determination of the Appropriations for Contingencies of a Bank" issued under the authority of the Minister of Finance of Canada pursuant to section 308 of the Bank Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter B-1), as it read before its repeal, for the purposes of subsections 1 and 2 of section 26 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement).

1990, c. 59, s. 106; 1997, c. 31, s. 26.

DIVISION II

STATE AND FEDERAL CROWN BODIES

1972, c. 23; 1997, c. 3, s. 22; 1998, c. 16, s. 100.

192. This Part, except section 985, applies to a State body or a federal Crown body, unless otherwise provided by the regulations.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, a prescribed body and any corporation controlled by it are deemed not to be private corporations.

1972, c. 23, s. 181; 1977, c. 5, s. 14; 1980, c. 13, s. 13; 1987, c. 21, s. 14; 1997, c. 3, s. 22; 1998, c. 16, s. 101; 2000, c. 5, s. 47.

192.1. For the purposes of this Part,

(a) any income or loss of a State body or a federal Crown body from a business carried on, respectively, by the State body or the Crown body as a mandatary of the State or of Her Majesty, as the case may be, or from a property of the State or of Her Majesty administered, respectively, by the State body or the federal Crown body shall be treated as if it were an income or loss of the State body or federal Crown body from the business or the property, as the case may be; and

(b) any property, obligation or debt of any kind whatever held, administered, entered into or incurred, as the case may be, by a State body or a federal Crown body as a mandatary of the State or of Her Majesty, as the case may be, shall be treated as if it were a property, obligation or debt, as the case may be, of the State body or federal Crown body.

2000, c. 5, s. 48.

193. Where land of Her Majesty has been transferred, for purposes of disposition, to a body that is a prescribed body for the purposes of the second paragraph of section 192, the acquisition of the property by the body and any disposition thereof are deemed not to have been in the course of the business carried on by the body.

1972, c. 23, s. 182; 1997, c. 3, s. 22; 1998, c. 16, s. 102; 2000, c. 5, s. 49.

DIVISION II.1

EMISSION ALLOWANCES

2019, c. 14, s. 90.

193.1. Despite sections 83 to 85.6, for the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income from a business, an emission allowance must be valued at the cost at which the taxpayer acquired it.

2019, c. 14, s. 90.

193.2. Where a taxpayer that owns one emission allowance, or two or more identical emission allowances, acquires, at a particular time, one or more other emission allowances (in this section referred to as "newly-acquired emission allowances"), each of which is identical to each of the previously-acquired emission allowances, the following rules apply for the purpose of computing, at any subsequent time, the cost to the taxpayer of each of the identical emission allowances:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of each of the previously-acquired emission allowances immediately before the particular time for proceeds of disposition equal to its cost to the taxpayer immediately before the particular time; and

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired each of the identical emission allowances at the particular time at a cost equal to the amount determined by the formula

$$(A + B)/C.$$

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the total cost to the taxpayer immediately before the particular time of the previously-acquired emission allowances;

(b) B is the total cost to the taxpayer (determined without reference to this division) of the newly-acquired emission allowances; and

(c) C is the number of identical emission allowances owned by the taxpayer immediately after the particular time.

For the purposes of this section, emission allowances are considered identical if they can be used to settle the same emission obligations.

2019, c. 14, s. 90.

193.3. Despite any other provision of this Act, in computing a taxpayer's income from a business for a taxation year, the total amount deductible in respect of a particular emission obligation for the year is not to exceed the amount determined by the formula

$$A + (B \times C).$$

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the total cost of emission allowances either

i. used by the taxpayer to settle the particular emission obligation in the year, or

ii. held by the taxpayer at the end of the year that can be used to satisfy the particular emission obligation in respect of the year;

(b) B is the amount determined by the formula

$$D - (E + F);$$ and

(c) C is the fair market value of an emission allowance at the end of the year that could be used to satisfy the particular emission obligation in respect of the year.

In the formula in subparagraph b of the second paragraph,

(a) D is the number of emission allowances required to satisfy the particular emission obligation in respect of the year;

(b) E is the number of emission allowances used by the taxpayer to settle the particular emission obligation in the year; and

(c) F is the number of emission allowances held by the taxpayer at the end of the year that can be used to satisfy the particular emission obligation in respect of the year.

2019, c. 14, s. 90.

193.4. The amount deducted by a taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income from a business for a particular taxation year, in respect of an emission obligation referred to in section 193.3, must be included in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the subsequent taxation year, to the extent that the emission obligation was not settled in the particular taxation year.

2019, c. 14, s. 90.

193.5. If a taxpayer surrenders an emission allowance to settle an emission obligation, the taxpayer's proceeds from the disposition of the emission allowance are deemed to be equal to the taxpayer's cost of the emission allowance.

2019, c. 14, s. 90.

193.6. Despite section 193.1, each emission allowance held at the end of a taxpayer's taxation year that ends immediately before the time at which the taxpayer is subject to a loss restriction event is to be valued at the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property, or its fair market value at the end of the year, whichever is lower, and after that time the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property is, subject to a subsequent application of section 193.2 and this section, deemed to be equal to that lower amount.

2019, c. 14, s. 90.

DIVISION III

FARMING BUSINESSES

1972, c. 23.

194. A taxpayer shall compute income from a farming business or fishing business for a taxation year in accordance with the cash method, by which the income from the business is deemed to be equal to the aggregate determined in the second paragraph minus the aggregate determined in the third paragraph, if the taxpayer makes, in relation to the year, a valid election under subsection 1 of section 28 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 of the method provided for in that subsection 1 for computing the taxpayer's income from a farming business or fishing business.

The first aggregate referred to in the first paragraph in respect of a farming business or fishing business for a taxation year is equal to the total of the following amounts:

(a) all amounts received in the year or deemed by this Part to have been received in the year, in the course of carrying on the business described in the first paragraph, in payment of or on account of an amount that would be included in computing income from the business for that or any other taxation year if that income were not computed in accordance with this cash method;

(b) in respect of a farming business, the amount specified by the taxpayer in respect of the business in his fiscal return filed under this Part for the year, not exceeding the amount by which the fair market value, at the end of the year, of inventory owned by him at that time in connection with the business exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph c for the year;

(c) in respect of a farming business, the amount equal to the lesser of

i. the taxpayer's loss from the business for the year, computed without reference to this subparagraph and to subparagraph b, and

ii. the value of inventory purchased by the taxpayer and owned by him in connection with the business at the end of the year;

(d) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from the business because of section 94 or 485.13, the second paragraph of section 487 or section 487.0.3.

The second aggregate referred to in the first paragraph in respect of a farming business or fishing business for a taxation year is equal to the total of the following amounts:

(a) all amounts, other than an amount described in section 198, that were paid in the year, or are deemed by this Part to have been paid in the year, in the course of carrying on the business,

i. in the case of amounts paid, or deemed by this Part to have been paid, for the inventory relating to the business, in payment of or on account of an amount that would be deductible in computing the income from the business for the year or any other taxation year if that income were not computed in accordance with this cash method, and

ii. in any other case, in payment of or on account of an amount that would be deductible in computing the income from the business for a preceding taxation year, the year or the following taxation year if that income were not computed in accordance with this cash method;

(a.1) all amounts, other than an amount described in section 198, that would be deductible in computing the income from the business for the year if that income were not computed in accordance with this cash method, that are not deductible in computing the income from the business for any other taxation year, and that were paid in a preceding taxation year in the course of carrying on the business;

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included under subparagraph b or c of the second paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the preceding taxation year;

(c) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted for the year under paragraph a of section 130, section 130.1, paragraph t of section 157, section 198, the first paragraph of section 487 or section 487.0.2 in respect of the business.

If a farming business or fishing business is carried on by several persons, an election referred to in the first paragraph is not valid for any of those persons in respect of the business unless each of them makes such an election in respect of the business.

Subparagraphs b and c of the second paragraph do not apply in computing the income of the taxpayer for the taxation year in which he died.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 1 of section 28 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

1972, c. 23, s. 183; 1973, c. 17, s. 17; 1982, c. 5, s. 50; 1990, c. 59, s. 107; 1991, c. 25, s. 56; 1993, c. 16, s. 97; 1996, c. 39, s. 56; 2000, c. 5, s. 50; 2001, c. 7, s. 29; 2009, c. 5, s. 68; 2017, c. 1, s. 99; 2019, c. 14, s. 91.

194.0.1. For the purposes of sections 194 to 197, where at any time a taxpayer has, in circumstances where section 422 applies by reason of the application of paragraph a or b thereof, acquired inventory in connection with a farming business the income from which is computed in accordance with the cash method,

(a) the taxpayer is deemed to have purchased the inventory at the time it was so acquired,

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have paid at that time, in the course of carrying on that business, an amount equal to the cost to him of the inventory, and

(c) the amount referred to in paragraph b is deemed to be the only amount paid for the inventory by the taxpayer.

1993, c. 16, s. 98.

194.1. (Repealed).

194.2. For the purposes of subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 194 and notwithstanding sections 83 to 85.6, inventory of a taxpayer in connection with a farming business shall be valued at any time at the lesser of the amount paid by the taxpayer at or before that time to acquire it, in this section and in section 194 referred to as the "cash cost", and its fair market value.

Notwithstanding the first paragraph, an animal, in this section and in section 194 referred to as a "specified animal", that is a horse or, where the taxpayer so elects in respect thereof for the taxation year that includes the time referred to in the first paragraph or for any preceding taxation year, is a bovine animal registered under the Animal Pedigree Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 8, 4th Supplement) shall be valued

(a) at any time in the taxation year in which the specified animal is acquired, at such amount as is designated by the taxpayer not exceeding its cash cost and not less than 70% of that cost;

(b) at any time in any subsequent taxation year, at such amount as is designated by the taxpayer not exceeding its cash cost and not less than 70% of the aggregate of its value determined under this section at the end of the preceding taxation year, and the total amount paid on account of the purchase price of the animal during the year.

1990, c. 59, s. 108; 1993, c. 16, s. 100.

194.3. For each taxation year that is less than 51 weeks, the references to "70" in subparagraphs a and b of the second paragraph of section 194.2 shall read as references to the number determined by the formula

$$100 - (30 \times A / 365).$$

For the purposes of the formula set forth in the first paragraph, A is the number of days in the taxation year referred to therein.

1990, c. 59, s. 108.

195. If a taxpayer has used, for a taxation year, in respect of a farming business or fishing business, the cash method provided for in section 194 because of an election referred to in the first paragraph of that section made in relation to the year, the income from the business for a subsequent taxation year must be computed in accordance with the same method, subject to the other provisions of this Part, unless the taxpayer makes a valid election under subsection 3 of section 28 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 of a method other than the method provided for in subsection 1 of section 28 of that Act, in which case that income must instead be computed in accordance with that other method.

Any condition determined by the Minister of National Revenue for the election referred to in the first paragraph made under subsection 3 of section 28 of the Income Tax Act applies, with the necessary modifications, in computing the income from the farming business or fishing business.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 3 of section 28 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

196. Notwithstanding sections 194 and 197, where at the end of a taxation year a taxpayer who carried on a business the income from which was computed in accordance with the cash method is not resident in Canada and does not carry on that business in Canada, an amount equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the fair market value of an amount outstanding in the year on account of a debt owing to the taxpayer that resulted from the carrying on of the business and that would have been included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year if the amount had been received by the taxpayer during the year, shall, to the extent that the amount was not otherwise included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, be included in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the year or, if the taxpayer was resident in Canada at any time in the year, for the part of the year throughout which the taxpayer was resident in Canada.

1972, c. 23, s. 185; 1974, c. 18, s. 11; 1993, c. 16, s. 101; 2004, c. 8, s. 37.

196.1. (Repealed).

1993, c. 16, s. 102; 2004, c. 8, s. 38.

197. A taxpayer shall include in computing his income for a taxation year an amount he receives as payment for debts that resulted from carrying on the business, to the extent that they would have been included in computing his income if he had been paid for them while he was still carrying on the business.

1972, c. 23, s. 186.

198. A taxpayer may deduct in computing his income from a farming business for a taxation year any amount paid by him before the end of the year for clearing land, levelling land or installing a land drainage system for the purposes of the business, to the extent that such amount has not been deducted in computing his income for a preceding taxation year.

1972, c. 23, s. 187; 1990, c. 59, s. 109.

DIVISION IV

BASIC HERD

1972, c. 23.

199. The rules set out in this division apply if a taxpayer who has a basic herd of a particular class of animals and disposes of an animal of that class in carrying on a farming business in a taxation year makes, in relation to that year, a valid election under subsection 1 of section 29 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in relation to that business.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 1 of section 29 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

1972, c. 23, s. 188; 2009, c. 5, s. 70.

200. In the case of a disposition referred to in the first paragraph of section 199 of an animal of a class, the taxpayer shall deduct

(a) in counting the taxpayer's basic herd of that class at the end of the year, the least of the number the taxpayer designates in relation to the basic herd, under paragraph a of subsection 1 of section 29 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), in the election referred to in the first paragraph of section 199, the taxpayer's basic herd of that class of animals at the end of the preceding taxation year, the number of animals of that class disposed of by the taxpayer in the year, and one-tenth of the taxpayer's basic herd of that class on 31 December 1971; and

(b) in computing his income from the farming business for the taxation year, the product obtained by multiplying the number determined under paragraph a by the quotient obtained when the fair market value on 31 December 1971 of such animals of that class is divided by the number of such animals of that class on that day.

1972, c. 23, s. 189; 2009, c. 5, s. 71.

201. Where the basic herd of a class at the end of the year preceding the taxation year minus the deduction required at the end of the year under paragraph a of section 200 exceeds the number of animals of that class owned by the taxpayer at the end of the year, he shall deduct:

(a) in computing his basic herd of that class at the end of the year, the number of animals comprising the excess, and

(b) in computing his income from the farming business for the taxation year, the product obtained by multiplying the number of animals determined under paragraph a by the quotient obtained when the fair market value of the animals of that class on 31 December 1971 is divided by the number of the animals of that class on the same day.

1972, c. 23, s. 190.

202. In this division:

(a) a taxpayer's "basic herd" of any class of animals at a particular time means such number of the animals of that class that he had on hand at the end of his 1971 taxation year as were, for the purpose of assessing his tax for that year, accepted by the Minister, on an application by the taxpayer, to be capital properties minus the number of animals required under this division to be deducted in computing his basic herd of that class at the end of the taxation years before the particular time;

(b) "class of animals" means animals of one of the following species: cattle, horses, sheep or swine, if they are:

i. purebred animals of that species for which a certificate of registration has been issued by a person recognized by the breeders in Canada of purebred animals of that species to be the registrar of the breed to which such animals belong, or issued by the Registrar of the Canadian National Livestock Records, or

ii. animals of that species other than purebred animals described in subparagraph i.

1972, c. 23, s. 191; 1973, c. 17, s. 18; 1997, c. 14, s. 290.

203. Each group of animals contemplated in subparagraphs i and ii of paragraph b of section 202 is deemed to be of a separate class, unless the number of animals of the same species described in one of those subparagraphs is not greater than 10 per cent of the total number of the animals of that species. In this case, all such animals together are deemed to be of a single class.

1972, c. 23, s. 192.

204. In determining the number of animals of any class on hand at any time, the taxpayer shall include neither an animal acquired for a feeder operation, nor animals of the same class whose age is less than two years for cattle, three years for horses or one year for sheep or swine; in the case of an animal whose age is less than such ages two of such animals of the same class shall be counted as one.

1972, c. 23, s. 193.

DIVISION V

CERTAIN FARMING LOSSES

1972, c. 23.

205. Where a taxpayer's chief source of income for a taxation year is neither farming nor a combination of farming and some other source of income that is a subordinate source of income for the taxpayer, the loss from all farming businesses carried on by the taxpayer is deemed to be the aggregate of

(a) the lesser of the following amounts:

i. the amount by which the aggregate of the taxpayer's losses, determined without reference to this division and before any deduction under sections 222 to 230, from all farming businesses carried on by the taxpayer during the year exceeds the aggregate of the taxpayer's incomes, so determined, of the same nature for the same year, and

ii. $2,500 plus the lesser of $15,000 and one-half of the amount by which the amount determined under subparagraph i exceeds $2,500; and

(b) the amount by which the amount that would be computed under subparagraph i of paragraph a, if subparagraph i were read without reference to "and before any deduction under sections 222 to 230", exceeds the amount computed under that subparagraph.

1972, c. 23, s. 194; 1973, c. 17, s. 19; 1980, c. 13, s. 14; 1990, c. 59, s. 110; 2000, c. 5, s. 51; 2015, c. 36, s. 12.

206. Section 205 does not apply to a taxpayer for a taxation year if the taxpayer's chief source of income for the year is a combination of farming and manufacturing or processing in Canada of goods for sale and all or substantially all output from all farming businesses carried on by the taxpayer is used in the manufacturing or processing.

1972, c. 23, s. 195; 2015, c. 36, s. 12.

207. For the purposes of this Part, a taxpayer's restricted farm loss for a taxation year is the amount by which the amount determined under subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 205 in respect of the taxpayer for the year exceeds the aggregate of the amount determined under subparagraph ii of that paragraph a in respect of the taxpayer for the year and all amounts each of which is an amount by which the taxpayer's restricted farm loss for the year is required to be reduced because of sections 485 to 485.18.

1972, c. 23, s. 196; 1973, c. 17, s. 20; 1996, c. 39, s. 57.

DIVISION VI

INSURANCE AGENTS AND BROKERS

1972, c. 23; 1989, c. 48, s. 257.

208. In computing the income of a taxpayer from the taxpayer's business as an insurance agent or broker, there may be deducted, as a reserve in respect of unearned commissions from that business, only an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is that proportion of an amount that has been included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a previous year as a commission in respect of an insurance contract other than a life insurance contract, that the number of days in the period provided for in the insurance contract that fall after the end of the taxation year is of the total number of days in that period, and

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount that would, but for this section, be deductible under section 150 for the year in respect of a commission referred to in paragraph a.

1972, c. 23, s. 197; 1989, c. 48, s. 257; 1993, c. 16, s. 103; 1994, c. 22, s. 119.

209. An insurance agent or broker shall include in computing his income from his business every amount deducted under section 208 for the preceding taxation year.

1972, c. 23, s. 198; 1989, c. 48, s. 257.

209.0.1. In computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year ending after 31 December 1990 from a business carried on by the taxpayer throughout the year as an insurance agent or broker, there may be deducted as an additional reserve in respect of unearned commissions an amount not exceeding

(a) where the year ends in 1991, 90%,

(b) where the year ends in 1992, 80%,

(c) where the year ends in 1993, 70%,

(d) where the year ends in 1994, 60%,

(e) where the year ends in 1995, 50%,

(f) where the year ends in 1996, 40%,

(g) where the year ends in 1997, 30%,

(h) where the year ends in 1998, 20%,

(i) where the year ends in 1999, 10%, and

(j) where the year ends after 31 December 1999, 0%

of the amount by which the reserve that was deducted by the taxpayer under section 208 for the taxpayer's last taxation year ending before 1 January 1991 exceeds the amount deductible by the taxpayer under section 208 for the taxpayer's first taxation year ending after 31 December 1990.

For the purposes of section 209, any amount deducted by the taxpayer under the first paragraph for a taxation year is deemed to have been deducted for that year pursuant to section 208.

1993, c. 16, s. 104; 1994, c. 22, s. 120.

DIVISION VI.1

EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLANS

1982, c. 5, s. 51.

209.1. A taxpayer who makes contributions to an employee benefit plan in respect of his employees or former employees may deduct, in computing his income for a taxation year, the amount allocated to him for the year under section 209.3 by the custodian of the plan that does not, however, exceed the amount by which the aggregate of all contributions made by him to the plan for the year or a preceding year exceeds the aggregate of all amounts deducted by him, in respect of the plan, in computing his income for a preceding year and all amounts received by him in the year or a preceding year as a return of his contributions to the plan.

209.2. A taxpayer contemplated in section 209.1 may also deduct, where at the end of the year all of the obligations of the plan to his employees and former employees have been satisfied and no property of the plan will thereafter be paid or otherwise be available for the benefit of the taxpayer, the amount equal to the amount by which the aggregate of the contributions paid by him to the plan for the year or a preceding year exceeds the aggregate of all amounts deducted by him in respect of the plan in computing his income for a preceding year or, under section 209.1, for the year, and all amounts received by him in the year or a preceding year as a return of his contributions to the plan.

1982, c. 5, s. 51; 1991, c. 25, s. 176.

209.3. The custodian of an employee benefit plan shall each year allocate to persons who have made contributions to the plan in respect of their employees or former employees the amount by which the aggregate of all payments made in the year out of or under the plan to or for the benefit of their employees or former employees, other than the portion thereof that, by virtue of section 47.2, is not required to be included by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income and that is a return of amounts paid by the taxpayer or a deceased employee of whom the taxpayer is a legatee by particular title or legal representative, and all payments made in the year out of or under the plan to the legatees by particular title or the legal representatives of their employees or former employees, exceeds the income of the plan for the year.

209.4. For the purposes of section 209.3, the income of an employee benefit plan for a year is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which a payment under the plan by the custodian thereof in the year exceeds, in the case of an annuity, that part of the payment determined in prescribed manner to have been a return of capital and, in any other case, that part of the payment that could, but for sections 47.1 and 47.2, reasonably be regarded as being a payment of a capital nature.

Despite the first paragraph, in the case of a plan that is a trust, the income of the plan for a year is the amount that would be its income for the year but for sections 652, 653 to 657.3, 659, 663 to 663.2, 664, 666 to 668.3, 671 to 671.4, 680 and 681.

1982, c. 5, s. 51; 1996, c. 39, s. 58; 2004, c. 21, s. 66; 2009, c. 5, s. 72; 2017, c. 1, s. 100.

DIVISION VIII.1

ADDITIONAL BUSINESS INCOME OF AN INDIVIDUAL

1997, c. 31, s. 27; 2013, c. 10, s. 20.

217.2. If an individual, other than a succession that is a graduated rate estate, carries on a business in a taxation year, a particular fiscal period of the business begins in the year and ends after the end of the year, and the individual has made an election referred to in the first paragraph of section 7.0.3 in respect of the business, where the particular fiscal period is a fiscal period referred to in the second paragraph of section 7, or has made an election under subsection 4 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) in respect of the business, where the particular fiscal period is a fiscal period referred to in the third or fourth paragraph of section 7, the individual shall, if the election has not been revoked, include, in computing the individual's income for the year from the business, the amount determined by the formula

$$(A - B) \times (C / D).$$

For the purposes of the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the total of the individual's income from the business for the fiscal periods of the business that end in the year;

(b) B is the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included in the total determined under subparagraph a in respect of the business and that is deemed to be a taxable capital gain for the purposes of Title VI.5 of Book IV, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts deducted under the said Title VI.5 in computing the individual's taxable income for the year;

(c) C is the number of days on which the individual carries on the business that are both in the year and in the particular fiscal period; and

(d) D is the number of days on which the individual carries on the business that are in fiscal periods of the business that end in the year.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 4 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act in relation to a fiscal period referred to in the third or fourth paragraph of section 7.

1997, c. 31, s. 27; 2009, c. 5, s. 74; 2017, c. 1, s. 101.

217.3. If an individual, other than a succession that is a graduated rate estate, begins carrying on a business in a taxation year but not earlier than the beginning of the first fiscal period of the business that begins in the year and ends after the end of the year (in this section referred to as the "particular fiscal period") and the individual has made an election referred to in the first paragraph of section 7.0.3 in respect of the business, where the particular fiscal period is a fiscal period referred to in the second paragraph of section 7, or has made an election under subsection 4 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) in respect of the business, where the particular fiscal period is a fiscal period referred to in the third or fourth paragraph of section 7, the individual shall, if the election has not been revoked, include, in computing the individual's income for the year from the business, the lesser of

(a) the amount designated in the individual's fiscal return under this Part for the year; and

(b) the amount determined by the formula

(A - B) × (C / D).

For the purposes of the formula in subparagraph b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the individual's income from the business for the particular fiscal period;

(b) B is the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included in the amount determined under subparagraph a in respect of the business and that is deemed to be a taxable capital gain for the purposes of Title VI.5 of Book IV, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts deducted under the said Title VI.5 in computing the individual's taxable income for the individual's taxation year that includes the end of the particular fiscal period;

(c) C is the number of days on which the individual carries on the business that are both in the year and in the particular fiscal period; and

(d) D is the number of days on which the individual carries on the business that are in the particular fiscal period.

1997, c. 31, s. 27; 2009, c. 5, s. 75; 2017, c. 1, s. 102.

217.4. An individual shall deduct in computing the individual's income for a taxation year from a business the amount included under section 217.2 or 217.3 in computing the individual's income for the preceding taxation year from the business.

1997, c. 31, s. 27.

217.9. Sections 217.2 and 217.3 do not apply in computing an individual's income for a taxation year from a business where

(a) the individual dies or otherwise ceases to carry on the business in the taxation year; or

(b) the individual becomes a bankrupt in the calendar year in which the taxation year ends.

1997, c. 31, s. 27.

217.9.1. Where an individual carries on a business in a taxation year, the individual dies in the year and after the end of a fiscal period of the business that ends in the year, another fiscal period of the business ends because of the individual's death, in this section referred to as the "short period", and the individual's legal representative elects that this section apply in computing the individual's income for the year or files a separate fiscal return under section 1003 in respect of the individual's business, notwithstanding section 217.9, there shall be included in computing the individual's income for the year from the business, the amount determined by the formula

$$(A - B) \times (C / D).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the total of the individual's income from the business for fiscal periods, other than the short period, of the business that end in the year;

(b) B is the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included in the total determined under subparagraph a in respect of the business that is deemed to be a taxable capital gain for the purposes of Title VI.5 of Book IV, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts deducted under Title VI.5 of Book IV in computing the individual's taxable income for the year;

(c) C is the number of days in the short period; and

(d) D is the number of days in fiscal periods of the business, other than the short period, that end in the year.

DIVISION VIII.3

ADDITIONAL BUSINESS INCOME OF A CORPORATION

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

§ 1. — Limitation on the deferral of corporate tax through the use of a partnership

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.18. In this division,

"adjusted stub period accrual" of a corporation in respect of a partnership—in which the corporation has a significant interest at the end of the last fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the corporation's taxation year in circumstances where another fiscal period (in subparagraphs c and e of the second paragraph and in section 217.33 referred to as the "particular fiscal period") begins in the year and ends after the end of the year—means

(a) if paragraph b does not apply, the amount determined by the formula

[(A - B) × C/D] - (E + F); or

(b) if a fiscal period of the partnership ends in the corporation's taxation year and the year is the first taxation year in which the fiscal period of the partnership (in this paragraph and subparagraphs j to m of the second paragraph referred to as the "eligible fiscal period") is aligned with the fiscal period of one or more other partnerships under a multi-tier alignment,

i. where a fiscal period of the partnership ends in the year and before the eligible fiscal period, the amount determined by the formula

[(G - H) × C/I] - (E + F), and

ii. where the eligible fiscal period of the partnership is the first fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the corporation's taxation year, the amount determined by the formula

[(J - K - L) × C/M] - (E + F);

"eligible alignment income", of a corporation, means

(a) if a partnership is subject to a single-tier alignment, the first aligned fiscal period of the partnership ends in the first taxation year of the corporation ending after 22 March 2011 (in this paragraph and subparagraphs n to p of the second paragraph referred to as the "eligible fiscal period") and the corporation is a member of the partnership at the end of the eligible fiscal period,

i. where the eligible fiscal period is preceded by another fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the corporation's first taxation year that ends after 22 March 2011 and the corporation is a member of the partnership at the end of that preceding fiscal period, the amount determined by the formula

N - O - P, or

ii. where the eligible fiscal period is the first fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the corporation's first taxation year ending after 22 March 2011, an amount equal to zero; or

(b) if a partnership is subject to a multi-tier alignment, the first aligned fiscal period of the partnership ends in the taxation year of the corporation (in this paragraph and subparagraphs q to s of the second paragraph referred to as the "eligible fiscal period") and the corporation is a member of the partnership at the end of the eligible fiscal period, the amount determined by the formula

“multi-tier alignment”, in respect of a partnership, means the alignment of the fiscal period of the partnership and the fiscal period of one or more other partnerships that results from a valid alignment election the members of the partnership make under subsection 9 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) or from the deemed alignment election under subsection 11 of that section;

“qualified resource expense”, of a corporation for a taxation year in respect of a fiscal period of a partnership that begins in the year and ends after the end of the year, means an expense incurred by the partnership in the portion of the fiscal period that is in the year and that is a Canadian exploration expense, a Canadian development expense, a foreign resource expense or a Canadian oil and gas property expense;

“qualifying transitional income”, of a corporation that is a member of a partnership on 22 March 2011, means the amount that is the aggregate of the following amounts, computed in accordance with section 217.31,

(a) the corporation’s eligible alignment income in respect of the partnership; and

(b) the corporation’s adjusted stub period accrual in respect of the partnership for

i. if there is a multi-tier alignment in respect of the partnership, the corporation’s taxation year during which ends the fiscal period of the partnership that is aligned with the fiscal period of one or more other partnerships under the multi-tier alignment, or

ii. in any other case, the corporation’s first taxation year that ends after 22 March 2011;

“significant interest”, of a corporation in a partnership at any time, means an interest of the corporation in the partnership if the corporation, or the corporation together with one or more persons or partnerships related to or affiliated with the corporation, is entitled at that time to more than 10% of

(a) the income or loss of the partnership; or

(b) the net assets of the partnership if it were to cease to exist;

“single-tier alignment”, in respect of a partnership, means the determination of the partnership’s fiscal period end date as part of a valid alignment election the members of the partnership make under subsection 8 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act;

“specified percentage”, of a corporation for a particular taxation year in respect of a partnership, means

(a) if the first taxation year in respect of which the corporation has qualifying transitional income ends in the calendar year 2011 and the particular year ends in

i. the calendar year 2011, 100%,

ii. the calendar year 2012, 85%,

iii. the calendar year 2013, 65%,

iv. the calendar year 2014, 45%,

v. the calendar year 2015, 25%, and

vi. the calendar year 2016, 0%;

(b) if the first taxation year in respect of which the corporation has qualifying transitional income ends in the calendar year 2012 and the particular year ends in

i. the calendar year 2012, 100%,

ii. the calendar year 2013, 85%,

iii. the calendar year 2014, 65%,

iv. the calendar year 2015, 45%,

v. the calendar year 2016, 25%, and

vi. the calendar year 2017, 0%; and

(c) if the first taxation year in respect of which the corporation has qualifying transitional income ends in the calendar year 2013 and the particular year ends in

i. the calendar year 2013, 85%,

ii. the calendar year 2014, 65%,

iii. the calendar year 2015, 45%,

iv. the calendar year 2016, 25%, and

v. the calendar year 2017, 0%.

In the formulas in the definitions of "adjusted stub period accrual" and "eligible alignment income" in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of an income or taxable capital gain of the partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year (other than any amount in respect of which a deduction is available under sections 738 to 749);

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of a loss or allowable capital loss—to the extent that the total of all allowable capital losses does not exceed the total of all taxable capital gains included in the aggregate described in subparagraph a—of the partnership for a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year;

(c) C is the number of days that are in both the year and the particular fiscal period;

(d) D is the number of days in fiscal periods of the partnership that end in the year;

(e) E is the amount of the qualified resource expense in respect of the particular fiscal period of the partnership that is designated by the corporation for the year under section 217.23 in its fiscal return for the year filed with the Minister on or before its filing-due date for the year;

(f) F is an amount (other than an amount included in the amount described in subparagraph e) designated by the corporation in its fiscal return for the year filed with the Minister on or before its filing-due date for the year;

(g) G is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of an income or taxable capital gain of the partnership for the first fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year (other than any amount in respect of which a deduction is available under sections 738 to 749);

(h) H is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of a loss or allowable capital loss—to the extent that the total of all allowable capital losses does not exceed the total of all taxable capital gains included in the aggregate described in subparagraph g—of the partnership for the first fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year;

(i) I is the number of days in the first fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year;

(j) J is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of an income or taxable capital gain of the partnership for the eligible fiscal period (other than any amount in respect of which a deduction is available under sections 738 to 749);

(k) K is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of a loss or allowable capital loss—to the extent that the total of all allowable capital losses does not exceed the total of all taxable capital gains included in the aggregate described in subparagraph j—of the partnership for the eligible fiscal period;

(l) L is the corporation's eligible alignment income for the eligible fiscal period;

(m) M is the number of days that are in the eligible fiscal period that ends in the year;

(n) N is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of an income or taxable capital gain of the partnership for the eligible fiscal period (other than any amount in respect of which a deduction is available under sections 738 to 749);

(o) O is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of a loss or allowable capital loss—to the extent that the total of all allowable capital losses does not exceed the total of all taxable capital gains included in the aggregate described in subparagraph n—of the partnership for the eligible fiscal period;

(p) P is, where an outlay or expense of the partnership is deemed by section 359.18 to have been made or incurred by the corporation at the end of the eligible fiscal period, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that would be deductible by the corporation for the taxation year under any of Divisions III to IV.1 of Chapter X of Title VI if each such outlay or expense were the only amount used in determining the amount deductible;

(q) Q is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of an income or taxable capital gain of the partnership for the eligible fiscal period, other than any amount

i. in respect of which a deduction is available under sections 738 to 749, or

ii. that would be included in computing the income of the corporation for the year if there were no multi-tier alignment;

(r) R is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of a loss or allowable capital loss—to the extent that the total of all allowable capital losses does not exceed the total of all taxable capital gains included in the aggregate described in subparagraph q—of a partnership for the eligible fiscal period; and

(s) S is, where an outlay or expense of the partnership is deemed by section 359.18 to have been made or incurred by the corporation at the end of the eligible fiscal period, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that would be deductible by the corporation for the taxation year under any of Divisions III to IV.1 of Chapter X of Title VI if each such outlay or expense were the only amount used in determining the amount deductible.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 8 or 9 of section 249.1 of the Income Tax Act.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.19. Subject to sections 217.22 and 217.25, a corporation (other than a professional corporation) shall include in computing its income for a taxation year its adjusted stub period accrual in respect of a partnership if

(a) the corporation has a significant interest in the partnership at the end of the last fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the year;

(b) another fiscal period of the partnership begins in the year and ends after the end of the year; and

(c) at the end of the year, the corporation is entitled to a share of an income, loss, taxable capital gain or allowable capital loss of the partnership for the fiscal period referred to in paragraph b.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.20. Subject to section 217.22, if a corporation (other than a professional corporation) becomes a member of a partnership during a fiscal period of the partnership (in this section referred to as the "particular fiscal period") that begins in the corporation's taxation year and ends after the end of the taxation year but on or before its filing-due date for the taxation year and the corporation has a significant interest in the partnership at the end of the particular fiscal period, the corporation may include in computing its income for the taxation year the lesser of

(a) the amount designated by the corporation in its fiscal return for the taxation year; and

(b) the amount determined by the formula

A × B/C.

In the formula in subparagraph b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the corporation's income from the partnership for the particular fiscal period (other than any amount in respect of which a deduction is available under sections 738 to 749);

(b) B is the number of days that are both in the corporation's taxation year and the particular fiscal period; and

(c) C is the number of days in the particular fiscal period.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.21. The following rules apply for a particular taxation year if an amount was included in computing the income of a corporation in respect of a partnership for the preceding taxation year under section 217.19 or 217.20:

(a) the portion of the amount that, because of subparagraph i or ii of paragraph a of section 217.22, was income for that preceding taxation year is deductible in computing the income of the corporation for the particular year; and

(b) the portion of the amount that, because of subparagraph i or ii of paragraph a of section 217.22, was a taxable capital gain for that preceding taxation year is deemed to be an allowable capital loss of the corporation for the particular year from the disposition of property.

2013, c. 10, s. 21; 2015, c. 24, s. 44.

217.22. For the purposes of this Act, the following rules apply:

(a) in computing the income of a corporation for a taxation year,

i. an adjusted stub period accrual included under section 217.19 in respect of a partnership for the year is deemed to be income, and taxable capital gains from the disposition of property, having the same character and to be in the same proportions as the income and taxable capital gains that were allocated by the partnership to the corporation for all fiscal periods of the partnership ending in the year,

ii. an amount included under section 217.20 in respect of a partnership for the year is deemed to be income, and taxable capital gains from the disposition of property, having the same character and to be in the same proportions as the income and taxable capital gains that were allocated by the partnership to the corporation for the particular fiscal period referred to in that section,

iii. an amount, a portion of which is deductible or is an allowable capital loss under section 217.21 in respect of a partnership for the year, is deemed to have the same character and to be in the same proportions as the income and taxable capital gains included in computing the corporation's income for the preceding taxation year under section 217.19 or 217.20 in respect of the partnership,

iv. an amount claimed as a reserve under section 217.27 in respect of a partnership for the year is deemed to have the same character and to be in the same proportions as the qualifying transitional income in respect of the partnership for the year, and

v. an amount, a portion of which is included in computing income under paragraph a of section 217.28, or is deemed to be a taxable capital gain under paragraph b of section 217.28, in respect of a partnership for the year, is deemed to have the same character and to be in the same proportions as the amount claimed as a reserve under section 217.27 in respect of the partnership for the preceding taxation year; and

(b) the reference in subparagraph i.4 of paragraph l of section 257 to an amount deducted under section 217.27 includes an amount that is deemed to be an allowable capital loss under subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 217.27.

2013, c. 10, s. 21; 2015, c. 24, s. 45.

217.23. A corporation may designate an amount for a taxation year in respect of a qualified resource expense for the purposes of the definition of "adjusted stub period accrual" in section 217.18, subject to the following rules:

(a) the corporation cannot designate an amount for the year in respect of a qualified resource expense in respect of a partnership except to the extent the corporation obtains from the partnership, before the corporation's filing-due date for the year, information in writing identifying the qualified resource expenses described in paragraph d of section 395 or 408, paragraph e of section 418.1.1 or paragraph b of section 418.2 and determined as if those expenses had been incurred by the partnership in its last fiscal period that ended in the year; and

(b) the amount designated for the year by the corporation is not to exceed the maximum amount that would be deductible by the corporation under any of Divisions III to IV.1 of Chapter X of Title VI in computing its income for the year if

i. the amounts referred to in paragraph a in respect of the partnership were the only amounts used in determining the maximum amount, and

ii. the fiscal period of the partnership that begins in the year and ends after the year had ended at the end of the year and each qualified resource expense were deemed under section 359.18 to be incurred by the corporation at the end of the year.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.24. Sections 217.19 and 217.20 do not apply in computing a corporation's income for a taxation year in respect of a partnership if the corporation becomes a bankrupt in the year.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.25. If a corporation is a member of a partnership subject to a multi-tier alignment, section 217.19 does not apply to the corporation in respect of the partnership for taxation years preceding the taxation year that includes the end of the first aligned fiscal period of the partnership under the multi-tier alignment.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.26. Once a corporation makes a designation in calculating its adjusted stub period accrual in respect of a partnership for a taxation year under subparagraph e or f of the second paragraph of section 217.18, the designation cannot be amended or revoked.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.27. Where a corporation has qualifying transitional income in respect of a partnership for a particular taxation year, the following rules apply:

(a) the corporation may, in computing its income for the particular year, claim an amount, as a reserve, not exceeding the least of

i. the specified percentage for the particular year of the corporation's qualifying transitional income in respect of the partnership,

ii. if, for the preceding taxation year, an amount was claimed under this section in computing the corporation's income in respect of the partnership, the amount that is the aggregate of

(1) the amount included under section 217.28 in computing the corporation's income for the particular year in respect of the partnership, and

(2) the amount by which the corporation's qualifying transitional income in respect of the partnership is increased in the particular year because of the application of sections 217.32 and 217.33, and

iii. the amount determined by the formula

A - B;

(b) the portion of the amount claimed under subparagraph a for the particular year that, because of subparagraph iv of paragraph a of section 217.22, has a character other than capital is deductible in computing the income of the corporation for the particular year; and

(c) the portion of the amount claimed under subparagraph a for the particular year that, because of subparagraph iv of paragraph a of section 217.22, has the character of capital is deemed to be an allowable capital loss for the particular year from the disposition of property.

In the formula in subparagraph iii of subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the corporation's income for the particular year computed before deducting or claiming any amount under this section in respect of the partnership or under sections 346.2 to 346.4; and

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deductible by the corporation for the year under sections 738 to 749 as a dividend received by the corporation after 20 December 2012.

2013, c. 10, s. 21; 2015, c. 24, s. 46.

217.28. Subject to section 217.22, the following rules apply for a particular taxation year if a reserve was claimed by a corporation under section 217.27 in respect of a partnership for the preceding taxation year:

(a) the portion of the reserve that was deducted under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 217.27 for that preceding year is to be included in computing the income of the corporation for the particular year; and

(b) the portion of the reserve that was deemed by subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 217.27 to be an allowable capital loss of the corporation for that preceding year is deemed to be a taxable capital gain of the corporation for the particular year from the disposition of property.

2013, c. 10, s. 21; 2015, c. 24, s. 46.

217.29. No claim may be made under section 217.27 in computing a corporation's income for a taxation year in respect of a partnership

(a) unless, in the case of a corporation that is a member of a partnership in respect of which there is a multi-tier alignment, the corporation has been a member of the partnership continuously since before 22 March 2011 to the end of the year;

(b) unless, in the case of a corporation that is a member of a partnership in respect of which there is no multi-tier alignment, the corporation is a member of the partnership

i. at the end of the partnership's fiscal period that begins before 22 March 2011 and ends in the taxation year of the corporation that includes that date,

ii. at the end of the partnership's fiscal period commencing immediately after the fiscal period referred to in subparagraph i and continues to be a member until after the end of the taxation year of the corporation that includes 22 March 2011, and

iii. continuously since before 22 March 2011 until the end of the year;

(c) if at the end of the year or at any time in the following taxation year,

i. the corporation's income is exempt from tax under this Part, or

ii. the corporation is not resident in Canada and the partnership does not carry on business through an establishment in Canada; or

(d) if the year ends immediately before another taxation year

i. at the beginning of which the partnership no longer principally carries on the activities to which the reserve relates,

ii. in which the corporation becomes a bankrupt, or

iii. in which the corporation is dissolved or wound up (other than in circumstances to which the rules in sections 556 to 564.1 and 565 apply).

2013, c. 10, s. 21; 2015, c. 24, s. 47.

217.30. A corporation that cannot claim an amount under section 217.27 for a taxation year in respect of a partnership solely because it has disposed of its interest in the partnership is deemed for the purposes of paragraphs a and b of section 217.29 to be a member of the partnership continuously until the end of the taxation year if

(a) the corporation disposed of its interest to another corporation related to, or affiliated with, the corporation at the time of the disposition; and

(b) a corporation related to, or affiliated with, the corporation has the partnership interest referred to in paragraph a at the end of the taxation year.

2013, c. 10, s. 21; 2015, c. 24, s. 48.

217.31. For the purpose of determining a corporation's qualifying transitional income, the income or loss of a partnership for a fiscal period must be computed as if

(a) the partnership had deducted for the fiscal period the maximum amount deductible in respect of any expense, reserve or other amount;

(b) this Act were read without reference to subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 194; and

(c) the partnership had made a valid election for the purposes of paragraph a of section 34 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)).

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.32. Section 217.33 applies for a particular taxation year of a corporation and for each subsequent taxation year for which the corporation may claim an amount under section 217.27 in respect of a partnership if the particular year is the first taxation year

(a) that is after the taxation year in which the corporation has, or would have if the partnership had income, an adjusted stub period accrual that is included in the corporation's qualifying transitional income in respect of the partnership because of paragraph b of the definition of "qualifying transitional income" in the first paragraph of section 217.18; and

(b) in which ends the fiscal period of the partnership that began in the taxation year referred to in paragraph a.

2013, c. 10, s. 21; 2015, c. 24, s. 49.

217.33. If, because of section 217.32, this section applies in respect of a partnership for a taxation year of a corporation, the adjusted stub period accrual included in the corporation's qualifying transitional income in respect of the partnership for the year must be computed as if subparagraphs a, b, d and f to m of the second paragraph of section 217.18 were read as follows:

"(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of an income or taxable capital gain of the partnership for the particular fiscal period (other than any amount in respect of which a deduction is available under sections 738 to 749);

"(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of a loss or allowable capital loss—to the extent that the total of all allowable capital losses does not exceed the total of all taxable capital gains included in the aggregate described in subparagraph a—of the partnership for the particular fiscal period;

"(d) D is the number of days in the particular fiscal period;

"(f) F is an amount equal to zero;

"(g) G is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of an income or taxable capital gain of the partnership for the particular fiscal period (other than any amount in respect of which a deduction is available under sections 738 to 749);

"(h) H is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of a loss or allowable capital loss—to the extent that the total of all allowable capital losses does not exceed the total of all taxable capital gains included in the aggregate described in subparagraph g—of the partnership for the particular fiscal period;

"(i) I is the number of days in the particular fiscal period;

"(j) J is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of an income or taxable capital gain of the partnership for the particular fiscal period (other than any amount in respect of which a deduction is available under sections 738 to 749);

"(k) K is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of a loss or allowable capital loss—to the extent that the total of all allowable capital losses does not exceed the total of all taxable capital gains included in the aggregate described in subparagraph j—of the partnership for the particular fiscal period;

"(l) L is an amount equal to zero;

"(m) M is the number of days in the particular fiscal period;".

2013, c. 10, s. 21; 2015, c. 24, s. 50.

217.34. If it is reasonable to conclude that one of the main reasons a corporation is a member of a partnership in a taxation year is to avoid the application of section 217.29, the corporation is deemed not to be a member of the partnership for the purposes of that section.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

§ 2. — Income shortfall adjustment

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.35. In this subdivision,

"actual stub period accrual", of a corporation in respect of a qualifying partnership for a taxation year, means the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

"base year", of a corporation in respect of a qualifying partnership for a taxation year, means the preceding taxation year of the corporation in which began a fiscal period of the partnership that ends in the corporation's taxation year;

"income shortfall adjustment", of a corporation in respect of a qualifying partnership for a particular taxation year, means the positive or negative amount determined by the formula

$$(F - G) \times H \times I;$$

"qualifying partnership", in respect of a corporation for a particular taxation year, means a partnership a fiscal period of which began in a preceding taxation year and ends in the particular taxation year, and in respect of which the corporation was required to calculate an adjusted stub period accrual for the preceding taxation year.

In the formulas in the definitions of "actual stub period accrual" and "income shortfall adjustment" in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of an income or taxable capital gain of the qualifying partnership for the last fiscal period of the partnership that began in the base year (other than any amount in respect of which a deduction was available under sections 738 to 749);

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's share of a loss or allowable capital loss of the qualifying partnership for the last fiscal period of the partnership that began in the base year (to the extent that the total of all allowable capital losses included in the aggregate described in this subparagraph in respect of all qualifying partnerships for the taxation year does not exceed the corporation's share of all taxable capital gains of all qualifying partnerships for the taxation year);

(c) C is the number of days that are in both the base year and the fiscal period;

(d) D is the number of days in the fiscal period;

(e) E is the amount of the qualified resource expense in respect of the qualifying partnership that was designated by the corporation for the base year under section 217.23 in its fiscal return for the base year filed with the Minister on or before its filing-due date for the base year;

(f) F is the amount that is the lesser of

i. the actual stub period accrual in respect of the qualifying partnership, and

ii. the amount that would be the corporation's adjusted stub period accrual for the base year in respect of the qualifying partnership if, for the purposes of paragraph a of the definition of "adjusted stub period accrual" in the first paragraph of section 217.18, the amount determined under subparagraph f of the second paragraph of that section were equal to zero;

(g) G is the amount included under section 217.19 in computing the corporation's income for the base year in respect of the qualifying partnership;

(h) H is the number of days in the period that begins on the day after the day on which the base year ends and ends on the day on which the taxation year ends; and

(i) I is the average daily rate of interest determined by reference to the rate of interest prescribed under section 28 of the Tax Administration Act (chapter A-6.002) for the period referred to in subparagraph h.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.36. Section 217.37 applies to a corporation for a taxation year if

(a) the corporation has designated an amount for the purposes of subparagraph f of the second paragraph of section 217.18 in calculating its adjusted stub period accrual for the base year in respect of a qualifying partnership for the taxation year; and

(b) where the corporation has qualifying transitional income, the taxation year is after the first taxation year of the corporation to which section 217.33 applies.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

217.37. If, because of section 217.36, this section applies to a corporation for a taxation year, the corporation shall include in computing its income for the taxation year the amount determined by the formula

$$A + 0.50 \times (A - B).$$

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the corporation's income shortfall adjustment in respect of a qualifying partnership for the year; and

(b) B is the lesser of the aggregate described in subparagraph a and the aggregate of all amounts each of which is 25% of the positive amount that would be the income shortfall adjustment in respect of a qualifying partnership for the year if the amount referred to in subparagraph g of the second paragraph of section 217.35 were equal to zero.

2013, c. 10, s. 21.

DIVISION IX

PROSPECTORS

1972, c. 23.

218. Where a prospector receives a share of the capital stock of a corporation as consideration for the disposition to the corporation of a mining property or right in that property acquired by him as a result of his efforts as a prospector, the following rules apply:

(a) he shall not include any amount in respect of the receipt of the share in computing his income, except as provided in paragraph b , or in computing the amount contemplated in paragraph b of section 412;

(b) he shall include in respect of the receipt of the share in computing his income for the year in which the share is disposed of or exchanged an amount equal to the lesser of the following amounts:

i. the fair market value of the share at the time of its acquisition;

ii. the fair market value of the share at the time of its disposition or exchange;

(c) he shall not include any amount in computing the cost of the share in respect of the disposition of the mining property or the right therein, as the case may be;

(d) the corporation shall not include any amount in respect of the share in computing the cost of the mining property or the right therein;

(e) for the purpose of paragraph b, a prospector is deemed to have disposed of or exchanged shares that are identical properties in the order in which they were acquired.

1972, c. 23, s. 206; 1977, c. 26, s. 20; 1987, c. 67, s. 43; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2020, c. 16, s. 188.

219. In this division,

(a) a prospector is an individual who prospects or explores for minerals or develops a property for minerals on behalf of himself, on behalf of himself and others, or as an employee;

(b) a mining property means

i. a right, licence or privilege to prospect, explore, drill or mine for minerals in a mineral resource in Canada, or

ii. immovable property in Canada, other than depreciable property, the principal value of which depends on its mineral resource content.

1972, c. 23, s. 207; 2004, c. 8, s. 39.

220. The rule provided in section 218 applies to any person other than a prospector if:

(a) that person, under an arrangement with a prospector made before the prospecting or exploration for minerals or development of a property for minerals, or as an employer of a prospector, advanced money for or paid part or all of the expenses incurred in such work; and

(b) the share was received as consideration for the disposition to the corporation by the person referred to in paragraph a of a mining property or right in that property acquired by him under the arrangement contemplated in that paragraph, or if the prospector was his employee, acquired by him through his employee's efforts.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the rules provided in paragraphs b and e of section 218 do not apply to such person unless he is an individual or a partnership other than a partnership each member of which is a taxable Canadian corporation.

1972, c. 23, s. 208; 1987, c. 67, s. 44; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2020, c. 16, s. 188.

1972, c. 23, s. 209; 1977, c. 26, s. 21; 1991, c. 25, s. 57; 2015, c. 24, s. 51.

DIVISION XI

SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH AND EXPERIMENTAL DEVELOPMENT

1972, c. 23; 1987, c. 67, s. 45.

222. (1) A taxpayer who carries on a business in Canada in a taxation year may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income from the business for the year, an amount not exceeding the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an expenditure of a current nature made by the taxpayer in the year or in a preceding taxation year ending after 31 December 1973

(a) on scientific research and experimental development that is related to a business of the taxpayer and directly undertaken in Canada by the taxpayer;

(b) on scientific research and experimental development that is related to a business of the taxpayer and directly undertaken in Canada on behalf of the taxpayer;

(c) by payments to a corporation resident in Canada to be used for scientific research and experimental development undertaken in Canada that is related to a business of the taxpayer, where the taxpayer is entitled to exploit the results of that scientific research and experimental development;

(d) by payments to be used for scientific research and experimental development undertaken in Canada that is related to a business of the taxpayer, if the taxpayer is entitled to exploit the results of that scientific research and experimental development and if the payment was made to

i. an association recognized by the Minister to undertake scientific research and experimental development,

ii. a university, college, research institute or other similar institution recognized by the Minister,

iii. a corporation resident in Canada and exempt from tax under section 991, or

iv. an organization recognized by the Minister that makes payments to an association, institution or corporation described in any of subparagraphs i to iii; or

(e) where the taxpayer is a corporation, by payments to an entity described in subparagraph iii of paragraph d, for scientific research and experimental development undertaken in Canada that is basic research or applied research the primary purpose of which is the use of results therefrom by the taxpayer in conjunction with other scientific research and experimental development activities undertaken or to be undertaken by or on behalf of the taxpayer that relate to a business of the taxpayer, and that has the technological potential for application to other businesses of a type unrelated to that carried on by the taxpayer.

(2) In this division, "scientific research and experimental development" means, subject to subsection 4, systematic investigation or search that is carried out in a field of science or technology by means of

(a) basic research or applied research undertaken for the advancement of scientific knowledge; or

(b) experimental development undertaken for the purpose of achieving technological advancement for the purpose of creating new, or improving existing, materials, products, devices or processes, including incremental improvements thereto.

(3) For the purposes of the definition of "scientific research and experimental development" in subsection 2 in respect of a taxpayer, scientific research and experimental development include work undertaken by or on behalf of the taxpayer with respect to engineering, design, operations research, mathematical analysis, computer programming, data collection, testing and psychological research, where the work is directly in support of research referred to in paragraph a of subsection 2 that is undertaken in Canada by or on behalf of the taxpayer, or experimental development referred to in paragraph b of that subsection that is undertaken in Canada by or on behalf of the taxpayer, and is commensurate with the needs of such research or experimental development.

(4) For the purposes of the definition of "scientific research and experimental development" in subsection 2, scientific research and experimental development do not include work related to

(a) market research or sales promotion;

(b) quality control or routine testing of materials, products, devices or processes;

(c) research in the social sciences or the humanities;

(d) prospecting, exploring or drilling for, or producing, minerals, petroleum or natural gas;

(e) the commercial production of a new or improved material, device or product, or the commercial use of a new or improved process;

(f) style changes; or

(g) routine data collection.

223.0.1. For the purposes of section 223, as it read before being repealed, in respect of a property, an expenditure made by a taxpayer in respect of the property is deemed not to have been made by the taxpayer before the property is considered to have become available for use by the taxpayer.

1993, c. 16, s. 107; 2015, c. 21, s. 137.

223.1. Where a taxpayer carries on a business in Canada in a taxation year by reason of an arrangement, a transaction or an event, or of a series of arrangements, transactions or events, and it may reasonably be considered that one of the purposes of the arrangement, transaction or event or of the series of arrangements, transactions or events is to cause the taxpayer to carry on the business so as to allow the taxpayer to deduct an amount in computing the taxpayer's income from that business for that taxation year, pursuant to sections 222 to 226, the taxpayer is, for the purposes of those sections, deemed not to carry on the business in that year by reason of the arrangement, transaction or event or of the series of arrangements, transactions or events unless the taxpayer is, by reason of the arrangement, transaction or event, or of the series of arrangements, transactions or events, a member of a partnership other than a specified member of that partnership.

224. A taxpayer referred to in subsection 1 of section 222 may also deduct, in computing his income from the business referred to therein for the year, all amounts included by virtue of paragraph t of section 87 in computing his income for any previous taxation year and the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an expenditure made by the taxpayer in the year or in any previous taxation year ending after 31 December 1973 as repayment of an amount described in paragraph b of section 225.

1972, c. 23, s. 212; 1975, c. 22, s. 33; 1982, c. 5, s. 52; 1987, c. 67, s. 47; 1989, c. 5, s. 51.

224.1. For the purposes of section 224, an amount is deemed to be an expenditure made in a taxation year by a taxpayer as repayment of an amount described in paragraph b of section 225 if the amount

(a) reduced, by the effect of paragraph b of section 225, the aggregate of the amounts that may be deducted by the taxpayer under sections 222 to 224 in computing his income for a taxation year;

(b) was not received by the taxpayer; and

(c) ceased in the taxation year to be an amount that the taxpayer can reasonably be expected to receive.

1994, c. 22, s. 121.

225. The aggregate of the amounts that may be deducted by a taxpayer under sections 222 to 224, in computing his income for a taxation year, shall be reduced by the aggregate of the following amounts:

(a) the amount prescribed;

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of any government assistance or non-government assistance, within the meaning assigned to those expressions by the first paragraph of section 1029.6.0.0.1, in respect of an expenditure described in section 222 or 223, as each of those sections read in relation to the expenditure, that, on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year, the taxpayer has received, is entitled to receive or can reasonably be expected to receive;

(b.1) where, in respect of a scientific research and experimental development project referred to in section 222 or 223, as each of those sections read in relation to the project, or in respect of the carrying out of the project, a person has obtained, is entitled to obtain or can reasonably be expected to obtain a benefit or an advantage, whether in the form of a reimbursement, compensation or guarantee or in the form of proceeds of disposition of a property which exceed the fair market value of the property or in any other form or manner, and it may reasonably be considered that the benefit or advantage directly or indirectly results in a compensation or indemnity or, otherwise, in any manner whatsoever, in a benefit for a party to the project, the amount of the benefit or advantage that the person has obtained, is entitled to obtain or can reasonably be expected to obtain on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year;

(c) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted under sections 222 to 224 in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, except amounts described in section 229;

(c.1) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the lesser of the amount deducted under section 346.2 in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year and the amount by which the amount that was deductible under sections 222 to 225 in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year exceeds the amount deducted under those sections in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year;

(d) where the taxpayer is subject to a loss restriction event before the end of the year, the amount determined for the year under section 225.1 with respect to the taxpayer.

1975, c. 22, s. 34; 1979, c. 18, s. 13; 1982, c. 5, s. 52; 1984, c. 15, s. 52; 1989, c. 5, s. 52; 1990, c. 7, s. 12; 1996, c. 39, s. 60; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 31, s. 30; 2004, c. 21, s. 68; 2015, c. 21, s. 138; 2017, c. 1, s. 103.

225.1. Where a taxpayer is, at any time before the end of a taxation year of the taxpayer, last subject to a loss restriction event, the amount determined for the purposes of paragraph d of section 225 for the year in respect of the taxpayer is the amount obtained by subtracting the amount determined under the third paragraph from the amount determined by the formula

A – B – C.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

i. an expenditure described in section 222 that was made by the taxpayer before that time or an expenditure described in section 224, where that section refers to an expenditure made as repayment of an amount described in paragraph b of section 225 that was made by the taxpayer before that time,

ii. the lesser of the amounts determined immediately before that time in respect of the taxpayer under paragraphs a and b of section 223, as those paragraphs read on 29 March 2012 in respect of expenditures made, and property acquired, by the taxpayer before 1 January 2014, or

iii. an amount determined in respect of the taxpayer for its taxation year ending immediately before that time under section 224, where that section refers to an amount included, under paragraph t of section 87, in computing its income for a preceding taxation year;

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

i. the aggregate of all amounts determined in respect of the taxpayer under paragraphs a to c of section 225 for its taxation year ending immediately before that time, or

ii. the amount deducted under sections 222 to 225 in computing the taxpayer's income for its taxation year ending immediately before that time; and

(c) C is the aggregate of

i. where the business to which the amounts described in any of subparagraphs i to iii of subparagraph a may reasonably be considered to relate was carried on by the taxpayer for profit or with a reasonable expectation of profit throughout the year, the aggregate of

(1) the taxpayer's income for the year from the business before making any deduction under sections 222 to 225, and

(2) where properties were sold, leased, rented or developed, or services were rendered, in the course of carrying on the business before that time, the taxpayer's income for the year, before making any deduction under sections 222 to 225, from any other business substantially all the income of which was derived from the sale, leasing, rental or development, as the case may be, of similar properties or the rendering of similar services, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount determined in respect of a preceding taxation year of the taxpayer that ended after that time equal to the lesser of

(1) the amount determined under subparagraph i in respect of the taxpayer in respect of the business for that preceding taxation year, and

(2) the amount in respect of the business deducted under sections 222 to 225 in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding taxation year.

1989, c. 5, s. 52; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2015, c. 21, s. 139; 2017, c. 1, s. 104.

225.2. For the purposes of sections 222 to 225 and notwithstanding section 230.0.0.1, where a taxpayer is a corporation, scientific research and experimental development, related to a business carried on by another corporation to which the taxpayer is related, otherwise than by reason of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20 and in which that other corporation is actively engaged, at the time at which an expenditure or payment in respect of the scientific research and experimental development is made by the taxpayer, shall be considered to be related to a business of the taxpayer at that time.

225.3. For the purposes of this division, an expenditure is deemed to have been made by a taxpayer in Canada if the expenditure is made

(a) by the taxpayer in the course of a business carried on by the taxpayer in Canada; and

(b) for the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development in the exclusive economic zone of Canada, within the meaning of the Oceans Act (Statutes of Canada, 1996, chapter 31), or in the airspace above that zone or the seabed or subsoil below that zone.

2006, c. 13, s. 30.

226. A taxpayer may deduct, in computing his income for a taxation year from a business of the taxpayer, expenditures of a current nature made by him in the year either on scientific research and experimental development carried on outside Canada, directly undertaken by or on behalf of the taxpayer, and related to the business or by way of payments to any of the entities described in subparagraphs i and ii of paragraph d of subsection 1 of section 222 to be used for scientific research and experimental development carried on outside Canada related to the business provided that the taxpayer is entitled to exploit the results of such scientific research and experimental development.

226.1. Where, in respect of a scientific research and experimental development project referred to in section 226 or in respect of the carrying out of that project, a person has obtained, is entitled to obtain or can reasonably be expected to obtain a benefit or an advantage, whether in the form of a reimbursement, compensation, guarantee or the proceeds of the disposition of property exceeding the fair market value of the property or in any other form or manner, and it may reasonably be considered that the benefit or advantage directly or indirectly results in a compensation or indemnity or, otherwise, in any manner whatsoever, in a benefit for a party to the project, the amount which the taxpayer may deduct under the said section 226 for the taxation year referred to therein shall be reduced by the amount of the benefit or advantage which the person has obtained, is entitled to obtain or can reasonably be expected to obtain on or before the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year.

228. No deduction may be made under this division in respect of an expenditure made to acquire rights in or arising out of scientific research and experimental development and no deduction permitted under this division may be claimed under section 710 or sections 752.0.10.1 to 752.0.10.14.

1972, c. 23, s. 215; 1987, c. 67, s. 48; 1993, c. 64, s. 23.

229. For the purposes of sections 93 to 104, an amount deducted under section 223 that may reasonably be considered to be in respect of a property described in that section, as it read before being repealed, in respect of the property, is deemed to be an amount deductible under the regulations made under paragraph a of section 130 and, for that purpose, the property so acquired is deemed to be of a separate prescribed class.

229.1. (Repealed).

1988, c. 4, s. 28; 1989, c. 5, s. 53.

230. Expenditures on scientific research and experimental development include only

(a) in the cases referred to in section 226,

i. expenditures each of which was an expenditure incurred for and all or substantially all of which was attributable to the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development, and

ii. expenditures of a current nature that were directly attributable, as determined by regulation, to the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development;

(b) in cases other than those referred to in section 226, expenditures incurred by a taxpayer in a taxation year, other than a taxation year for which the taxpayer has elected under subparagraph c, each of which is

i. an expenditure of a current nature all or substantially all of which was attributable to the prosecution, or to the provision of premises, facilities or equipment for the prosecution, of scientific research and experimental development carried on in Canada, or

ii. an expenditure of a current nature directly attributable, as determined by regulation, to the prosecution, or to the provision of premises, facilities or equipment for the prosecution, of scientific research and experimental development carried on in Canada, and

iii. (subparagraph repealed);

(c) in cases other than those referred to in section 226, where a taxpayer has elected in prescribed form and in accordance with section 230.0.0.4 for a taxation year, expenditures incurred by the taxpayer in the year each of which is

i. (subparagraph repealed);

ii. an expenditure of a current nature for the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development in Canada directly undertaken on behalf of the taxpayer,

iii. (subparagraph repealed);

iv. that portion of an expenditure incurred in respect of the salary or wages of an employee who is directly engaged in scientific research and experimental development in Canada that can reasonably be considered to relate to such work having regard to the time spent by the employee thereon, and, for this purpose, if all or substantially all of the employee's working time is spent on such scientific research and experimental development, that portion is deemed to be the amount of the expenditure, or

v. an expenditure incurred in relation to the cost of materials consumed or transformed in the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development carried on in Canada,

vi. (subparagraph repealed).

For greater certainty, it is understood that scientific research and experimental development relating to a business includes any scientific research and experimental development that may lead to or facilitate an extension of that business.

1972, c. 23, s. 217; 1987, c. 67, s. 49; 1989, c. 5, s. 54; 1995, c. 1, s. 27; 2000, c. 5, s. 57; 2002, c. 40, s. 23; 2009, c. 5, s. 76; 2015, c. 21, s. 142; 2020, c. 16, s. 47.

230.0.0.1. Except in the case of a taxpayer that derives all or substantially all of his revenue from the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development, including the sale of rights arising out of scientific research and experimental development carried on by him, the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development shall not be considered to be a business of the taxpayer to which scientific research and experimental development is related.

230.0.0.1.1. For the purposes of this division, expenditures of a current nature include any expenditure made by a taxpayer, other than

(a) an expenditure made by the taxpayer for the acquisition from a person or partnership of a property that is a capital property of the taxpayer; or

(b) an expenditure made by the taxpayer for the use of, or the right to use, property that would be capital property of the taxpayer if it were owned by the taxpayer.

2015, c. 21, s. 143.

230.0.0.2. Despite the first paragraph of section 230, expenditures on scientific research and experimental development do not include

(a) any expenditure made in respect of the acquisition or lease of animals, other than laboratory animals within the meaning of the regulations, or in respect of any other similar kind of transaction regarding such animals; and

(b) a payment to any of the following entities to the extent that the payment may reasonably be considered to have been made to enable the entity to acquire rights in, or arising out of, scientific research and experimental development:

i. a corporation resident in Canada and exempt from tax under section 991, a research institute recognized by the Minister or an association recognized by the Minister, with which the taxpayer does not deal at arm’s length,

ii. a corporation other than a corporation referred to in subparagraph i, or

iii. a university, college or organization recognized by the Minister.

1989, c. 5, s. 55; 1991, c. 8, s. 2; 1993, c. 64, s. 24; 1995, c. 1, s. 28; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2015, c. 21, s. 144.

230.0.0.3. For the purposes of subparagraphs b and c of the first paragraph of section 230, an expenditure of a taxpayer does not include remuneration based on profits or a bonus, where the remuneration or bonus, as the case may be, is in respect of a specified employee of the taxpayer.

1995, c. 1, s. 29; 1997, c. 85, s. 56.

230.0.0.3.1. For the purposes of subparagraphs b and c of the first paragraph of section 230, expenditures incurred by a taxpayer in a taxation year do not include expenses incurred in the year in respect of salary or wages of a specified employee of the taxpayer to the extent that those expenses exceed the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B / 365.$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is 5 times the amount of the Maximum Pensionable Earnings, as determined under section 40 of the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan (chapter R-9), for the calendar year in which the taxation year ends; and

(b) B is the number of days in the taxation year during which the employee is a specified employee of the taxpayer.

1998, c. 16, s. 103.

230.0.0.3.2. For the purposes of subparagraphs b and c of the first paragraph of section 230, where in a taxation year of a corporation that ends in a particular calendar year, the corporation employs an individual who is a specified employee of the corporation, the corporation is associated with another corporation, in this section referred to as the "associated corporation", in a taxation year of the associated corporation that ends in the particular calendar year, and the individual is a specified employee of the associated corporation in that taxation year of the associated corporation, the expenditures incurred by the corporation in its taxation year or years that end in the calendar year and by each associated corporation in its taxation year or years that end in the particular calendar year do not include expenses incurred in those taxation years in respect of salary or wages of the specified employee unless the corporation and all of the associated corporations have filed with the Minister an agreement referred to in section 230.0.0.3.3 in respect of those years in respect of that employee or section 230.0.0.3.5 applies to those corporations in respect of those years in respect of that employee.

1998, c. 16, s. 103.

230.0.0.3.3. Where none of the members of a group of corporations that are associated with each other in a taxation year that ends in a particular calendar year and of which an individual is a specified employee has, in that taxation year, an establishment in a province other than Québec, all of the members of the group of associated corporations file, in respect of their taxation years that end in the particular calendar year, an agreement with the Minister in which they allocate an amount in respect of the individual to one or more of them for those years and the amount so allocated or the aggregate of the amounts so allocated, as the case may be, does not exceed the amount determined by the following formula, the maximum amount that may be claimed in respect of salary or wages of the individual for the purposes of subparagraphs b and c of the first paragraph of section 230 by each of the corporations for each of those years is the amount so allocated to it for each of those years:

A × B / 365.

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is 5 times the amount of the Maximum Pensionable Earnings, as determined under section 40 of the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan (chapter R-9), for the particular calendar year; and

(b) B is the lesser of 365 and the number of days in those taxation years during which the individual was a specified employee of one or more of the corporations.

1998, c. 16, s. 103.

230.0.0.3.4. An agreement referred to in the first paragraph of section 230.0.0.3.3 is deemed not to have been filed by a taxpayer with the Minister unless it is in prescribed form, and, where the taxpayer is a corporation, it is accompanied by, where the directors of the corporation are legally entitled to administer its affairs, a certified copy of their resolution authorizing the agreement to be made or, where the directors of the corporation are not legally entitled to administer its affairs, a certified copy of the document by which the person legally entitled to administer its affairs authorized the agreement to be made.

1998, c. 16, s. 103.

230.0.0.3.5. Where one of the members of a group of corporations that are associated with each other in a taxation year that ends in a particular calendar year and of which an individual is a specified employee has, in that taxation year, an establishment in a province other than Québec and an amount in respect of the individual is allocated, in accordance with subsection 9.3 of section 37 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), to one or more of them for each of their taxation years that ends in the particular calendar year, the maximum amount that may be claimed in respect of salary or wages of the individual for the purposes of subparagraphs b and c of the first paragraph of section 230 by each of the corporations for each of those years is the amount so allocated to it for each of those years.

Where, in respect of a taxation year, a member of a group of associated corporations referred to in the first paragraph files, in respect of an individual, an agreement with the Minister of Revenue of Canada in accordance with subsection 9.3 of section 37 of the Income Tax Act, the member is required to file with the Minister, in respect of that year, a copy of the agreement.

1998, c. 16, s. 103; 2000, c. 5, s. 293.

230.0.0.3.6. For the purposes of this section and sections 230.0.0.3.2, 230.0.0.3.3 and 230.0.0.3.5, each of the following is deemed to be a corporation associated with a particular corporation:

(a) an individual related to the particular corporation;

(b) a partnership of which a majority-interest partner is an individual related to the particular corporation or a corporation associated with the particular corporation; and

(c) a limited partnership of which a member whose liability as a member is not limited is an individual related to the particular corporation or a corporation associated with the particular corporation.

1998, c. 16, s. 103.

230.0.0.4. Any election made under subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 230 for a taxation year by a taxpayer shall be filed in prescribed form by the taxpayer, on the day on which the taxpayer first files a prescribed form referred to in section 230.0.0.4.1 for the year.

1995, c. 1, s. 29; 1997, c. 31, s. 32.

230.0.0.4.1. A taxpayer shall, in respect of an expenditure that would be an expenditure made by the taxpayer in a taxation year that begins after 31 December 1995 if this Act were read without reference to section 482 and that is claimed by the taxpayer for the year as a deduction under this division, file with the Minister, on or before the day that is 12 months after the taxpayer's filing-due date for the year, the prescribed form containing

(a) prescribed information in respect of the expenditure; and

(b) claim preparer information within the meaning of section 1045.0.1.3.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, a taxpayer is deemed to have filed with the Minister the prescribed form containing prescribed information in respect of an expenditure on or before the day that is 12 months after the taxpayer's filing-due date for a taxation year so that an amount may be deducted by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income under sections 222 to 224 in respect of the expenditure, if

(a) the taxpayer has filed with the Minister the prescribed form containing prescribed information and, if applicable, a copy of each agreement, certificate, favourable advance ruling, qualification certificate, rate schedule, receipt or report within the time limit provided for in the first paragraph of section 1029.6.0.1.2 that applies to the taxpayer for the taxation year, so as to be deemed to have paid an amount to the Minister for the year in respect of the expenditure under any of Divisions II.5.1 to II.6.15 of Chapter III.1 of Title III of Book IX; and

(b) the taxpayer files with the Minister the prescribed form containing prescribed information more than 12 months after that date so that an amount may be deducted by the taxpayer in computing the taxpayer's income under sections 222 to 224 in respect of the expenditure.

230.0.0.4.2. Subject to section 230.0.0.5, where prescribed information in relation to an expenditure referred to in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 230.0.0.4.1 is not contained in the form referred to in that section, no amount in relation to the expenditure may be deducted under sections 222 to 224.

2020, c. 16, s. 49.

230.0.0.5. If a taxpayer has not filed the prescribed form that was required to be filed in respect of an expenditure in accordance with section 230.0.0.4.1, for the purposes of this Part, the expenditure is deemed not to be an expenditure on or in respect of scientific research and experimental development.

1996, c. 39, s. 61; 1997, c. 31, s. 34; 2000, c. 5, s. 59.

230.0.0.5.1. For the purposes of paragraphs b to e of subsection 1 of section 222, the amount of a particular expenditure made by a taxpayer is required to be reduced by the amount of any related expenditure of the person or partnership to whom the particular expenditure is made that is not an expenditure of a current nature of the person or partnership.

2015, c. 21, s. 145.

230.0.0.5.2. If an expenditure is required to be reduced because of section 230.0.0.5.1, the person or the partnership referred to in that section is required to inform the taxpayer in writing of the amount of the reduction without delay if requested by the taxpayer and in any other case no later than 90 days after the end of the calendar year in which the expenditure was made.

2015, c. 21, s. 145.

230.0.0.6. For the purposes of this division, an expenditure that is made by a taxpayer in a taxation year and that would, but for subsection 1 of section 175.1, have been deductible under this division in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, is deemed not to be made by the taxpayer in the year and to be made by the taxpayer in the subsequent taxation year to which the expenditure may reasonably be considered to relate.

1997, c. 31, s. 35.

230.0.0.7. For the purposes of subparagraphs i, ii and iv of paragraph d of subsection 1 of section 222 and subparagraphs i and iii of paragraph b of section 230.0.0.2, an association, university, college, research institute or organization is considered to be recognized by the Minister where such entity qualifies as an eligible public research centre for the purposes of Division II.1 of Chapter III.1 of Title III of Book IX.

TITLE IV

CAPITAL GAINS AND CAPITAL LOSSES

1972, c. 23.

CHAPTER I

GENERAL RULES

1972, c. 23.

231. Subject to sections 231.0.1 to 231.2.1, a taxable capital gain, an allowable capital loss or an allowable business investment loss is equal to 1/2 of the capital gain, 1/2 of the capital loss or 1/2 of the business investment loss, as the case may be, from the disposition of property.

The capital gain, the capital loss or the business investment loss shall be computed in accordance with this Title in reference to the taxation year during which the disposition of the property takes place, unless otherwise provided in this Part.

1972, c. 23, s. 218; 1979, c. 18, s. 15; 1990, c. 59, s. 112; 2001, c. 51, s. 29; 2003, c. 2, s. 66; 2009, c. 15, s. 62.

231.0.1. For the purposes of the first paragraph of section 231 in respect of a taxpayer for any following taxation year of the taxpayer, the references to the fraction "1/2" in that paragraph shall be read as a reference to the following fraction:

(a) if the taxation year begins after 28 February 2000 and ends before 18 October 2000, 2/3;

(b) if the taxation year includes 28 February 2000 but does not include 18 October 2000,

i. 3/4, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000, in this paragraph referred to as the "first period", exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends at the end of the year, in this paragraph referred to as the "second period",

ii. 3/4, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the first period exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the second period,

iii. 2/3, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the first period is less than the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the second period,

iv. 2/3, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the first period is less than the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the second period,

v. the fraction determined under section 231.0.2, where the taxpayer has only net capital gains, or only net capital losses, from dispositions of property in each of the first and second periods,

vi. 2/3, where the net capital gains and net capital losses of the taxpayer for the year are nil, and

vii. 2/3, in any other case;

(c) if the taxation year begins after 27 February 2000 and includes 18 October 2000,

i. 2/3, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 17 October 2000, in this paragraph referred to as the "first period", exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 18 October 2000 and ends at the end of the year, in this paragraph referred to as the "second period",

ii. 2/3, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the first period exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the second period,

iii. 1/2, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the first period is less than the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the second period,

iv. 1/2, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the first period is less than the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the second period,

v. the fraction determined under section 231.0.3, where the taxpayer has only net capital gains, or only net capital losses, from dispositions of property in each of the first and second periods,

vi. 1/2, where the net capital gains and net capital losses of the taxpayer for the year are nil, and

vii. 1/2, in any other case; and

(d) if the taxation year includes 27 February 2000 and 18 October 2000,

i. 3/4, where the amount by which the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000, in this paragraph referred to as the "first period", exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends on 17 October 2000, in this paragraph referred to as the "second period", exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 18 October 2000 and ends at the end of the year, in this paragraph referred to as the "third period",

ii. 3/4, where the amount by which the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the first period exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the second period, exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the third period,

iii. 2/3, where the amount by which the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the second period exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the first period, exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the third period,

iv. 2/3, where the amount by which the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the second period exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the first period, exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the third period,

v. the fraction determined under section 231.0.4, where the taxpayer has net capital gains in each of the first and second periods and the total amount of those net capital gains in those periods exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses in the third period,

vi. the fraction determined under section 231.0.5, where the taxpayer has net capital losses in each of the first and second periods and the total amount of those net capital losses in those periods exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains in the third period,

vii. the fraction determined under section 231.0.6, where the taxpayer has only net capital gains, or only net capital losses, from dispositions of property in each of the first, second and third periods, viii. the fraction determined under section 231.0.7, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the first period exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the second period and the taxpayer has net capital gains from dispositions of property in the third period,

ix. the fraction determined under section 231.0.8, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the first period exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the second period and the taxpayer has net capital losses from dispositions of property in the third period,

x. the fraction determined under section 231.0.9, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the second period exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the first period and the taxpayer has net capital gains from dispositions of property in the third period, xi. the fraction determined under section 231.0.10, where the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the second period exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the first period and the taxpayer has net capital losses from dispositions of property in the third period, and

xii. 1/2, in any other case.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.2. The fraction referred to in subparagraph v of paragraph b of section 231.0.1 in respect of a taxation year of a taxpayer is determined by the formula

$$[(A \times 3/4) + (B \times 2/3)] / (A + B).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the taxpayer's net capital gains or net capital losses, as the case may be, from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000; and

(b) B is the taxpayer's net capital gains or net capital losses, as the case may be, from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends at the end of the year.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.3. The fraction referred to in subparagraph v of paragraph c of section 231.0.1 in respect of a taxation year of a taxpayer is determined by the formula

$$[(A \times 2/3) + (B \times 1/2)] / (A + B).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the taxpayer's net capital gains or net capital losses, as the case may be, from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 17 October 2000; and

(b) B is the taxpayer's net capital gains or net capital losses, as the case may be, from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 18 October 2000 and ends at the end of the year.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.4. The fraction referred to in subparagraph v of paragraph d of section 231.0.1 in respect of a taxation year of a taxpayer is determined by the formula

$$[(A \times 3/4) + (B \times 2/3)] / (A + B).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000; and

(b) B is the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends on 17 October 2000.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.5. The fraction referred to in subparagraph vi of paragraph d of section 231.0.1 in respect of a taxation year of a taxpayer is determined by the formula

$$[(A \times 3/4) + (B \times 2/3)] / (A + B).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000; and

(b) B is the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends on 17 October 2000.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.6. The fraction referred to in subparagraph vii of paragraph d of section 231.0.1 in respect of a taxation year of a taxpayer is determined by the formula

$$[(A \times 3/4) + (B \times 2/3) + (C \times 1/2)] / (A + B + C).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the taxpayer's net capital gains or net capital losses, as the case may be, from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000;

(b) B is the taxpayer's net capital gains or net capital losses, as the case may be, from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends on 17 October 2000; and

(c) C is the taxpayer's net capital gains or net capital losses, as the case may be, from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 18 October 2000 and ends at the end of the year.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.7. The fraction referred to in subparagraph viii of paragraph d of section 231.0.1 in respect of a taxation year of a taxpayer is determined by the formula

$$[(A \times 3/4) + (B \times 1/2)] / (A + B).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount by which the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000 exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends on 17 October 2000; and

(b) B is the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 18 October 2000 and ends at the end of the year.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.8. The fraction referred to in subparagraph ix of paragraph d of section 231.0.1 in respect of a taxation year of a taxpayer is determined by the formula

$$[(A \times 3/4) + (B \times 1/2)] / (A + B).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount by which the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000 exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends on 17 October 2000; and

(b) B is the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 18 October 2000 and ends at the end of the year.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.9. The fraction referred to in subparagraph x of paragraph d of section 231.0.1 in respect of a taxation year of a taxpayer is determined by the formula

$$[(A \times 2/3) + (B \times 1/2)] / (A + B).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount by which the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends on 17 October 2000 exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000; and

(b) B is the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 18 October 2000 and ends at the end of the year.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.10. The fraction referred to in subparagraph xi of paragraph d of section 231.0.1 in respect of a taxation year of a taxpayer is determined by the formula

$$[(A \times 2/3) + (B \times 1/2)] / (A + B).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount by which the amount of the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 28 February 2000 and ends on 17 October 2000 exceeds the amount of the taxpayer's net capital gains from dispositions of property in the period that begins at the beginning of the year and ends on 27 February 2000; and

(b) B is the taxpayer's net capital losses from dispositions of property in the period that begins on 18 October 2000 and ends at the end of the year.

2003, c. 2, s. 67.

231.0.11. For the purpose of determining which fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year, the following rules apply:

(a) the net capital gains of the taxpayer from dispositions of property in a period is the amount by which the taxpayer's capital gains from dispositions of property in the period exceed the taxpayer's capital losses from dispositions of property in the period;

(b) the net capital losses of the taxpayer from dispositions of property in a period is the amount by which the taxpayer's capital losses from dispositions of property in the period exceed the taxpayer's capital gains from dispositions of property in the period;

(c) the net amount included as a capital gain of the taxpayer for a taxation year from a disposition to which section 231.1, as it read before being repealed, or section 231.2 applies is deemed to be equal to 1/2 of the capital gain;

(d) the net amount included as a capital gain of the taxpayer for a particular taxation year from a disposition of property in a preceding taxation year as a consequence of the application of the second paragraph of section 234 is deemed to be a capital gain of the taxpayer from a disposition of property on the first day of the particular year;

(e) each capital loss that is a business investment loss shall be determined without reference to sections 264.4 and 264.5;

(f) where an amount is included in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year by reason of section 485.13 in respect of a commercial obligation that is settled, the amount that would be determined by the formula provided for in the first paragraph of that section in respect of the obligation, if the value of E in that formula were 1, is deemed to be a capital gain of the taxpayer from a disposition of property on the day on which the settlement occurs;

(g) the capital gains and losses of the taxpayer from dispositions of property, other than taxable Canadian property, while the taxpayer is not resident in Canada are deemed to be nil;

(h) where an election is made by a taxpayer for a year under paragraph d of section 668.5, section 668.6 or any of sections 1106.0.3, 1106.0.5, 1113.3, 1113.4, 1116.3 and 1116.5, as they read before being repealed, the portion of the taxpayer's net capital gains for the year that are to be treated as being in respect of capital gains from dispositions of property that occurred in a particular period in the year is equal to the proportion of those net capital gains that the number of days in the particular period is of the number of days in the year;

(i) where the election made for the year under paragraph d of section 668.5, or section 668.6, was made by a personal trust, the portion of the taxpayer's net capital gains for the year that are to be treated as being in respect of capital gains from dispositions of property that occurred in a particular period in the year is that proportion of those net capital gains that the number of days in the particular period is of the number of days that are in all periods in the year in which a net gain was realized;

(j) where an amount is designated under section 668 in respect of a beneficiary by a trust in respect of the net taxable capital gains of the trust for a taxation year of the trust and the trust does not elect under paragraph d of section 668.5, for the year, the deemed gains of the beneficiary referred to in section 668.5 are deemed to have been realized in each period in the year in a proportion that is equal to the same proportion that the net capital gains of the trust realized by the trust in that period is of the aggregate of the net capital gains realized by the trust in the year;

(k) where in the course of administering the estate of a deceased taxpayer, a capital loss from a disposition of property by the legal representative of the deceased taxpayer is deemed under paragraph a of section 1054 to be a capital loss of the deceased taxpayer from the disposition of property by the taxpayer in the taxpayer's last taxation year and not to be a capital loss of the estate, the capital loss is deemed to be from the disposition of a property by the taxpayer immediately before the taxpayer's death ;

(l) each capital gain referred to in paragraph a of section 668.5 in respect of a beneficiary shall be determined as if no amount had been claimed by the beneficiary for the purposes of that paragraph;

(m) where no capital gains are realized or capital losses sustained in a period, the amount of net capital gains or losses for that period is deemed to be nil;

(n) the net amount included as a capital gain of a taxpayer for a taxation year because of the granting of an option in respect of which section 294 applies is deemed to be a capital gain of the taxpayer from a disposition of property on the day on which the option was granted;

(o) the net amount included under section 295 as a capital gain of a corporation for a taxation year because of the expiration of an option that was granted by the corporation is deemed to be a capital gain of the corporation from a disposition of property on the day on which the option expired;

(p) the net amount included under section 295.1 as a capital gain of a trust for a taxation year because of the expiration of an option that was granted by the trust is deemed to be a capital gain of the trust from a disposition of property on the day on which the option expired; and

(q) the net amount included as a capital gain of a taxpayer for a taxation year by reason of sections 296 and 296.1 is deemed to be a capital gain of the taxpayer from a disposition of property on the day on which the option was exercised.

2003, c. 2, s. 67; 2004, c. 8, s. 40; 2019, c. 14, s. 92.

231.1. (Repealed).

2001, c. 51, s. 30; 2003, c. 2, s. 68; 2004, c. 8, s. 41.

231.2. The taxable capital gain of a taxpayer for a taxation year from the disposition of a property is equal to zero if the disposition is

(a) a gift made to a qualified donee of a property that is

i. a share, debt obligation or right listed on a designated stock exchange,

ii. a share of the capital stock of a mutual fund corporation,

iii. a unit of a mutual fund trust,

iv. an interest in a trust created in respect of a segregated fund within the meaning of section 851.2, or

v. a bond, debenture, note, hypothecary claim, mortgage or similar obligation, either issued or guaranteed by the Government of Canada, or issued by the government of a province or its mandatary;

(b) a gift made to a qualified donee, other than a private foundation, of a property that is a property described, in respect of the taxpayer, in section 710.0.1 or in the definition of “qualified property” in the first paragraph of section 752.0.10.1;

(c) a deemed disposition by reason of the application of Division III of Chapter III of Title VII and the property is

i. a property referred to in paragraph a or b, and

ii. the subject of a gift to which section 752.0.10.10.0.1 applies and that is made by the taxpayer’s succession to a qualified donee that, in the case of a property referred to in paragraph b, is not a private foundation; or

(d) the exchange, for a property described in paragraph a, of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, which share included, at the time it was issued and at the time of the disposition, a condition allowing the holder to exchange it for the property, and the taxpayer

i. receives no consideration on the exchange other than the property, and

ii. makes a gift of the property to a qualified donee not more than 30 days after the exchange.

2003, c. 2, s. 69; 2004, c. 8, s. 42; 2005, c. 1, s. 74; 2006, c. 36, s. 29; 2009, c. 15, s. 63; 2010, c. 5, s. 24; 2010, c. 25, s. 21; 2017, c. 29, s. 52.

231.2.1. A taxpayer's taxable capital gain for a taxation year, from the disposition of an interest in a partnership (other than a prescribed interest) that would be an exchange described in paragraph d of section 231.2 if the interest were a share in the capital stock of a corporation, is equal to the lesser of

(a) that taxable capital gain determined without reference to this section; and

(b) the amount determined by the formula

(A - B)/2.

In the formula in subparagraph b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of the cost to the taxpayer of the partnership interest and of each amount required by subparagraph iv or x of paragraph i of section 255 to be added in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the partnership interest;

(b) B is the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the partnership interest determined without reference to subparagraphs iv and v of paragraph l of section 257.

2009, c. 15, s. 64.

231.3. For the purposes of section 231.1, as it read before being repealed, and section 231.2, where the taxation year of the donor includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or begins after 28 February 2000 and ends before 17 October 2000, the fraction "1/4" in the portion before paragraph a of either of those sections shall be replaced by the fraction obtained by multiplying the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the donor for the year by 1/2.

231.4. If a taxpayer is entitled to an amount of an advantage in respect of a gift of a property described in section 231.2, the following rules apply:

(a) that section applies only to that proportion of the taxpayer's capital gain in respect of the gift that the eligible amount of the gift is of the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition in respect of the gift; and

(b) section 231 applies to the extent that the taxpayer's capital gain in respect of the gift exceeds the amount of the capital gain to which section 231.2 applies.

2009, c. 5, s. 77.

231.5. (Repealed).

2009, c. 15, s. 65; 2017, c. 29, s. 53.

232. A capital gain or a capital loss arises from the disposition of any property other than the following property:

(a) (paragraph repealed);

(b) a timber resource property;

(c) a Canadian resource property;

(d) a foreign resource property;

(e) an insurance policy, including a life insurance policy, except for that part of a life insurance policy in respect of which a policyholder is deemed by section 851.11 to have an interest in a related segregated fund trust contemplated in section 851.2;

(f) an interest of a beneficiary under an environmental trust; or

(g) a property in respect of whose disposition any of sections 851.22.11, 851.22.13 and 851.22.14 applies.

However, the disposition of depreciable property does not give rise to a capital loss and the following dispositions do not give rise to a capital gain:

(a) the disposition of a cultural property described in the third paragraph, the disposition of the bare ownership of such property made in the course of a recognized gift with reserve of usufruct or use or the disposition of a musical instrument resulting from a gift described in paragraph e of section 710 or in the definition of "total musical instrument gifts" in the first paragraph of section 752.0.10.1; or

(b) a deemed disposition, by reason of the application of Division III of Chapter III of Title VII, of a property referred to in subparagraph a of a taxpayer, where the property is the subject of a gift in respect of which section 752.0.10.10.0.1 applies and that gift is made by the taxpayer's succession to a donee that would be one of the following donees if the disposition were made at the time the succession makes the gift:

i. an institution or a public authority referred to in subparagraph a of the third paragraph,

ii. a certified archival centre,

iii. a recognized museum, or

iv. an entity referred to in any of paragraphs a to e of the definition of "total musical instrument gifts" in the first paragraph of section 752.0.10.1.

A cultural property to which subparagraph a of the second paragraph refers is any of the following properties:

(a) a property which, according to the Canadian Cultural Property Export Review Board, complies with the criterion of significance set out in subsection 3 of section 29 of the Cultural Property Export and Import Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. C-51) and that has been disposed of to an institution or a public authority in Canada which is, at the time of disposition, designated under subsection 2 of section 32 of that Act for general purposes or for a specified purpose related to that property;

(b) a property that is classified, at the time of disposition, in accordance with the Cultural Heritage Act (chapter P-9.002) and that has been disposed of to an institution or a public authority referred to in subparagraph a; and

(c) a property that is the subject of a certificate issued by the Conseil du patrimoine culturel du Québec to the effect that it was acquired by a museum established under the Act respecting the Montréal Museum of Fine Arts (chapter M-42) or the National Museums Act (chapter M-44), a certified archival centre or a recognized museum in accordance with its acquisition and conservation policy and the directives of the Ministère de la Culture et des Communications.

232.1. A business investment loss arises from the disposition after 31 December 1977 of any property that is a share of the capital stock of a small business corporation or a debt owing by such a corporation or by a particular corporation described in the third paragraph, other than a debt disposed of by a corporation which is owed to the latter by a corporation with which it does not deal at arm's length.

However, the disposition of property gives rise to a business investment loss only if section 299 applies to the disposition or if the disposition of property is made by a taxpayer in favour of a person with whom he deals at arm's length.

The particular corporation referred to in the first paragraph is a Canadian-controlled private corporation that is

(a) a bankrupt that was a small business corporation at the time it last became a bankrupt, or

(b) a corporation referred to in section 6 of the Winding-up Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter W-11) that was insolvent, within the meaning of the said Act, and was a small business corporation at the time a winding-up order under the said Act was made in its respect.

1979, c. 18, s. 16; 1982, c. 5, s. 54; 1987, c. 67, s. 55; 1993, c. 16, s. 108; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1997, c. 3, s. 23.

232.1.1. For the purposes of sections 232.1 and 236.1, the expression "small business corporation" at any particular time includes a corporation that was at any time in the 12 months preceding that time a small business corporation.

1988, c. 18, s. 14; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

232.1.2. For the purposes of sections 232.1 and 236.1, where an amount in respect of a debt owed by a corporation has been paid by a taxpayer to a person with whom the taxpayer was dealing at arm's length pursuant to an arrangement under which the taxpayer guaranteed the debt, and the corporation was a small business corporation at the time the debt was incurred and at any time in the 12 months before the time an amount first became payable by the taxpayer under the arrangement in respect of a debt owed by the corporation, that part of the amount that is owing to the taxpayer by the corporation is deemed to be a debt owing to the taxpayer by a small business corporation.

1993, c. 16, s. 109; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

233. An amount shall not constitute a capital gain, a capital loss or a business investment loss to the extent that it must otherwise be included or may otherwise be deducted in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year or any other year.

1972, c. 23, s. 220; 1979, c. 18, s. 17.

234. Unless otherwise provided in this Part, the gain from the disposition of property shall be computed by subtracting from the proceeds of disposition the aggregate of

(a) the adjusted cost base of that property immediately before the disposition and the expenses made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition; and

(b) subject to section 234.1, an amount as a reserve that is equal to the least of

i. a reasonable amount as a reserve in respect of the portion of the proceeds of disposition of the property that is payable to the taxpayer after the end of the year and that can reasonably be regarded as a portion of the amount by which the proceeds of disposition of the property exceed the aggregate of the amounts referred to in subparagraph a in respect of the property,

ii. an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying 1/5 of the amount by which the proceeds of disposition of the property exceed the aggregate of the amounts referred to in subparagraph a in respect of the property by the amount by which four exceeds the number of preceding taxation years of the taxpayer ending after the disposition of the property, and

iii. the amount allowed as a deduction for the year under subparagraph iii of paragraph a of subsection 1 of section 40 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) in computing, for the purposes of that Act, the taxpayer's gain for the year from that disposition or, if the amount that is so allowed as a deduction is equal to the maximum amount that the taxpayer may claim as a deduction in that computation under that subparagraph iii in respect of the disposition, the amount that the taxpayer specifies and that is not less than that maximum amount.

In each subsequent year, the taxpayer shall regard as a gain the amount of the reserve established under subparagraph b of the first paragraph for the preceding year and claim an amount as a new reserve, without exceeding the amount of that gain, computed in accordance with that paragraph.

Sections 21.4.6 and 21.4.7 apply, with the necessary modifications, in relation to a deduction claimed under subparagraph iii of paragraph a of subsection 1 of section 40 of the Income Tax Act.

1972, c. 23, s. 221; 1975, c. 22, s. 36; 1984, c. 15, s. 54; 1996, c. 39, s. 63; 1997, c. 14, s. 52; 1997, c. 85, s. 57; 2010, c. 5, s. 25.

234.0.1. A taxpayer's gain for a particular taxation year from a disposition of a non-qualifying security of the taxpayer, as defined in the first paragraph of section 752.0.10.1, that is the making of a gift of the security, other than an excepted gift within the meaning assigned by that paragraph, to a qualified donee is equal to the amount by which

(a) an amount equal to

i. where the disposition occurred in the particular taxation year, the amount by which the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition exceed the aggregate of the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the security immediately before the disposition and any outlays and expenses made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition, and

ii. where the disposition occurred in the 60-month period ending at the beginning of the particular taxation year, the amount, if any, deducted under paragraph b in computing the taxpayer's gain for the preceding taxation year from the disposition of the security; exceeds

(b) the amount that the taxpayer claims as a deduction in the prescribed form filed with the taxpayer's fiscal return for the particular taxation year, not exceeding the eligible amount of the gift, if the taxpayer is not deemed under section 752.0.10.16 to have made a gift of a property before the end of the particular taxation year as a consequence of a disposition of the security by the donee or as a consequence of the security ceasing to be a non-qualifying security of the taxpayer before the end of that year.

234.0.2. Where, in respect of a taxation year, an individual has made an election under section 1086.28, the amount deemed to be a capital gain under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of that section is deemed to be a gain from the disposition of property for the year.

2011, c. 34, s. 26.

234.1. In computing the amount that a taxpayer may deduct as a reserve under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 234 in computing the taxpayer's gain from the disposition of a property, that subparagraph is to be read as if "1/5" and "4" were replaced by "1/10" and "9", respectively, if

(a) the property was disposed of by the taxpayer to the taxpayer's child;

(b) that child was resident in Canada immediately before the disposition; and

(c) that property was, immediately before the disposition,

i. land in Canada or a depreciable property in Canada of a prescribed class that was used by the taxpayer or the spouse, a child or the father or mother of the taxpayer in carrying on a farming or fishing business in Canada,

ii. a share of the capital stock of a family farm or fishing corporation of the taxpayer, within the meaning of subparagraph a.2 of the first paragraph of section 451, or an interest in a family farm or fishing partnership of the taxpayer, within the meaning of subparagraph h of that paragraph, or

iii. a qualified small business corporation share of the taxpayer within the meaning of section 726.6.1, or

iv. (subparagraph repealed).

1984, c. 15, s. 55; 1987, c. 67, s. 56; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 14, s. 53; 2004, c. 8, s. 44; 2007, c. 12, s. 43; 2010, c. 5, s. 26; 2017, c. 29, s. 55.

235. A taxpayer may not deduct the reserve established under section 234 for a taxation year if

(a) at the end of the year or at any time in the following taxation year, the taxpayer is not resident in Canada or is exempt from tax under this Part;

(b) the purchaser of the property sold is a corporation that, immediately after the sale,

i. is controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by the taxpayer,

ii. is controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by a person or group of persons by whom the taxpayer is controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, or

iii. if the taxpayer is a corporation, controls the taxpayer, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever; or

(c) the purchaser of the property sold is a partnership in which the taxpayer is, immediately after the sale, a majority-interest partner.

1975, c. 22, s. 37; 1990, c. 59, s. 113; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2009, c. 5, s. 79; 2010, c. 5, s. 27.

236. The loss from the disposition of a property shall be computed by subtracting the proceeds of disposition of that property from the aggregate of the adjusted cost base of such property immediately before the disposition and the expenses made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purposes of the disposition.

236.1. A business investment loss, in the case of a share referred to in the first paragraph of section 232.1, is computed by subtracting from the loss determined in accordance with this Title the amount that must be added after 1977 by virtue of the application of paragraph b of section 535 in computing the adjusted cost base of the share or of any other share, in this paragraph referred to as a "replaced share", for which the share or a replaced share was substituted or exchanged.

In the case of a share that is not a share that was acquired after 31 December 1971 from a person with whom the taxpayer was dealing at arm's length, but that is a share referred to in the first paragraph of section 232.1 that was issued before 1 January 1972 or a share, in this paragraph and in the third paragraph referred to as a "substituted share", that was substituted or exchanged for such a share issued before 1 January 1972 or for a substituted share, the aggregate of all amounts that the taxpayer, his spouse or a trust of which the taxpayer or his spouse was a beneficiary received after 31 December 1971 and before or upon the disposition of the share as a taxable dividend on the share or on any other share in respect of which the share disposed of is a substituted share or which are receivable as such by one of such persons at the time of the disposition of the share must also be deducted from the loss determined in accordance with this Title.

Furthermore, where the taxpayer is a trust for which a day is to be, or has been, determined under subparagraph a or a.4 of the first paragraph of section 653 by reference to a death or later death, as the case may be, and the share is a share referred to in the second paragraph, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount received after 31 December 1971 or receivable at the time of the disposition, as a taxable dividend on the share or on any other share in respect of which the share disposed of is a substituted share, by an individual whose death is that death or later death, as the case may be, or the individual's spouse must also be deducted from the loss determined in accordance with this Title.

Lastly, a business investment loss is computed by subtracting the amount determined in respect of the taxpayer under section 264.4 or 264.5, as the case may be.

236.2. Where the taxpayer is a corporation, its loss from the disposition at a particular time in a taxation year of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, in this section referred to as the "controlled corporation", that was controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by the taxpayer at any time in the year, is its loss otherwise determined from that disposition less the amount by which the amount determined in the second paragraph exceeds the aggregate of the amounts by which the taxpayer's losses have been reduced by virtue of this section in respect of dispositions before the particular time of shares of the capital stock of the controlled corporation.

The amount to which the first paragraph refers is the aggregate of all amounts added under paragraph c.1 of section 255 to the cost to a corporation, other than the controlled corporation, of property disposed of to that corporation by the controlled corporation that were added to the cost of the property during the period while the controlled corporation was controlled by the taxpayer and that can reasonably be attributed to losses on the property that accrued during the period while the controlled corporation was controlled by the taxpayer.

236.3. For the purposes of section 236.2, where, in the case of an amalgamation within the meaning of section 544 of several corporations, a particular corporation was controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by a predecessor corporation immediately before the amalgamation, and has become so controlled by the new corporation by virtue of the amalgamation, the new corporation is deemed to have acquired control of the particular corporation at the time control thereof was acquired by the predecessor corporation.

237. The loss of a taxpayer from the disposition of a particular property is not allowable where

(a) during the period that begins 30 days before and ends 30 days after the time of disposition, the taxpayer or a person affiliated with the taxpayer acquires a property, in this section referred to as the "substituted property", that is, or is identical to, the particular property; and

(b) at the end of the 30 days following the time of disposition, the taxpayer or a person affiliated with the taxpayer owns or has a right to acquire the substituted property.

For the purposes of the first paragraph,

(a) a right to acquire a property (other than a right, as security only, derived from a hypothec, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar obligation) is deemed to be a property that is identical to the property; and

(b) a share of the capital stock of a SIFT wind-up corporation in respect of a SIFT wind-up entity is, if the share was acquired before 1 January 2013, deemed to be a property that is identical to an interest in the entity that is an investment in a SIFT wind-up entity.

1972, c. 23, s. 223; 1975, c. 22, s. 38; 1977, c. 26, s. 22; 1990, c. 59, s. 115; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 63; 2005, c. 1, s. 76; 2010, c. 25, s. 23.

238. Section 237 does not apply where the disposition is

(a) a disposition deemed to have occurred under section 242, as it read before 1 January 1993, any of sections 281, 283, 299 to 300, 436, 440, 444, 450, 450.6 and 653, Chapter I of Title I.1 of Book VI, paragraph a or c of section 785.5 or any of sections 832.1, 851.22.0.4, 851.22.15, 851.22.23 to 851.22.31, 861, 862 and 999.1;

(b) the expiry of an option;

(c) a disposition referred to in section 264.0.1;

(d) a disposition by a taxpayer that was subject to a loss restriction event within 30 days after the time of disposition;

(e) a disposition by a person that, within 30 days after the time of disposition, became or ceased to be exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income;

(f) a disposition to which section 238.1 or the second paragraph of section 424 applies; or

(g) a disposition referred to in section 979.39 or 979.40.

1972, c. 23, s. 224; 1975, c. 22, s. 39; 1984, c. 15, s. 56; 1985, c. 25, s. 40; 1987, c. 67, s. 58; 1995, c. 49, s. 58; 1996, c. 39, s. 64; 2000, c. 5, s. 63; 2004, c. 8, s. 45; 2009, c. 5, s. 80; 2010, c. 25, s. 24; 2015, c. 21, s. 146; 2015, c. 36, s. 14; 2017, c. 1, s. 106; 2020, c. 16, s. 50.

238.1. The rules in the second paragraph apply where

(a) a corporation, trust or partnership, in this section referred to as the "transferor", disposes of a particular capital property, other than depreciable property of a prescribed class, otherwise than in a disposition described in any of paragraphs a to e of section 238;

(b) during the period that begins 30 days before and ends 30 days after the time of disposition, the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor acquires a property, in this section referred to as the "substituted property", that is, or is identical to, the particular capital property; and

(c) at the end of the 30 days following the time of disposition, the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor owns the substituted property.

The rules to which the first paragraph refers are as follows:

(a) the transferor's loss from the disposition is not allowable;

(b) the amount of the transferor's loss from the disposition, determined without reference to this paragraph and sections 237, 240, 241 and 288, is deemed to be a loss of the transferor from a disposition of the particular capital property at the time that is immediately before the first time, after the time of disposition,

i. at which a 30-day period begins throughout which neither the transferor nor a person affiliated with the transferor owns the substituted property, or a property that is identical to the substituted property and that was acquired after the day that is 31 days before the period begins,

ii. at which the substituted property would, if it were owned by the transferor, be deemed under Chapter I of Title I.1 of Book VI or section 999.1 to have been disposed of by the transferor,

iii. that is immediately before the transferor is subject to a loss restriction event,

iv. at which the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor is deemed under Division XII of Chapter IV to have disposed of the substituted property, where the substituted property is a debt or a share of the capital stock of a corporation, or

v. at which the winding-up of the transferor begins, other than a winding-up referred to in section 556, where the transferor is a corporation; and

(c) for the purposes of subparagraph b, where a partnership otherwise ceases to exist at any time after the time of disposition,

i. the partnership is deemed not to have ceased to exist until the time that is immediately after the first time described in subparagraphs i to v of subparagraph b, and

ii. each person who was a member of the partnership immediately before the partnership would, but for this paragraph, have ceased to exist is deemed to remain a member of the partnership, until the time that is immediately after the first time described in subparagraphs i to v of subparagraph b.

2000, c. 5, s. 64; 2004, c. 8, s. 46; 2017, c. 1, s. 107.

238.2. For the purposes of section 238.1,

(a) a right to acquire a property, other than a right, as security only, derived from a hypothec, mortgage, agreement of sale or similar obligation, is deemed to be a property that is identical to the property;

(b) a share of the capital stock of a corporation that is acquired in exchange for another share in a transaction is deemed to be a property that is identical to the other share if

i. Division XIII of Chapter IV or Chapter V or VI of Title IX applies to the transaction, or

ii. the following conditions are met:

(1) Division VI of Chapter IV of Title IX applies to the transaction,

(2) the second paragraph of section 238.1 applied to a prior disposition of the other share, and

(3) none of the times described in any of subparagraphs i to v of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 238.1 has occurred in respect of the prior disposition;

(b.1) a share of the capital stock of a SIFT wind-up corporation in respect of a SIFT wind-up entity is, if the share was acquired before 1 January 2013, deemed to be a property that is identical to an interest in the entity that is an investment in a SIFT wind-up entity;

(c) where section 238.1 applies in respect of the disposition by a person or partnership of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, and after the disposition the corporation is merged with one or more other corporations, otherwise than in a transaction in respect of which paragraph b applies to the share, or is wound up in a winding-up referred to in section 556, the corporation formed on the merger or the parent, within the meaning of that section 556, as the case may be, is deemed to own the share while it is affiliated with the person or partnership; and

(d) where section 238.1 applies to the disposition by a person or partnership of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, and after the disposition the share is redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation, otherwise than in a transaction in respect of which paragraph b or c applies to the share, the person or partnership is deemed to own the share while the corporation is affiliated with the person or partnership.

238.3. Where at a particular time a taxpayer disposes, to a corporation that is affiliated with the taxpayer immediately after the disposition, of a share of a class of the capital stock of the corporation, other than a share that is a distress preferred share within the meaning of section 485, the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer's loss from the disposition is not allowable; and

(b) in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer after the particular time of a share of a class of the capital stock of the corporation owned by the taxpayer immediately after the particular time, the taxpayer shall add the proportion of the amount of the taxpayer's loss from the disposition, determined without reference to this section and sections 237, 240, 241 and 288, that

i. the fair market value, immediately after the particular time, of the share is of

ii. the fair market value, immediately after the particular time, of all shares of the capital stock of the corporation owned by the taxpayer.

2000, c. 5, s. 64.

238.3.1. If all or any portion of the capital loss of the succession of a deceased taxpayer, computed without reference to sections 238.1 and 238.3, from the disposition of a share of the capital stock of a corporation is, because of section 1054, considered to be a capital loss of the deceased taxpayer from the disposition of the share, sections 238.1 and 238.3 apply to the succession in respect of the loss only to the extent that the amount of the loss exceeds the portion of the loss that is determined under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 1054.

238.4. For the application of sections 638.1, 686, 741 to 742.3 and 745 in computing the individual's loss from the disposition of property after having ceased to be resident in Canada, the following rules apply:

(a) the individual is deemed to be a corporation in respect of dividends received by the individual at a particular time that is after the time at which the individual last acquired the property and at which the individual was not resident in Canada; and

(b) each taxable dividend received by the individual at a particular time described in paragraph a is deemed to be a taxable dividend that was received by the individual and that was deductible in computing the individual's taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada under sections 738 to 745 for the taxation year that includes the particular time.

2004, c. 8, s. 47.

240. A loss from the disposition of a debt or of any other right to receive an amount shall not be allowed unless the taxpayer has acquired such debt or right to produce or gain income from a business or property other than exempt income or as consideration for the disposition of capital property to a person with whom he was dealing at arm's length.

1972, c. 23, s. 226.

241. A loss from the disposition of a property shall not be allowed where the disposition was in favour of

(a) a trust governed by a registered retirement income fund, a deferred profit sharing plan, a profit sharing plan, a registered disability savings plan, a tax-free savings account or a first home savings account, under which the taxpayer is a beneficiary or immediately after the disposition becomes a beneficiary; or

(b) a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan under which the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse is an annuitant or becomes, within 60 days after the end of the year, an annuitant.

1977, c. 26, s. 23; 1978, c. 26, s. 40; 1979, c. 18, s. 19; 1991, c. 25, s. 58; 2003, c. 2, s. 71; 2009, c. 15, s. 66; 2023, c. 19, s. 21.

241.0.1. A loss incurred by a taxpayer following the disposition, at a particular time, of a share of the capital stock of a corporation that was at any time a prescribed corporation or a share of the capital stock of a taxable Canadian corporation that was held in a prescribed stock savings plan, or of a property substituted for such share is deemed to be the amount, if any, by which

(a) the loss otherwise determined, exceeds

(b) the amount, if any, by which the amount of prescribed assistance that the taxpayer, or a person on with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, received or is entitled to receive in respect of the share exceeds any loss otherwise determined from the disposition of the share or of the property substituted for the share before the particular time by the taxpayer or the person.

1986, c. 15, s. 53; 1989, c. 77, s. 23; 1995, c. 49, s. 59; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2011, c. 1, s. 27.

241.0.2. A loss incurred by an individual following the disposition, at a particular time, of a class "A" share of the capital stock of the corporation governed by the Act constituting Capital régional et coopératif Desjardins (chapter C-6.1) is deemed to be equal to the amount by which the amount of the individual's loss otherwise determined exceeds the amount by which the total of all amounts each of which is either an amount that the individual or a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length deducted in respect of the share under section 776.1.5.0.11 or the portion of an amount deducted under section 776.41.5 by a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length that can reasonably be attributed to a deduction to which the individual, or a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length, was entitled in respect of the share under section 776.1.5.0.11, exceeds the aggregate of

(a) the amount of tax that the individual is required to pay, where applicable, under section 1129.27.6 following the redemption or purchase of the share; and

(b) the amount of any other loss otherwise determined from the disposition of the share before the particular time by a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length.

2002, c. 9, s. 9; 2019, c. 14, s. 94.

241.0.3. A loss incurred by an individual following the disposition, at a particular time, of a class "B" share of the capital stock of the corporation governed by the Act constituting Capital régional et coopératif Desjardins (chapter C-6.1) is deemed to be equal to the amount determined by the formula

A – (B – C).

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount of the individual's loss otherwise determined in relation to the disposition of the class "B" share;

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

i. an amount that the individual, or a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length, deducted under section 776.1.5.0.15.2 or 776.1.5.0.15.4 in respect of the value of the consideration, taking the form of a share, for which the class "B" share was issued,

ii. the portion of an amount deducted under section 776.41.5 by a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length that can reasonably be attributed to a deduction to which the individual, or a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length, was entitled under section 776.1.5.0.15.2 or 776.1.5.0.15.4 in respect of the value of the consideration referred to in subparagraph i,

iii. an amount that the individual, or a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length, deducted under section 776.1.5.0.11 in respect of the share forming the consideration referred to in subparagraph i, or

iv. the portion of an amount deducted under section 776.41.5 by a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length that can reasonably be attributed to a deduction to which the individual, or a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length, was entitled under section 776.1.5.0.11 in respect of the share forming the consideration referred to in subparagraph i; and

(c) C is the aggregate of

i. the amount of tax that the individual is required to pay, where applicable, under section 1129.27.10.3 following the redemption or purchase of the class "B" share, and

ii. the amount of any loss otherwise determined from the disposition of the class "B" share before the particular time by a person with whom the individual was not dealing at arm's length.

247.2. Where, at any time in a taxation year, an individual owns capital property that is a share of a class of the capital stock of a corporation that, at that time, is a small business corporation and, immediately after that time, ceases to be a small business corporation because a class of the shares of its capital stock or the capital stock of another corporation is listed on a designated stock exchange and the individual makes a valid election under subsection 1 of section 48.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C., 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)) in respect of the share, the individual is deemed, except for the purposes of Division VI of Chapter II of Title II, Division IX of Chapter V of Title III and sections 725.3, 766.3.5 and 766.3.6,

(a) to have disposed of the share at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to the greater of

i. the adjusted cost base to the individual of the share at that time, and

ii. such amount as is designated under subparagraph ii of paragraph c of subsection 1 of section 48.1 of the Income Tax Act in respect of the share, not exceeding the fair market value of the share at that time, and

(b) to have reacquired the share immediately after that time at a cost equal to the proceeds of disposition determined under paragraph a.

CHAPTER II

DEFINITION OF CERTAIN EXPRESSIONS

1972, c. 23.

DIVISION I

DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY

1972, c. 23.

248. For the purposes of this Title, the disposition of property includes, except as expressly otherwise provided,

(a) any transaction or event entitling to proceeds of disposition of the property;

(b) any transaction or event by which,

i. where the property is a share, bond, debenture, bill, hypothecary claim, mortgage, agreement of sale or other similar property, or an interest in it, the property is in whole or in part redeemed, acquired or cancelled,

ii. where the property is a debt or any other right to receive an amount, the debt or other right is settled or cancelled,

iii. where the property is a share, the share is converted because of an amalgamation or merger,

iv. where the property is an option to acquire or dispose of property, the option expires, and

v. a trust, that can reasonably be considered to act as agent or mandatary for all the beneficiaries under the trust with respect to all dealings with all of the trust's property, ceases to act as agent or mandatary for a beneficiary under the trust in respect of any dealing with any of the trust's property, unless the trust is described in any of subparagraphs a to d of the third paragraph of section 647;

(b.1) where the property is an interest in a life insurance policy, a disposition within the meaning of paragraph a of section 966;

(c) any transfer of the property to a trust or, where the property is property of a trust, any transfer of the property to any beneficiary under the trust, except as provided by subparagraphs b and g of the second paragraph; and

(d) where the property is, or is part of, a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust, a payment after 31 December 1999 to the taxpayer from the trust that can reasonably be considered to have been made because of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust, except as provided by subparagraphs d and e of the second paragraph.

The disposition of property does not include

(a) any transfer of the property as a consequence of which there is no change in the beneficial ownership of the property, except where the transfer is

i. from a person or a partnership to a trust for the benefit of the person or the partnership,

ii. from a trust to a beneficiary under the trust, or

iii. from one trust maintained for the benefit of one or more beneficiaries under the trust to another trust maintained for the benefit of the same beneficiaries;

(b) any transfer of the property as a consequence of which there is no change in the beneficial ownership of the property, where

i. the transferor and the transferee are trusts that are, at the time of the transfer, resident in Canada,

ii. (subparagraph repealed);

iii. the transferee does not receive the property as consideration for the transferee's right as a beneficiary under the transferor trust,

iv. the transferee holds no property immediately before the transfer, other than property the cost of which is not included, for the purposes of this Part, in computing a balance of undeducted outlays, expenses or other amounts in respect of the transferee,

v. the transferee is not a transferee who, in relation to the transfer, makes a valid election under subparagraph v of paragraph f of the definition of "disposition" in subsection 1 of section 248 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in order to avoid the application of that paragraph f;

vi. if the transferor is an amateur athlete trust, a cemetery care trust, an employee trust, a trust referred to in section 851.25, a segregated fund trust referred to in section 851.2, a trust described in paragraph c.4 of section 998 or a trust governed by an eligible funeral arrangement, a profit sharing plan, a registered education savings plan, a registered disability savings plan, a registered supplementary unemployment benefit plan or a tax-free savings account, the transferee is the same type of trust, and

vii. the transfer results, or is part of a series of transactions or events that results, in the transferor ceasing to exist and, immediately before the time of the transfer or the beginning of that series, as the case may be, the transferee never held any property or held only property having a nominal value;

(c) (subparagraph repealed);

(d) where the property is part of a capital interest of a taxpayer in a trust, other than a personal trust or a trust prescribed for the purposes of section 688, that is described by reference to units issued by the trust, a payment after 31 December 1999 from the trust in respect of the capital interest, where the number of units in the trust that are owned by the taxpayer is not reduced because of the payment;

(e) where the property is a taxpayer's capital interest in a trust, a payment to the taxpayer after 31 December 1999 in respect of the capital interest to the extent that the payment

i. is out of the income of the trust, determined without reference to paragraph a of section 657 and section 657.1, for a taxation year or out of the capital gains of the trust for the year, if the payment was made in the year or the right to the payment was acquired by the taxpayer in the year, or

ii. is in respect of an amount designated in respect of the taxpayer by the trust under section 667;

(f) any transfer of the property for the purpose only of securing a debt or a loan, or any transfer by a creditor for the purpose only of returning property that has been used as security for a debt or a loan;

(g) any transfer of the property to a trust as a consequence of which there is no change in the beneficial ownership of the property, where the main purpose of the transfer is

i. to effect payment under a debt or loan,

ii. to provide assurance that an absolute or contingent obligation of the transferor will be satisfied, or

iii. to facilitate either the provision of compensation or the enforcement of a penalty, in the event that an absolute or contingent obligation of the transferor is not satisfied;

(h) any issue of a bond, debenture, bill, hypothecary claim or mortgage;

(i) any issue by a corporation of a share of its capital stock, or any other transaction that, but for this subparagraph, would be a disposition by a corporation of a share of its capital stock;

(i.1) any redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share of the capital stock of a corporation (in this subparagraph referred to as the "issuing corporation") or of a right to acquire such a share, which share or which right being referred to in this subparagraph as the "security", held by another corporation (in this subparagraph referred to as the "disposing corporation"), if

i. the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurs as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations, including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation, to form a new corporation,

ii. the merger or combination

(1) is an amalgamation, within the meaning of subsections 1 and 2 of section 544, to which section 550.9 does not apply,

(2) is an amalgamation, within the meaning of subsections 1 and 2 of section 544, to which section 550.9 applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described in section 550.9 as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively,

(3) is a foreign merger, within the meaning of section 555.0.1, or

(4) would be a foreign merger, within the meaning of section 555.0.1, if subparagraph ii of paragraph c of that section were read without reference to "resident in a country other than Canada", and

iii. either

(1) the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security, or

(2) in the case where the merger or combination is described in subparagraph 3 or 4 of subparagraph ii, the disposing corporation receives no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the merger or combination, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the merger or combination, becomes property of the new corporation; and

(j) any transfer of a property governed by civil law which does not entail a change in the right of the person who has the full ownership thereof, although such property be subject to a servitude, or in the right of the usufructuary, the emphyteutic lessee, an institute in a substitution or a beneficiary in a trust.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subparagraph v of paragraph f of the definition of "disposition" in subsection 1 of section 248 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under subparagraph v of subparagraph b of the second paragraph before 20 December 2006.

1972, c. 23, s. 230; 1984, c. 15, s. 58; 1996, c. 39, s. 65; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2003, c. 2, s. 77; 2004, c. 8, s. 48; 2005, c. 1, s. 78; 2006, c. 13, s. 31; 2009, c. 5, s. 83; 2009, c. 15, s. 67; 2017, c. 1, s. 108.

248.1. A redemption, an acquisition or a cancellation, at a particular time after 31 December 1971 and before 24 December 1998, of a share of the capital stock of a corporation (in this section referred to as the "issuing corporation") or of a right to acquire a share, which share or which right being referred to in this section as the "security", held by another corporation (in this section referred to as the "disposing corporation"), is not a disposition, within the meaning of section 248 as it read in respect of transactions and events that occurred at the particular time, if

(a) the redemption, acquisition or cancellation occurred as part of a merger or combination of two or more corporations, including the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation, to form a new corporation;

(b) the merger or combination

i. is an amalgamation, within the meaning of subsections 1 and 2 of section 544 as they read at the particular time, to which section 550.9 if in force, and as it read, at the particular time, does not apply,

ii. is an amalgamation, within the meaning of subsections 1 and 2 of section 544 as they read at the particular time, to which section 550.9 if in force, and as it read, at the particular time, applies, if the issuing corporation and the disposing corporation are described in section 550.9, if in force, and as it read, at the particular time, as the parent and the subsidiary, respectively,

iii. occurred before 13 November 1981 and is a merger of corporations that is described in section 555, as it read in respect of the merger or combination, or

iv. occurred after 12 November 1981 and

(1) is a foreign merger, within the meaning of section 555.0.1 as it read in respect of the merger or combination, or

(2) the conditions set out in the second paragraph are met; and

(c) either

i. the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security, or

ii. in the case where the merger or combination is described in subparagraph iv of subparagraph b, the disposing corporation received no consideration for the security other than property that was, immediately before the merger or combination, owned by the issuing corporation and that, on the merger or combination, became property of the new corporation.

The conditions to which subparagraph 2 of subparagraph iv of subparagraph b of the first paragraph refers are the following:

(a) the merger or combination is not a foreign merger, within the meaning of section 555.0.1, as it read in respect of the merger or combination;

(b) section 555.0.1, as it read in respect of the merger or combination, contained a subparagraph ii in its paragraph c; and

(c) the merger or combination would be a foreign merger, within the meaning of section 555.0.1, as it read in respect of the merger or combination, if subparagraph ii of paragraph c of that section were read as follows:

"ii. another foreign corporation (in this section referred to as the "parent corporation"), if, immediately after the merger, the new foreign corporation was controlled by the parent corporation."

2009, c. 5, s. 84.

DIVISION II

CAPITAL PROPERTY

1972, c. 23.

249. For the purposes of this Title, capital property means any depreciable property of the taxpayer and his other property on the occasion of the disposition of which any gain or loss would be a capital gain or a capital loss for him.

1972, c. 23, s. 231.

250. (Repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 232; 1990, c. 59, s. 117; 2003, c. 2, s. 78; 2005, c. 1, s. 79; 2019, c. 14, s. 96.

DIVISION II.1

DEEMED CAPITAL PROPERTY

1978, c. 26, s. 41.

250.1. Subject to section 250.3, if a Canadian security is disposed of by a taxpayer in a taxation year and the taxpayer makes a valid election under subsection 4 of section 39 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 as a consequence of the disposition, every Canadian security owned by the taxpayer in the year or any subsequent taxation year is deemed to be a capital property owned by the taxpayer and every disposition by the taxpayer of any such Canadian security is deemed to be a disposition of a capital property.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 4 of section 39 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

1978, c. 26, s. 41; 1984, c. 15, s. 59; 2001, c. 51, s. 31; 2009, c. 5, s. 85.

250.1.1. For the purpose of computing the income of a taxpayer who is a member of a partnership, sections 250.1 and 250.3 apply as if every Canadian security owned by the partnership were owned by the taxpayer, and every Canadian security disposed of by the partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership were disposed of by the taxpayer at the end of that fiscal period.

1993, c. 16, s. 111; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

250.2. In this division, “Canadian security” means a security, other than a prescribed security, that is a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada, a unit of a mutual fund trust, or a bond, debenture, bill, note, hypothecary claim, mortgage or similar obligation issued by a person resident in Canada.

1978, c. 26, s. 41; 1982, c. 5, s. 56; 1985, c. 25, s. 43; 1987, c. 67, s. 63; 1996, c. 39, s. 66; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2005, c. 1, s. 80.

250.3. The first paragraph of section 250.1 does not apply to a disposition of a Canadian security by a taxpayer, other than a mutual fund corporation or a mutual fund trust, who, at the time of the disposition, is

(a) a trader or dealer in securities;

(b) a financial institution, within the meaning assigned by section 851.22.1;

(c) (paragraph repealed);

(d) (paragraph repealed);

(e) (paragraph repealed);

(f) a corporation whose principal business is the lending of money or the purchasing of debt obligations, or a combination thereof; or

(g) a person not resident in Canada.

250.4. Where a person disposes of all or substantially all of the assets used in a qualified business carried on by him to a corporation for consideration that includes shares of the corporation, the shares are deemed to be capital property of that person.

1990, c. 59, s. 118; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

DIVISION II.2

SPECIFIED PROPERTY

1996, c. 39, s. 68.

250.5. In this Title, specified property of a taxpayer is capital property of the taxpayer that is

(a) a share;

(b) an interest in a partnership;

(c) a capital interest in a trust; or

(d) an option to acquire a property described in any of paragraphs a to c or an option to acquire such an option.

1996, c. 39, s. 68; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

DIVISION III

PROCEEDS OF DISPOSITION

1972, c. 23.

251. The proceeds of disposition of property include, for the purposes of this Title, the same elements as the proceeds of disposition of property referred to in subparagraph f of the first paragraph of section 93 and any amount deemed not to be a dividend under paragraph b of section 568; it does not include an amount deemed to be a dividend paid to a taxpayer under sections 517.1 to 517.3.1 or, if the taxpayer is a partnership, to a member of the partnership, an amount deemed to be a capital gain under section 517.5.5, an amount deemed to be a dividend received under section 508 to the extent that it refers to a dividend deemed paid under sections 505 and 506, except the portion of that amount that is deemed to be included in the proceeds of disposition of the share under paragraph b of section 308.1 or deemed not to be a dividend under paragraph b of section 568, or a prescribed amount.

1972, c. 23, s. 233; 1975, c. 22, s. 41; 1978, c. 26, s. 42; 1982, c. 5, s. 57; 1984, c. 15, s. 61; 1985, c. 25, s. 44; 1987, c. 67, s. 64; 2001, c. 53, s. 260; 2017, c. 1, s. 109; 2019, c. 14, s. 97; 2021, c. 14, s. 33.

CHAPTER II.1

CAPITAL GAINS REDUCTION

1996, c. 39, s. 69.

251.1. In this chapter,

"exempt capital gains balance" of an individual for a taxation year that ends before 1 January 2005 in respect of a flow-through entity means the amount determined by the formula

$$A - B - C - D;$$

"flow-through entity" means

(a) a mutual fund trust;

(b) a segregated fund trust referred to in section 851.2;

(c) a trust all or substantially all of the properties of which consist of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, where the trust was established pursuant to an agreement between two or more shareholders of the corporation and one of the main purposes of the trust is to provide for the exercise of voting rights in respect of those shares pursuant to that agreement;

(d) a trust established exclusively for the benefit of one or more persons each of whom was, at the time the trust was created, either a person from whom the trust received property or a creditor of that person, where one of the main purposes of the trust is to secure the payments required to be made by or on behalf of that person to such creditor;

(e) a trust maintained primarily for the benefit of employees of a corporation or two or more corporations that do not deal at arm's length with each other, where one of the main purposes of the trust is to hold interests in shares of the capital stock of the corporation or corporations, as the case may be, or any corporation not dealing at arm's length therewith;

(f) a trust governed by a profit sharing plan;

(g) a partnership;

(h) an investment corporation;

(i) a mortgage investment corporation; and

(j) a mutual fund corporation.

For the purposes of the formula in the definition of "exempt capital gains balance" in the first paragraph,

(a) A is

i. if the entity is a trust referred to in any of paragraphs b to f of the definition of "flow-through entity" in the first paragraph, the amount determined under subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 726.9.2 in respect of the individual's interest or interests therein, and

ii. in any other case, the lesser of

(1) 4/3 of the aggregate of the taxable capital gains that resulted from elections made under section 726.9.2 in respect of the individual's interests in or shares of the capital stock of the entity, and

(2) the amount that would be determined under subparagraph 1 if this Act were read without reference to section 726.9.3 and the amount designated in the election in respect of each interest or share were equal to the amount by which the fair market value of the interest or share at the end of 22 February 1994 exceeds the portion of the amount designated in the election in respect of that interest or share that exceeds 11/10 of its fair market value at that time;

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's capital gain for a preceding taxation year, determined without reference to section 251.2, from the disposition of an interest in or a share of the capital stock of the entity was reduced under that section;

(c) C is

i. if the entity is a trust described in any of paragraphs a and c to e of the definition of "flow-through entity" in the first paragraph, the aggregate of

(1) 4/3 of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's taxable capital gain, determined without reference to this chapter, for a preceding taxation year that ended before 28 February 2000 and that resulted from a designation made under section 668 by the trust, was reduced under section 251.3,

(2) 3/2 of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's taxable capital gain, determined without reference to this chapter, for a preceding taxation year that began after 27 February 2000 and ended before 18 October 2000 and that resulted from a designation made under section 668 by the trust, was reduced under section 251.3,

(3) the amount claimed by the individual under paragraph a of section 668.5 or paragraph b of section 668.8 for a preceding taxation year, and

(4) twice the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's taxable capital gain, determined without reference to this chapter, for a preceding taxation year that began after 17 October 2000 and that resulted from a designation made under section 668 by the trust, was reduced under section 251.3,

ii. if the entity is a partnership, the aggregate of

(1) 4/3 of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's share of the partnership's taxable capital gains, determined without reference to this chapter, for its fiscal period that ended before 28 February 2000 and in a preceding taxation year, was reduced under section 251.4,

(2) 4/3 of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's share of the partnership's income from a business, determined without reference to this chapter, for its fiscal period that ended before 28 February 2000 and in a preceding taxation year, was reduced under section 251.5,

(3) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the product obtained by multiplying the reciprocal of the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the partnership for its fiscal period that ended in a preceding taxation year and includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or began after 28 February 2000 and ended before 17 October 2000, by the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's share of the partnership's taxable capital gains, determined without reference to this chapter, for its fiscal period, was reduced under section 251.4,

(4) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the product obtained by multiplying the reciprocal of the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the partnership for its fiscal period that ended in a preceding taxation year and includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or began after 28 February 2000 and ended before 17 October 2000, by the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's share of the partnership's income from a business, determined without reference to this chapter, for its fiscal period, was reduced under section 251.5,

(5) twice the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's share of the partnership's taxable capital gains, determined without reference to this chapter, for its fiscal period that began after 17 October 2000 and ended in a preceding taxation year, was reduced under section 251.4, and

(6) twice the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the individual's share of the partnership's income from a business, determined without reference to this chapter, for its fiscal period that began after 17 October 2000 and ended in a preceding taxation year, was reduced under section 251.5, and

iii. in any other case, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which the aggregate of the individual's capital gains otherwise determined under sections 851.16, 851.21, 860, 1106, 1113 and 1116 for a preceding taxation year in respect of the entity was reduced under section 251.6; and

(d) D is

i. if the entity is a trust described in any of paragraphs c to f of the definition of "flow-through entity" in the first paragraph, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included before the year in the cost to the individual of a property under section 688.2 or paragraph c of section 858 because of the individual's exempt capital gains balance in respect of the entity, and

ii. in any other case, nil.

1996, c. 39, s. 69; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 67; 2003, c. 2, s. 79.

251.2. Where at any time after 22 February 1994 an individual disposes of an interest in or a share of the capital stock of a flow-through entity, the individual's capital gain otherwise determined for a taxation year from the disposition shall be reduced by such amount as the individual claims, not exceeding the amount determined by the formula

A − B − C.

For the purposes of the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the exempt capital gains balance of the individual for the year in respect of the entity;

(b) B is

i. where the entity made a designation under section 668 in respect of the individual for the year, twice the amount claimed under section 251.3 by the individual for the year in respect of the entity,

ii. where the entity is a partnership, twice the aggregate of the amounts claimed under section 251.4 by the individual for the year in respect of the entity, and

iii. in any other case, the amount claimed under section 251.6 by the individual for the year in respect of the entity; and

(c) C is the aggregate of all reductions under this section in the individual's capital gains otherwise determined for the year from the disposition of other interests in or shares of the capital stock of the entity.

1996, c. 39, s. 69; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2003, c. 2, s. 80; 2019, c. 14, s. 98.

251.3. The taxable capital gain otherwise determined under section 668 of an individual for a taxation year as a result of a designation made under that section by a flow-through entity shall be reduced by such amount as the individual claims, not exceeding 1/2 of the individual's exempt capital gains balance for the year in respect of the entity.

1996, c. 39, s. 69; 2003, c. 2, s. 81; 2019, c. 14, s. 99.

251.4. An individual's share otherwise determined for a taxation year of a taxable capital gain of a partnership from the disposition of a property, other than property acquired by the partnership after 22 February 1994 in a transfer to which the second paragraph of section 614 applied, for its fiscal period that ends in the year and after 22 February 1994 shall be reduced by such amount as the individual claims, not exceeding the amount by which 1/2 of the individual's exempt capital gains balance for the year in respect of the partnership exceeds the aggregate of all amounts claimed by the individual under this section in respect of other taxable capital gains of the partnership for that fiscal period.

1996, c. 39, s. 69; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2003, c. 2, s. 82; 2019, c. 14, s. 100.

251.5. (Repealed).

1996, c. 39, s. 69; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2003, c. 2, s. 83; 2019, c. 14, s. 101.

251.5.1. (Repealed).

2003, c. 2, s. 84; 2019, c. 14, s. 101.

251.6. The aggregate of capital gains otherwise determined under sections 851.16, 851.21, 860, 1106, 1113 and 1116 of an individual for a taxation year as a result of one or more elections, allocations or designations made after 22 February 1994 by a flow-through entity shall be reduced by such amount as the individual claims, not exceeding the individual's exempt capital gains balance for the year in respect of the entity.

1996, c. 39, s. 69.

251.7. Notwithstanding section 251.1, where at any time an individual ceases to be a member or shareholder of, or a beneficiary under, a flow-through entity, the exempt capital gains balance of the individual in respect of the entity for each taxation year that begins after that time is deemed to be nil.

1996, c. 39, s. 69.

CHAPTER III

COMPUTATION OF ADJUSTED COST BASE

1972, c. 23.

DIVISION I

GENERAL RULES

1972, c. 23.

252. The adjusted cost base of any property at a particular time, where such property is depreciable property of the taxpayer, is the capital cost to the taxpayer of such property as of that time.

In all other cases, such cost shall be calculated in accordance with this chapter.

1972, c. 23, s. 234.

252.1. Where any property of the taxpayer is property that was reacquired by the taxpayer after having been previously disposed of by the taxpayer, no adjustment to the cost to the taxpayer of the property that was required to be made under this chapter before its reacquisition by the taxpayer shall be made under this chapter to the cost to the taxpayer of the property as reacquired property of the taxpayer.

The first paragraph does not apply in respect of property that is an interest in or a share of the capital stock of a flow-through entity within the meaning assigned by section 251.1 that was last reacquired by the taxpayer as a result of an election under section 726.9.2.

1996, c. 39, s. 70.

253. In no case shall the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of any property at any time be less than zero.

1972, c. 23, s. 235; 1996, c. 39, s. 71.

254. The adjusted cost base of the disposed part of a property, immediately before its disposition, is the portion of the adjusted cost base of the whole property which may reasonably be attributed to such part.

1972, c. 23, s. 236.

254.1. For the purposes of section 254 and Divisions II to IV, other than section 259, where a taxpayer encumbers land with a servitude in circumstances where section 710.0.2 or 752.0.10.3.2 applies, the following rules apply:

(a) the establishment of the servitude is deemed to be a disposition under section 254 of a portion of the land so encumbered;

(b) the portion of the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the land immediately before the disposition that can reasonably be considered to be attributable to the servitude is deemed to be equal to the amount determined by the formula

A × B / C; and

(c) the cost to the taxpayer of the land shall be reduced at the time of the disposition by the amount determined under subparagraph b.

In the formula provided for in subparagraph b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the land immediately before the disposition;

(b) B is the amount determined under section 710.0.2 or 752.0.10.3.2 in respect of the disposition; and

(c) C is the fair market value of the land immediately before the disposition.

2003, c. 2, s. 85; 2006, c. 13, s. 32; 2019, c. 14, s. 102.

254.1.1. For the purposes of section 254 and Divisions II to IV, other than section 259, if an individual encumbers a property that is the individual's principal residence or a qualified farm or fishing property within the meaning of section 726.6 with a real servitude, the following rules apply:

(a) the establishment of the servitude is deemed to be a disposition under section 254 of a portion of the property so encumbered; and

(b) the portion of the adjusted cost base to the individual of the property immediately before the disposition that can reasonably be considered to be attributable to the servitude is deemed to be equal to zero.

2006, c. 13, s. 33; 2007, c. 12, s. 44; 2017, c. 29, s. 56.

254.2. Notwithstanding section 254, where part of a capital interest of a taxpayer in a trust would, but for subparagraphs d and e of the second paragraph of section 248, be disposed of solely because of the satisfaction of a right to enforce payment of an amount by the trust, no part of the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust shall be allocated to that part of the capital interest.

2003, c. 2, s. 85.

DIVISION II

AMOUNTS TO BE ADDED

1972, c. 23.

255. The taxpayer must, in computing the adjusted cost base of any property at a particular time, add to the cost of such property the following amounts:

MISCELLANEOUS CASES

(a) the amount deemed to be a gain, under section 261;

(b) where the property is substituted property, within the meaning of subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 237, of the taxpayer, the amount by which the amount of the loss that was, because of the acquisition by the taxpayer of the property, a non-allowable loss referred to in that section 237 from a disposition of a property by a taxpayer exceeds, where the property disposed of was a share of the capital stock of a corporation, the amount that would, but for section 237, be deducted under section 741, 741.2 or 742 in computing the loss of any taxpayer from the disposition of the share;

(c) where the property is an indemnity, within the meaning of sections 469 to 479, or is deemed to be such an indemnity under those sections, the amount to be added under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 471;

*(c.1)* where the taxpayer is a taxable Canadian corporation and the property was disposed of by another taxable Canadian corporation to the taxpayer in circumstances such that paragraph *f.*1 does not apply to increase the adjusted cost base to the other corporation of shares of the capital stock of the taxpayer and the capital loss from the disposition was not allowable under section 239, as it read, before its repeal, in respect of that disposition, or 264.0.1 or is deemed under paragraph a of section 535, as it read, before its repeal, in respect of that disposition, to be nil, the amount that would otherwise be the capital loss from the disposition;

*(c.1.1)* where the property was disposed of by a person, other than a person not resident in Canada or a person exempt from tax under this Part on the person's taxable income, or by an eligible Canadian partnership, within the meaning of section 485, to the taxpayer in circumstances such that paragraph *c.*1 does not apply to increase the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the property, paragraph *f.*1 does not apply to increase the adjusted cost base to that person of shares of the capital stock of the taxpayer and the capital loss from the disposition was not allowable under section 264.0.1 or deemed under paragraph a of section 535, as it read, before its repeal, in respect of that disposition, to be nil, the amount that would otherwise be the capital loss from the disposition;

(c.2) the reasonable costs incurred by the taxpayer before the particular time of surveying or valuing the property for the purpose of its acquisition or disposition to the extent that those costs are not otherwise deducted by the taxpayer in computing his income for any taxation year or attributable to any other property;

(c.3) where the property is immovable property of the taxpayer, any amount required by paragraph b of section 277.2 to be added;

(c.4) where the property is an interest in or a share of the capital stock of a flow-through entity within the meaning assigned by section 251.1 and the time is after 31 December 2004, an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the amount that would, if the definition of "exempt capital gains balance" in section 251.1 were read without reference to "that ends before 1 January 2005", be the taxpayer's exempt capital gains balance in respect of the entity for the taxpayer's taxation year 2005 by the proportion that the fair market value at that time of the property is of the fair market value at that time of all the taxpayer's interests in or shares of the capital stock of the entity;

(c.5) any amount required under paragraph d of section 259, paragraph b of any of sections 259.1 to 259.3 and 296.1, subparagraph b.2 of the first paragraph of section 301, subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 543.2 or paragraph b of section 553.2 to be added;

(c.6) where the property is an interest in, or a share of the capital stock of, a flow-through entity described in any of paragraphs a, b, e and g to j of the definition of "flow-through entity" in the first paragraph of section 251.1, the time is before 1 January 2005 and immediately after that time the taxpayer disposed of the aggregate of the taxpayer's interests in, and shares of the capital stock of, the entity, an amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the amount by which the taxpayer's exempt capital gains balance, within the meaning of the first paragraph of section 251.1, in relation to the entity for the taxpayer's taxation year that includes that time exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount by which a capital gain is reduced under the provisions of Chapter II.1 for the year because of the taxpayer's exempt capital gains balance in relation to the entity or, subject to section 255.1, twice an amount by which a taxable capital gain, or the income from a business, is reduced under the provisions of that chapter for the year because of the taxpayer's exempt capital gains balance in relation to the entity, by the proportion that the fair market value at that time of the property is of the fair market value at that time of the aggregate of the taxpayer's interests in, and shares of the capital stock of, the entity;

(c.7) where the property was acquired under a derivative forward agreement, any amount that must be included in respect of the property under subparagraph i of paragraph z.7 of section 87 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year;

(c.8) where the property is disposed of under a derivative forward agreement, any amount that must be included in respect of the property under subparagraph ii of paragraph z.7 of section 87 in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year that includes the particular time;

SHARES OF A CORPORATION

(d) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada, the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of any dividend that is deemed to have been received by the taxpayer under section 504 before that time exceeds the portion of that aggregate that relates to dividends in respect of which the taxpayer may deduct an amount under section 738 in computing the taxpayer's taxable income, except the portion of the dividends that, if paid as a separate dividend, would not be subject to section 308.1 because the amount of the separate dividend would not exceed the amount of the income earned or realized by any corporation after 31 December 1971 and before the safe-income determination time, in relation to the transaction or event or series of transactions or events as part of which the dividend is received, that can reasonably be considered to contribute to the capital gain that would have been realized on a disposition at fair market value of the share on which the dividend was received, if the disposition had occurred immediately before the dividend was paid;

(d.1) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, the amount of any dividend deemed by paragraph c.1 of section 785.1 to have been received in respect of the share by the taxpayer before that time and while the taxpayer was resident in Canada;

(e) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation and the taxpayer, after 31 December 1971, makes a contribution of capital to the corporation otherwise than by way of a loan, by way of a disposition of shares of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer to which section 540 applies or, subject to section 256, by way of a disposition of property in respect of which section 518 or 529 applies, that proportion of such contribution as cannot reasonably be regarded as a benefit conferred by the taxpayer on a person, other than the corporation, who was related to the taxpayer, that

i. the amount that may reasonably be regarded as the increase, as the result of such contribution of capital, in the fair market value of such share, is of

ii. the amount that may reasonably be regarded as the increase, as the result of such contribution of capital, in the fair market value of all the shares of the capital stock of such corporation owned by the taxpayer immediately after the contribution of capital;

(e.1) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation of which the taxpayer was, at any time, a specified shareholder, any expense incurred by the taxpayer in respect of land or a building of the corporation that was not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year commencing before that time by reason of section 135.4 or 164;

(f) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, the amount of the benefit that, in respect of the acquisition of the property by the taxpayer, is deemed by Division VI of Chapter II of Title II to have been received in any taxation year beginning before the particular time and ending after 31 December 1971 by the taxpayer or by a person that did not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer or, if the share was acquired after 27 February 2000, the amount of the benefit that would have been so deemed to have been received if that Division VI were applied without reference to sections 49.2 and 58.0.1, as the latter section read before being repealed;

(f.1) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, any amount required by paragraph b of section 238.3, or paragraph b of section 535, as it read, before its repeal, in respect of the disposition of that share, to be added;

(g) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, any amount required by Chapter IV of Title X to be added;

(g.1) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation, any amount required by subparagraph f of the second paragraph of section 832.23 to be added;

BOND AND SIMILAR OBLIGATION

(h) the excess of the principal amount of a bond, debenture, bill, hypothecary claim, mortgage or similar obligation over the amount for which it has been issued, if such excess must be included, under sections 122 to 125, in computing the income of the taxpayer for a taxation year beginning before such particular time;

(h.0.0.1) where the property is a particular commercial obligation, within the meaning assigned by section 485, payable to the taxpayer as consideration for the settlement or extinguishment of another commercial obligation payable to the taxpayer and the taxpayer's loss from the disposition of the other obligation was reduced because of section 264.0.2, the proportion of the reduction that the principal amount of the particular obligation is of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the principal amount of a commercial obligation payable to the taxpayer as consideration for the settlement or extinguishment of that other obligation;

INDEXED DEBT OBLIGATIONS

(h.0.1*)* where the property is an indexed debt obligation, the amount referred to in paragraph a of section 125.0.1 in respect of the obligation and required to be included in computing the income of the taxpayer for a taxation year beginning before the particular time;

OFFSHORE INVESTMENT FUND PROPERTY

(h.1*)* where the property is an offshore investment fund property within the meaning of section 597.1,

i. any amount included in respect of the property by virtue of section 597.4 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year commencing before that time, or

ii. where the taxpayer is a controlled foreign affiliate, within the meaning of section 572, of a person resident in Canada, the amount prescribed;

PARTNERSHIP

(i) where the property is an interest in a partnership,

i. an amount in respect of each fiscal period of the partnership ending after 31 December 1971 and before the particular time, equal to the taxpayer's share, other than a share under an agreement referred to in section 608, of the income of the partnership from any source for that fiscal period, computed as if this Part were construed without reference to

(1) sections 231.2 and 231.2.1, the fraction "1/2" in section 105, as it applied to a fiscal period of the partnership ending before 1 April 1977, and without reference to that or another fraction in sections 107, 231, 231.1, as it read before being repealed, and 265,

(1.1) the second and third paragraphs of section 232 in respect of a property described in that third paragraph that is not the subject of a gifting arrangement, within the meaning of the first paragraph of section 1079.1, nor a tax shelter,

(2) the reference to the fraction and the letter C in the formula provided for in the first paragraph of section 105.2, and

(3) paragraphs l and z.4 of section 87, sections 89 to 91, 144, 144.1 and 145, paragraph j of section 157, as it read before being struck out, paragraph b of each of sections 200 and 201, Division XV of Chapter IV, section 425, paragraphs g and h of section 489, as they read before being struck out, the second paragraph of section 497, and the provisions of the Act respecting the application of the Taxation Act (S.C. 1972, c. 24), as they read before their repeal, in respect of income from the operation of new mines,

ii. the share of the taxpayer in any capital dividend and any life insurance capital dividend received by the partnership before the particular time in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation while the partnership owned such share,

iii. the share of the taxpayer in the amount by which any proceeds of a life insurance policy received by the partnership after 31 December 1971 and before the particular time by reason of the death of any person whose life was insured under the policy exceed the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

(1) the adjusted cost basis (in this subparagraph iii having the meaning assigned by sections 976 and 976.1), immediately before the death, of the policy to the partnership, if the death occurs before 22 March 2016, or of the policyholder's interest in the policy, if the death occurs after 21 March 2016,

(2) if the death occurs after 21 March 2016, the amount by which the fair market value of consideration given in respect of a disposition of an interest in the policy by a policyholder (other than a taxable Canadian corporation) after 31 December 1999 and before 22 March 2016 exceeds the greater of the amount determined under subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 971, in respect of the disposition and the adjusted cost basis to the policyholder of the interest immediately before the disposition, or

(3) if the death occurs after 21 March 2016, the amount by which the amount by which the lesser of the fair market value of consideration given in respect of a disposition, in respect of which section 971 applies, of an interest in the policy by a policyholder (other than a taxable Canadian corporation) after 31 December 1999 and before 22 March 2016 and the adjusted cost basis to the policyholder of the interest immediately before the disposition exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 971, in respect of the disposition, exceeds the absolute value of the negative amount, if any, that would be, in the absence of section 7.5, the adjusted cost basis, immediately before the death, of the interest in the policy,

iv. where the taxpayer, after 31 December 1971, made a contribution of capital to the partnership otherwise than by way of a loan, that portion of such contribution as cannot reasonably be regarded as a benefit conferred on any other member of the partnership who was related to the taxpayer, iv.1. any amount, in respect of a particular amount described in section 486 or a specified amount described in section 486.1, that is paid by the taxpayer to the partnership, to the extent that the amount paid is not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income,

v. the value, at the time of the taxpayer's death of the rights or property referred to in section 429 in respect of a partnership interest held by him immediately before his death, other than an interest referred to in section 612, where the particular time is immediately before the taxpayer's death and the taxpayer was at the particular time a member of the partnership, v.1. any amount deemed by section 261.1 to be a gain of the taxpayer,

vi. (subparagraph repealed),

vii. any amount deemed by paragraph c of section 618 or section 642 to be a gain of the taxpayer, vii.1. a share of the taxpayer's Canadian development expense or Canadian oil and gas property expense that was deducted at or before the particular time in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest because of subparagraph ii of paragraph l of section 257 and in respect of which the taxpayer has elected under paragraph d of section 408 or paragraph b of section 418.2, as the case may be,

viii. an amount deemed, before the particular time, by section 600.1, to be an amount referred to in paragraph b of section 399, in subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 412, in paragraph c of the said section 412, in subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 418.6 or in paragraph c of the said section 418.6 in respect of the taxpayer, viii.1. any amount deemed, before that time, under section 330.1 to be proceeds of disposition receivable by the taxpayer in respect of the disposition of a foreign resource property,

ix. the amount by which the taxpayer's share of the amount of any assistance or benefit that the partnership has received or has become entitled to receive after 31 December 1971 and before the particular time from a government, municipality or other public authority, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from royalty or tax, investment allowance or any other form of assistance or benefit, in respect of or related to a Canadian resource property or an exploration or development expense incurred in Canada, exceeds such part of that share of the assistance or benefit as has been repaid before that time by the taxpayer pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or any part of that share of that assistance or benefit,

x. any amount required by sections 614 to 617 to be added before that particular time in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest in the partnership, xi. where the taxpayer's share of any income or loss of the partnership was, at any time, 10% or more, any expense incurred by the taxpayer in respect of land or a building of the partnership that was not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year commencing before that time by reason of section 135.4 or 164, and

xii. any amount required by subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.9.6 to be added at that time in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest;

TRUST

(j) where the property is a capital interest in a trust, any amount that is included under section 580 or 582 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ends at or before the particular time, in respect of that interest, or that would have been so required to have been included for such a taxation year but for sections 316.1, 456 to 458, 462.1 to 462.24.1 and 466 to 467.1;

(j.1) where the property is an interest in a segregated fund trust referred to in section 851.2,

i. each amount deemed by section 851.3 to be an amount payable to the taxpayer before the particular time in respect of that interest,

ii. each amount required by section 851.12 to be added before the particular time in respect of that interest,

iii. each amount in respect of that interest that is a capital gain deemed to have been allocated under section 851.21 to the taxpayer before the particular time, and

iv. each amount in respect of that interest that before the particular time was deemed under section 851.16 to have been a capital gain of the taxpayer;

(j.2) where the property is a unit in a mutual fund trust, any amount required by section 1121.3 to be added in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the unit;

(j.3) where the property is a unit of a mutual fund trust, the amount of the benefit that, in respect of the acquisition of the property by the taxpayer, is deemed by Division VI of Chapter II of Title II to have been received in any taxation year beginning before the particular time by the taxpayer or by a person that did not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer or, if the unit was acquired after 27 February 2000, the amount of the benefit that would have been so deemed to have been received if that Division VI were applied without reference to section 58.0.1, as it read before being repealed;

(k) where the property is land of the taxpayer, any amount paid after 31 December 1971 and before the particular time by the taxpayer or by another taxpayer in respect of whom the taxpayer was a person, corporation or partnership described in subparagraph ii of paragraph c of section 165, pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest on debt relating to the acquisition of land, within the meaning of paragraph c of section 165, or property taxes, not including an income or profits taxes or taxes imposed by reference to the transfer of property, paid by the taxpayer in respect of the property to a province or to a Canadian municipality, to the extent that the amount

i. was not deductible by reason of section 164 in computing the taxpayer's income from the land or from a business for any taxation year beginning before that time, or

ii. was not deductible by reason of section 164 in computing the income of the other taxpayer if the amount was not included in or added to the cost to the other taxpayer of any property otherwise than by reason of paragraph e.1 or subparagraph xi of paragraph i;

(l) where the property is land used in a farming business which he operates, an amount, with respect to each taxation year ending after 1971 and beginning before such time, equal to the loss of such taxpayer for such year, derived from such farming business, to the extent that such loss

i. is not deductible in computing the income for that year under section 205,

ii. is not deducted in computing the taxable income for the taxation year in which the taxpayer disposed of the property or any previous taxation year,

iii. does not exceed the aggregate of the following amounts, to the extent that those amounts are included in computing the loss:

(1) taxes, other than income or profits taxes or taxes imposed by reference to the transfer of the property, paid by the taxpayer in that year or payable by the taxpayer in respect of that year to a province or a Canadian municipality in respect of the property, and

(2) interest, paid by the taxpayer in that year or payable by the taxpayer in respect of that year, pursuant to a legal obligation to pay interest on borrowed money used to acquire the property or on any amount as consideration payable for the property, and

iv. does not exceed the amount obtained by subtracting from the proceeds of disposition of that property reduced by its adjusted cost base immediately before that time, computed without referring to this paragraph, the aggregate of his losses from his farming business for the taxation years prior to that year and which must be added, under this paragraph, in computing the adjusted cost base of such property;

(m) (paragraph repealed).

255.1. For the purposes of paragraph c.6 of section 255, the following rules apply:

(a) in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a flow-through entity, where a taxation year of the entity that includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or that begins after 28 February 2000 and ends before 17 October 2000, ends in the taxpayer's taxation year, the word "twice" in that paragraph c.6 is to be read, with the necessary modifications, as a reference to the fraction that is the reciprocal of the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies in respect of the flow-through entity for its taxation year; and

(b) where the fair market value of all of a taxpayer's interests in, and shares of the capital stock of, a flow-through entity is nil when the taxpayer disposes of those interests and shares, the fair market value of each such interest or share, as the case may be, is deemed at that time to be $1.

2003, c. 2, s. 87; 2015, c. 24, s. 53.

256. For the purposes of paragraph e of section 255, the disposition before 7 May 1974 of property in consideration of which the taxpayer did not receive shares of the capital stock of the corporation and in respect of which the election mentioned therein was made, is deemed to be a contribution of capital equal to the amount by which the amount agreed upon in the election exceeds the fair market value, at the time of the disposition, of the consideration received by the taxpayer.

1975, c. 22, s. 43; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

DIVISION III

AMOUNTS TO BE DEDUCTED

1972, c. 23.

257. A taxpayer shall, in computing the adjusted cost base of a property at a particular time, deduct the following amounts:

MISCELLANEOUS CASES

(a) in the case of a property which the taxpayer disposed of in part after 1971 and before the particular time, the amount established under section 254 for such taxpayer;

(b) where sections 485 to 485.18 apply, the amount by which the adjusted cost base is required to be reduced before the particular time;

(b.1*)* any amount required under paragraph c of section 259, paragraph a of any of sections 259.1 to 259.3 and 296.1, subparagraph b.1 of the first paragraph of section 301, subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 543.2 or paragraph a of section 553.2 to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of the property or any amount by which that adjusted cost base is required to be reduced because of any of sections 485.9 to 485.11;

(c) that part of the cost of the property which is deductible in computing the income, otherwise than because of this Title or of section 75.2.1 or 75.3, for any taxation year beginning before the particular time and ending after 31 December 1971;

(d) where the property is acquired by the taxpayer after 31 December 1971, the aggregate of

i. the amount by which any assistance, other than prescribed assistance, that the taxpayer has received or is entitled to receive before the particular time from a government, municipality or other public authority in respect of, or for the acquisition of, the property, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax not otherwise provided for under this paragraph, investment allowance or as any other form of assistance, exceeds such part of the assistance as has been repaid by the taxpayer before that time in accordance with an obligation to repay all or any part of that assistance, and

ii. the amounts, other than a prescribed amount, deducted by the taxpayer in respect of the property before the particular time under subsection 5 or 6 of section 127 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) in computing his tax payable under the said Act;

(e) where the property was received as consideration for a payment or loan referred to in section 383, as it read in respect of the payment or loan, which the taxpayer made or consented to before 20 April 1983 to a joint exploration corporation, within the meaning of section 382, as a shareholder corporation of such a corporation, in respect of Canadian exploration and development expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses or Canadian oil and gas property expenses incurred by the joint exploration corporation, or where the property was substituted for such a property, such portion of the payment or loan as may reasonably be considered to relate to an agreed portion referred to in section 381, 406, 417 or 418.13, as it read in respect of the agreed portion;

(f) where the property is an indemnity within the meaning of sections 469 to 479, or is deemed to be such an indemnity under those sections, the amount required by subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 471 to be deducted;

(f.1) where the property is a debt owing to the taxpayer by a corporation, the amount required by section 511, or sections 517.1 to 517.6 as they applied before 23 May 1985, to be deducted before the particular time in computing the adjusted cost base of that debt;

(f.2) the amount by which the amount elected by the taxpayer before the particular time under section 257.2 exceeds any repayment before that time by the taxpayer of an amount received by him as described in section 257.2 that may reasonably be considered to relate to the amount elected where the repayment is made pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or any part of the amount so received;

(f.3) where the property is property of a taxpayer that was subject to a loss restriction event at or before that time, any amount required by subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 736 to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base of the property;

(f.4) where the property is a right to acquire a share of the capital stock of a corporation or a unit of a mutual fund trust under an agreement, any amount required by paragraph b of section 1055.1 to be deducted;

(f.5) where the property was at the end of 22 February 1994 a non-qualifying immovable property of the taxpayer within the meaning assigned by section 726.6.1 as that section applies to the taxation year 1994, any amount required by paragraph b of section 726.9.4 to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the property;

(f.6) where the taxpayer elected under section 726.9.2 in respect of the property, any amount required by section 726.9.5 to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the property at the particular time;

(f.7) where the property was acquired under a derivative forward agreement, any amount deductible in respect of the property under section 157.2.2 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year;

(f.8) where the property is disposed of under a derivative forward agreement, any amount deductible in respect of the property under section 157.2.2 in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year that includes the particular time;

SHARES OF A CORPORATION

(g) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada,

i. any amount received by the taxpayer after 31 December 1971 and before the particular time as a dividend other than a taxable dividend or a dividend in respect of which the corporation has elected in accordance with section 502 or 502.1 and section 503 in respect of the full amount thereof,

ii. any amount required by sections 517.1 to 517.6, as they applied before 23 May 1985, to be deducted before the particular time in computing the adjusted cost base of that share,

iii. any amount received by the taxpayer after 1971 and before the particular time on a reduction of the paid-up capital of the corporation in respect of that share, except to the extent that that amount is deemed by section 508 to be a dividend received by him,

iv. any amount, to the extent that such amount is not proceeds of disposition of a share, received by the taxpayer before that particular time that would, but for section 510.1, be deemed by section 508 to be a dividend received by him, and

v. any amount required by section 280.6 to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share;

(h) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a joint exploration corporation, within the meaning of section 382, resident in Canada to which the taxpayer has, after 31 December 1971, made a contribution of capital otherwise than by way of a loan, which contribution was included in computing the adjusted cost base of the property by virtue of paragraph e of section 255, such portion of the contribution as may reasonably be considered to be part of an agreed portion referred to in section 381, 406, 417 or 418.13, as it read in respect of the agreed portion;

(h.1) any amount required by section 419.2 to be deducted before that time in computing the adjusted cost base of the property;

(i) where the property is a share, or a right in or to a share, of the capital stock of a corporation acquired before 1 August 1976, an amount equal to the expenses incurred by the taxpayer as consideration to acquire the property, to the extent that such expenses are for the taxpayer Canadian exploration and development expenses under paragraph e of section 364, Canadian exploration expenses under paragraph e of section 395, Canadian development expenses under paragraph e of section 408 or Canadian oil and gas property expenses under paragraph c of section 418.2;

(j) where the property is a share of the capital stock of a corporation not resident in Canada,

i. if the corporation is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer,

(1) any amount required by subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 477 or sections 585 to 588 to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the share, and

(2) any amount received by the taxpayer before that time, on a reduction of the paid-up capital of the corporation in respect of the share, that is so received after 31 December 1971 and before 20 August 2011, or, where the reduction is a qualifying return of capital, within the meaning of section 577.3, in respect of the share, after 19 August 2011, or

ii. in any other case, any amount received by the taxpayer after 31 December 1971 and before that time on a reduction of the paid-up capital of the corporation in respect of the share;

(j.1) (paragraph repealed);

(k) where the property is a debt obligation, any amount that was deductible by virtue of sections 167 and 168 for any taxation year commencing before that particular time;

INDEXED DEBT OBLIGATIONS

(k.1) where the property is an indexed debt obligation,

i. any amount referred to in paragraph b of section 125.0.1 in respect of the obligation and deductible in computing the income of the taxpayer for a taxation year beginning before the particular time, and

ii. the amount of any payment that was received or that became receivable by the taxpayer at or before the particular time in respect of an amount that was added under paragraph h.0.1 of section 255 to the cost to the taxpayer of the obligation;

PARTNERSHIP

(l) when the property is an interest in a partnership,

i. subject to section 257.2.1, an amount in respect of each fiscal period of the partnership ending after 31 December 1971 and before the particular time, equal to the taxpayer's share, other than a share under an agreement referred to in section 608, of any loss of the partnership from any source for that fiscal period, computed as if this Part were construed without reference to

(1) the fraction "1/2" in section 105, as it applied to each fiscal period of the partnership ending before 1 April 1977, and without reference to that or another fraction in sections 107 and 231,

(2) the reference to the fraction and the letter C in the formula provided for in the first paragraph of section 105.2, and

(3) paragraph z.4 of section 87, sections 89 to 91 and 144, section 144.1, as it read before being repealed, section 145, paragraph j of section 157, as it read before being struck out, sections 205 to 207, 235, 236.2 to 241, 264, 271, 273, 288 and 293, Division XV of Chapter IV, section 425, paragraphs g and h of section 489, as they read before being struck out, sections 638.1, 741.2 and 743, section 744.1, as it applied to dispositions of property that occurred before 27 April 1995, and section 744.6, i.1. an amount in respect of each fiscal period of the partnership ending before the particular time that is the taxpayer's limited partnership loss in respect of the partnership for the taxation year in which that fiscal period ends to the extent that such loss was deducted by the taxpayer in computing his taxable income for any taxation year that commenced before the particular time, i.2. any amount deemed by section 261.2 to be a loss of the taxpayer, i.3. where at the particular time the property is not a tax shelter investment as defined in section 851.38 and the taxpayer would be a member described in section 261.1 of the partnership if the fiscal period of the partnership that includes that time ended at that time, the unpaid principal amount of any indebtedness of the taxpayer for which recourse is limited, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, and that may reasonably be considered to have been used to acquire the property,

i.4. unless the particular time immediately precedes a disposition of the interest, if the taxpayer is a member of the partnership and the taxpayer has been a specified member of the partnership at all times since becoming a member of the partnership, or the taxpayer is at the particular time a limited partner of the partnership for the purposes of section 261.1,

(1) where the particular time is in the taxpayer's first taxation year for which the taxpayer is eligible to deduct an amount in respect of the partnership under section 217.27, the portion of the amount deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year under section 217.27 in respect of the partnership that would be deductible if the definition of "qualifying transitional income" in the first paragraph of section 217.18 were read without reference to its paragraph b, and

(2) where the particular time is in any other taxation year, the portion of the amount deducted under section 217.27 in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year preceding that other taxation year in respect of the partnership that would be deductible if the definition of "qualifying transitional income" in the first paragraph of section 217.18 were read without reference to its paragraph b,

ii. an amount with respect to each fiscal period of the partnership ending after 31 December 1971 and before the particular time, except a fiscal period subsequent to that in which the taxpayer ceased to be a member of the partnership, equal to the share of the taxpayer in the aggregate of Canadian exploration and development expenses, foreign resource pool expenses, Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses and Canadian oil and gas property expenses incurred by the partnership in the fiscal period and the amounts which, but for paragraph d of section 600, would be deductible in computing the income of the partnership for the fiscal period under the Act respecting the application of the Taxation Act (chapter I-4) in respect of exploration and development expenses, ii.1. where the taxpayer is a corporation or an individual, an amount in respect of each fiscal period of the partnership ending before the particular time, other than a fiscal period subsequent to that in which the taxpayer ceased to be a member of the partnership, equal to the taxpayer's share of the aggregate of all amounts each of which would, but for section 134.2, be deductible in computing the partnership's income for the fiscal period as dues described in subparagraph a or b of the first paragraph of that section or as a contribution described in subparagraph c of that paragraph,

iii. any amount deemed, under section 714 or 752.0.10.11, to be the eligible amount of a gift made by the taxpayer as a member of the partnership at the end of any fiscal period of the partnership ending before that time, or in relation to another partnership of which the taxpayer is deemed to be a member under section 693.2 or the second paragraph of section 752.0.10.11 because the taxpayer is a member of the partnership at the end of such a fiscal period,

iv. every amount received by the taxpayer, after 1971 and before the particular time, as a payment or distribution of his share in the profits or capital of the partnership other than a share under an agreement referred to in section 608,

v. any amount required by sections 614 to 617 to be deducted before that particular time in computing the adjusted cost base to him of his interest in the partnership,

vi. an amount equal to that portion of all prescribed amounts deducted in computing the tax otherwise payable by the taxpayer under a prescribed Act for his taxation years ending before that particular time that may reasonably be attributed to amounts added in respect of the partnership under a prescribed provision of the said Act in computing a prescribed amount relating to the taxpayer,

vii. any amount added pursuant to subsection 4 of section 127.2 of the Income Tax Act in computing his share purchase tax credit for a taxation year ending before or after that time,

viii. an amount equal to 50% of the amount deemed to be designated pursuant to subsection 4 of section 127.3 of the Income Tax Act before that time in respect of each share, debt obligation or right acquired by the partnership and deemed to have been acquired by the taxpayer under that subsection,

ix. an amount equal to the amount of all assistance received by the taxpayer before that time that has resulted in a reduction of the capital cost of a depreciable property to the partnership by virtue of section 101.4,

x. any amount deductible by the taxpayer under section 147.2 or 176.3 in respect of the partnership for a taxation year of the taxpayer ending at or after that time,

xi. any amount added, before the particular time, to the issue base relating to certain issue expenses, within the meaning of section 726.4.17.11, of the taxpayer and determined by reference to an amount included in an amount referred to in subparagraph ii in respect of the taxpayer regarding the partnership, and

xii. any amount required by subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 726.9.6 to be deducted at that time in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest;

(m) where the property is an interest in a partnership to which section 636 or 645 applies, any amount received by the taxpayer in full or partial satisfaction of that interest;

TRUST

(n) where the property is a capital interest of the taxpayer in a trust, other than an interest in a personal trust that has never been acquired for consideration or an interest in a trust referred to in subparagraphs a to d of the third paragraph of section 647,

i. any amount, to the extent that it has become payable before 1 January 1988, paid to the taxpayer by the trust after 31 December 1971 and before the particular time as payment or distribution of capital, otherwise than as proceeds of disposition of the interest or part thereof, i.1. any amount that has become payable by the trust to the taxpayer after 31 December 1987 and before the particular time in respect of the interest, otherwise than as proceeds of disposition of the interest or part thereof, except that portion of the amount

(1) that was included in computing the taxpayer's income under section 663,

(1.1) that is deemed to be a dividend received by the taxpayer under section 663.4,

(2) from which tax was deducted under Part XIII of the Income Tax Act by reason of paragraph c of subsection 1 of section 212 of the said Act, or

(3) where the trust was resident in Canada throughout its taxation year in which the amount became payable, that was designated by the trust to be payable to the taxpayer under section 667, that is, subject to section 257.4, equal to the amount designated by the trust to be payable to the taxpayer under section 668 or that is an assessable distribution, within the meaning of subsection 1 of section 218.3 of the Income Tax Act, to the taxpayer,

ii. an amount equal to that portion of all prescribed amounts deducted in computing the tax payable by the taxpayer under a prescribed Act for his taxation years ending before the particular time that may reasonably be attributed to amounts added in respect of the trust under a prescribed provision of the said Act in computing a prescribed amount relating to the taxpayer,

iii. any amount added pursuant to subsection 3 of section 127.2 of the Income Tax Act in computing his share purchase tax credit for a taxation year ending before or after that time,

iv. an amount equal to 50% of the amount deemed to be designated pursuant to subsection 3 of section 127.3 of the Income Tax Act before that time in respect of each share, debt obligation or right acquired by the trust and deemed to have been acquired by the taxpayer under that subsection, and

v. an amount equal to the amount of all assistance received by the taxpayer before that time that has resulted in a reduction of the capital cost of a depreciable property to the trust by virtue of section 101.4;

(o) where the property is a capital interest in a trust not resident in Canada which the taxpayer purchased after 31 December 1971 and before the particular time from a person not resident in Canada, at a time, in this paragraph referred to as the "acquisition time", when the property was not taxable Canadian property and the fair market value of the trust property referred to in section 258 was not less than 50% of the fair market value of all the trust property, the proportion of the amount by which such value of the property referred to in that section at the acquisition time exceeds the cost amounts to the trust at the acquisition time of the property that

i. except where subparagraph ii applies, the fair market value at the acquisition time of the interest is of the fair market value at the acquisition time of all capital interests in the trust, or

ii. in the case of a unit of a unit trust, the fair market value at the acquisition time of the unit is of the fair market value at the acquisition time of all the issued units of the trust;

(p) where the property is a capital interest in a trust, any amount that is deducted under section 581 or 583 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ends at or before the particular time, in respect of the interest, or that could have been so deducted for such a taxation year but for sections 316.1, 456 to 458, 462.1 to 462.24.1 and 466 to 467.1;

(p.1) where the property is a capital interest of the taxpayer in a designated trust, within the meaning of the first paragraph of section 671.5, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted, in respect of that interest, under section 772.15 in computing the tax payable under this Part by the taxpayer or, where the taxpayer is a partnership, by a member of the partnership, for a taxation year that ended before the particular time;

(q) where the property is an interest in a segregated fund trust referred to in section 851.2:

i. each amount in respect of that interest that is a capital loss deemed, under section 851.21, to have been allocated to the taxpayer before the particular time, and

ii. each amount in respect of that interest that before the particular time was deemed by section 851.16 to have been a capital loss of the taxpayer;

(r) (paragraph repealed).

257.1. For the purposes of paragraphs d, l and n of section 257, where a taxpayer has deducted an amount by virtue of subsection 5 of section 127 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) in computing his tax payable for a taxation year under that Act and that amount may reasonably be attributed to the amounts added in computing the investment tax credit, within the meaning of subsection 9 of the said section 127, determined at the end of the year in respect of the taxpayer and that are related to a property acquired or an expenditure made in a taxation year subsequent to that taxation year, the taxpayer is deemed to have made the deduction in that subsequent taxation year.

257.2. For the purposes of paragraph f.2 of section 257, where a taxpayer has in a taxation year received an amount that would, but for this section, be included in computing his income under paragraph w of section 87 in respect of the cost of a property, other than depreciable property, acquired by him in the year, in the three taxation years preceding the year or in the taxation year following the year, he may elect under this section on or before his filing-due date for the year or, where the property is acquired in the taxation year following the year, for that following year, to reduce the cost of the property by such amount as he may specify, not exceeding the least of

(a) the adjusted cost base, determined without reference to paragraph f.2 of section 257, at the time the property was acquired;

(b) the amount so received by the taxpayer;

(c) where the taxpayer has disposed of the property before the year, nil.

1987, c. 67, s. 66; 1994, c. 22, s. 125; 1997, c. 31, s. 40.

257.2.1. For the purposes of subparagraph i of paragraph l of section 257 in respect of a taxpayer, a partnership's loss for a fiscal period, computed in accordance with that subparagraph, does not include all or any portion of that loss that may reasonably be considered to be included in the taxpayer's limited partnership loss in respect of the partnership for the taxpayer's taxation year in which that fiscal period ends.

2003, c. 2, s. 89.

257.3. (Repealed).

1997, c. 31, s. 41; 2000, c. 5, s. 293; 2013, c. 10, s. 23.

257.4. For the purposes of subparagraph 3 of subparagraph i.1 of paragraph n of section 257 in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a trust, where a taxation year of the trust that includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or that begins after 28 February 2000 and ends before 17 October 2000, ends in the taxpayer's taxation year, that subparagraph 3 shall be read with "the product obtained by multiplying the fraction obtained when 1 is subtracted from the reciprocal of the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the trust for its taxation year, by" inserted after "equal to".

2003, c. 2, s. 90.

258. The property referred to in paragraph o of section 257 in respect of a trust not resident in Canada is the following:

(a) a Canadian resource property;

(b) an income interest in a trust resident in Canada;

(c) a taxable Canadian property; and

(d) a timber resource property.

1975, c. 22, s. 45; 1986, c. 19, s. 45.

DIVISION IV

IDENTICAL PROPERTIES AND SPECIAL CASES

1972, c. 23; 1996, c. 39, s. 74.

259. When at a particular time after 1971 a taxpayer owns a property or a group of identical properties acquired after 1971 and acquires thereafter one or several other properties called "new property" in this section, identical to the first, the following rules apply to determine, at a later date, the adjusted cost base of each such identical property:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed immediately before the particular time of each first property for an amount equal to its adjusted cost base;

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired each such identical first and new property at the particular time at a mean cost equal to the quotient obtained by dividing the aggregate of the adjusted cost bases of the first properties immediately before the particular time and the cost of the new property,

i. by the number of such identical properties owned by the taxpayer immediately after such particular time, or

ii. in the case of identical properties that are bonds, debentures, bills or notes, or other similar obligations issued by a debtor, by the quotient obtained by dividing the aggregate of the principal amounts of all such properties immediately after the particular time by the principal amount of the identical property;

(c) the taxpayer shall deduct, after the particular time, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of each such first and new identical property, an amount equal to the quotient obtained by dividing the aggregate of all amounts deducted under paragraph b.1 of section 257 in computing immediately before the particular time the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the first properties

i. by the number of such identical properties owned by the taxpayer immediately after the particular time, or

ii. in the case of properties referred to in subparagraph ii of paragraph b, by the quotient determined under that subparagraph in respect of the acquisition; and

(d) the taxpayer shall add, after the particular time, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of each such first and new identical property the amount determined under paragraph c in respect of the identical property.

1972, c. 23, s. 239; 1975, c. 22, s. 46; 1990, c. 59, s. 121; 1996, c. 39, s. 75.

259.0.1. For the purposes of section 259, a security within the meaning of section 47.18 acquired by a taxpayer after 27 February 2000 is deemed not to be identical to any other security acquired by the taxpayer if

(a) the security is acquired in circumstances to which any of sections 49.2, 49.5 and 886 applies or to which section 58.0.1, as it read before being repealed, applies; or

(b) the security is a security to which the first paragraph of section 49.2.3 applies.

2003, c. 2, s. 91; 2009, c. 5, s. 89; 2011, c. 34, s. 28.

259.1. Where at any time in a taxation year a person or partnership, in this section referred to as the "vendor", disposes of a specified property and the proceeds of disposition of the property are determined under paragraph a of section 247.2, sections 433 to 451, 454 to 462.0.2, section 518 or 552, paragraph a of section 553.1, the first or the second paragraph of section 557, the second paragraph of section 614, section 619, 625, 631 or 654, subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 688 or 688.1, paragraph a of section 692.8, subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 736 or Chapter I of Title I.1 of Book VI, the following rules apply to the person or partnership, in this section referred to as the "transferee", who acquires or reacquires the property at or immediately after that time:

(a) the transferee shall deduct after that time in computing the adjusted cost base to the transferee of the property the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts deducted under paragraph b.1 of section 257 in computing, immediately before that time, the adjusted cost base to the vendor of the property, exceeds the amount that would be the vendor's capital gain for the year from that disposition if this Part were read without reference to subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 234 and section 638; and

(b) the transferee shall add after that time, in computing the adjusted cost base to the transferee of the property, the amount determined under paragraph a in respect of that disposition.

259.2. The rules provided in the second paragraph apply where

(a) at any time in a taxation year a person or partnership, in this section referred to as "the vendor", disposes of a specified property to another person or partnership, in this section referred to as "the transferee" ;

(b) immediately before that time, the vendor and the transferee did not deal with each other at arm's length or would not have dealt with each other at arm's length had this section applied with reference to subparagraph k of the first paragraph of section 485.3;

(c) paragraph b would apply in respect of the disposition if each right referred to in paragraph b of section 20 that is a right of the transferee to acquire the specified property from the vendor or a right of the transferee to acquire other property as part of a transaction or event or series of transactions or events that includes the disposition were not taken into account; and

(d) the proceeds of the disposition are not determined under any of the provisions referred to in section 259.1.

The rules to which the first paragraph refers are as follows:

(a) the transferee shall deduct after that time, in computing the adjusted cost base to the transferee of the property, the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts deducted under paragraph b.1 of section 257 in computing, immediately before that time, the adjusted cost base to the vendor of the property exceeds the amount that would be the vendor's capital gain for the year from the disposition if this Part were read without reference to subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 234 and section 638; and

(b) the transferee shall add after that time, in computing the adjusted cost base to the transferee of the property, the amount determined under paragraph a in respect of the disposition.

259.3. Where a capital property that is a specified property is acquired by a new corporate entity, in this section referred to as the "new corporation", at any time as a result of the amalgamation or merger of two or more corporations, each of which is referred to in this section as a "predecessor corporation",

(a) the new corporation shall deduct after that time in computing the adjusted cost base to the new corporation of the capital property the aggregate of all amounts deducted under paragraph b.1 of section 257 in computing, immediately before that time, the adjusted cost base to a predecessor corporation of the property, unless those amounts are otherwise deducted under that paragraph b.1 in computing the adjusted cost base to the new corporation of the capital property; and

(b) the new corporation shall add after that time, in computing the adjusted cost base to the new corporation of the capital property, the amount deducted under paragraph a in respect of the acquisition.

1996, c. 39, s. 76; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 14, s. 56.

CHAPTER IV

SPECIAL APPLICATIONS

1972, c. 23.

DIVISION I

BALANCE OF THE ADJUSTED COST BASE

1972, c. 23.

261. Except where section 261.1 applies, where the aggregate of all amounts required by section 257, except paragraph l of that section, to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to a taxpayer of any property at any time in a taxation year exceeds the aggregate of the cost to the taxpayer of the property determined for the purpose of computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of that property at that time and of all amounts required by section 255 to be added to the cost to the taxpayer of the property in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of that property at that time, the following rules apply:

(a) subject to section 589.1, the amount of the excess is deemed to be a gain of the taxpayer for the year from the disposition at that time of the property;

(b) for the purposes of Chapter V of Title X and sections 1102.4 and 1102.5, the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of the property at that time; and

(c) for the purposes of section 26, the first paragraph of section 27, Title VI.5 of Book IV and sections 1000 to 1003.2, the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of the property in the year.

DIVISION I.1

INTEREST IN A PARTNERSHIP

1996, c. 39, s. 78; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

261.1. Where, at the end of a fiscal period of a partnership, a member of the partnership is a limited partner of the partnership or is a member of the partnership who was a specified member of the partnership at all times since becoming a member, except where the member's partnership interest was held by the member on 22 February 1994 and is an excluded interest at the end of the fiscal period, and except where paragraph c of section 618 or section 642 applies:

(a) the amount determined under the second paragraph is deemed to be a gain from the disposition, at the end of the fiscal period, of the member's interest in the partnership; and

(b) for the purposes of section 26, the first paragraph of section 27, Title VI.5 of Book IV, sections 1000 to 1003.2, 1102.4 and 1102.5, the interest is deemed to have been disposed of by the member at that time.

The amount to which subparagraph a of the first paragraph refers in respect of a member's interest in a partnership at the end of a fiscal period of the partnership is equal to the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts required by section 257 to be deducted in computing the adjusted cost base to the member of the interest in the partnership at that time and, if the partnership is a professional partnership, the amount described in subparagraph i of paragraph l of section 257 in relation to the member in respect of the fiscal period exceeds the aggregate of

(a) the cost to the member of the interest determined for the purpose of computing the adjusted cost base to the member of that interest at that time;

(b) all amounts required by section 255 to be added to the cost to the member of the interest in computing the adjusted cost base to the member of that interest at that time; and

(c) if the partnership is a professional partnership, the amount described in subparagraph i of paragraph i of section 255 in relation to the member in respect of the fiscal period.

For the purposes of the second paragraph, "professional partnership" means a partnership through which one or more persons carry on the practice of a profession that is governed or regulated under a law of Canada or a province.

261.2. A taxpayer that is a member of a partnership at a particular time corresponding to the end of a fiscal period of the partnership, that is a corporation, an individual other than a trust, or a succession that is a graduated rate estate, and that makes, in relation to that fiscal period, a valid election under subsection 3.12 of section 40 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in respect of the taxpayer's interest in the partnership, is deemed to have a loss from the disposition at the particular time of the taxpayer's interest in the partnership equal to the least of

(a) the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed under section 261.1 to be a gain of the taxpayer from a disposition of the interest before the particular time exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed under this section to be a loss of the taxpayer from a disposition of the interest before the particular time;

(b) the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the interest at the particular time; and

(c) the total of the amount for which the election is made and, if that amount is the maximum amount for which the election can be made, the amount that the taxpayer designates in respect of the interest in the taxpayer's fiscal return filed under this Part for the taxation year that includes the particular time.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 3.12 of section 40 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

261.3. For the purpose of applying sections 255 to 258 at any time in respect of a member of a partnership who would be a member described in section 261.1 of the partnership if the fiscal period of the partnership that includes that time ended at that time, where at any time after 21 February 1994 the member of the partnership makes a contribution of capital to the partnership, the contribution is deemed not to have been made where

(a) the partnership or a person or partnership with whom the partnership does not deal at arm's length makes a loan to the member or to a person with whom the member does not deal at arm's length, or pays an amount as a payment or distribution of the member's share in the profits or capital of the partnership, or the member or a person with whom the member does not deal at arm's length becomes indebted to the partnership or a person or partnership with whom the partnership does not deal at arm's length; and

(b) it is established, by subsequent events or otherwise, that the loan, payment or indebtedness was made or arose as part of a series of contributions, loans, payments or other similar transactions.

1996, c. 39, s. 78; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

261.3.1. Where it can reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons that a member of a partnership was not a specified member of the partnership at all times since becoming a member of the partnership is to avoid the application of section 261.1 in respect of the member's interest in the partnership, the member is deemed for the purposes of that section to have been a specified member of the partnership at all times since becoming a member of the partnership.

2000, c. 5, s. 69.

261.4. For the purposes of section 261.1, a member of a partnership who acquired an interest in the partnership after 22 February 1994 is deemed to have held the interest on 22 February 1994 where the member acquired the interest

(a) in circumstances in which

i. subparagraph a.1 of the first paragraph of section 440 applied,

ii. the interest was held, on 22 February 1994,

(1) where the member is an individual, by the member's spouse,

(2) where the member is a trust, by the individual by whose will the trust was created, and

iii. the interest was, immediately before the death of the spouse or the individual, as the case may be, an excluded interest;

(b) in circumstances in which

i. subparagraph iii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 444 applied,

ii. the member's father or mother held the interest on 22 February 1994, and

iii. the interest was, immediately before the death of the member's father or mother, an excluded interest;

(c) in circumstances in which

i. subparagraph iii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 450 applied,

ii. the trust referred to in section 450 or the individual by whose will the trust was created held the interest on 22 February 1994, and

iii. the interest was, immediately before the death of the spouse referred to in section 450, an excluded interest; or

(d) before 1 January 1995 pursuant to a document referred to in paragraph a, e or f of section 261.7.

1996, c. 39, s. 78; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2021, c. 18, s. 33.

261.5. In section 261.1, a member of a partnership at a particular time is a limited partner of that partnership at that time if, at that time or within three years after that time,

(a) by operation of any law governing the partnership arrangement, the liability of the member as a member of the partnership is limited, except by operation of a provision of a statute of Canada or a province that limits the member's liability only for debts and other obligations of the partnership, or any member of the partnership, arising from the misconduct or faults or omissions or negligent acts that another member of the partnership or an employee, agent or mandatary, or representative of that member or of the partnership commits in the course of the partnership business while the partnership is a limited liability partnership referred to in that provision;

(b) the member or a person not dealing at arm's length with the member is entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive an amount or to obtain a benefit that would be described in paragraph b of section 613.3 if that paragraph were read without reference to subparagraphs ii, as it applies before being struck out, and vi thereof;

(c) where the member who owns the interest is a corporation, partnership or trust, one of the reasons for the existence of the member can reasonably be considered to be to limit the liability of any person with respect to that interest, and cannot reasonably be considered to be to permit any person who has an interest in the corporation, partnership or trust, as the case may be, to carry on the person's business, other than an investment business, in the most effective manner; or

(d) one of the main reasons for the existence of an agreement or other arrangement for the disposition of an interest in the partnership can reasonably be considered to be to attempt to avoid the application of this section to the member.

261.6. In this division, an excluded interest in a partnership at any time means an interest in a partnership that actively carries on a business that was carried on by it throughout the period beginning on 22 February 1994 and ending at that time, or that earns income from a property that was owned by it throughout that period, unless in that period there was a substantial contribution of capital to the partnership or a substantial increase in the indebtedness of the partnership.

261.7. For the purposes of section 261.6, a contribution of capital or an increase in the indebtedness will be considered not to be substantial where

(a) the amount was raised pursuant to the terms of a written agreement entered into by a partnership before 22 February 1994 to issue an interest in the partnership and was expended on expenditures contemplated by the agreement before 1 January 1995, or before 2 March 1995 in the case of amounts expended to acquire

i. a film production prescribed for the purposes of subparagraph ii of paragraph b of section 613.3 the principal photography of which or, in the case of such a production that is a television series, one episode of the series, commences before 1 January 1995 and the production is completed before 2 March 1995, or

ii. an interest in one or more partnerships all or substantially all of the property of which is a film production referred to in subparagraph i;

(b) the amount was raised pursuant to the terms of a written agreement, other than an agreement referred to in paragraph a, entered into by a partnership before 22 February 1994 and was expended on expenditures contemplated by the agreement before 1 January 1995, or before 2 March 1995 in the case of amounts expended to acquire a property described in subparagraph i or ii of paragraph a;

(c) the amount was used by the partnership before 1 January 1995, or before 2 March 1995 in the case of amounts expended to acquire a property described in subparagraph i or ii of paragraph a, to make an expenditure required to be made pursuant to the terms of a written agreement entered into by the partnership before 22 February 1994;

(d) the amount was used to repay a loan, debt or contribution of capital that had been received or incurred in respect of an expenditure referred to in any of paragraphs a to c;

(e) the amount was

i. raised before 1 January 1995 pursuant to the terms of a final prospectus, preliminary prospectus, offering memorandum or registration statement filed before 22 February 1994 with a public authority in Canada in accordance with the securities legislation of Canada or of a province and, where required by law, accepted for filing by the public authority, and

ii. expended before 1 January 1995, or before 2 March 1995 in the case of amounts expended to acquire a film production prescribed for the purposes of subparagraph ii of paragraph b of section 613.3, or an interest in one or more partnerships all or substantially all of the property of which is such a film production, on expenditures contemplated by the document referred to in subparagraph i that was filed before 22 February 1994;

(f) the amount was raised before 1 January 1995 pursuant to the terms of an offering memorandum distributed as part of an offering of securities where

i. the memorandum contained a complete or substantially complete description of the securities contemplated in the offering as well as the terms and conditions of the offering,

ii. the memorandum was distributed before 22 February 1994,

iii. solicitations in respect of the sale of the securities contemplated by the memorandum were made before 22 February 1994,

iv. the sale of the securities was substantially in accordance with the memorandum, and

v. the funds were expended in accordance with the memorandum before 1 January 1995 or, in the case of a partnership all or substantially all of the property of which is property described in subparagraph i or ii of paragraph a, before 2 March 1995; or

(g) the amount was used for an activity that was carried on by the partnership on 22 February 1994 but not for a significant expansion of the activity nor for the acquisition or production of a film production.

261.8. For the purposes of section 261.6, a partnership in respect of which any of paragraphs a to f of section 261.7 applies shall be considered to have actively carried on the business contemplated by the document referred to in any of those paragraphs, or earned income from the property described in any of those paragraphs, throughout the period beginning 22 February 1994 and ending on the earlier of 1 January 1995 and the closing date stipulated in the document.

261.9. If, because of any fluctuation after 31 December 1971 in the value of one or more foreign currencies relative to Canadian currency, an individual other than a trust has realized one or more particular gains or sustained one or more particular losses in a taxation year from dispositions of currency other than Canadian currency and the particular gains or losses would, in the absence of this section, be capital gains or losses described in section 232, the following rules apply:

(a) section 232 does not apply to any of the particular gains or losses;

(b) the amount determined by the following formula is deemed to be a capital gain of the individual for the year from the disposition of currency other than Canadian currency:

A-(B+$200); and

(c) the amount determined by the following formula is deemed to be a capital loss of the individual for the year from the disposition of currency other than Canadian currency:

B-(A+$200).

In the formulas in subparagraphs b and c of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the total of all the particular gains realized by the individual in the year; and

(b) B is the total of all the particular losses sustained by the individual in the year.

2015, c. 21, s. 151.

DIVISION II

GAINS OR LOSSES IN RESPECT OF FOREIGN CURRENCIES

1972, c. 23.

262. If, because of any fluctuation after 31 December 1971 in the value of one or more foreign currencies relative to Canadian currency, a taxpayer has realized a gain or sustained a loss in a taxation year (other than a gain or loss that would, in the absence of this section, be a capital gain or capital loss to which section 232 or 261.9 applies, or a gain or loss in respect of a transaction or event in respect of shares of the capital stock of the taxpayer), the following rules apply:

(a) the amount of the gain (to the extent of the amount of that gain that would not, if section 28 were read without reference to ", other than the taxable capital gains from dispositions of property," in paragraph a of that section and without reference to paragraph b of that section, be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any other taxation year), is deemed to be a capital gain of the taxpayer for the year from the disposition of currency other than Canadian currency; and

(b) the amount of the loss (to the extent of the amount of that loss that would not, if section 28 were read without reference to its paragraph b, be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any other taxation year), is deemed to be a capital loss of the taxpayer for the year from the disposition of currency other than Canadian currency.

1972, c. 23, s. 242; 2015, c. 21, s. 152.

262.0.0.1. For the purposes of section 262, if a debt obligation owing by a taxpayer (in this section and sections 262.0.0.2 and 262.0.0.3 referred to as the "debtor") is denominated in a foreign currency and the debt obligation has become a parked obligation at a particular time, the debtor is deemed at that time to have made the gain, if any, that the debtor otherwise would have made if it had paid an amount at the particular time in satisfaction of the debt obligation equal to

(a) if the debt obligation has become a parked obligation at the particular time as a result of its acquisition by the holder of the debt obligation, the amount paid by the holder to acquire the debt obligation; and

(b) in any other case, the fair market value of the debt obligation at the particular time.

2019, c. 14, s. 104.

262.0.0.2. For the purposes of section 262.0.0.1, a debt obligation is a parked obligation at a particular time if

(a) at the particular time, the holder of the debt obligation does not deal at arm's length with the debtor or, if the debtor is a corporation, has a significant interest in the debtor;

(b) at any time prior to the particular time, a person who held the debt obligation dealt at arm's length with the debtor and, where the debtor is a corporation, did not have a significant interest in the debtor; and

(c) it can reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of the transaction or event or series of transactions or events that results in the debt obligation meeting the condition in paragraph a is to avoid the application of section 262.

2019, c. 14, s. 104.

262.0.0.3. For the purposes of sections 262.0.0.1 and 262.0.0.2, the following rules apply:

(a) subparagraph k of the first paragraph of section 485.3 applies for the purpose of determining whether two persons are related to each other or whether a person is controlled by another person; and

(b) subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 485.19 applies for the purpose of determining whether a person has a significant interest in a corporation.

2019, c. 14, s. 104.

262.0.1. The rules set out in the second paragraph apply if

(a) at any time a corporation resident in Canada or a partnership of which such a corporation is a member (such corporation or partnership being in this section and section 262.0.2 referred to as the "borrowing party") has received a loan from, or become indebted to, a creditor that is a foreign affiliate (in this section and section 262.0.2 referred to as a "creditor affiliate") of a qualifying entity or that is a partnership (in this section referred to as a "creditor partnership") of which such an affiliate is a member; and

(b) the loan or indebtedness is at a later time repaid, in whole or in part;

(c) (paragraph repealed).

The rules to which the first paragraph refers, in relation to the borrowing party's capital gain or capital loss in respect of the repayment of the loan or indebtedness that would be determined, in the absence of this section, under section 262, are the following:

(a) in the case of a capital gain, the gain is to be reduced,

i. if the creditor is a creditor affiliate, by an amount, not exceeding that capital gain, that is equal to twice the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that would—in the absence of subparagraph ii of paragraph g of subsection 2 of section 40 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) and paragraph g.04 of subsection 2 of section 95 of that Act and on the assumption that the creditor affiliate's capital loss in respect of the repayment of the loan or indebtedness were a capital gain of the creditor affiliate, the creditor affiliate had no other income, loss, capital gain or capital loss for any taxation year, and no other foreign affiliate of a qualifying entity had any income, loss, capital gain or capital loss for any taxation year—be included in computing a qualifying entity's income for the purposes of the Income Tax Act under subsection 1 of section 91 of that Act for its taxation year that includes the last day of the taxation year of the creditor affiliate that includes the later time, or

ii. if the creditor is a creditor partnership, by an amount, not exceeding that capital gain, that is equal to twice the amount that is the total of each amount, determined in respect of a particular member of the creditor partnership that is a foreign affiliate of a qualifying entity, that is equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that would—in the absence of subparagraph ii of paragraph g of subsection 2 of section 40 of the Income Tax Act and paragraph g.04 of subsection 2 of section 95 of that Act and on the assumption that the creditor partnership's capital loss in respect of the repayment of the loan or indebtedness were a capital gain of the creditor partnership, the particular member had no other income, loss, capital gain or capital loss for any taxation year, and no other foreign affiliate of a qualifying entity had any income, loss, capital gain or capital loss for any taxation year—be included in computing a qualifying entity's income for the purposes of the Income Tax Act under subsection 1 of section 91 of that Act for its taxation year that includes the last day of the taxation year of the particular member that includes the last day of the creditor partnership's fiscal period that includes the later time; and

(b) in the case of a capital loss, the amount of the loss is to be reduced,

i. if the creditor is a creditor affiliate, by an amount, not exceeding that capital loss, that is, in relation to the creditor affiliate's capital gain in respect of the repayment of the loan or indebtedness, equal to twice the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that would—in the absence of paragraph g.04 of subsection 2 of section 95 of the Income Tax Act and on the assumption that the creditor affiliate had no other income, loss, capital gain or capital loss for any taxation year, and no other foreign affiliate of a qualifying entity had any income, loss, capital gain or capital loss for any taxation year—be included in computing a qualifying entity's income for the purposes of the Income Tax Act under subsection 1 of section 91 of that Act for its taxation year that includes the last day of the taxation year of the creditor affiliate that includes the later time, or

ii. if the creditor is a creditor partnership, by an amount, not exceeding that capital loss, that is, in relation to the creditor partnership's capital gain in respect of the repayment of the loan or indebtedness, equal to twice the amount that is the total of each amount, determined in respect of a particular member of the creditor partnership that is a foreign affiliate of a qualifying entity, that is equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that would—in the absence of paragraph g.04 of subsection 2 of section 95 of the Income Tax Act and on the assumption that the particular member had no other income, loss, capital gain or capital loss for any taxation year, and no other foreign affiliate of a qualifying entity had any income, loss, capital gain or capital loss for any taxation year—be included in computing a qualifying entity's income for the purposes of the Income Tax Act under subsection 1 of section 91 of that Act for its taxation year that includes the last day of the taxation year of the particular member that includes the last day of the creditor partnership's fiscal period that includes the later time.

The first and second paragraphs do not apply in respect of a repayment, in whole or in part, of a loan or indebteness if a valid election was made in respect of the repayment under subsection 2.3 of section 39 of the Income Tax Act.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I of Part I applies in relation to an election referred to in the third paragraph. However, for the application of section 21.4.7 to such an election, a taxpayer is deemed to have complied with a requirement of section 21.4.6 if the taxpayer complies with it on or before 23 March 2021.

2015, c. 21, s. 153; 2020, c. 16, s. 52.

262.0.2. For the purposes of section 262.0.1, "qualifying entity" means

(a) in the case of a borrowing party that is a corporation,

i. the borrowing party,

ii. a corporation resident in Canada of which

(1) the borrowing party is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation, or

(2) a corporation described in this subparagraph ii is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation,

iii. a corporation resident in Canada

(1) each share of the capital stock of which is owned by the borrowing party or a corporation described in subparagraph ii or this subparagraph iii, or

(2) all or substantially all of the capital stock of which is owned by one or more corporations resident in Canada that are borrowing parties in respect of the creditor affiliate under section 577.6, or

iv. a partnership each member of which is

(1) a corporation described in any of subparagraphs i to iii, or

(2) another partnership described in this subparagraph iv; and

(b) in the case of a borrowing party that is a partnership,

i. the borrowing party,

ii. if each member of the borrowing party is either a corporation resident in Canada (in this subparagraph b referred to as the "parent") or a corporation resident in Canada that is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation, within the meaning of subsection 5 of section 544, of the parent,

(1) the parent, or

(2) a corporation resident in Canada that is a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation, within the meaning of subsection 5 of section 544, of the parent, or

iii. a partnership each member of which is

(1) the borrowing party,

(2) a corporation described in subparagraph ii, or

(3) another partnership described in this subparagraph iii.

For the purposes of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph, a member of a particular partnership is deemed to be a member of any other partnership of which the particular partnership is a member.

2020, c. 16, s. 53.

262.1. The rule set out in section 262.2 applies for the purpose of computing at a particular time a taxpayer's gain or loss (in this section and section 262.2 referred to as the "new gain" or "new loss", as the case may be), in respect of the whole or any part (in this section and section 262.2 referred to as the "relevant part") of a foreign currency debt of the taxpayer, arising—otherwise than because of the application of section 736.0.0.1—from a fluctuation in the value of the currency of the foreign currency debt, if before the particular time the taxpayer realized a capital gain or loss in respect of the foreign currency debt because of section 736.0.0.1.

2010, c. 5, s. 29; 2017, c. 1, s. 113.

262.2. The rule to which section 262.1 refers is the rule according to which the new gain is the positive amount, or the new loss is the negative amount, as the case may be, determined by the formula

A + B - C.

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is

i. if the taxpayer would, but for any application of section 736.0.0.1, recognize a new gain, the amount of the new gain, determined without reference to this section, or

ii. if the taxpayer would, but for any application of section 736.0.0.1, recognize a new loss, the amount of the new loss, determined without reference to this section, expressed as a negative amount;

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is that portion of the amount of a capital loss sustained by the taxpayer before the particular time, in respect of the foreign currency debt and because of section 736.0.0.1, that can reasonably be attributed to

i. the relevant part of the foreign currency debt at the particular time, or

ii. the forgiven amount (within the meaning of section 485) in respect of the foreign currency debt at the particular time; and

(c) C is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is that portion of the amount of a gain realized by the taxpayer before the particular time, in respect of the foreign currency debt and because of section 736.0.0.1, that can reasonably be attributed to

i. the relevant part of the foreign currency debt at the particular time, or

ii. the forgiven amount (within the meaning of section 485) in respect of the foreign currency debt at the particular time.

2010, c. 5, s. 29; 2017, c. 1, s. 114.

DIVISION II.1

GAINS RELATED TO CHARITABLE GIFTS OF FLOW-THROUGH SHARES

2012, c. 8, s. 45.

262.3. In this division,

"exemption threshold", of a taxpayer at a particular time in respect of a flow-through share class of property, means the amount determined by the formula

A − B;

"flow-through share class of property" means a group of properties,

(a) in respect of a class of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, each of which is

i. a share of the class, if any share of the class or any right described in subparagraph ii is, at any time, a flow-through share to any person,

ii. a right to acquire a share of the class, if any share of that class or any right described in this subparagraph is, at any time, a flow-through share to any person, or

iii. a property that is an identical property of a property described in subparagraph i or ii; or

(b) each of which is an interest in a partnership, if at any time more than 50% of the fair market value of the partnership's assets is attributable to property included in a flow-through share class of property;

"fresh-start date", of a taxpayer at a particular time in respect of a flow-through share class of property, means

(a) in the case of a partnership interest that is included in the flow-through share class of property, 16 August 2011 or, if it is later, the last day, before the particular time, on which the taxpayer held an interest in the partnership; and

(b) in the case of any other property that is included in the flow-though share class of property, 22 March 2011 or, if it is later, the last day, before the particular time, on which the taxpayer disposed of all property included in the flow-through share class of property.

In the formula in the definition of "exemption threshold" in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of

i. the aggregate of all amounts, each of which would be the cost to the taxpayer, computed without reference to section 419.0.1, of a flow-through share that was included at any time before the particular time in the flow-through share class of property and that was issued by a corporation to the taxpayer on or after the taxpayer's fresh-start date in respect of the flow-through share class of property at that time, other than a flow-through share that the taxpayer was obligated, before 22 March 2011, to acquire pursuant to the terms of a flow-through share agreement entered into between the corporation and the taxpayer, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts, each of which would be the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of an interest in a partnership—computed as if subparagraph vii.1 of paragraph i of section 255 and subparagraph ii of paragraph l of section 257, as that subparagraph ii would read if it referred only to Canadian exploration expenses and Canadian development expenses, did not apply to any amount incurred by the partnership in respect of a flow-through share held by the partnership, either directly or indirectly through another partnership—that was included before the particular time in the flow-through share class of property, if

(1) the taxpayer acquired the interest (other than an interest that the taxpayer was obligated, before 16 August 2011, to acquire pursuant to the terms of an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer) on or after the taxpayer's fresh-start date in respect of the flow-through share class of property at the particular time, or made a contribution of capital to the partnership after 15 August 2011,

(2) at any time after the time that the taxpayer acquired the interest or made the contribution of capital, the taxpayer is deemed by section 359.18 to have made or incurred an outlay or expense in respect of a flow-through share held by the partnership, either directly or indirectly through another partnership, and

(3) at any time between the time that the taxpayer acquired the interest or made the contribution of capital and the particular time, more than 50% of the fair market value of the assets of the partnership is attributable to property included in a flow-through share class of property; and

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts, each of which is the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts, each of which is a capital gain from a disposition of a property included in the flow-through share class of property, other than a capital gain referred to in subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 262.4, at an earlier time that is before the particular time and after the first time that the taxpayer acquired a flow-through share referred to in subparagraph i of paragraph a or acquired a partnership interest referred to in subparagraph ii of paragraph a, and

ii. the exemption threshold of the taxpayer in respect of the flow-though share class of property immediately before the earlier time referred to in subparagraph i.

2012, c. 8, s. 45.

262.4. If, in the course of a transaction or series of transactions to which sections 301 to 301.2, section 454, sections 521 to 526 and 528, section 529, sections 536 to 539, 541 to 543.2, 544 to 555.4, 556 to 564.1 and 565 or 620 to 625 apply, a taxpayer acquires a property (in this section referred to as the "acquired property") that is included in a flow-through share class of property, the following rules apply:

(a) if the transfer of the acquired property is part of a gifting arrangement (within the meaning assigned by the first paragraph of section 1079.1) or of a transaction or series of transactions to which sections 620 to 625 apply, or the transferor is a person with whom the taxpayer was, at the time of the acquisition, not dealing at arm's length, there must be added, at the time of the transfer, to the taxpayer's exemption threshold in respect of the flow-through share class of property, and deducted from the transferor's exemption threshold in respect of the flow-through share class of property, the amount determined by the formula

(b) if the transferor receives particular shares of the capital stock of the taxpayer as consideration for the acquired property and those particular shares are listed on a designated stock exchange or are shares of a mutual fund corporation, for the purposes of this section and section 262.5 the particular shares are deemed to be flow-through shares of the transferor and there must be added to the transferor's exemption threshold in respect of the flow-through share class of property that includes the particular shares the amount that is determined by the formula in paragraph a or that would be so determined if that paragraph applied to the taxpayer.

In the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount by which the transferor's exemption threshold in respect of the flow-through share class of property immediately before the transfer exceeds the capital gain of the transferor as a result of the transfer; and

(b) B is the proportion that the fair market value of the acquired property immediately before the transfer is of the fair market value of all property of the transferor immediately before the transfer that is included in the flow-through share class of property.

2012, c. 8, s. 45.

262.5. If at any time a taxpayer disposes of one or more capital properties that are included in a flow-through share class of property and paragraph a or d of section 231.2 applies in respect of the disposition (in this section referred to as the "actual disposition"), the taxpayer is deemed to have realized a capital gain from a disposition at that time of another capital property equal to the lesser of

(a) the taxpayer's exemption threshold at that time in respect of the flow-through share class of property; and

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a capital gain from the actual disposition (calculated without reference to this section).

2012, c. 8, s. 45.

DIVISION III

GAINS OR LOSSES RELATING TO BONDS OR DEBENTURES

1972, c. 23; 1996, c. 39, s. 79.

263. Where a taxpayer has issued any bond, debenture or similar obligation and has at any subsequent time after 1971 purchased the obligation in the open market, in the manner in which any such obligation would normally be purchased by any member of the public,

(a) the amount by which the amount for which the obligation was issued exceeds the purchase price paid or agreed to be paid is deemed to be a capital gain of the taxpayer for the taxation year from the disposition of a capital property; and

(b) the amount by which the purchase price paid or agreed to be paid for the obligation exceeds the greater of the principal amount of the obligation and the amount for which it was issued is deemed to be a capital loss of the taxpayer for the taxation year from the disposition of a capital property.

An amount may be deemed to be a capital gain or a capital loss of a taxpayer under the first paragraph to the extent that the amount would not, if this Part were read without reference to sections 485.12 and 485.13, otherwise be included or be deductible, as the case may be, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any other year.

1972, c. 23, s. 243; 1996, c. 39, s. 80.

264. The loss to a corporation from the disposition of a bond or debenture shall be decreased by the aggregate of the amounts it has received as interest on such bond or debenture, as the case may be, that have not been included in computing its income under paragraph d of section 489.

1972, c. 23, s. 244; 1996, c. 39, s. 80; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

264.0.1. A taxpayer's loss from the disposition at any time to a particular person or partnership, in this section referred to as the "transferee", of an obligation that was, immediately after that time, payable by another person or partnership, in this section referred to as the "debtor", to the transferee shall not be allowable where the taxpayer, the transferee and the debtor are related to each other at that time or would be related to each other at that time if this section applied with reference to subparagraph k of the first paragraph of section 485.3.

264.0.2. Where a taxpayer sustains a loss on the settlement or extinguishment of a commercial obligation, within the meaning assigned by section 485, issued by a person or partnership and payable to the taxpayer, the loss, where the consideration given by the person or partnership for the settlement or extinguishment of the obligation consists of one or more other commercial obligations issued by the person or partnership to the taxpayer, is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times [(B - C) / B].$$

For the purposes of the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount of the taxpayer's loss, otherwise computed, from the disposition of the commercial obligation;

(b) B is the total fair market value of the consideration given by the person or partnership for the settlement or extinguishment of the commercial obligation; and

(c) C is the total fair market value of the other commercial obligations.

1996, c. 39, s. 81; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

DIVISION III.1

LOSSES DEEMED RELATED TO SHARES

1985, c. 25, s. 49.

264.1. The amount of any unused share-purchase tax credit, within the meaning of subsection 6 of section 127.2 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), of a taxpayer for a particular taxation year, to the extent that it was not deducted from his tax otherwise payable under Part I of that Act for the immediately preceding taxation year, is deemed to be a capital loss of the taxpayer from a disposition of property for the year immediately following the particular taxation year.

1985, c. 25, s. 49; 1995, c. 49, s. 62.

264.2. The amount of any unused scientific research and experimental development tax credit, within the meaning of subsection 2 of section 127.3 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), of a corporation for a particular taxation year, to the extent that it was not deducted from its tax otherwise payable under Part I of that Act for the immediately preceding taxation year, is deemed to be a capital loss of the corporation from a disposition of property for the year immediately following the particular taxation year.

1985, c. 25, s. 49; 1987, c. 67, s. 68; 1995, c. 49, s. 63; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

264.3. The amount of any unused scientific research and experimental development tax credit, within the meaning of paragraph b of section 776.6, of an individual for a particular taxation year, to the extent that it was not deducted from his tax otherwise payable under this Part for the immediately preceding taxation year, and in the proportion of 200% of the product obtained by multiplying that amount not so deducted by the inverse proportion of what is determined pursuant to the second paragraph of section 22, 25 or 26, as the case may be, for the particular taxation year, is deemed to be a capital loss of the individual from a disposition of property for the year immediately following the particular taxation year.

1985, c. 25, s. 49; 1987, c. 67, s. 68.

DIVISION III.2

DEDUCTION FROM BUSINESS INVESTMENT LOSS

1987, c. 67, s. 68.

264.4. An individual other than a trust, in computing his business investment loss for a taxation year from the disposition of a particular property, shall deduct an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount that would be his business investment loss from the disposition of that particular property if section 236.1 were read without reference to the fourth paragraph thereof;

(b) the amount by which the aggregate of the following amounts exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the individual by reason of the fourth paragraph of section 236.1 in computing his business investment loss from the disposition of property in taxation years preceding the year, or from the disposition of property other than the particular property in the year:

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is twice the amount deducted by the individual under Titles VI.5 and VI.5.1 of Book IV in computing the individual's taxable income for a preceding taxation year that ended before 1 January 1988 or began after 17 October 2000,

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

(1) 3/2 of the amount deducted by the individual under Titles VI.5 and VI.5.1 of Book IV in computing the individual's taxable income for a preceding taxation year that ended after 31 December 1987 but before 1 January 1990 or that began after 28 February 2000 and ended before 17 October 2000, or

(2) the product obtained by multiplying the reciprocal of the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the individual for a preceding taxation year that includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000 by the amount deducted under Titles VI.5 and VI.5.1 of Book IV in computing the individual's taxable income for that preceding taxation year, and

iii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is 4/3 of the amount deducted by the individual under Titles VI.5 and VI.5.1 of Book IV in computing the individual's taxable income for a preceding taxation year that ended after 31 December 1989 but before 28 February 2000.

However, where a particular amount was included in computing the individual's income for a taxation year that ended after 31 December 1987 but before 1 January 1990 under subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 105, as it read in respect of that taxation year, the reference in subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph to "3/2" shall be read as a reference to "4/3" in respect of that portion of any amount deducted under Title VI.5 of Book IV in respect of the particular amount.

264.5. A trust, in computing its business investment loss for a taxation year from the disposition of a particular property, shall deduct an amount equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount that would be its business investment loss from the disposition of that particular property if section 236.1 were read without reference to the fourth paragraph thereof;

(b) the amount by which the aggregate of the following amounts exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the trust by reason of the fourth paragraph of section 236.1 in computing its business investment loss from the disposition of property in taxation years preceding the year, or from the disposition of property other than the particular property in the year:

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is twice the amount designated by it under section 668.1 in respect of a beneficiary in its fiscal return for a preceding taxation year that ended before 1 January 1988 or began after 17 October 2000,

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

(1) 3/2 of the amount designated by it under section 668.1 in respect of a beneficiary in its fiscal return for a preceding taxation year that ended after 31 December 1987 but before 1 January 1990 or that began after 28 February 2000 and ended before 17 October 2000, or

(2) the product obtained by multiplying the reciprocal of the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the trust for a preceding taxation year that includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000 by the amount designated by the trust under section 668.1 in respect of a beneficiary in its fiscal return for that preceding taxation year, and

iii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is 4/3 of the amount designated by it under section 668.1 in respect of a beneficiary in its fiscal return for a preceding taxation year that ended after 31 December 1989 but before 28 February 2000.

However, where a particular amount was included in computing the trust's income for a taxation year that ended after 31 December 1987 but before 1 January 1990 under subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 105, as it read in respect of that taxation year, the reference in subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph to "3/2" shall be read as a reference to "4/3" in respect of that portion of any amount deducted under Title VI.5 of Book IV in respect of the particular amount.

1987, c. 67, s. 68; 1990, c. 59, s. 125; 1995, c. 49, s. 65; 2003, c. 2, s. 95.

DIVISION III.3

RECOVERY OF BAD DEBTS

1990, c. 59, s. 126; 1995, c. 49, s. 236.

264.6. Where an amount is received in a taxation year on account of a debt in respect of which a deduction for bad debts had been made under section 142.1 in computing a taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, the amount by which 1/2 of the amount so received exceeds the amount determined under paragraph i.1 of section 87 in respect of the amount so received is deemed to be a taxable capital gain of the taxpayer from a disposition of capital property in the year.

1990, c. 59, s. 126; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 1996, c. 39, s. 82; 2003, c. 2, s. 96.

DIVISION III.4

LOSSES DEEMED TO BE RELATED TO THE REPAYMENT OF ASSISTANCE

1994, c. 22, s. 126.

264.7. The aggregate of all amounts paid by a taxpayer in a taxation year each of which is any of the amounts described in the second paragraph, is deemed to be a capital loss of the taxpayer for the year from the disposition of property by the taxpayer in the year and, for the purposes of Title VI.5 of Book IV, that property is deemed to have been disposed of by the taxpayer in the year.

The amounts referred to in the first paragraph are

(a) such part of any assistance described in subparagraph i of paragraph d of section 257, in respect of, or for the acquisition by the taxpayer of, a capital property, other than depreciable property, as has been repaid by the taxpayer in the year, where the repayment is made after the disposition of the capital property by the taxpayer and under an obligation to repay all or any part of that assistance; or

(b) an amount repaid by the taxpayer in the year in respect of a capital property, other than depreciable property, acquired by the taxpayer that is repaid after the disposition of the capital property by the taxpayer and that would have been a repayment described in paragraph f.2 of section 257 had it been made before the disposition of the capital property.

1994, c. 22, s. 126.

DIVISION III.5

TRANSITIONAL RULES RELATING TO THE DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY INCLUDED IN CLASS 14.1 OF SCHEDULE B

2019, c. 14, s. 105.

264.8. The capital gain of a taxpayer resulting from the disposition by the taxpayer, at a particular time, of a property that is included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) in respect of a business of the taxpayer is to be reduced by the amount claimed by the taxpayer, without exceeding the amount referred to in the second paragraph, where

(a) the property was, immediately before 1 January 2017, an incorporeal capital property of the taxpayer, within the meaning of section 250, as it read before being repealed;

(b) the amount determined under subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 107 in respect of the business immediately before 1 January 2017, as that section read before being repealed, is greater than nil;

(c) the amount determined under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 107 in respect of the business immediately before 1 January 2017, as that section read before being repealed, is nil; and

(d) no amount is included in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year because of subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 93.18.

The amount to which the first paragraph refers is equal to the amount by which the amount obtained by multiplying by 2/3 the amount determined under subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 107 in respect of the business immediately before 1 January 2017, as that section read before being repealed, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount claimed under the first paragraph in respect of another disposition at or before the particular time.

2019, c. 14, s. 105.

264.9. The capital gain of an individual resulting from the disposition by the individual, at a particular time, of a property that is included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) in respect of a business of the individual is to be reduced by the amount claimed by the individual, without exceeding the amount described in the second paragraph, where

(a) the property was, immediately before 1 January 2017, an incorporeal capital property of the individual, within the meaning of section 250, as it read before being repealed; and

(b) the individual's exempt gains balance in respect of the business, within the meaning of section 107.2, as it read before being repealed, is greater than nil for the taxation year that includes 1 January 2017.

The amount to which the first paragraph refers is equal to the amount by which twice the amount of the individual's exempt gains balance in respect of the business, within the meaning of section 107.2, as it read before being repealed, for the taxation year that includes 1 January 2017 exceeds the aggregate of

(a) if subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 93.18 applies in respect of the business for the individual's taxation year that includes 1 January 2017, the amount determined under subparagraph d of the second paragraph of section 105.2, as it read before being repealed, for the purposes of subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 93.18; and

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount claimed under the first paragraph in respect of another disposition at or before the particular time.

2019, c. 14, s. 105.

DIVISION IV

DISPOSITION OF PRECIOUS PROPERTY

1972, c. 23.

265. The taxable net gain from the disposition of precious property for a taxpayer is equal to, subject to the second paragraph, 1/2 of the taxpayer's net gain for the year from the disposition of precious property that is personal-use property and is all or part of any print, etching, drawing, painting, sculpture or other similar work of art, jewellery, rare folio, rare manuscript or rare book, stamp, or coin.

However, where the taxation year of the taxpayer includes 28 February 2000 or 17 October 2000, or begins after 28 February 2000 and ends before 17 October 2000, the fraction "1/2" in the first paragraph shall be read as a reference to the fraction in paragraphs a to d of section 231.0.1 that applies to the taxpayer for the year.

1972, c. 23, s. 245; 1990, c. 59, s. 127; 2003, c. 2, s. 97.

266. The net gain contemplated in section 265 is computed:

(a) by determining the amount by which the aggregate of all the taxpayer's gains for the year from the disposition of precious property, except prescribed cultural property contemplated in section 232, exceeds the aggregate of his losses for the year from the disposition of precious property; and

(b) by deducting from the amount so obtained such portion as the taxpayer may claim of his precious property losses for the seven preceding taxation years and the three following taxation years.

1972, c. 23, s. 246; 1975, c. 22, s. 48; 1985, c. 25, s. 50.

267. The deduction provided for in paragraph b of section 266 in respect of a precious property loss is deductible for a taxation year only to the extent that it exceeds the aggregate of amounts deducted under that paragraph in respect of that loss for preceding taxation years.

1972, c. 23, s. 247; 1985, c. 25, s. 51.

268. A loss shall not be deducted in respect of precious property before all similar losses have been deducted for previous years.

Such loss shall be deducted from the amount determined under paragraph a of section 266 only up to such amount.

1972, c. 23, s. 248.

269. For the purposes of this division a loss on precious property for a taxation year shall be computed by subtracting from the aggregate of the taxpayer's losses for the year from the disposition of precious property, the aggregate of his gains for the year from the disposition of precious property, except cultural property contemplated in section 232.

1972, c. 23, s. 249; 1975, c. 22, s. 49.

DIVISION V

WARRANTIES

1972, c. 23; 1997, c. 14, s. 57.

270. For the purposes of this Title,

(a) if an amount is received or receivable by a person or a partnership (in this section referred to as the "vendor") as consideration for a warranty, covenant or other conditional obligation given or incurred by the vendor in respect of a property (in this section referred to as the "specified property") disposed of by the vendor, the following rules apply:

i. if the amount is received or receivable on or before the specified date, it is deemed to be received as consideration for the disposition of the specified property by the vendor and not to be an amount received or receivable by the vendor as consideration for the obligation, and it is to be included in computing the vendor's proceeds of disposition of the specified property for the taxation year or fiscal period in which the disposition occurred, and

ii. in any other case, it is deemed to be a capital gain of the vendor from the disposition of a property by the vendor that occurs at the earlier of the time when the amount is received or becomes receivable; and

(b) if an amount is paid or payable in relation to an outlay or expense made or incurred by the vendor under a warranty, covenant or other conditional obligation given or incurred by the vendor in respect of the specified property disposed of by the vendor, the following rules apply:

i. if the amount is paid or payable on or before the specified date, it is deemed to reduce the consideration for the disposition of the specified property by the vendor and not to be an amount paid or payable by the vendor as consideration for the obligation, and it is to be deducted in computing the vendor's proceeds of disposition of the specified property for the taxation year or fiscal period in which the disposition occurred, and

ii. in any other case, it is deemed to be a capital loss of the vendor from the disposition of a property by the vendor that occurs at the earlier of the time when the amount is paid or becomes payable.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, "specified date" means,

(a) if the vendor is a partnership, the last day of the vendor's fiscal period in which the vendor disposed of the specified property; and

(b) in any other case, the vendor's filing-due date for the vendor's taxation year in which the vendor disposed of the specified property.

2015, c. 21, s. 154.

DIVISION VI

DISPOSITION OF PRINCIPAL RESIDENCE

1972, c. 23.

271. The individual's gain for a taxation year from the disposition of a property that is or was the individual's principal residence at any time after the date, in this section referred to as the "acquisition date", that is the later of 31 December 1971 and the day on which the individual last acquired it, is the amount determined by the formula

$$A - (A \times B / C) - D.$$

For the purposes of the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount that would, if this Act were read without reference to this section and sections 726.9.2 and 726.9.4, be the individual's gain from the disposition of the property for the year;

(b) B is

i. if the individual was resident in Canada during the taxation year that includes the acquisition date, one plus the number of taxation years that end after the acquisition date for which the property is the individual's principal residence and during which the individual was resident in Canada, or

ii. if the individual was not resident in Canada at any time in the taxation year that includes the acquisition date, the number of taxation years that end after the acquisition date for which the property is the individual's principal residence and during which the individual was resident in Canada;

(c) C is the number of taxation years that end after the acquisition date during which the individual owned the property whether jointly with another person or otherwise; and

(d) D is

i. where the acquisition date is before 23 February 1994 and the individual or a spouse of the individual elected under section 726.9.2 in respect of the property or a right therein that was owned, immediately before the disposition, by the individual, 4/3 of the lesser of

(1) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the taxable capital gain of the individual or of a spouse of the individual that would have resulted from an election by the individual or spouse under section 726.9.2 in respect of the property or right if this Act were read without reference to section 726.9.3 and the amount designated in the election were equal to the amount by which the fair market value of the property or right at the end of 22 February 1994 exceeds the amount designated in the election that was made in respect of the property or right that exceeds 11/10 of its fair market value at that time, and

(2) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the taxable capital gain of the individual or of a spouse of the individual that would have resulted from an election that was made under section 726.9.2 in respect of the property or right if the property were the principal residence of neither the individual nor the spouse for each particular taxation year unless the property was designated, in a fiscal return for the taxation year that includes 22 February 1994 or for a preceding taxation year, to be the principal residence of either of them for the particular taxation year, and

ii. in any other case, zero.

271.1. If an individual encumbers a property that is the individual's principal residence with a real servitude for the taxation year in which the servitude is established and the presumption in paragraph a of section 254.1.1 applies in respect of that property, the individual's gain, for that taxation year, from the deemed disposition of the portion of the property so encumbered is deemed to be equal to zero.

2006, c. 13, s. 35.

272. Where an individual disposes of property to the individual's spouse or a trust and the presumption referred to in section 440 or 454 applies,

(a) the spouse or the trust is deemed to have owned the property since the individual acquired it; and

(b) the property is deemed to have been the principal residence of the spouse or trust

i. in the case provided for in section 440, for all the years for which the individual could have designated it, in accordance with the fifth paragraph of section 274, to have been the individual's principal residence, and;

ii. in the case provided for in section 454, for all the years for which it was the individual's principal residence.

In the case of a trust, it is deemed to have been resident in Canada during all the years in which the individual was resident in Canada.

1972, c. 23, s. 252; 1994, c. 22, s. 127; 2001, c. 7, s. 36; 2021, c. 14, s. 37.

273. An individual's gain from disposition of land used for a farming business that he operates is, if such land includes at any time his principal residence:

(a) his gain for the year from the disposition of that part of the land which does not include his principal residence, plus his gain determined for the year under section 271 as derived from the disposition of his principal residence, or

(b) if the individual so elects with respect to such land in the prescribed manner, his gain for the year from the disposition of such land including his principal residence, determined without regard to paragraph a and section 271, less the aggregate of $1,000 and $1,000 for each taxation year ending after the time referred to in the first paragraph of that section 271 during which such property was his principal residence and during which he was resident in Canada.

1972, c. 23, s. 253; 1978, c. 26, s. 46; 1996, c. 39, s. 84.

274. In this Title, "principal residence" of an individual, other than a personal trust, for a taxation year means a particular property that is a housing unit, a leasehold interest in a housing unit or a share of the capital stock of a housing cooperative acquired for the sole purpose of acquiring the right to inhabit a housing unit owned by the cooperative if, in every case, the particular property is owned in the year by the individual, whether alone or jointly with another person, and the condition set out in the second paragraph and one of the following conditions are met:

(a) the housing unit is ordinarily inhabited in the year by the individual, his spouse or former spouse or his child; or

(b) the individual has made

i. an election referred to in the first paragraph of section 284 that relates to the change in use of the particular property in the year or a preceding taxation year, other than such an election in relation to which the second paragraph of that section applies for the year or a preceding taxation year, or

ii. an election referred to in the first paragraph of section 286.1 that relates to a change in use of the particular property in a subsequent taxation year.

The condition referred to in the first paragraph consists in the particular property having been designated by the individual, in accordance with the fifth paragraph, as being the individual's principal residence for the year and in no other property having been designated, for the purposes of this section and of sections 274.0.1, 275.1, 277 and 285, for the year by

(a) where the year is before 1982, the individual; or

(b) where the year is after 1981,

i. the individual,

ii. a person who was throughout the year the individual's spouse, other than a spouse who was throughout the year living separate and apart from the individual pursuant to a judicial separation or a written separation agreement,

iii. a person who was the individual's child, other than a child who was at any time in the year a married person or a person 18 years of age or over, or

iv. where the individual was not at any time in the year a married person or a person 18 years of age or over, a person who was the individual's father or mother, or brother or sister, where that brother or sister was not at any time in the year a married person or a person 18 years of age or over;

(c) (subparagraph repealed);

(d) (subparagraph repealed).

Subject to the fourth paragraph, a particular property may be designated as principal residence under this section for a taxation year only if the particular property was the subject of a valid designation under paragraph c of the definition of "principal residence" in section 54 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) for the year; however, if a designation made under that paragraph c for the year is in respect of a property that is not identical to the particular property but that includes it, in whole or in part, or is included, in whole or in part, in that property, the Minister may determine to what extent the designation made in respect of the particular property under this section for the year is valid.

Despite the third paragraph, if the Minister considers it appropriate in the circumstances, the Minister may agree to have a particular property designated as principal residence by an individual, under this section, for a particular taxation year even though the particular property was not the subject of a valid designation by the individual under paragraph c of the definition of "principal residence" in section 54 of the Income Tax Act for the particular year where

(a) the following conditions are met:

i. the individual disposed, in a taxation year that ended before 3 October 2016, of a property other than the particular property,

ii. the individual was resident in Québec at the end of the taxation year in which the other property was disposed of, and

iii. the particular taxation year is a taxation year in respect of which the other property was the subject of a valid designation by the individual under paragraph c of the definition of "principal residence" in section 54 of the Income Tax Act and could be the subject of a designation under this section by the individual for the particular taxation year, but was not the subject of such a designation; or

(b) the particular taxation year is a taxation year that precedes the taxation year in which the particular property is disposed of and

i. a valid designation was made by the individual under paragraph c of the definition of "principal residence" in section 54 of the Income Tax Act in respect of another property for the particular taxation year, and

ii. the Minister was of the opinion that the other property could not be the subject of a designation by the individual under this section for the particular taxation year.

An individual designates a particular property as the individual's principal residence for a particular taxation year by enclosing the prescribed form containing prescribed information with the fiscal return the individual is required to file under section 1000 for the individual's taxation year in which the individual disposed of the particular property or granted an option to purchase it.

1972, c. 23, s. 254; 1973, c. 17, s. 26; 1975, c. 21, s. 5; 1977, c. 26, s. 26; 1984, c. 15, s. 64; 1986, c. 15, s. 55; 1986, c. 19, s. 47; 1989, c. 5, s. 57; 1994, c. 22, s. 128; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 85, s. 330; 2000, c. 5, s. 71; 2004, c. 8, s. 52; 2009, c. 5, s. 92; 2021, c. 14, s. 38.

274.0.1. In this Title, "principal residence" of an individual who is a personal trust, in this section referred to as a "trust", for a taxation year means a particular property that is a housing unit, a leasehold interest in a housing unit or a share of the capital stock of a housing cooperative acquired for the sole purpose of acquiring the right to inhabit a housing unit owned by the cooperative if, in every case, the particular property is owned in the year by the trust, whether alone or jointly with another person, and the conditions set out in the second paragraph and one of the following conditions are met:

(a) the housing unit was ordinarily inhabited in the calendar year ending in the year by a specified beneficiary of the trust for the year, by the spouse or former spouse of such a beneficiary or by a child of such a beneficiary; or

(b) the trust has made

i. an election referred to in the first paragraph of section 284 that relates to the change in use of the particular property in the year or a preceding taxation year, other than such an election in relation to which the second paragraph of that section applies for the year or a preceding taxation year, or

ii. an election referred to in the first paragraph of section 286.1 that relates to a change in use of the particular property in a subsequent taxation year.

The conditions referred to in the first paragraph are as follows:

(a) the particular property was designated by the trust, in accordance with the fifth paragraph, as the trust's principal residence for the year;

(b) the trust has specified in the designation each individual, in this section and in section 275.1 referred to as a "specified beneficiary", who, in the calendar year ending in the year,

i. is beneficially interested in the trust, and

ii. except where the trust is entitled to designate the particular property for the year solely by reason of subparagraph b of the first paragraph, ordinarily inhabited the housing unit or has a spouse, former spouse or child who ordinarily inhabited the housing unit;

(c) no corporation, other than a registered charity, or partnership is beneficially interested in the trust at any time in the year; and

(c.1) if the year begins after 31 December 2016, the trust is, in the year,

i. a trust for which a day is to be determined under any of subparagraphs a, a.1 and a.4 of the first paragraph of section 653 by reference to the death or later death, as the case may be, that has not occurred before the beginning of the year, of an individual who is resident in Canada during the year, and a trust a specified beneficiary of which for the year is the individual,

ii. a trust that is a qualified disability trust (within the meaning of the first paragraph of section 768.2) for the year and in respect of which an electing beneficiary (within the meaning of that paragraph) for the year is resident in Canada during the year, is a specified beneficiary of the trust for the year and is a spouse, former spouse or child of the settlor (having in this subparagraph c.1 the meaning assigned by the first paragraph of section 658) of the trust, or

iii. a trust a specified beneficiary of which for the year is an individual who is resident in Canada during the year, who has not attained 18 years of age before the end of the year and a mother or father of whom is a settlor of the trust, and in respect of which either of the following conditions is met:

(1) no mother or father of the individual is alive at the beginning of the year, or

(2) the trust arose before the beginning of the year on and as a consequence of the death of a mother or father of the individual; and

(d) no other property has been designated for the purposes of this section and sections 274, 275.1, 277 and 285 for the calendar year ending in the year by

i. a specified beneficiary of the trust for the year,

ii. a person who was throughout that calendar year the spouse of a beneficiary referred to in subparagraph i, other than a spouse who was throughout that calendar year living separate and apart from the beneficiary pursuant to a judicial separation or a written separation agreement,

iii. a person who was the child of a beneficiary referred to in subparagraph i, other than a child who was during that calendar year a married person or a person 18 years of age or over, or

iv. where a beneficiary referred to in subparagraph i was not during that calendar year a married person or a person 18 years of age or over, a person who was the beneficiary's father or mother, or brother or sister, where that brother or sister was not during that calendar year a married person or a person 18 years of age or over.

Subject to the fourth paragraph, a particular property may be designated as principal residence under this section for a taxation year only if the particular property was the subject of a valid designation under paragraph c.1 of the definition of "principal residence" in section 54 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) for the year; however, if a designation made under that paragraph c.1 for the year is in respect of a property that is not identical to the particular property but that includes it, in whole or in part, or is included, in whole or in part, in that property, the Minister may determine to what extent the designation made in respect of the particular property under this section for the year is valid.

Despite the third paragraph, if the Minister considers it appropriate in the circumstances, the Minister may agree to have a particular property designated as principal residence by a trust, under this section, for a particular taxation year even though the particular property was not the subject of a valid designation by the trust under paragraph c.1 of the definition of "principal residence" in section 54 of the Income Tax Act for the particular year where

(a) the following conditions are met:

i. the trust disposed, in a taxation year that ended before 3 October 2016, of a property other than the particular property,

ii. the trust was resident in Québec at the end of the taxation year in which the other property was disposed of, and

iii. the particular taxation year is a taxation year in respect of which the other property was the subject of a valid designation by the trust under paragraph c.1 of the definition of "principal residence" in section 54 of the Income Tax Act and could be the subject of a designation under this section by the trust for the particular taxation year, but was not the subject of such a designation; or

(b) the particular taxation year is a taxation year that precedes the taxation year in which the particular property is disposed of and

i. a valid designation was made by the trust under paragraph c.1 of the definition of "principal residence" in section 54 of the Income Tax Act in respect of another property for the particular taxation year, and

ii. the Minister was of the opinion that the other property could not be the subject of a designation by the trust under this section for the particular taxation year.

A trust designates a particular property as its principal residence for a particular taxation year by enclosing the prescribed form containing prescribed information with the fiscal return it is required to file under section 1000 for its taxation year in which it disposed of the particular property or granted an option to purchase it.

274.1. Subject to section 274.1.1, where a property was owned by an individual, whether jointly with another person or otherwise, at the end of 31 December 1981 and continuously thereafter until disposed of by the individual, the gain determined under section 271 in respect of the disposition of that property must not exceed the amount by which the aggregate of the following amounts exceeds the amount by which the fair market value of the property on 31 December 1981 exceeds the proceeds of disposition of the property determined without reference to this section:

(a) the individual's gain calculated in accordance with section 271 on the assumption that the individual had disposed of the property on 31 December 1981 for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value on that date; and

(b) the individual's gain calculated in accordance with section 271 on the assumption that that section applies and that

i. subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 271 is read without reference to "one plus", and

ii. the individual acquired the property on 1 January 1982 at a cost equal to the proceeds of disposition determined under paragraph a.

1984, c. 15, s. 64; 1996, c. 39, s. 85; 2021, c. 14, s. 40.

274.1.1. Where a property was owned by a trust, whether jointly with another person or otherwise, at the end of 31 December 2016 and continuously thereafter until disposed of by the trust, where the trust was not in its first taxation year that begins after 31 December 2016 a trust described in subparagraph c.1 of the second paragraph of section 274.0.1, where the trust disposes of the property after 31 December 2016 and where the disposition is the trust's first disposition of the property after that date, the following rules apply:

(a) section 274.1 does not apply in respect of the disposition; and

(b) the trust's gain determined under section 271 in respect of the disposition of the property is equal to the amount by which the aggregate of the following amounts exceeds the amount by which the fair market value of the property on 31 December 2016 exceeds the proceeds of disposition of the property determined without reference to this section:

i. the trust's gain calculated in accordance with section 271 on the assumption that

(1) the trust disposed of the property on 31 December 2016 for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value on that date, and

(2) paragraph a did not apply in respect of the disposition described in subparagraph 1, and

ii. the trust's gain in respect of the disposition calculated in accordance with section 271 on the assumption that

(1) subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 271 is read without reference to "one plus", and

(2) the trust acquired the property on 1 January 2017 at a cost equal to the proceeds of disposition determined under subparagraph 1 of subparagraph i.

2021, c. 14, s. 41.

274.2. Where, in circumstances to which section 688 applies and section 691 does not apply, property has been acquired by a taxpayer in satisfaction of all or any part of his capital interest in a trust, the taxpayer is deemed, for the purposes of sections 271, 274, 274.0.1, 275.1 to 277 and 285, to have owned the property continuously since the trust last acquired it.

274.3. Where an election was made under section 726.9.2 in respect of a property of a taxpayer that was the taxpayer's principal residence for the taxation year 1994 or that, in the taxpayer's fiscal return for the taxation year in which the taxpayer disposes of the property or grants an option to acquire the property, is designated as the taxpayer's principal residence, in determining, for the purposes of sections 271, 272, 274.1

and 274.2, the day on which the property was last acquired by the taxpayer and the period throughout which the property was owned by the taxpayer this Act shall be read without reference to section 726.9.2.

1996, c. 39, s. 86.

274.4. Where a person not resident in Canada disposes of a taxable Québec property that the person last acquired before 27 April 1995, that would not be a taxable Québec property immediately before the disposition if sections 1087 to 1096.2 were read as they applied in respect of dispositions that occurred on 26 April 1995 and that would be a taxable Québec property immediately before the disposition if those sections were read as they applied in respect of dispositions that occurred on 1 January 1996, the person's gain or loss from the disposition is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B / C.$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount of the gain or loss determined without reference to this section;

(b) B is the number of calendar months in the period that begins with May 1995 and ends with the calendar month that includes the time of the disposition; and

(c) C is the number of calendar months in the period that begins with the calendar month in which the person last acquired the property and ends with the calendar month that includes the time of the disposition.

2001, c. 7, s. 37; 2004, c. 8, s. 53.

275. (Repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 255; 1986, c. 19, s. 49; 1994, c. 22, s. 131.

275.1. For the purposes of sections 274 and 274.0.1, a particular property designated by a trust under the second paragraph of section 274.0.1 for a taxation year is deemed to be property designated by each specified beneficiary of the trust for the calendar year ending in the year.

277. The principal residence of an individual is deemed to include the land subjacent to it and such portion of any contiguous land as can reasonably be regarded as contributing to the use and enjoyment of the housing unit as a residence.

However, where the total area of the land subjacent to the principal residence and the portion of contiguous land exceeds one-half hectare, the excess shall be deemed not to have contributed to the use and enjoyment of the housing unit as a residence unless the individual establishes that it was necessary to such use and enjoyment.

DIVISION VI.1

LIFE ESTATE IN IMMOVABLE PROPERTY

1994, c. 22, s. 134; 1996, c. 39, s. 87.

277.1. Despite any other provision of this Act, if at any time a taxpayer disposes of a remainder interest in immovable property (except as a result of a transaction to which section 459 would otherwise apply or by way of a gift to a qualified donee) to a person or partnership and retains a life estate or an estate pur autre vie (in this division referred to as the "life estate") in the property, the taxpayer is deemed

(a) to have disposed at that time of the life estate in the immovable property for proceeds of disposition equal to its fair market value at that time; and

(b) to have reacquired the life estate immediately after that time at a cost equal to the proceeds of disposition referred to in paragraph a.

1994, c. 22, s. 134; 1995, c. 49, s. 66; 1996, c. 39, s. 88; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2005, c. 23, s. 43; 2009, c. 5, s. 94; 2012, c. 8, s. 46.

277.2. Where, as a result of an individual's death, a life estate to which section 277.1 has applied is terminated,

(a) the holder of the life estate immediately before the death is deemed to have disposed of the life estate immediately before the death for proceeds of disposition equal to the adjusted cost base to that person of the life estate immediately before the death; and

(b) where a person who is the holder of the remainder interest in the immovable property immediately before the death was not dealing at arm's length with the holder of the life estate, there shall, after the death, be added in computing the adjusted cost base to that person of the immovable property an amount equal to the lesser of

i. the adjusted cost base of the life estate in the property immediately before the death, and

ii. the amount by which the fair market value of the immovable property immediately after the death exceeds the adjusted cost base to that person of the remainder interest immediately before the death.

1994, c. 22, s. 134; 1996, c. 39, s. 89.

DIVISION VII

CAPITAL REPLACEMENT PROPERTY

1972, c. 23; 1978, c. 26, s. 47.

278. Despite section 234, this division applies if, at any time in a taxation year, an amount becomes receivable by a taxpayer as proceeds of disposition of a capital property (in this division referred to as "former property") that is not a share of the capital stock of a corporation but that is either property the proceeds of disposition of which are described in section 280 or a property that was, immediately before the disposition, a former business property of the taxpayer, and the taxpayer acquires, in the case of a former property the proceeds of disposition of which are described in section 280, before the end of the second taxation year following the year or, if it is later, before the end of the 24-month period following the year, or, in any other case, before the end of the first taxation year following the year or, if it is later, before the end of the 12-month period following the year, a capital property that is a replacement property for the taxpayer's former property and the replacement property has not been disposed of by the taxpayer before the time at which the taxpayer has disposed of the former property.

1972, c. 23, s. 258; 1975, c. 22, s. 50; 1978, c. 26, s. 47; 2001, c. 7, s. 38; 2004, c. 8, s. 54; 2009, c. 15, s. 70.

278.1. For the purposes of section 278, if a taxpayer acquires a capital replacement property for a former property after the end of the period provided for in that section for the acquisition and, in the Minister's opinion, the taxpayer was unable to acquire the capital replacement property before the end of the period because of the specific nature of the former property, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the capital replacement property before the end of the period.

279. In the case provided for in section 278, if the taxpayer acquires the replacement property referred to in that section in a taxation year and the taxpayer makes a valid election under subsection 1 of section 44 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in respect of the former property or, if section 278.1 applies, the taxpayer so elects in the taxpayer's fiscal return filed in accordance with section 1000 for the taxation year, the following rules apply:

(a) the gain for a particular taxation year from the disposition of the former property is deemed to be equal to the amount by which the amount as a reserve that, subject to section 279.1, is equal to the amount determined under the second paragraph or, if section 278.1 applies, the amount by which the amount as a reserve that the taxpayer may claim as a deduction and that does not exceed, subject to section 279.1, the amount determined under the second paragraph, is exceeded by whichever of the following amounts is applicable:

i. if the particular year is the year in which the proceeds of disposition of the former property become due to the taxpayer, the lesser of the amount determined under the third paragraph and the amount determined under the fourth paragraph, or

ii. if the particular year is subsequent to the year in which the proceeds of disposition of the former property become due to the taxpayer, the amount that the taxpayer has deducted under this subparagraph a from the amount determined under subparagraph i or this subparagraph ii in computing the taxpayer's gain for the year preceding the particular year from the disposition of the former property; and

(b) the cost or, in the case of depreciable property, the capital cost, to the taxpayer, of the replacement property at any time after the time of the disposition of the former property by the taxpayer, is deemed to be the cost otherwise determined, minus the amount by which the amount determined under the third paragraph exceeds the amount determined under the fourth paragraph.

The amount referred to in the portion of subparagraph a of the first paragraph before subparagraph i is equal, without exceeding the amount from which it must be subtracted, to the least of

(a) a reasonable amount as a reserve in respect of the portion of the proceeds of disposition of the former property that is payable to the taxpayer after the end of the particular year as can reasonably be regarded as a portion of the amount determined under subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the first paragraph in respect of the property;

(b) an amount equal to the product obtained when 1/5 of the amount determined under subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the first paragraph in respect of the property is multiplied by the amount by which 4 exceeds the number of preceding taxation years of the taxpayer ending after the disposition of the property; and

(c) unless section 278.1 applies, the amount allowed as a deduction for the year under subparagraph iii of paragraph e of subsection 1 of section 44 of the Income Tax Act in computing the taxpayer's gain for the particular year from the disposition of the property or, if the amount that is so allowed as a deduction is equal to the maximum amount that the taxpayer may claim as a deduction in that computation under that subparagraph iii in respect of the disposition, the amount that the taxpayer specifies and that is not less than that maximum amount.

The first amount to which subparagraph i of subparagraph a and subparagraph b of the first paragraph refer is equal to the amount by which the proceeds of disposition of the former property exceed the aggregate of the adjusted cost base of the former property to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition and the outlays made or expenses incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition or, in the case of depreciable property, the lesser of such aggregate and the proceeds of disposition of the former property determined without reference to section 280.3.

The second amount to which subparagraph i of subparagraph a and subparagraph b of the first paragraph refer is equal to the amount by which the proceeds of disposition of the former property exceed the aggregate of the cost or, in the case of depreciable property, the capital cost, to the taxpayer, determined without reference to subparagraph b of the first paragraph, of the replacement property and the outlays made or expenses incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 1 of section 44 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006 but otherwise than as a consequence of the application of section 278.1.

1975, c. 22, s. 51; 1978, c. 26, s. 47; 1982, c. 5, s. 60; 1984, c. 15, s. 66; 1986, c. 15, s. 56; 1996, c. 39, s. 90; 1997, c. 85, s. 330; 2009, c. 5, s. 95; 2010, c. 5, s. 30.

279.1. In computing the amount that a taxpayer may deduct under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 279 in computing the taxpayer's gain from the disposition of a former property of the taxpayer, subparagraph b of the second paragraph of that section is to be read as if "1/5" and "4" were replaced by "1/10" and "9", respectively, if the former property is an immovable property in respect of whose disposition the rules set out in sections 460 to 462 applied to the taxpayer and a child of the taxpayer because of section 459.

280. For the purposes of this Part, if a taxpayer has disposed of a property for which there are proceeds of disposition referred to in any of subparagraphs ii, iii and iv of subparagraph f of the first paragraph of section 93, the time of disposition of that property and the time when those proceeds become receivable by the taxpayer are deemed to be the earliest of the following times, and the taxpayer is deemed to have owned the property continuously until that time:

(a) the day the taxpayer has agreed to an amount as final compensation for that property;

(b) where a claim or other proceeding has been taken before a competent court or tribunal, the day on which the compensation is finally determined by that tribunal or court;

(c) where a claim or other proceeding referred to in paragraph b has not been taken within two years of the event giving rise to the compensation, the day that is two years following the day of that event;

(d) the time at which the taxpayer is deemed, under sections 433 to 451 or subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 785.2, to have disposed of the property; and

(e) where the taxpayer is a corporation other than a subsidiary referred to in section 556, the time immediately before the winding-up of the corporation.

280.1. A taxpayer who makes an election referred to in subsection 2 of section 96 or the first paragraph of section 279, as the case may be, in respect of a former property that was a depreciable property of the taxpayer, is deemed to also make an election referred to in the first paragraph of section 279 or subsection 2 of section 96, as the case may be, in respect of the same property.

Notwithstanding sections 1010 to 1011, where a taxpayer has made an election referred to in the first paragraph of section 279, the Minister shall make such reassessments of tax, interest and penalties under this Part as are necessary for any taxation year to take into account that election.

1975, c. 22, s. 51; 1978, c. 26, s. 47; 2002, c. 40, s. 25; 2009, c. 5, s. 98.

280.2. For the purposes of this division, paragraphs a to d of subsection 3 of section 96 apply, with the necessary modifications, where it must be determined if a particular capital property of a taxpayer is a replacement property for a former property of the taxpayer.

1978, c. 26, s. 47; 1995, c. 63, s. 261; 2001, c. 7, s. 39; 2001, c. 53, s. 50.

280.3. For the purposes of this Title, if a taxpayer has disposed of a former business property that was in part a building and in part the land subjacent to, or immediately contiguous to and necessary for the use of, the building or a right in such a property, and the taxpayer makes a valid election under subsection 6 of section 44 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in relation to the disposition, the amount by which the proceeds of disposition of one such part determined without reference to this section exceed the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of that part is, without exceeding the total of the amount for which the election is made in respect of that part and, when the amount is the maximum amount for which the election may be made in respect of that part, the amount that the taxpayer specifies in relation to that part in the taxpayer's fiscal return filed under this Part for the taxation year in which the taxpayer acquired a replacement property for the former business property, deemed not to be proceeds of disposition of that part and to be proceeds of disposition of the other part.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 6 of section 44 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

280.4. Section 235 applies, with the necessary modifications, to the amount that a taxpayer may deduct under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 279, from the amount determined under subparagraph i or ii of that subparagraph a in computing a gain for a taxation year.

1982, c. 5, s. 61; 1995, c. 63, s. 261; 2009, c. 5, s. 99.

DIVISION VII.1

REPLACEMENT SHARES

2003, c. 2, s. 99.

280.5. In this division,

"adjusted cost base reduction" of an individual in respect of a replacement share of the individual in respect of a qualifying disposition of the individual means the amount determined by the formula

$$D \times (E / F);$$

"common share" means a share prescribed by regulation for the purposes of paragraph d of subsection 1 of section 110 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement);

"eligible business corporation" at any time means, subject to section 280.14, a corporation that is, at that time, a taxable Canadian corporation all or substantially all of the fair market value of the assets of which at that time is attributable to assets of the corporation that are

(a) assets used principally in an eligible business carried on by the corporation or by an eligible business corporation that is related to the corporation;

(b) shares issued by or debt owing by other eligible business corporations that are related to the corporation; or

(c) a combination of assets described in paragraphs a and b;

"eligible pooling arrangement" in respect of an individual means an agreement in writing made between the individual and another person or partnership, in this definition and section 280.7 referred to as the "investment manager", where the agreement provides for

(a) the transfer of funds or other property by the individual to the investment manager for the purpose of making investments on behalf of the individual;

(b) the purchase of eligible small business corporation shares with those funds, or the proceeds of a disposition of the other property, within 60 days after receipt of those funds or the other property by the investment manager; and

(c) the provision of a statement of account to the individual by the investment manager at the end of each month that ends after the transfer disclosing the details of the investment portfolio held by the investment manager on behalf of the individual at the end of that month and the details of the transactions made by the investment manager on behalf of the individual during the month;

"eligible small business corporation" at any time means, subject to section 280.14, a corporation that, at that time, is a Canadian-controlled private corporation all or substantially all of the fair market value of the assets of which at that time is attributable to assets of the corporation that are

(a) assets used principally in an eligible business carried on primarily in Canada by the corporation or by an eligible small business corporation that is related to the corporation;

(b) shares issued by or debt owing by other eligible small business corporations that are related to the corporation; or

(c) a combination of assets described in paragraphs a and b;

"eligible small business corporation share" of an individual means a common share issued by a corporation to the individual if

(a) at the time the share was issued, the corporation was an eligible small business corporation; and

(b) immediately before and after the share was issued, the aggregate of the assets of the corporation and corporations related to it did not exceed $50,000,000;

"permitted deferral" of an individual in respect of a qualifying disposition of the individual means the amount determined by the formula

$$(A / B) \times C;$$

"qualifying disposition" of an individual, other than a trust, means, subject to section 280.13, a disposition of shares of the capital stock of a corporation where each such share disposed of was

(a) an eligible small business corporation share of the individual;

(b) throughout the period during which the individual owned the share, a common share of an eligible business corporation; and

(c) throughout the 185-day period that ended immediately before the disposition of the share, owned by the individual;

"replacement share" of an individual in respect of a qualifying disposition of the individual in a taxation year means an eligible small business corporation share of the individual that is

(a) acquired by the individual in the year or within 120 days after the end of the year; and

(b) designated by the individual to be a replacement share in respect of the qualifying disposition, in accordance with paragraph b of the definition of "replacement share" in subsection 1 of section 44.1 of the Income Tax Act, in the fiscal return that the individual filed for the year under Part I of that Act.

In the formulas provided for in the definitions of "adjusted cost base reduction" and "permitted deferral" in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the lesser of

i. the individual's proceeds of disposition from the qualifying disposition, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the cost to the individual of a replacement share in respect of the qualifying disposition;

(b) B is the individual's proceeds of disposition from the qualifying disposition;

(c) C is the individual's capital gain from the qualifying disposition;

(d) D is the permitted deferral of the individual in respect of the qualifying disposition;

(e) E is the cost to the individual of the replacement share; and

(f) F is the cost to the individual of all the replacement shares of the individual in respect of the qualifying disposition.

For the purposes of paragraph b of the definition of "eligible small business corporation share" in the first paragraph, the assets of a corporation at any time means the assets that would be shown in its financial statements as of that time if those financial statements were prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles used in Canada at that time, and if the value of an asset of a corporation that is a share issued by or debt owing by a related corporation were nil.

280.6. Subject to the second paragraph, where an individual makes a qualifying disposition in a taxation year, the following rules apply:

(a) the individual's capital gain for the year from the qualifying disposition is deemed to be equal to the amount by which the individual's capital gain for the year from the qualifying disposition, determined without reference to this division, exceeds the individual's permitted deferral in respect of the qualifying disposition;

(b) in computing the adjusted cost base to the individual of a replacement share of the individual in respect of the qualifying disposition at any time after its acquisition, there shall be deducted the amount of the adjusted cost base reduction of the individual in respect of the replacement share; and

(c) where the qualifying disposition was a disposition of a share that was a taxable Canadian property of the individual, the replacement share of the individual in respect of the qualifying disposition is deemed to be, at any time that is within 60 months after the disposition, a taxable Canadian property of the individual.

For the purposes of the first paragraph, the individual shall enclose with the fiscal return the individual is required to file for the year under section 1000, the prescribed form along with a copy of every document sent to the Minister of National Revenue attesting the share was designated by the individual in the fiscal return the individual files for the year under Part I of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), pursuant to paragraph b of the definition of "replacement share" in subsection 1 of section 44.1 of that Act.

280.7. Except for the purposes of the definition of "eligible pooling arrangement" in the first paragraph of section 280.5, any transaction entered into by an investment manager under an eligible pooling arrangement on behalf of an individual is deemed to be a transaction of the individual and not a transaction of the investment manager.

2003, c. 2, s. 99.

280.8. For the purposes of this division, a share of the capital stock of a corporation, acquired by an individual as a consequence of the death of a person who is the individual's spouse, father or mother is deemed to be a share that was acquired by the individual at the time it was acquired by that person and owned by the individual throughout the period that it was owned by that person, if

(a) where the person was the spouse of the individual, the share was an eligible small business corporation share of the person and section 440 applied in respect of the individual in relation to the share; or

(b) where the person was the individual's father or mother, the share was an eligible small business corporation share of the father or mother and section 444 applied in respect of the individual in relation to the share.

2003, c. 2, s. 99.

280.9. For the purposes of this division, a share of the capital stock of a corporation, acquired by an individual from a person who was the individual's former spouse as a consequence of the settlement of rights arising out of their marriage, is deemed to be a share that was acquired by the individual at the time it was acquired by that person and owned by the individual throughout the period that it was owned by that person if the share was an eligible small business corporation share and section 454 applied to the individual in respect of the share.

2003, c. 2, s. 99.

280.10. For the purposes of this division, if an individual receives shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation that are eligible small business corporation shares of the individual (in this section referred to as the "new shares"), as the sole consideration for the disposition by the individual of shares issued by the particular corporation or by another corporation that were eligible small business corporation shares of the individual (in this section referred to as the "exchanged shares"), the new shares are deemed to have been owned by the individual throughout the period that the exchanged shares were owned by the individual if

(a) Division XIII, paragraph c of section 528, sections 536 to 539, Chapter V of Title IX or sections 551 to 553.1 and 554 applied in respect of the individual in relation to the new shares; and

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the individual's proceeds of disposition of an exchanged share was equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which was the individual's adjusted cost base of an exchanged share immediately before the disposition.

2003, c. 2, s. 99; 2009, c. 5, s. 100.

280.11. For the purposes of this division, if an individual receives common shares of the capital stock of a particular corporation (in this section referred to as the "new shares"), as the sole consideration for the disposition by the individual of common shares of the particular corporation or of another corporation (in this section referred to as the "exchanged shares"), the new shares are deemed to be eligible small business corporation shares of the individual and shares of the capital stock of an eligible business corporation that were owned by the individual throughout the period that the exchanged shares were owned by the individual if

(a) Division XIII, paragraph c of section 528, sections 536 to 539, Chapter V of Title IX or sections 551 to 553.1 and 554 applied in respect of the individual in relation to the new shares;

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the individual's proceeds of disposition of an exchanged share was equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the individual's adjusted cost base of an exchanged share immediately before the disposition; and

(c) the disposition of the exchanged shares was a qualifying disposition of the individual.

2003, c. 2, s. 99; 2009, c. 5, s. 101.

280.12. For the purposes of each of the definitions in the first paragraph of section 280.5, a property held at a particular time by a corporation that would, if this Act were read without reference to this section, be considered to carry on an eligible business at that time, is deemed to be used or held by the corporation in the course of carrying on that eligible business if the property, or other property for which the property is substituted property, was acquired by the corporation, at any time in the 36-month period that ends at the particular time, because the corporation

(a) issued a debt or a share of a class of its capital stock in order to acquire money for the purpose of acquiring property to be used in or held in the course of, or making expenditures for the purpose of, earning income from an eligible business carried on by it;

(b) disposed of property used or held by it in the course of carrying on an eligible business in order to acquire money for the purpose of acquiring property to be used in or held in the course of, or making expenditures for the purpose of, earning income from an eligible business carried on by it; or

(c) accumulated income derived from an eligible business carried on by it in order to acquire property to be used in or held in the course of, or to make expenditures for the purpose of, earning income from an eligible business carried on by it.

2003, c. 2, s. 99.

280.13. A disposition of a common share of an eligible business corporation by an individual that, but for this section, would be a qualifying disposition of the individual is deemed not to be a qualifying disposition of the individual unless the eligible business of the corporation referred to in the definition of "eligible business corporation" in the first paragraph of section 280.5 was carried on primarily in Canada

(a) at all times in the period that began at the time the individual last acquired the common share and ended at the time of disposition, if that period is less than 730 days; or

(b) in any other case, for at least 730 days in the period referred to in paragraph a.

2003, c. 2, s. 99.

280.14. For the purposes of this division, an eligible small business corporation and an eligible business corporation do not include a corporation that is

(a) a professional corporation;

(b) a specified financial institution;

(c) a corporation the principal business of which is the leasing, rental, development or sale, or any combination of those activities, of immovable property owned by it; or

(d) a corporation more than 50% of the fair market value of the property of which, net of debts incurred to acquire the property, is attributable to immovable property.

2003, c. 2, s. 99.

280.15. In determining whether a share owned by an individual is an eligible small business corporation share of the individual, this Part shall be read without reference to sections 247.2 to 247.6.

2003, c. 2, s. 99.

280.16. The permitted deferral of an individual in respect of a qualifying disposition of shares issued by a corporation, in this section referred to as "new shares", is deemed to be nil where

(a) the new shares, or shares for which the new shares are substituted property, were issued to the individual or a person related to the individual as part of a transaction or event or a series of transactions or events in which

i. shares of the capital stock of a corporation, in this section referred to as the "old shares", were disposed of by the individual or a person related to the individual, or

ii. the paid-up capital of old shares or the adjusted cost base to the individual or to a person related to the individual of the old shares was reduced;

(b) the new shares, or shares for which the new shares are substituted property, were issued

i. by the corporation that issued the old shares,

ii. by a corporation that, at or immediately after the time of issue of the new shares, was a corporation that was not dealing at arm's length with the corporation that issued the old shares or with the individual, or

iii. by a corporation that acquired the old shares, or by another corporation related to that corporation, as part of the transaction or event or series of transactions or events that included that acquisition of the old shares; and

(c) it is reasonable to conclude that one of the main reasons for the series of transactions or events or a transaction in the series was to permit the individual, a person related to the individual, or the individual and such a person to become eligible to deduct under section 280.6 permitted deferrals in respect of qualifying dispositions of new shares, or shares substituted for the new shares, the aggregate of which would exceed the aggregate of all amounts that those persons would have been eligible to deduct under section 280.6 in respect of permitted deferrals in respect of qualifying dispositions of old shares.

2003, c. 2, s. 99; 2009, c. 5, s. 102.

280.17. For the purposes of this division, an individual is deemed to dispose of shares that are identical properties in the order in which the individual acquired them.

2009, c. 5, s. 103.

DIVISION VIII

PROPERTY HAVING MORE THAN ONE USE

1972, c. 23.

281. Where a taxpayer who acquired property for a purpose other than that of gaining or producing income, commences at a later time to use it for that purpose, or vice versa, he is deemed to have disposed of such property at such later time for proceeds equal to its fair market value at that time and to have immediately thereafter acquired it at a cost equal to its fair market value.

1972, c. 23, s. 259; 1990, c. 59, s. 129.

282. Where property has, since its acquisition by a taxpayer, been regularly used in part for gaining or producing income and in part for some other purpose, the proportion of the property that the use made of it for such other purpose is of its whole use applies in computing the cost of the property or the proceeds of its disposition, as the case may be, to determine the part of such cost or proceeds assignable to that part of the property used for such other purpose.

1972, c. 23, s. 260; 1990, c. 59, s. 130.

283. Where at a particular time there has been an increase or decrease in the relation between the use made by a taxpayer of a property for gaining income and the use made by him of the property for some other purpose, the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of a property at that time for proceeds equal to the proportion of the fair market value of the property at that time that the amount of the increase or decrease in the use regularly made by the taxpayer of the property for such other purpose is of the whole use made of the property and to have reacquired the property immediately thereafter at a cost equal to those proceeds.

283.1. Where a taxpayer referred to in any of sections 281 to 283 is not resident in Canada, the reference therein to "gaining or producing income" or "gaining income" shall be read as a reference to "gaining or producing income from a source in Canada".

2004, c. 8, s. 55.

284. For the purposes of this Title and sections 93 to 104, where a taxpayer makes a valid election under subsection 2 of section 45 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) for a particular taxation year in relation to a change in use of any property of the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) where, in respect of that change in use, either section 281, because the property begins to be used to gain income, or paragraph b of section 99 would otherwise apply for the particular year, the taxpayer is deemed not to have begun to use the property to gain income; and

(b) where, in respect of that change in use, either section 283, because the proportion of the use made of the property for a purpose other than gaining income decreased, or subparagraph i of paragraph d of section 99 would otherwise apply for the particular year, the taxpayer is deemed not to have increased the use regularly made of the property to gain income relative to the use regularly made of the property for some other purpose.

However, where the taxpayer rescinds, in accordance with paragraph c of subsection 2 of section 45 of the Income Tax Act, the election that the taxpayer made under that subsection 2 in relation to the change in use of the property for the particular year, the following rules apply:

(a) where subparagraph a of the first paragraph applied to the taxpayer in respect of the property, the taxpayer is deemed, on the first day of the subsequent taxation year referred to in that paragraph c, to have begun to use the property to gain income; and

(b) where subparagraph b of the first paragraph applied to the taxpayer in respect of the property, the taxpayer is deemed, on the first day of the subsequent taxation year referred to in that paragraph c, to have increased the use regularly made of the property to gain income by what would have been the increase in use for the particular year if the election had not been made.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made or rescinded under subsection 2 of section 45 of the Income Tax Act.

1972, c. 23, s. 262; 1975, c. 22, s. 52; 1995, c. 49, s. 69; 2009, c. 5, s. 104; 2021, c. 36, s. 60.

285. For the purposes of sections 274 and 274.0.1 and subject to section 286, in no case may a particular property be considered to be the principal residence of a taxpayer for a taxation year by virtue of the application of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of either of sections 274 and 274.0.1 if, by virtue solely of the application of that subparagraph b, the property would, but for this section, have been the taxpayer's principal residence for four or more preceding taxation years.

286. A taxation year in which a taxpayer does not inhabit the taxpayer's principal residence by reason of the relocation of the taxpayer's place of employment or that of the taxpayer's spouse while the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse is an employee of a person with whom the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse is dealing at arm's length shall not be included in the four years mentioned in section 285, where

(a) at any time, the taxpayer's new home is at least 40 kilometres closer to the taxpayer's new place of employment or that of the taxpayer's spouse; and

(b) the taxpayer resumes habitation in the taxpayer's principal residence while the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse is still an employee of such person or before the end of the taxation year following that in which the taxpayer's employment or that of the taxpayer's spouse terminates, or the taxpayer dies while the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse is still an employee of such person.

286.1. Where, at any time, a property that was acquired by a taxpayer for the purpose of gaining income, or that was acquired in part for that purpose, ceases in whole or in part to be used for that purpose and becomes, or becomes part of, the taxpayer's principal residence, sections 281 and 283 do not apply to deem the taxpayer to have disposed of the property at that time and to have reacquired it immediately after that time, if the taxpayer makes a valid election under subsection 3 of section 45 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) in relation to the change in use of the property.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 3 of section 45 of the Income Tax Act.

1986, c. 19, s. 52; 1990, c. 59, s. 132; 1997, c. 31, s. 42; 2009, c. 5, s. 105; 2021, c. 36, s. 61.

286.2. (Repealed).

1986, c. 19, s. 52; 1990, c. 59, s. 133; 2009, c. 5, s. 106.

DIVISION IX

PERSONAL-USE PROPERTY

1972, c. 23.

287. (1) For the purposes of this Title, personal-use property includes any property owned in whole or in part by the taxpayer which is used primarily:

(a) for his personal use or enjoyment;

(b) for the personal use or enjoyment of one or more persons who form part of a group to which the taxpayer and persons related to him belong;

(c) if the taxpayer is a trust, for the personal use or enjoyment of the beneficiary under the trust or of a person related to the beneficiary.

(2) The expression "personal-use property" also includes any debt of the taxpayer resulting from the disposition of such property and any option to acquire such a property.

(3) The personal-use property of a partnership includes the property of the partnership that is used primarily for the personal use or enjoyment of one or more members of the partnership or of a person related to one of them.

1972, c. 23, s. 264; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

287.1. For the purposes of this division, an excluded property of a taxpayer means a property acquired by the taxpayer, or by a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, in circumstances in which it is reasonable to conclude that the acquisition of the property relates to an arrangement, plan or scheme that is promoted by another person or partnership and under which it is reasonable to conclude that the property will be the subject of a gift to which section 710 or the definition of "total charitable gifts", "total cultural gifts", "total gifts of qualified property" or "total musical instrument gifts" in the first paragraph of section 752.0.10.1, applies.

288. A loss from the disposition of any personal-use property shall not be allowable as a loss, except in the case of precious property or a debt referred to in section 300.

1972, c. 23, s. 265; 1986, c. 19, s. 53.

289. For the purposes of this Title, if a taxpayer disposes of a personal-use property, other than an excluded property disposed of in circumstances to which section 710 or the definition of "total charitable gifts", "total cultural gifts", "total gifts of qualified property" or "total musical instrument gifts" in the first paragraph of section 752.0.10.1 applies, owned by the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the property immediately before the disposition is deemed to be equal to the greater of $1,000 and the amount otherwise determined to be its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer immediately before the disposition; and

(b) the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property is deemed to be equal to the greater of $1,000 and the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of the property otherwise determined.

1972, c. 23, s. 266; 2003, c. 2, s. 101; 2006, c. 36, s. 33.

290. For the purposes of this Title, if a taxpayer disposes of part of a personal-use property, other than a part of an excluded property disposed of in circumstances to which section 710 or the definition of "total charitable gifts", "total cultural gifts", "total gifts of qualified property" or "total musical instrument gifts" in the first paragraph of section 752.0.10.1 applies, owned by the taxpayer and has retained another part of the property, the following rules apply:

(a) the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer, immediately before the disposition, of the part so disposed of is deemed to be equal to the greater of

i. the adjusted cost base, otherwise determined, to the taxpayer, immediately before the disposition, of the part so disposed of, and

ii. that proportion of $1,000 that the amount determined under subparagraph i is of the adjusted cost base, otherwise determined, to the taxpayer, immediately before the disposition, of the whole property; and

(b) the proceeds of disposition of the part so disposed of are deemed to be equal to the greater of the proceeds of disposition of that part, otherwise determined, and the amount determined under subparagraph ii of paragraph a.

1972, c. 23, s. 267; 2003, c. 2, s. 101; 2006, c. 36, s. 34.

291. Where several personal-use properties that would ordinarily be disposed of as a set in a single transaction are disposed of in several transactions to a single person or to a group of persons not dealing with each other at arm's length, they are deemed, if the fair market value of all such property before the first transaction is more than $1,000, to be a single personal-use property and each such transaction is deemed to have dealt with a part of such property.

292. Where a decrease in the fair market value of a personal-use property of a corporation, partnership or trust may reasonably have had the effect of reducing or changing into a loss the gain that a taxpayer would have realized from the disposition of a share of the capital stock of a corporation, an interest in a trust or in a partnership or of increasing the loss which would have resulted from such disposition, the amount of the gain or loss is deemed that which would have resulted from it, if the decrease had not occurred.

1972, c. 23, s. 269; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

DIVISION X

LOTTERIES

1972, c. 23.

293. The gain or loss of a taxpayer from the disposition of a chance to win a prize or a right to receive an amount as a prize, in connection with a lottery scheme, is deemed nil.

1972, c. 23, s. 270; 1984, c. 15, s. 68; 1988, c. 18, s. 15.

DIVISION XI

OPTIONS TO PURCHASE AND SELL

1972, c. 23.

294. Subject to section 296, the granting of an option is a disposition of property the adjusted cost base of which to the grantor immediately before he grants it is nil.

This section does not apply in respect of

(a) an option to purchase or sell a principal residence;

(b) an option granted by a corporation to purchase shares of its capital stock or bonds or debentures to be issued by it;

(b.1) an option granted by a trust to purchase units of the trust to be issued by the trust;

(c) (subparagraph repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 271; 1985, c. 25, s. 52; 1987, c. 67, s. 69; 1993, c. 16, s. 117; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

295. Where, at a particular time, an option described in subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 294 expires, the corporation that granted the option is deemed to have disposed, at that time for proceeds of disposition equal to the amount received by it in consideration for the granting of the option, of capital property the adjusted cost base of which to the corporation immediately before that time is deemed to be nil, unless

(a) the option is held, at the particular time, by a person who deals at arm's length with the corporation and the option was granted by the corporation to a person who was dealing at arm's length with the corporation at the time that the option was granted; or

(b) the option is an option to acquire shares of the capital stock of the corporation in consideration for expenses incurred pursuant to an agreement described in paragraph e of any of sections 364, 395 and 408 or in paragraph c of section 418.2.

295.1. Where, at a particular time, an option granted by a trust and referred to in subparagraph b.1 of the second paragraph of section 294 expires, and the option is held at that time by a person who does not deal at arm's length with the trust or was granted to a person who did not deal at arm's length with the trust at the time that the option was granted, the following rules apply:

(a) the trust is deemed to have disposed of capital property at the particular time for proceeds of disposition equal to the amount received by it in consideration for the granting of the option; and

(b) the adjusted cost base to the trust of that capital property immediately before the particular time is deemed to be nil.

1993, c. 16, s. 118; 2017, c. 1, s. 115.

296. Where an option to purchase or sell is exercised, for the purposes of computing the income of the vendor and the purchaser the granting of the option and the exercise thereof are deemed not to be dispositions of property, and the following rules apply:

(a) in the case of an option to purchase, the consideration received by the vendor for such option must be included in computing the proceeds of disposition to him of the property, and the purchaser must include, in computing the cost to him of the property, the adjusted cost base to him of the option or, where paragraph f or j.3 of section 255 applies in respect of the acquisition of the property by the purchaser because a person who did not deal at arm's length with the purchaser was deemed by reason of the acquisition to have received a benefit under Division VI of Chapter II of Title II, the adjusted cost base to that person of the option immediately before that person last disposed of the option;

(b) in the case of an option to sell, the adjusted cost base of the option to the vendor must be deducted in computing the proceeds of disposition to him of the property and the consideration received by the purchaser for such option must be deducted in computing the cost of the property to him.

296.1. Where at any time a taxpayer exercises an option to acquire a specified property,

(a) the taxpayer shall deduct after that time in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the specified property the aggregate of all amounts deducted under paragraph b.1 of section 257 in computing, immediately before that time, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the option; and

(b) the taxpayer shall add, after that time, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the specified property, the amount determined under paragraph a in respect of that acquisition.

1996, c. 39, s. 91.

296.2. Where an individual, other than a trust, who disposes of property pursuant to the exercise of an option that was granted by the individual before 23 February 1994 so elects in the individual's fiscal return for the taxation year in which the disposition occurs, section 296 does not apply in respect of the disposition in computing the income of the individual.

1996, c. 39, s. 91.

297. Where an option granted by a taxpayer in a taxation year is exercised in a subsequent taxation year, the taxpayer may file an amended fiscal return to exclude from his income for the taxation year the amount received as consideration for the option:

(a) if he has filed a fiscal return for the taxation year; and

(b) if he has filed his amended fiscal return on or before his filing-due date for that subsequent year.

1972, c. 23, s. 274; 1987, c. 67, s. 71; 1990, c. 59, s. 135; 1997, c. 31, s. 43.

298. Where a taxpayer has granted a renewal or extension of an option referred to in section 294, 295 or 295.1, the following rules apply:

(a) for the purposes of the said sections, each renewal or extension is deemed to be an option on the day the renewal or extension is granted;

(b) for the purposes of subparagraph iv of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 248 and sections 295 to 297, the option and each renewal or extension are deemed to be the same option; and

(c) section 297 applies to each taxation year in which a renewal or extension was granted.

1975, c. 22, s. 54; 1993, c. 16, s. 120; 2003, c. 2, s. 103.

298.1. Where a taxpayer acquires a property in satisfaction of an absolute or contingent obligation of a person or partnership to provide the property pursuant to a contract or other arrangement one of the main purposes of which was to establish a right, whether absolute or contingent, to the property and that right was not under the terms of a trust, partnership agreement, share or debt obligation, the satisfaction of the obligation is deemed not to be a disposition of that right.

2001, c. 53, s. 51.

DIVISION XII

BAD DEBTS

1972, c. 23; 1995, c. 49, s. 236.

299. Where a taxpayer establishes that a debt owing to him at the end of a taxation year, other than a debt resulting from the disposition of a personal-use property, is a bad debt for the year, he is deemed, if he so elects in the taxpayer's fiscal return filed under this Part for the year, to have disposed of it at that time for proceeds equal to nil and to have reacquired it immediately thereafter at a cost equal to nil.

The same rule applies where the taxpayer is the owner, at the end of a taxation year, of a share other than a share received by him as consideration in respect of the disposition of personal-use property, of the capital stock of

(a) a corporation that has during the year become a bankrupt;

(b) a corporation referred to in section 6 of the Winding-up Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter W-11) that is insolvent within the meaning of that Act and in respect of which a winding-up order under that Act has been made in the year; or

(c) a corporation that is insolvent at the end of the year if, at that time,

i. neither the corporation nor a corporation controlled by it carries on business,

ii. the fair market value of the share is nil, and

iii. it is reasonable to expect that the corporation will be dissolved or wound up and will not recommence to carry on any business.

1972, c. 23, s. 275; 1979, c. 18, s. 22; 1987, c. 67, s. 72; 1990, c. 59, s. 136; 1993, c. 16, s. 121; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 1996, c. 39, s. 92; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

299.1. Where a taxpayer is deemed, by reason of subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 299, to have disposed of a share of the capital stock of a corporation at the end of a taxation year and the taxpayer or a person with whom he is not dealing at arm's length owns the share at the earliest time, during the 24-month period immediately following the disposition, that the corporation or a corporation controlled by it carries on business, the taxpayer or the person, as the case may be, is deemed to have disposed of the share at that earliest time for proceeds of disposition equal to its adjusted cost base to the taxpayer, determined immediately before the time he is deemed to have disposed of it by reason of subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 299, and to have reacquired it immediately after that earliest time at a cost equal to those proceeds.

1993, c. 16, s. 122; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

300. Where, at the end of a taxation year, a taxpayer establishes that a debt which is a personal-use property and which is then owing to him by a person with whom he deals at arm's length is a bad debt for the year, such taxpayer is deemed:

(a) to have disposed of it at that time for proceeds equal to the excess of the adjusted cost base of such property, immediately before the end of the year, over his gain derived from the disposition of the personal-use property the proceeds of disposition of which included the debt; and

(b) to have reacquired it, immediately after the end of that year, at a cost equal to the proceeds established under paragraph a.

1972, c. 23, s. 276; 1986, c. 19, s. 54; 1995, c. 49, s. 236.

DIVISION XIII

CONVERSION OF SHARES

1972, c. 23.

301. Where a share of the capital stock of a corporation is acquired by a taxpayer from the corporation in exchange for a capital property of the taxpayer that is another share of the corporation or a capital property of the taxpayer that is a bond, debenture or note of the corporation the terms of which confer on the holder the right to make the exchange and no consideration other than that share is received by the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) except for the purposes of sections 157.6, 280.10 and 280.11 and paragraph o of section 594, the exchange is deemed not to be a disposition of property;

(b) the cost to the taxpayer of all the shares of a particular class acquired by him on the exchange is deemed to be that proportion of the adjusted cost basis to him of the exchanged capital property immediately before the exchange that the fair market value, of all the shares of the particular class acquired by him on the exchange is of that of all the shares acquired by him on the exchange;

(b.1) the taxpayer shall deduct, after the exchange, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of a share acquired by the taxpayer on the exchange, the amount determined by the formula

$$A \times B / C;$$

(b.2) the taxpayer shall add, after the exchange, in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of a share, the amount determined under paragraph b.1 in respect of the share;

(c) for the purposes of sections 462.11 to 462.24, the exchange is deemed to be a transfer of the exchanged capital property by the taxpayer to the corporation;

(d) where the exchanged capital property is taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer, the share acquired by the taxpayer on the exchange is also deemed to be, at any time that is within 60 months after the exchange, taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer.

For the purposes of the formula in subparagraph b.1 of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts deducted under paragraph b.1 of section 257 in computing, immediately before the exchange, the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the exchanged capital property;

(b) B is the fair market value, immediately after the exchange, of the share referred to in subparagraph b.1 of the first paragraph; and

(c) C is the fair market value, immediately after the exchange, of all the shares acquired by the taxpayer on the exchange.

1972, c. 23, s. 277; 1973, c. 17, s. 29; 1975, c. 22, s. 55; 1986, c. 19, s. 55; 1987, c. 67, s. 73; 1995, c. 49, s. 70; 1996, c. 39, s. 93; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2001, c. 7, s. 40; 2011, c. 6, s. 125; 2015, c. 36, s. 17.

301.1. Notwithstanding section 301, where shares of the capital stock of a corporation have been acquired by a taxpayer in exchange for a capital property described in the said section 301, in circumstances such that, but for this section, section 301 would have applied, where the fair market value of the capital property immediately before the exchange exceeds the fair market value of the shares immediately after the exchange, and where it is reasonable to regard any portion of such excess as a benefit that the taxpayer desired to have conferred on a person related to the taxpayer, the following rules apply:

(a) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed of the capital property for proceeds of disposition equal to the lesser of the aggregate of its adjusted cost base to him immediately before the exchange and the excess portion, and the fair market value of the capital property immediately before the exchange;

(b) the taxpayer's capital loss from the disposition of the capital property is deemed to be nil; and

(c) the cost to the taxpayer of all the shares of a particular class acquired in exchange for the capital property is deemed to be that proportion of the lesser of the adjusted cost base to him of the capital property immediately before the exchange, and the aggregate of the fair market value immediately after the exchange of the shares acquired by him, on the exchange, for the capital property and the amount that, but for paragraph b, would have been the taxpayer's capital loss from the disposition of the capital property that the fair market value, immediately after the exchange, of all the shares of the particular class acquired by him on the exchange is of the fair market value of all the shares acquired by him on the exchange.

1982, c. 5, s. 63; 1986, c. 19, s. 56; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2005, c. 23, s. 45.

301.2. Sections 301 and 301.1 do not apply in respect of an exchange to which section 518, 529 or 541 applies.

1995, c. 49, s. 71.

DIVISION XIII.1

EXCHANGE OF DEBT OBLIGATIONS

1996, c. 39, s. 94.

301.3. Where a taxpayer acquires a bond, debenture or note of a debtor, in this section referred to as the "new obligation", in exchange for a capital property of the taxpayer that is another bond, debenture or note of the same debtor that conferred on the holder the right to make the exchange and the principal amount of the new obligation is equal to the principal amount of the exchanged capital property, the cost to the taxpayer of the new obligation and the proceeds of disposition of the exchanged capital property are deemed to be equal to the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the exchanged capital property immediately before the exchange.

1996, c. 39, s. 94.

DIVISION XIV

MISCELLANEOUS CASES

1972, c. 23.

302. For the purposes of this Title, where a taxpayer acquires property after 31 December 1971, other than property described in the second paragraph, and an amount in respect of its value is included, otherwise than under Division VI of Chapter II of Title II, in computing the taxpayer's taxable income or taxable income earned in Canada, as the case may be, for a taxation year during which the taxpayer was not resident in Canada, or in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year throughout which the taxpayer was resident in Canada, the amount so included is to be added in computing the cost to the taxpayer of the property at any time, except to the extent that the amount was otherwise added to the cost or included in computing the adjusted cost base to the taxpayer of the property at or before that time.

The property to which the first paragraph refers is

(a) an annuity contract;

(b) a right as a beneficiary under a trust to enforce payment of an amount by the trust to the taxpayer;

(c) property acquired in circumstances to which sections 304 and 305 apply; or

(d) property acquired from a trust as consideration for all or part of the taxpayer's capital interest in the trust.

1972, c. 23, s. 278; 1975, c. 22, s. 56; 1982, c. 5, s. 64; 1994, c. 22, s. 137; 2001, c. 53, s. 260; 2003, c. 2, s. 104; 2017, c. 1, s. 116.

304. Where after 1971, a shareholder receives property from a corporation as a dividend payable in kind other than a stock dividend in respect of a share owned by him of the capital stock of the corporation, he is deemed to acquire such property at a cost equal to its fair market value at that time; in such case, the corporation is deemed at the same time to have disposed of the property for proceeds equal to its fair market value.

1972, c. 23, s. 280; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

305. A shareholder of a corporation who receives after 1971 a stock dividend, in respect of a share owned by him of the capital stock of the corporation, is deemed to acquire the share received by him at a cost equal to the aggregate of

(a) where the stock dividend is a dividend,

i. in the case of a shareholder that is an individual, the amount of the stock dividend, and

ii. in any other case, the aggregate of

(1) the amount by which the lesser of the amount of the stock dividend and its fair market value exceeds the amount of the dividend that the shareholder may deduct under section 738 in computing the shareholder's taxable income, except any portion of the dividend that, if paid as a separate dividend, would not be subject to section 308.1 because the amount of the separate dividend would not exceed the amount of the income earned or realized by a corporation after 31 December 1971 and before the safe-income determination time, in relation to the transaction or event or series of transactions or events as part of which the dividend is received, that can reasonably be considered to contribute to the capital gain that would have been realized on a disposition at fair market value of the share on which the dividend was received, if the disposition had occurred immediately before the dividend was paid, and

(2) the amount determined by the formula

A + B;

(a.1) where the stock dividend is not a dividend, nil, and

(b) the amount included under section 112.1 in computing the shareholder's income in respect of the stock dividend.

In the formula in subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount of the deemed gain determined in accordance with paragraph c of section 308.1 in respect of the stock dividend; and

(b) B is the amount by which the amount of the reduction determined in accordance with subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 308.2.0.2 in respect of the stock dividend to which paragraph a of section 308.1 would otherwise apply exceeds the amount determined in accordance with subparagraph a in respect of the stock dividend.

1972, c. 23, s. 281; 1974, c. 18, s. 15; 1979, c. 18, s. 23; 1987, c. 67, s. 74; 1993, c. 16, s. 123; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2017, c. 1, s. 117; 2019, c. 14, s. 107.

1973, c. 17, s. 32; 1990, c. 59, s. 137; 2003, c. 2, s. 106.

306.1. Despite any other provision of this Act, if a corporation disposes of a property to another corporation in a transaction to which paragraph l of subsection 1 of section 219 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) applies, the cost to it of a share of a particular class of the capital stock of the other corporation received by it as consideration for the property is deemed to be equal to the lesser of the cost of the share to the corporation otherwise determined immediately after the disposition and the amount by which the paid-up capital of that class increases because of the issuance of that share.

1982, c. 5, s. 65; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2009, c. 5, s. 107.

306.2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Part, the cost of any share of the capital stock of a corporation that becomes resident in Canada at a particular time to any shareholder that is not at that time resident in Canada is deemed to be equal to the fair market value of the share at that time.

However, the first paragraph does not apply if the share was taxable Canadian property immediately before the particular time.

1995, c. 49, s. 72; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2001, c. 53, s. 52.

307. The taxpayer who acquires, at any time after 31 December 1971, property as a prize in connection with a lottery, is deemed to acquire such property at a cost equal to its fair market value at that time.

ANTI-AVOIDANCE RULE

1972, c. 23; 1996, c. 39, s. 95.

308. (Repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 283; 1990, c. 59, s. 138.

308.0.1. In this division,

"distribution" means a direct or indirect transfer of property of a corporation, referred to in this division as the "distributing corporation", to one or more corporations, each of which is referred to in this division as a "transferee corporation", where, in respect of each type of property owned by the distributing corporation immediately before the transfer, each transferee corporation receives property of that type the fair market value of which is equal to or approximates the proportion of the fair market value, immediately before the transfer, of all property of that type owned at that time by the distributing corporation that

(a) the fair market value, immediately before the transfer, of all the shares of the capital stock of the distributing corporation owned at that time by the transferee corporation is of

(b) the fair market value, immediately before the transfer, of all the issued shares of the capital stock of the distributing corporation;

"permitted acquisition", in relation to a distribution by a distributing corporation, means an acquisition of property by a person or partnership on, or as part of,

(a) a distribution, or

(b) a permitted exchange or permitted redemption in relation to a distribution by another distributing corporation;

"permitted exchange", in relation to a distribution by a distributing corporation, means

(a) an exchange of shares for shares of the capital stock of the distributing corporation to which section 301 or sections 541 to 543 apply or would, if the shares were capital property to the holder thereof, apply, other than an exchange that resulted in an acquisition of control of the distributing corporation by any person or group of persons, and

(b) an exchange of shares of the capital stock of the distributing corporation by one or more shareholders of the distributing corporation, each of whom is referred to in this paragraph and the second paragraph as a "participant", for shares of the capital stock of another corporation, referred to in this paragraph and the second paragraph as the "acquirer", in contemplation of the distribution where no share of the capital stock of the acquirer outstanding immediately after the exchange, other than directors' qualifying shares, is owned at that time by any person or partnership other than a participant, and either

i. the acquirer owns, immediately before the distribution, all the shares each of which is a share of the capital stock of the distributing corporation that was owned immediately before the exchange by a participant, or

ii. the fair market value, immediately before the distribution, of each participant's shares of the capital stock of the acquirer is equal to or approximates the amount determined by the formula

"permitted redemption", in relation to a distribution by a distributing corporation, means

(a) a redemption or purchase for cancellation by the distributing corporation, as part of the reorganization in which the distribution was made, of all the shares of its capital stock that were owned, immediately before the distribution, by a transferee corporation in relation to the distributing corporation;

(b) a redemption or purchase for cancellation by a transferee corporation in relation to the distributing corporation, or by a corporation that, immediately after the redemption or purchase, was a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the transferee corporation, as part of the reorganization in which the distribution was made, of all of the shares of the capital stock of the transferee corporation or the subsidiary wholly-owned corporation that were acquired by the distributing corporation in consideration for the transfer of property received by the transferee corporation on the distribution; and

(c) a redemption or purchase for cancellation by the distributing corporation, in contemplation of the distribution, of all the shares of its capital stock each of which is

i. a share of a specified class the cost of which, at the time of its issuance, to its original owner was equal to the fair market value at that time of the consideration for which it was issued, or

ii. a share that was issued, in contemplation of the distribution, by the distributing corporation in exchange for a share described in subparagraph i;

"qualified person", in relation to a distribution, means a person or partnership with whom the distributing corporation deals at arm's length at all times during the course of the series of transactions or events that includes the distribution if

(a) at any time before the distribution,

i. all of the shares of each class of the capital stock of the distributing corporation that includes shares that cause that person or partnership to be a specified shareholder of the distributing corporation (in this definition all of those shares in all of those classes being referred to as the "exchanged shares") are, in the circumstances described in paragraph a of the definition of "permitted exchange", exchanged for consideration that consists solely of shares of a specified class of the capital stock of the distributing corporation (in this definition referred to as the "new shares"), or

ii. the terms or conditions of all of the exchanged shares are amended (which shares are in this definition referred to after the amendment as the "amended shares") and the amended shares are shares of a specified class of the capital stock of the distributing corporation;

(b) immediately before the exchange or amendment, the exchanged shares are listed on a designated stock exchange;

(c) immediately after the exchange or amendment, the new shares or the amended shares, as the case may be, are listed on a designated stock exchange;

(d) the exchanged shares would be shares of a specified class if they were not convertible into, or exchangeable for, other shares;

(e) the new shares or the amended shares, as the case may be, and the exchanged shares are non-voting in respect of the election of the board of directors of the distributing corporation except in the event of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the shares; and

(f) no holder of the new shares or the amended shares, as the case may be, is entitled to receive on the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of the new shares or the amended shares, as the case may be, by the distributing corporation or by any person with whom the distributing corporation does not deal at arm's length, an amount (other than a premium for early redemption) that is greater than the aggregate of the fair market value of the consideration for which the exchanged shares were issued and the amount of any unpaid dividends on the new shares or on the amended shares, as the case may be;

"safe-income determination time", in relation to a transaction or event or a series of transactions or events, means the time that is the earlier of

(a) the time that is immediately after the earliest disposition or increase in interest described in any of paragraphs a to e of section 308.2.1 that resulted from the transaction or event or series of transactions or events; and

(b) the time that is immediately before the earliest time that a dividend is paid as part of the transaction or event or series of transactions or events;

"specified class" means a class of shares of the capital stock of a distributing corporation where

(a) the paid-up capital in respect of the class immediately before the beginning of the series of transactions or events that includes a distribution by the distributing corporation was not less than the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares of that class then outstanding were issued,

(b) under neither the terms and conditions of the shares nor any agreement in respect of the shares are the shares convertible into or exchangeable for shares other than shares of a specified class or shares of the capital stock of a transferee corporation in relation to the distributing corporation,

(c) no holder of the shares is entitled to receive on the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of the shares by the corporation or by any person with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length, an amount (other than a premium for early redemption) that is greater than the aggregate of the fair market value of the consideration for which the shares were issued and the amount of any unpaid dividends on the shares, and

(d) the shares are non-voting in respect of the election of the board of directors except in the event of a failure or default under the terms or conditions of the shares;

"specified corporation" in respect of a distribution means a distributing corporation

(a) that is a public corporation or a specified wholly-owned corporation of a public corporation;

(b) shares of the capital stock of which are exchanged for shares of the capital stock of another corporation, in this definition and the second paragraph referred to as an "acquiror", in an exchange to which the definition of "permitted exchange" would apply if that definition were read without reference to paragraph a thereof and subparagraph i of paragraph b thereof and if the portion of that paragraph b before subparagraph i were read without reference to "either";

(c) that does not make a distribution, to a corporation that is not an acquiror, after 31 December 1998 and before the day that is three years after the day on which the shares of the capital stock of the distributing corporation are exchanged in a transaction described in paragraph b; and

(d) in respect of which no acquiror, in relation to shares of the capital stock of the distributing corporation, makes a distribution after 31 December 1998 and before the day that is three years after the day on which the shares of the capital stock of the distributing corporation are exchanged in a transaction described in paragraph b;

"specified wholly-owned corporation" of a public corporation means a corporation all of the outstanding shares of the capital stock of which, other than directors' qualifying shares or shares of a specified class, are held by

(a) the public corporation;

(b) a specified wholly-owned corporation of the public corporation; or

(c) corporations described in paragraph a or b.

Where the transfer referred to in the definition of "distribution" in the first paragraph is by a specified corporation to an acquiror, in relation to shares of the capital stock of the specified corporation, the definition of "distribution" shall be read with "each type of property" replaced by "property" and with "of that type", wherever it appears, struck out.

For the purposes of the formula in subparagraph ii of paragraph b of the definition of "permitted exchange" in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the fair market value, immediately before the distribution, of all the shares of the capital stock of the acquirer then outstanding, other than shares issued to participants in consideration for shares of a specified class all the shares of which were acquired by the acquirer on the exchange;

(b) B is the fair market value, immediately before the exchange, of all the shares of the capital stock of the distributing corporation, other than shares of a specified class none or all of the shares of which were acquired by the acquirer on the exchange, owned at that time by the participant;

(c) C is the fair market value, immediately before the exchange, of all the shares, other than shares of a specified class none or all of the shares of which were acquired by the acquirer on the exchange and shares to be redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the distributing corporation pursuant to the exercise of a statutory right of dissent by the holder of the share, of the capital stock of the distributing corporation outstanding immediately before the exchange; and

(d) D is the fair market value, immediately before the distribution, of all the shares issued to the participant by the acquirer in consideration for shares of a specified class all of the shares of which were acquired by the acquirer on the exchange.

For the purposes of paragraphs c and d of the definition of "specified corporation" in the first paragraph, a corporation that is formed by an amalgamation of two or more other corporations is deemed to be a continuation of each of the other corporations.

1996, c. 39, s. 96; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 73; 2004, c. 8, s. 56; 2009, c. 15, s. 71; 2010, c. 5, s. 32.

308.1. Despite any other provision of this Part, where a corporation resident in Canada (in this section and sections 308.2 to 308.2.0.2 referred to as the "dividend recipient") receives a taxable dividend described in section 308.2 in respect of which it is entitled to a deduction under any of sections 738, 740 and 845, the amount of that dividend, other than the prescribed portion of it, is deemed

(a) not to be a dividend received by the dividend recipient;

(b) where the dividend is received on a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share, by the corporation that issued the share, under section 508 to the extent that it refers to a dividend deemed paid under section 505 or 506, to be proceeds of disposition of that share to the extent that the amount is not otherwise included in computing those proceeds; and

(c) where paragraph b does not apply in respect of a dividend, to be a gain of the dividend recipient from the disposition of a capital property for the year in which the dividend was received.

308.2. A taxable dividend to which section 308.1 refers is such a dividend received by a corporation as part of a transaction or event or a series of transactions or events if

(a) it can reasonably be considered that

i. one of the purposes of the payment or receipt of the dividend, or, in the case of a dividend referred to in section 506, one of its results, is to effect a significant reduction in the portion of the capital gain that, but for the dividend, would have been realized on a disposition at fair market value of any share of the capital stock of a corporation, if the disposition had occurred immediately before the dividend was paid, or

ii. the dividend (other than a dividend that is received on a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share, by the corporation that issued the share, under section 508 to the extent that it refers to a dividend deemed paid under section 505 or 506) was received on a share that is held as capital property by the dividend recipient and one of the purposes of the payment or receipt of the dividend is to effect

(1) a significant reduction in the fair market value of any share, or

(2) a significant increase in the cost of property, such that the amount that is the aggregate of the cost amounts of all properties of the dividend recipient immediately after the dividend was paid is significantly greater than the amount that is the aggregate of the cost amounts of all properties of the dividend recipient immediately before the dividend was paid; and

(b) the amount of the dividend exceeds the amount of the income earned or realized by any corporation after 31 December 1971 and before the safe-income determination time, in relation to the transaction or event or series of transactions or events, that can reasonably be considered to contribute to the capital gain that would have been realized on a disposition at fair market value of the share on which the dividend was received, if the disposition had occurred immediately before the dividend was paid.

308.2.0.1. For the purposes of sections 308.1, 308.2 and 308.2.0.2, the amount of a stock dividend and the dividend recipient's entitlement to a deduction under any of sections 738, 740 and 845 in respect of the amount of that dividend are to be determined as if the definition of "amount" in section 1 were read as if the following paragraph were inserted after paragraph a:

"(a.1) in the case of a stock dividend paid by a corporation, the amount of the stock dividend is equal to the greater of
i. the amount by which the paid-up capital of the corporation that paid the dividend is increased by reason of the payment of the dividend, and
ii. the fair market value of the share or shares issued as a stock dividend at the time of payment;".

2019, c. 14, s. 109.

308.2.0.2. Where the conditions of the second paragraph are met, in respect of a stock dividend, the following rules apply:

(a) the amount of the stock dividend is deemed for the purposes of section 308.1 to be a separate taxable dividend to the extent of the portion of the amount that does not exceed the amount of the income earned or realized by any corporation after 31 December 1971 and before the safe-income determination time, in relation to the transaction or event or series of transactions or events, that can reasonably be considered to contribute to the capital gain that would have been realized on a disposition at fair market value of the share on which the dividend was received, if the disposition had occurred immediately before the dividend was paid; and

(b) the amount of the separate taxable dividend referred to in subparagraph a is deemed to reduce the amount of the income earned or realized by any corporation after 31 December 1971 and before the safe-income determination time, in relation to the transaction or event or series of transactions or events, that can reasonably be considered to contribute to the capital gain that would have been realized on a disposition at fair market value of the share on which the dividend was received, if the disposition had occurred immediately before the dividend was paid.

The conditions to which the first paragraph refers, in respect of a stock dividend, are as follows:

(a) a dividend recipient holds a share in respect of which it receives the stock dividend;

(b) the fair market value of the share or shares issued as a stock dividend exceeds the amount by which the paid-up capital of the corporation that paid the stock dividend is increased because of the payment of the dividend; and

(c) section 308.1 would apply to the stock dividend if section 308.2 were read without reference to its paragraph b.

2019, c. 14, s. 109.

308.2.0.3. For the purposes of subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 308.2 and for the purpose of determining whether the payment of a dividend caused a significant reduction in the fair market value of any share, the fair market value of the share, determined immediately before the dividend was paid, must be increased by an amount equal to the amount, if any, by which the amount that is the fair market value of the dividend received on the share exceeds the fair market value of the share.

2019, c. 14, s. 109.

308.2.1. Section 308.1 does not apply, however, to any dividend received by a particular corporation, on a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of a share, by the corporation that issued the share, under section 508 to the extent that it refers to a dividend deemed paid under section 505 or 506, if, as part of a transaction or event or a series of transactions or events as part of which the dividend was received, there was not at a particular time

(a) a disposition, to a person or partnership that was an unrelated person immediately before the particular time, of property, other than

i. money disposed of on the payment of a dividend or on a reduction of the paid-up capital of a share, and

ii. property disposed of for proceeds of disposition that are not less than its fair market value;

(b) a significant increase, other than as a consequence of a disposition of shares of the capital stock of a corporation for proceeds of disposition that are not less than their fair market value, in the total direct interest in any corporation of one or more persons or partnerships that were unrelated persons immediately before the particular time;

(c) a disposition, to a person or partnership who was an unrelated person immediately before the particular time, of

i. shares of the capital stock of the dividend-payer corporation, or

ii. property, other than shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation, more than 10% of the fair market value of which was, at any time during the course of the series of transactions or events, derived from a combination of shares of the capital stock and debt of the corporation that paid the dividend;

(d) after the time the dividend was received, a disposition, to a person or partnership that was an unrelated person immediately before the particular time, of

i. shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation, or

ii. property more than 10% of the fair market value of which was, at any time during the course of the series of transactions or events, derived from a combination of shares of the capital stock and debt of the particular corporation; and

(e) a significant increase in the total of all direct interests in the corporation that paid the dividend of one or more persons or partnerships who were unrelated persons immediately before the particular time.

2000, c. 5, s. 76; 2009, c. 15, s. 72; 2015, c. 24, s. 55; 2019, c. 14, s. 110.

308.2.2. For the purposes of section 308.2.1, the following rules apply:

(a) "unrelated person" means a person, other than the particular dividend-recipient corporation, to whom that corporation is not related or a partnership any member of which, other than the particular dividend-recipient corporation, is not related to that corporation;

(b) a corporation that is formed by an amalgamation of two or more other corporations is deemed to be a continuation of each of the other corporations;

(c) proceeds of disposition of a property are to be determined without reference to

i. "deemed to be included in the proceeds of disposition of the share under paragraph b of section 308.1 or" in section 251, and

ii. Chapter V of Title X;

(d) notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, where a person not resident in Canada disposes of a property in a taxation year and the gain or loss from the disposition is not included in computing the person's taxable income earned in Canada for the year, the person is deemed to have disposed of the property for proceeds of disposition that are less than its fair market value unless, under the income tax laws of the country in which the person is resident, the gain or loss is computed as if the property were disposed of for proceeds of disposition that are not less than its fair market value and the gain or loss so computed is recognized for the purposes of those laws;

(e) a significant increase in the total direct interest in a corporation that would, but for this paragraph, be described in paragraph b of section 308.2.1 is deemed not to be described in that paragraph if the increase is the result of the issuance of shares of the capital stock of the corporation for consideration that consists solely of money and the shares are redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation before the dividend is received;

(f) a disposition of property that would, but for this paragraph, be described in paragraph a of section 308.2.1, or a significant increase in the total direct interest in a corporation that would, but for this paragraph, be described in paragraph b of section 308.2.1, is deemed not to be described in either of those paragraphs if

i. the dividend-payer corporation was related to the particular dividend-recipient corporation immediately before the dividend was received,

ii. the dividend-payer corporation did not, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the receipt of the dividend, cease to be related to the particular dividend-recipient corporation,

iii. the disposition or increase occurred before the dividend was received,

iv. the disposition or increase is the result of the disposition of shares to, or the acquisition of shares of, any corporation, and

v. at the time the dividend was received, all the shares of the capital stock of the dividend-payer corporation and of the particular dividend-recipient corporation were owned by the corporation referred to in subparagraph iv, a corporation that controls the corporation referred to in that subparagraph, a corporation controlled by the corporation referred to in that subparagraph or any combination of those corporations; and

(g) a winding-up of a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation, in respect of which sections 556 to 564.1 and 565 apply, or an amalgamation, in respect of which section 550.9 applies, of a corporation with one or more subsidiary wholly-owned corporations, is deemed not to result in a significant increase in the total direct interest, or in the total of all direct interests, in one or more subsidiaries, as the case may be.

308.3. In addition, section 308.1 does not apply if the dividend was received by a corporation

(a) in the course of a reorganization in which a distributing corporation made a distribution to one or more transferee corporations and in which either the distributing corporation was wound up or all of the shares of its capital stock owned by each transferee corporation immediately before the distribution were redeemed or cancelled otherwise than on an exchange to which any of sections 301, 518 and 541 to 543 applies; and

(b) on a permitted redemption in relation to the distribution referred to in paragraph a or on the winding-up of the distributing corporation.

308.3.1. Section 308.3 does not apply to a dividend where

(a) in contemplation of and before a distribution (other than a distribution by a specified corporation) made by a distributing corporation in the course of the reorganization in which the dividend was received, property became property of the distributing corporation, a corporation controlled by it or a predecessor corporation of any such corporation otherwise than as a result of

i. an amalgamation of corporations each of which was related to the distributing corporation,

ii. an amalgamation of a predecessor corporation of the distributing corporation and one or more corporations controlled by that predecessor corporation,

iii. a reorganization in which a dividend was received to which section 308.1 would, but for section 308.3, apply, or

iv. a disposition of property by the distributing corporation, a corporation controlled by it or a predecessor corporation of any such corporation to a corporation controlled by the distributing corporation or a predecessor corporation of the distributing corporation,

v. a disposition of property by a corporation controlled by the distributing corporation or by a predecessor corporation of the distributing corporation to the distributing corporation or predecessor corporation, as the case may be, or

vi. a disposition of property by the distributing corporation, a corporation controlled by it or a predecessor corporation of any such corporation for consideration that consists only of money or indebtedness that is not convertible into other property, or of any combination thereof;

(b) the dividend was received as part of a series of transactions or events in which

i. a person or partnership, referred to in this subparagraph as the “vendor”, disposed of property and

(1) the property is a share of the capital stock of a distributing corporation that made a distribution as part of the series or of a transferee corporation in relation to the distributing corporation or property 10% or more of the fair market value of which was, at any time during the course of the series, derived from one or more such shares,

(2) the vendor, other than a qualified person in relation to the distribution, was, at any time during the course of the series, a specified shareholder of the distributing corporation or of the transferee corporation, and

(3) the property or any other property, other than property received by the transferee corporation on the distribution, acquired by any person or partnership in substitution therefor was acquired, otherwise than on a permitted acquisition, permitted exchange or permitted redemption in relation to the distribution, by a person, other than the vendor, who was not related to the vendor or, as part of the series, ceased to be related to the vendor or by a partnership,

ii. control of a distributing corporation that made a distribution as part of the series or of a transferee corporation in relation to the distributing corporation was acquired, otherwise than as a result of a permitted acquisition, permitted exchange or permitted redemption in relation to the distribution, by any person or group of persons; or

iii. in contemplation of a distribution by a distributing corporation, a share of the capital stock of the distributing corporation was acquired, otherwise than on a permitted acquisition or permitted exchange in relation to the distribution or on an amalgamation of two or more predecessor corporations of the distributing corporation, by

(1) a transferee corporation in relation to the distributing corporation or by a person or partnership with whom the transferee corporation did not deal at arm's length from a person to whom the acquirer was not related or from a partnership,

(2) a person or any member of a group of persons who acquired control of the distributing corporation as part of the series,

(3) a particular partnership any interest in which is held, directly or indirectly through one or more partnerships, by a person referred to in subparagraph 2, or

(4) a person or partnership with whom a person referred to in subparagraph 2 or a particular partnership referred to in subparagraph 3 did not deal at arm's length;

(c) the dividend was received by a transferee corporation from a distributing corporation that, immediately after the reorganization in the course of which a distribution was made and the dividend was received, was not related to the transferee corporation and the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time of acquisition, of a property that satisfies the conditions set out in subparagraphs i and ii is greater than 10% of the fair market value, at the time of the distribution, of all the property, other than money and indebtedness that is not convertible into other property, received by the transferee corporation on the distribution:

i. the property was acquired, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the receipt of the dividend, by a person, other than the transferee corporation, who was not related to the transferee corporation or, as part of the series, ceased to be related to the transferee corporation, or by a partnership, otherwise than

(1) as a result of a disposition in the ordinary course of business, or before the distribution for consideration that consists solely of money or indebtedness that is not convertible into other property, or of any combination thereof,

(2) on a permitted acquisition in relation to a distribution, or

(3) as a result of an amalgamation of two or more corporations that were related to each other immediately before the amalgamation, and

ii. the property is a property, other than money, indebtedness that is not convertible into other property, a share of the capital stock of the transferee corporation and property more than 10% of the fair market value of which is attributable to one or more such shares,

(1) that was received by the transferee corporation on the distribution,

(2) more than 10% of the fair market value of which was, at any time after the distribution and before the end of the series of transactions or events, attributable to property, other than money and indebtedness that is not convertible into other property, described in subparagraph 1 or 3, or

(3) to which, at any time during the course of the series of transactions or events, the fair market value of property described in subparagraph 1 was wholly or partly attributable; or

(d) the dividend was received by a distributing corporation that, immediately after the reorganization in the course of which a distribution was made and the dividend was received, was not related to the transferee corporation that paid the dividend and the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the fair market value, at the time of acquisition, of a property that satisfies the conditions set out in subparagraphs i and ii is greater than 10% of the fair market value at the time of the distribution, of all the property, other than money and indebtedness that is not convertible into other property, owned immediately before that time by the distributing corporation and not disposed of by it on the distribution:

i. the property was acquired, as part of the series of transactions or events that includes the receipt of the dividend, by a person, other than the distributing corporation, who was not related to the distributing corporation or, as part of the series, ceased to be related to the distributing corporation, or by a partnership, otherwise than

(1) as a result of a disposition in the ordinary course of business, or before the distribution for consideration that consists solely of money or indebtedness that is not convertible into other property, or of any combination thereof,

(2) on a permitted acquisition in relation to a distribution, or

(3) as a result of an amalgamation of two or more corporations that were related to each other immediately before the amalgamation, and

ii. the property is a property, other than money, indebtedness that is not convertible into other property, a share of the capital stock of the distributing corporation and property more than 10% of the fair market value of which is attributable to one or more such shares,

(1) that was owned by the distributing corporation immediately before the distribution and not disposed of by it on the distribution,

(2) more than 10% of the fair market value of which was, at any time after the distribution and before the end of the series of transactions or events, attributable to property, other than money and indebtedness that is not convertible into other property, described in subparagraph 1 or 3, or

(3) to which, at any time during the course of the series of transactions or events, the fair market value of property described in subparagraph 1 was wholly or partly attributable.

308.3.2. For the purposes of paragraph b of section 308.3.1,

(a) in determining whether the vendor referred to in subparagraph i of the said paragraph b is at a particular time a specified shareholder of a transferee corporation or of a distributing corporation, the references in sections 21.17 and 21.18 to “taxpayer” shall be read as references to “person or partnership”, with the necessary modifications;

(b) a corporation that is formed by the amalgamation of two or more corporations is deemed to be a continuation of each of the predecessor corporations;

(c) subject to paragraph d, each particular person who acquired a share of the capital stock of a distributing corporation in contemplation of a distribution by the distributing corporation is deemed, in respect of that acquisition, not to be related to the person from whom the particular person acquired the share unless

i. the particular person acquired all the shares of the capital stock of the distributing corporation that were owned, at any time during the course of the series of transactions or events that included the distribution and before the acquisition, by the other person, or

ii. immediately after the reorganization in the course of which the distribution was made, the particular person was related to the distributing corporation;

(d) where a share is acquired by an individual from a personal trust in satisfaction of all or a part of the individual's capital interest in the trust, the individual is deemed, in respect of that acquisition, to be related to the trust;

(e) subject to paragraph f, where at any time a share of the capital stock of a corporation is redeemed or cancelled, otherwise than on an amalgamation where the only consideration received or receivable for the share by the shareholder on the amalgamation is a share of the capital stock of the corporation formed by the amalgamation, the corporation is deemed to have acquired the share at that time;

(f) where a share of the capital stock of a corporation is redeemed, acquired or cancelled by the corporation pursuant to the exercise of a statutory right of dissent by the holder of the share, the corporation is deemed not to have acquired the share;

(g) control of a corporation is deemed not to have been acquired by a person or group of persons where it is so acquired solely because of

i. the incorporation of the corporation, or

ii. the acquisition by an individual of one or more shares for the sole purpose of qualifying as a director of the corporation; and

(h) in relation to a distribution each corporation (other than a qualified person in relation to the distribution) that is a shareholder and specified shareholder of the distributing corporation at any time during the course of a series of transactions or events, a part of which includes the distribution made by the distributing corporation, is deemed to be a transferee corporation in relation to the distributing corporation.

308.3.3. In determining whether a person is a specified shareholder of a corporation for the purposes of subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 308.3.1 and paragraph h of section 308.3.2, the reference in section 21.17 to "or of any other corporation that is related to the corporation" shall be read as "or of any other corporation that is related to the corporation and that has a significant direct or indirect interest in any issued shares of the capital stock of the corporation".

2000, c. 5, s. 80.

308.3.4. For the purpose of determining whether a person is a specified shareholder of a corporation for the purposes of the definition of "qualified person" in the first paragraph of section 308.0.1, subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 308.3.1 and paragraph h of section 308.3.2 when it applies for the purposes of subparagraph iii of paragraph b of section 308.3.1, section 21.17 is to be read as if "not less than 10% of the issued shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation" was replaced by "not less than 10% of the issued shares of any class of the capital stock of the corporation, other than shares of a specified class within the meaning of section 308.0.1,".

2009, c. 15, s. 76.

308.3.5. For the purposes of paragraphs c and d of section 308.3.1, a corporation formed by an amalgamation of two or more corporations that were related to each other immediately before the amalgamation is deemed to be a continuation of each of the predecessor corporations.

2009, c. 15, s. 76.

308.3.6. For the purposes of sections 1094 to 1096 and 1102.4, a share (in this section referred to as the "reorganization share") is deemed to be listed on a designated stock exchange if

(a) a dividend, to which section 308.1 does not apply because of section 308.3, is received in the course of a reorganization;

(b) in contemplation of the reorganization, the reorganization share is

i. issued to a taxpayer by a public corporation in exchange for another share of that corporation (in this section referred to as the "old share") owned by the taxpayer, and

ii. exchanged by the taxpayer for a share of another public corporation (in this section referred to as the "new share") in an exchange that would be a permitted exchange if the definition of "permitted exchange" in the first paragraph of section 308.0.1 were read without reference to its paragraph a and subparagraph ii of its paragraph b;

(c) immediately before the exchange, the old share is listed on a designated stock exchange and is not taxable Canadian property of the taxpayer; and

(d) the new share is listed on a designated stock exchange.

2009, c. 15, s. 76; 2010, c. 5, s. 33.

308.4. (Repealed).

1982, c. 5, s. 66; 1984, c. 15, s. 70; 1986, c. 15, s. 59; 1996, c. 39, s. 101.

308.5. For the purposes of this division, where it can reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of one or more transactions or events was to cause two or more persons to be related to each other or to cause a corporation to control another corporation, so that section 308.1 would, but for this section, not apply to a dividend, those persons shall be deemed not to be related to each other or the corporation shall be deemed not to control the other corporation, as the case may be.

308.6. For the purposes of this division, the following rules apply:

(a) where a dividend referred to in sections 308.1 and 308.2 is received by a corporation as part of a transaction or event or a series of transactions or events, the portion of a capital gain attributable to any income expected to be earned or realized by a corporation after the safe-income determination time for the transaction, event or series of transactions or events is deemed to be a portion of a capital gain attributable to anything other than income;

(b) the income earned or realized by a corporation for a period throughout which it was resident in Canada and was not a private corporation is deemed to be the aggregate of

i. its income for the period otherwise determined on the assumption that no amounts were deductible by the corporation in respect of that period under paragraph j of section 157, as it read before being struck out, and sections 230.1 to 230.11, as they read before their repeal,

ii. the amount by which the amount by which the aggregate of the capital gains of the corporation for the period exceeds the aggregate of its taxable capital gains for the period, exceeds the amount by which the aggregate of the capital losses of the corporation for the period exceeds the aggregate of its allowable capital losses for the period,

iii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount relating to a business carried on by the corporation at any time in the portion of the period that precedes the beginning of the corporation's first taxation year that ends after 27 February 2000, and each of which is equal to the amount by which the amount determined under the second paragraph is exceeded by the aggregate of

(1) where the period began before the corporation's adjustment time, within the meaning of section 107.1, as it read in that portion of the period, the amount by which the aggregate of the amounts relating to the business that is determined under the third paragraph in respect of the corporation exceeds the aggregate of the amounts relating to the business that is determined under the fourth paragraph in respect of the corporation,

(2) 1/3 of the aggregate of the amounts relating to the business that, in respect of the portion of the period following the corporation's adjustment time but preceding the beginning of the corporation's first taxation year that ends after 27 February 2000, are required to be included in computing the corporation's eligible incorporeal capital amount by reason of subparagraph ii of paragraph b of section 107, as that subparagraph read in that portion of the period, and

(3) 1/3 of all amounts required to be included in computing the corporation's income by reason of paragraph i.1 of section 87 and that are received in the portion of the period that precedes the beginning of the corporation's first taxation year that ends after 27 February 2000,

iv. the amount by which 1/2 of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount required by paragraph b of section 105 to be included in computing the corporation's income in respect of a business carried on by the corporation for a taxation year that is included in the period and that ends after 27 February 2000 but before 18 October 2000, as that paragraph b read for that year, exceeds

(1) where the corporation has deducted an amount under section 142.1 in respect of a debt established by it to have become a bad debt in a taxation year that is included in the period and that ends after 27 February 2000 but before 18 October 2000, as that section 142.1 read for that year, or has an allowable capital loss for such a year by reason of the application of section 142.2, as that section 142.2 read for that year, the amount determined by the formula

(2) in any other case, nil, and

v. the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount required by paragraph b of section 105 to be included in computing the corporation's income in respect of a business carried on by the corporation for a taxation year that is included in the period and that ends after 17 October 2000, as that paragraph b read for that year, exceeds

(1) where the corporation has deducted an amount under section 142.1 in respect of a debt established by it to have become a bad debt in a taxation year that is included in the period and that ends after 17 October 2000, as that section 142.1 read for that year, or has an allowable capital loss for such a year by reason of the application of section 142.2, as that section 142.2 read for that year, the amount determined by the formula

B + C, and

(2) in any other case, nil;

(c) the income earned or realized by a corporation for a period throughout which it was a private corporation is deemed to be its income for the period otherwise determined on the assumption that no amounts were deductible by the corporation in respect of that period under paragraph j of section 157, as that paragraph read before being struck out, or sections 230.1 to 230.11, as they read before their repeal;

(d) the income earned or realized by a corporation (in this subparagraph referred to as the "affiliate") for a period that ends at a time when that corporation is a foreign affiliate of another corporation is deemed to be equal to the lesser of

i. the amount that would, at that time, if the Income Tax Regulations made under the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)) were read without reference to subsection 5.6 of section 5905 of those Regulations, be the tax-free surplus balance, within the meaning of subsection 5.5 of that section 5905, of the affiliate in respect of the other corporation, and

ii. the fair market value at that time of all the issued and outstanding shares of the capital stock of the affiliate;

iii. (subparagraph repealed);

(e) in determining whether two or more persons are related to each other, in determining whether a person is at any time a specified shareholder of a corporation and in determining whether control of a corporation has been acquired by a person or group of persons,

i. a person is deemed to be dealing with another person at arm's length and not to be related to the other person if the person is the brother or sister of the other person,

ii. where at any time a person is related to each beneficiary, other than a registered charity, under a trust who is or may, otherwise than by reason of the death of another beneficiary under the trust, be entitled to share in the income or capital of the trust, the person and the trust are deemed to be related at that time to each other and, for this purpose, a person is deemed to be related to himself,

iii. a person and a trust are deemed not to be related to each other unless they are deemed by paragraph d of section 308.3.2 or subparagraph ii to be related to each other or the person is a corporation that is controlled by the trust, and

iv. this Act shall be read without reference to subsection 2 of section 19 and paragraph b of section 20; and

(f) unless section 308.2.0.2 applies, where a corporation receives a dividend any portion of which is a taxable dividend (such a portion being referred to in this subparagraph as the "taxable part"), as part of a transaction or event or a series of transactions or events, the following rules apply:

i. a portion of the dividend is deemed to be a separate taxable dividend equal to the lesser of

(1) the taxable part, and

(2) the amount of the income earned or realized by a corporation after 31 December 1971 and before the safe-income determination time, in relation to the transaction or event or series of transactions or events, that can reasonably be considered to contribute to the capital gain that would have been realized on a disposition at fair market value of the share on which the dividend was received, if the disposition had occurred immediately before the dividend was paid, and

ii. the amount by which the taxable part exceeds the amount of the separate taxable dividend referred to in subparagraph i is deemed to be a separate taxable dividend.

The amount to which subparagraph iii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph refers is equal to the aggregate of

(a) where the period, referred to in subparagraph b of the first paragraph, began after the corporation's adjustment time but before the beginning of the corporation's first taxation year that ends after 27 February 2000, 1/3 of the corporation's eligible incorporeal capital amount in respect of the business at the beginning of that period;

(b) 1/4 of the aggregate of all incorporeal capital amounts in respect of the business payable or disbursed by the corporation in respect of that portion of that period that follows the corporation's adjustment time but precedes the beginning of the corporation's first taxation year that ends after 27 February 2000 and a portion of which was not included in subparagraph c of the fourth paragraph;

(c) where that period began before the corporation's adjustment time, 1/2 of the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts determined in respect of the corporation under subparagraphs a and b of the fourth paragraph exceeds the amount determined in respect of the corporation under the third paragraph; and

(d) 1/3 of all amounts deducted by the corporation under section 142.1, as that section read in the portion of the period that precedes the beginning of the corporation's first taxation year that ends after 27 February 2000, in respect of debts established by it to have become bad debts during that portion of the period.

The first aggregate of the amounts relating to a business referred to in subparagraph 1 of subparagraph iii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph, in respect of a corporation, is equal to the aggregate of the amounts relating to the business that, in respect of the portion of the period referred to in that subparagraph 1 that precedes the corporation's adjustment time, are required to be included in computing the corporation's eligible incorporeal capital amount by reason of subparagraph ii of paragraph b of section 107, as that subparagraph read during the portion of that period.

The second aggregate of the amounts in respect of a business referred to in subparagraph 1 of subparagraph iii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph, with regard to a corporation, is the aggregate of

(a) the corporation's eligible incorporeal capital amount in respect of the business at the commencement of the period contemplated in such subparagraph 1;

(b) one-half of the aggregate of all incorporeal capital amounts in respect of the business payable or disbursed by the corporation during that portion of the period preceding the corporation's adjustment time;

(c) 1/2 of the aggregate of the incorporeal capital amounts in respect of the business payable or disbursed by the corporation during the portion of that period that follows the corporation's adjustment time but that precedes the beginning of the corporation's first taxation year that ends after 27 February 2000, to the extent that the aggregate determined under the third paragraph exceeds the aggregate of the amounts determined under subparagraphs a and b.

In the formulas provided for in subparagraph 1 of subparagraph iv of subparagraph b of the first paragraph and subparagraph 1 of subparagraph v of that subparagraph b,

(a) A is 1/2 of the amount that would be determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 142.1 in respect of the corporation for the last taxation year that ends in the period, as that section 142.1 read for that year, if no amount had been established to have become a bad debt in a taxation year that ends before 28 February 2000;

(b) B is 1/3 of the amount that would be determined under subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 142.1 in respect of the corporation for the last taxation year that ends in the period, as that section 142.1 read for that year, if no amount had been established to have become a bad debt in a taxation year that ends before 28 February 2000; and

(c) C is the amount that would be determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 142.1 in respect of the corporation for the last taxation year that ends in the period, as that section

142.1 read for that year, if no amount had been established to have become a bad debt in a taxation year that ends before 28 February 2000.

311. The taxpayer must also include any amount received under or as:

(a) a retiring allowance, other than an amount received out of or under an employee benefit plan, a retirement compensation arrangement or a salary deferral arrangement;

(b) a death benefit;

(c) a benefit under the Unemployment Insurance Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. U-1), other than a payment relating to a course or program designed to facilitate the re-entry into the labour force of a claimant under that Act, or a benefit under Part I, VII.1, VIII or VIII.1 of the Employment Insurance Act (S.C. 1996, c. 23);

(c.1) a benefit under the Act respecting parental insurance (chapter A-29.011);

(c.2) an income replacement benefit paid under Part 2 of the Veterans Well-being Act (S.C. 2005, c. 21), if the amount is determined under subsection 1 of section 19.1, paragraph b of subsection 1 of section 23 or subsection 1 of section 26.1 of that Act (as modified, where applicable, under Part 5 of that Act);

(d) a benefit under regulations made under an Appropriation Act providing for a scheme of transitional assistance benefits to persons employed in the production of products to which the Canada-United States Agreement on Automotive Products, signed on 16 January 1965, applies;

(e) a prescribed benefit paid under a government assistance program, except to the extent otherwise required to be included in the taxpayer's income;

(e.1) a benefit paid under the Program for Older Worker Adjustment according to the terms of the agreement made following the approval obtained under Order in Council 1396-88 dated 14 September 1988;

(e.2) earnings supplements, other than an amount attributable to child care expenses, provided under a project sponsored by a government or government agency in Canada to encourage an individual to obtain or keep employment or to carry on a business either alone or as a partner actively engaged in the business, otherwise than under a prescribed program;

(e.3) financial assistance under a program established by the Canada Employment Insurance Commission under Part II of the Employment Insurance Act, other than an amount attributable to child care expenses;

(e.4) financial assistance, other than an amount attributable to child care expenses, under a program, other than a prescribed program, that is

i. established by a government or government agency in Canada or by an organization, and

ii. (subparagraph repealed),

iii. the subject of an agreement between the government, government agency or organization, as the case may be, and the Canada Employment Insurance Commission pursuant to section 63 of the Employment Insurance Act;

(e.5) financial assistance, other than an amount attributable to child care expenses or an amount referred to in paragraph e.5.1, under a program established by a government or government agency in Canada that provides income replacement benefits similar to income replacement benefits provided under a program established under the Employment Insurance Act;

(e.5.1) financial assistance under

i. the Canada Emergency Response Benefit Act (S.C. 2020, c. 5, s. 8),

ii. Part VIII.4 of the Employment Insurance Act,

iii. the Canada Emergency Student Benefit Act (S.C. 2020, c. 7),

iv. the Canada Recovery Benefits Act (S.C. 2020, c. 12, s. 2), or

v. a program established by a government or government agency of a province that provides income replacement benefits similar to income replacement benefits provided under a program established under one of the Acts referred to in subparagraphs i to iv;

(e.6) the Wage Earner Protection Program Act (S.C. 2005, c. 47) in respect of wages within the meaning of that Act;

(f) a benefit under a supplementary unemployment benefit plan, to the extent provided by section 965;

(g) a benefit under a deferred profit sharing plan, to the extent provided in Title II of Book VII;

(h) a refund from an individual in respect of an amount described in paragraph g of section 336;

(i) a benefit under a registered education savings plan to the extent provided in sections 904 and 904.1;

(j) (paragraph repealed);

(k) (paragraph repealed);

(k.0.1*)* an income replacement indemnity or compensation for the loss of financial support under a public compensation plan;

(k.0.2*)* a program established under the authority of the Department of Employment and Social Development Act (S.C. 2005, c. 34) in respect of children who are deceased or missing as a result of an offence, or a probable offence, under the Criminal Code (R.S.C. 1985, c. C-46);

311.1. A taxpayer shall also include any amount, other than a prescribed amount, received in the year by the taxpayer as a social assistance payment based on a means, needs or income test, to the extent that such amount is not otherwise required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year.

However, a social assistance payment referred to in the first paragraph does not include the portion of an amount received as last resort financial assistance under the Individual and Family Assistance Act (chapter A-13.1.1) or similar government assistance that relates to

(a) an amount to meet the needs of children, whether minor or of full age;

(b) an amount received as a special benefit to provide for certain particular needs;

(c) an amount attributable to child care expenses;

(d) (subparagraph repealed);

(e) (subparagraph repealed);

(f) if the taxpayer is a person described in the third paragraph participating in an employment-assistance measure or program or a social assistance and support program established under the Individual and Family Assistance Act, an amount received by the taxpayer, as an allowance or reimbursement, in respect of expenses incurred by the taxpayer to travel from the taxpayer's place of residence to the location of activities provided for under the measure or program, including expenses for parking in proximity to the location of the activities.

The person to whom subparagraph f of the second paragraph refers is the person who, for the purposes of the Individual and Family Assistance Act, has demonstrated, in accordance with section 70 of that Act, a capacity for employment that is severely limited.

312. The taxpayer must also include:

(a) (paragraph repealed);

(b) (paragraph repealed);

(b.0.1*) (paragraph repealed);*

(b.1*) (paragraph repealed);*

(b.2*) (paragraph repealed);*

(c) an amount received as an annuity payment, except

i. an amount otherwise required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year,

ii. an amount with respect to an interest in an annuity contract to which section 92.11 applies, or would apply if the contract had an anniversary day in the year at a time when the taxpayer held the interest, ii.1. an amount received out of or under an annuity contract issued or effected as a tax-free savings account,

iii. (subparagraph repealed);

iv. an amount referred to in section 965.0.40 that, under that section, is not required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income;

(c.1*) (paragraph repealed);*

(c.2*)* an amount received out of or under, or as proceeds of disposition of, an annuity where the payment made for the acquisition of the annuity was

i. deductible in computing the taxpayer's income because of paragraph f of section 339 or because of section 923.3, as it read immediately before its repeal,

ii. made in circumstances to which, for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), subsection 21 of section 146 of that Act applied, or

iii. made pursuant to or under a deferred profit sharing plan by a trustee under the plan to purchase the annuity for a beneficiary under the plan;

(d) an amount received as proceeds of the surrender, cancellation, redemption, sale or other disposition of an income-averaging annuity contract, or an amount deemed to have been received under the first paragraph of section 346;

(d.1) an amount received as a payment in full or partial commutation of an income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities or as proceeds of disposition by reason of the cancellation or redemption of an income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities;

(e) (paragraph repealed);

(f) an amount received as legal costs and expenses awarded by a court on a contestation or appeal relating to an assessment of tax, interest or penalties referred to in paragraph e of section 336 or as reimbursement of costs incurred in relation to an assessment, a decision, an application or a notice referred to in paragraph d.4 or e of section 336 if, in relation to that assessment, decision, application or notice, an amount has been or may be deducted under paragraph d.4 or e in computing the taxpayer's income;

(f.1) an amount received as an award or reimbursement in respect of judicial or extrajudicial expenses, other than those relating to a partition or settlement of property arising out of, or on a breakdown of, a marriage, paid to collect or establish a right to a retiring allowance or a benefit under a pension plan, other than a benefit under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan (chapter R-9) or a similar plan, within the meaning of that Act, in respect of employment;

(g) the aggregate of all amounts, other than an amount referred to in paragraph i of section 311, an amount received in the course of business and an amount received by virtue of, or in the course of, an office or employment, each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer in the year as a scholarship, fellowship or bursary, or a prize for achievement in a field of endeavour ordinarily carried on by the taxpayer, other than an amount received by the taxpayer from a school board, which relates to the actual costs of periodic transportation incurred by the taxpayer, or by an individual who is a member of the taxpayer's household, in accordance with the budgetary rules established by the Minister of Education, Recreation and Sports for the purpose of applying the Education Act for Cree, Inuit and Naskapi Native Persons (chapter I-14);

(h) the amount by which any grant received by the taxpayer to carry on research or any similar work exceeds the total of expenses incurred by the taxpayer for that purpose in the year, in the preceding year but after obtaining confirmation that the grant would be awarded to the taxpayer, and in the year following the year in which the grant is received, to the extent that those expenses did not reduce an amount received as a grant for another year, other than

i. personal or living expenses incurred by the taxpayer while away from home in the course of carrying on the work except travel expenses, which include the amounts expended for meals and lodging,

ii. expenses in respect of which the taxpayer is reimbursed, or

iii. expenses that are otherwise deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

(i) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer in the year under the Apprenticeship Incentive Grant program or the Apprenticeship Completion Grant program administered by the Department of Employment and Social Development of Canada; and

(j) an amount received in the year by the taxpayer or by a person who does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer on account of a debt in respect of which a deduction was made under paragraph l of section 336 in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year.

312.3. In this chapter,

"child support amount" means any support amount that is not identified in the agreement or order under which it is receivable as being solely for the support of a recipient who is a spouse or former spouse of the payer or who is the father or mother of a child of the payer;

"commencement day" in respect of an agreement or order means

(a) where the agreement or order is made after 30 April 1997, the day it is made; and

(b) where the agreement or order is made before 1 May 1997, the day that is after 30 April 1997 and is the earliest of

i. the day specified as the commencement day by the payer and the recipient of the child support amount payable or receivable under the agreement or order, in a valid election made under subparagraph i of paragraph b of the definition of "commencement day" in subsection 4 of section 56.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in relation to the agreement or order,

ii. where the agreement or order is varied after 30 April 1997 to change the child support amounts payable to the recipient, the day on which the first payment of the varied amount is required to be made,

iii. where a subsequent agreement or order is made after 30 April 1997, the effect of which is to change the total child support amounts payable to the recipient by the payer, the commencement day of the first such subsequent agreement or order, and

iv. the day specified in the agreement or order, or any variation of the agreement or order, as the commencement day for the purposes of this Part or, if the day is specified in such a variation made after 19 December 2006, of the Income Tax Act;

"support amount" means, subject to the second paragraph, an amount receivable as an allowance on a periodic basis for the maintenance of the recipient, a child of the recipient or both the recipient and a child of the recipient, if the recipient has discretion as to the use of the amount, and

(a) the recipient is the spouse or former spouse of the payer, the recipient and payer are living separate and apart because of the breakdown of their marriage and the amount is receivable under an order of a competent tribunal or under a written agreement; or

(b) the payer is the father or mother of a child of the recipient and the amount is receivable under an order made by a competent tribunal in accordance with the laws of a province.

For the purposes of the definition of "support amount" in the first paragraph, the following rules apply:

(a) a support amount does not include an amount described in that definition that, if paid and received, would be so under a decree, order or judgment of a competent tribunal, or under a written agreement, that does not have a commencement day, and would not be required to be included in computing the income of the recipient of the amount if

i. paragraphs a to b.1 of section 312, as they applied before being struck out, applied in respect of an amount received after 31 December 1996 and were read without reference to the words "and throughout the remainder of the year", and

ii. section 312.4 were disregarded;

(b) the portion of that definition before paragraph a shall be read without reference to the words "the recipient has discretion as to the use of the amount, and", where it applies in respect of an amount receivable under a decree, order or judgment of a competent tribunal, or under a written agreement, made after 27 March 1986 and before 1 January 1988.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subparagraph i of paragraph b of the definition of "commencement day" in subsection 4 of section 56.1 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under subparagraph i of paragraph b of the definition of "commencement day" in the first paragraph before 20 December 2006.

1998, c. 16, s. 109; 2000, c. 5, s. 85; 2009, c. 5, s. 111.

312.4. A taxpayer shall also include the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount determined by the formula

$$A - (B + C).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a support amount received after 31 December 1996 and before the end of the year by the taxpayer from a particular person where the taxpayer and the particular person were living separate and apart at the time the amount was received;

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a child support amount that became receivable by the taxpayer from the particular person under an agreement or order on or after the commencement day and before the end of the year in respect of a period that began on or after the commencement day; and

(c) C is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a support amount received after 31 December 1996 by the taxpayer from the particular person and included in the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year.

The first and second paragraphs do not apply in respect of an amount received pursuant to an order or a written agreement made before 16 June 1999 where, but for the amendments made to subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 2.2.1 by section 14 of the Act to amend various legislative provisions concerning de facto spouses (1999, chapter 14), this section would not have applied in respect of that amount, except if

(a) subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 2.2.1, as amended by section 14 of the Act to amend various legislative provisions concerning de facto spouses, applies to the taxpayer and the particular person before 16 June 1999 because of the third paragraph of section 2.2.1; or

(b) the taxpayer and the particular person jointly elect to have the first and second paragraphs of this section and of section 336.0.3 apply after 15 June 1999 in respect of that amount by filing a document signed by the taxpayer and the particular person with the Minister on or before the taxpayer's and the particular person's filing-due date for the taxation year that includes 20 December 2001.

1998, c. 16, s. 109; 2000, c. 5, s. 86; 2001, c. 53, s. 54.

312.5. A taxpayer shall also include any amount received under an order of a competent tribunal as a reimbursement of an amount deducted under any of paragraphs a to b of subsection 1 of section 336, as it read for that preceding year, in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, or that could have been so deducted were it not for section 334.1, as it read for that preceding year, or deducted under section 336.0.3 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year.

Despite the first paragraph, a taxpayer is not required to include, if the taxpayer so elects, the portion of the amount referred to in the first paragraph received by the taxpayer that relates to one or more of the taxpayer's eligible taxation years that precede the taxation year 2003 and follow the taxation year 1997.

For the purposes of the second paragraph, "eligible taxation year" of a taxpayer means a taxation year throughout which the taxpayer was resident in Canada, other than a taxation year that ends in a calendar year in which the taxpayer became a bankrupt or a taxation year included, in whole or in part, in an averaging period determined in respect of the taxpayer for the purposes of Division II of Chapter II of Title I of Book V, as it read before being repealed.

313. For the purposes of section 312.4, where an order or agreement, or any variation thereof, provides for the payment of an amount to a taxpayer or for the benefit of the taxpayer, a child in the taxpayer's custody or both the taxpayer and a child in the taxpayer's custody, the amount or any part thereof, when payable, is deemed to be payable to and receivable by the taxpayer and, when paid, is deemed to have been paid to and received by the taxpayer.

1975, c. 21, s. 8; 1982, c. 5, s. 69; 1982, c. 17, s. 51; 1984, c. 15, s. 74; 1986, c. 15, s. 61; 1990, c. 59, s. 143; 1994, c. 22, s. 140; 1995, c. 18, s. 90; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 1998, c. 16, s. 110; 2003, c. 9, s. 22.

313.0.0.1. For the purposes of section 312.3, where an order, or any variation thereof, provides for the payment of an amount to a taxpayer or for the benefit of the taxpayer, a child in the taxpayer's custody or both the taxpayer and a child in the taxpayer's custody and the amount or any part thereof is paid by the Minister under the Act to facilitate the payment of support (chapter P-2.2) otherwise than out of the sums collected from the debtor of support, the amount or any part thereof, when paid, is deemed to have been receivable by the taxpayer under the order.

1998, c. 16, s. 111.

313.0.1. Where an amount, other than an amount that is otherwise a support amount, became payable in a taxation year by a person, in this section and in section 313.0.2 referred to as the "particular person", under an order of a competent tribunal or under a written agreement, in respect of an expense incurred in the year or the preceding taxation year for the maintenance of a taxpayer described in the second paragraph, a child in the taxpayer's custody or both the taxpayer and a child in the taxpayer's custody and the order or agreement provides that subsection 2 of each of sections 56.1 and 60.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) apply to any amount paid or payable thereunder, the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is such an amount payable exceeds the amount determined under section 313.0.3 is, for the purposes of this chapter, deemed to be an amount payable to and receivable by the taxpayer as an allowance on a periodic basis, and the taxpayer is deemed to have discretion as to the use of that amount.

The taxpayer to whom the first paragraph refers is

(a) the spouse or former spouse of the particular person; or

(b) where the amount became payable under an order made by a competent tribunal in accordance with the laws of a province, the father or mother of a child of the particular person.

313.0.2. For the purposes of section 313.0.1, an expense does not include an expenditure in respect of a self-contained domestic establishment in which the particular person resides or an expenditure for the acquisition of corporeal property that is not an expenditure on account of a medical or educational expense or in respect of the acquisition, improvement or maintenance of a self-contained domestic establishment in which the taxpayer described in the second paragraph of that section 313.0.1 resides.

313.0.3. The amount referred to in the first paragraph of section 313.0.1 is the amount by which

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included in the aggregate determined under that paragraph in respect of the acquisition or improvement of a self-contained domestic establishment in which the taxpayer described in the second paragraph of that section 313.0.1 resides, including any payment of principal or interest in respect of a loan made or indebtedness incurred to finance, in any manner whatever, such acquisition or improvement; exceeds

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount equal to 20% of the original principal amount of a loan or indebtedness described in paragraph a.

1986, c. 15, s. 61; 1990, c. 59, s. 144; 1994, c. 22, s. 141; 1998, c. 16, s. 112.

313.0.4. (Repealed).

1986, c. 15, s. 61; 1990, c. 59, s. 145.

313.0.5. For the purposes of this chapter, where a written agreement or order of a competent tribunal made at any time in a taxation year provides that an amount received before that time and in the year or the preceding taxation year is to be considered to have been paid and received thereunder, the following rules apply:

(a) the amount is deemed to have been received thereunder;

(b) the agreement or order is deemed, except for the purpose of this section, to have been made on the day on which the first such amount was received.

However, where the agreement or order is made after 30 April 1997 and varies a child support amount payable to the recipient from the last such amount received by the recipient before 1 May 1997, each varied amount of child support received under the agreement or order is deemed to have been receivable under an agreement or order the commencement day of which is the day on which the first payment of the varied amount is required to be made.

1986, c. 15, s. 61; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1998, c. 16, s. 113.

313.1. A taxpayer shall also include the amount of any grant received by him in the year under a prescribed program relating to home insulation or energy conversion or so received in the year by his spouse who resided with him at the time of payment and whose income for the year, determined without reference to this section, section 311.1 and paragraph d.1 of section 336, is less than the taxpayer's income so determined for the year, to the extent that paragraph s of section 87 does not require the inclusion of such amount in computing the taxpayer's income or that of his spouse for the year or a subsequent year, except where the taxpayer resided with his spouse at the time of payment and the taxpayer's income for the year, determined without reference to this section, section 311.1 and paragraph d.1 of section 336, is less than the taxpayer's spouse's income so determined for the year.

313.2. (Repealed).

1986, c. 15, s. 62; 1989, c. 5, s. 58; 1993, c. 64, s. 28.

313.3. (Repealed).

1986, c. 15, s. 62; 1989, c. 5, s. 59; 1993, c. 64, s. 28.

313.4. A taxpayer shall also include every amount received by him as a benefit in the year out of or under a salary deferral arrangement in respect of another person except to the extent that the amount, or another amount that may reasonably be considered to relate thereto, has been included in computing the income of that other person for the year or for any preceding taxation year.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the first paragraph does not apply to an amount received by or from a trust governed by a salary deferral arrangement.

1988, c. 18, s. 17.

313.5. A taxpayer shall also include any amount relating to a retirement compensation arrangement, to the extent provided in sections 890.9 and 890.10.

1989, c. 77, s. 27.

313.6. A taxpayer shall also include the value of benefits received or enjoyed by any person in the year in respect of a workshop, seminar, training program or any similar development program by reason of the taxpayer's membership in a registered national arts service organization, in a recognized arts organization or in a registered cultural or communications organization.

1993, c. 16, s. 130; 1995, c. 1, s. 199; 1997, c. 14, s. 290; 2006, c. 36, s. 35.

313.7. There shall be included in computing an individual's income for a taxation year during which the individual was not a bankrupt the amount deducted under section 346.1 in computing the individual's income for the preceding taxation year.

1996, c. 39, s. 105.

313.8. There shall be included in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year during which the taxpayer was not a bankrupt the amount deducted under section 346.4 in computing the taxpayer's income for the preceding taxation year.

1996, c. 39, s. 105.

313.9. A taxpayer shall also include the aggregate of all amounts received in the year as consideration for the disposition by the taxpayer of a property, other than a property acquired by the taxpayer in circumstances to which section 527.3 or 617.1 applied, the cost of which was included in computing an amount determined under section 75.2.1 or 75.3 in respect of the taxpayer or in respect of a person with whom the taxpayer is not dealing at arm's length, to the extent that the aggregate of those amounts received as consideration for the disposition of the property in the year or in a preceding taxation year exceeds the total of

(a) the cost to the taxpayer of the property immediately before its disposition; and

(b) the aggregate of all amounts included in respect of the disposition of the property under this section in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year.

2004, c. 8, s. 58; 2007, c. 12, s. 49.

313.10. An individual, other than a trust that is not a personal trust, shall also include in computing the individual's income for a taxation year an amount equal to the amount by which the individual's investment expense for the year exceeds the individual's investment income for the year.

If the individual benefits for the year from the deduction provided for in section 737.16 or 737.18.10 in respect of an employment, the amount determined under the first paragraph must be determined with reference to the following rules:

(a) in the case of the deduction provided for in section 737.16, any particular amount otherwise included in the investment expense or investment income of the individual for the year, to the extent that that particular amount is taken into account in computing an income realized, or a loss sustained, in a specified period of the individual established under the fourth paragraph of section 65 of the Act respecting international financial centres (chapter C-8.3), in relation to the employment, or is such an income or loss, is deemed to be equal to the product obtained by multiplying that particular amount by the amount by which 100% exceeds the percentage determined under subparagraph 1 of the second paragraph of that section 65 in respect of that period; and

(b) in the case of the deduction provided for in section 737.18.10, any particular amount otherwise included in the investment expense or investment income of the individual for the year, to the extent that that particular amount is taken into account in computing an income realized, or a loss sustained, in the individual's exemption period, within the meaning of section 737.18.6, in relation to the employment, or is such an income or loss, is deemed to be equal to zero;

(c) (subparagraph repealed).

In this section, "investment expense" and "investment income" have the meaning assigned by section 336.5.

2005, c. 38, s. 68; 2022, c. 23, s. 33.

313.11. A taxpayer who is a transferee for the year, within the meaning of the first paragraph of section 336.8, shall also include any amount that is a split-retirement income for the year, determined in respect of the taxpayer for the purposes of Chapter II.1 of Title VI.

However, a taxpayer who dies in a taxation year shall include an amount under the first paragraph only in the fiscal return that is required to be filed for the year under this Part, otherwise than because of an election made by the taxpayer's legal representative in accordance with the second paragraph of section 429 or section 681 or 1003.

Similarly, a taxpayer who became a bankrupt during a calendar year shall include an amount under the first paragraph only in the fiscal return the taxpayer is required to file under this Part for the taxation year that is deemed, under section 779, to begin on the date of the bankruptcy.

2009, c. 5, s. 113; 2010, c. 25, s. 28.

313.12. A taxpayer shall also include the total of all amounts, each of which is an amount received in the year by the taxpayer that is required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income under section 869.11, except to the extent that the amount is required to be included under section 429 in computing the income for the year by the taxpayer or other person resident in Canada.

2011, c. 6, s. 127.

313.13. A taxpayer shall also include any amount that is required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under Title VI.0.2 of Book VII, other than an amount distributed under a pooled registered pension plan as a return of all or a portion of a contribution to the plan to the extent that the amount

(a) is a payment described under clause A or B of subparagraph ii of paragraph d of subsection 3 of section 147.5 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)); and

(b) is not deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year.

2015, c. 21, s. 158; 2021, c. 14, s. 43.

313.14. A taxpayer shall also include any amount received in the year under a contract, to provide information to the Canada Revenue Agency or the Agence du revenu du Québec, entered into by the taxpayer under a program administered by the Canada Revenue Agency or the Agence du revenu du Québec to obtain information relating to tax non-compliance.

2015, c. 36, s. 18; 2019, c. 14, s. 114.

313.15. A taxpayer shall also include any amount that is required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under Title VI.0.3 of Book VII.

2022, c. 23, s. 34.

CHAPTER III

INDIRECT, DEFERRED AND OTHER PAYMENTS

1972, c. 23.

314. A payment or transfer to another person, according to the taxpayer's instructions or with the taxpayer's consent, of money, rights or property for the benefit of the taxpayer or for that of the other person (otherwise than by partition of a retirement pension pursuant to sections 158.3 to 158.8 of the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan (chapter R-9) or any comparable provision of a similar plan, within the meaning of that Act) is deemed received by the taxpayer and must be included in computing the taxpayer's income to the extent that it would be if the payment or transfer had been made to the taxpayer.

1972, c. 23, s. 288; 1972, c. 26, s. 43; 1989, c. 77, s. 28; 1995, c. 1, s. 34; 2001, c. 7, s. 42; 2009, c. 15, s. 77; 2013, c. 10, s. 24.

315. (Repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 289; 1990, c. 59, s. 146.

316. A taxpayer who assigned or transferred before the end of a taxation year to a person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length at that time the right to an amount that would otherwise be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year shall include in computing the taxpayer's income for that year the part of that amount that relates to the period in the year throughout which he was resident in Canada, unless the income is from property that the taxpayer also assigned or transferred or from the portion of a retirement pension partitioned under sections 158.3 to 158.8 of the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan (chapter R-9) or any comparable provision of a similar plan, within the meaning of that Act.

316.1. Where a particular individual, other than a trust, or a trust of which the particular individual is a beneficiary, receives a loan from or becomes indebted to a creditor or creditor trust, directly or indirectly by means of a trust or by any other means, and it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for making the loan or incurring the indebtedness is to reduce or avoid tax by causing income from the loaned property to be included in the income of the particular individual, the following rules apply:

(a) any income of the particular individual, for a taxation year, from the loaned property that relates to the period or periods in the year throughout which the creditor or the creditor trust, as the case may be, is resident in Canada and the particular individual is not dealing at arm's length with the creditor or the original transferor in respect of the creditor trust, as the case may be, is deemed to be income of the creditor or creditor trust, as the case may be, for that taxation year and not income of the particular individual;

(b) where section 467 applies in respect of the loaned property and income therefrom is deemed to be income of the creditor trust and not income of the particular individual, as provided for in subparagraph a, section 467 shall be applied after the application of subparagraph a.

Subparagraph a of the first paragraph does not apply, in respect of such income of the individual

(a) to the extent that sections 462.1 to 462.4 apply or would, but for section 462.16, apply to such income;

(b) in the case of a creditor, to the extent that section 467 applies to such income;

(c) in the case of a creditor trust,

i. to the extent that subparagraph a of the first paragraph applies to such income in the case of a creditor;

ii. to the extent that section 467 applies to such income otherwise than by reason of subparagraph b of the first paragraph.

In this section,

"beneficiary" of a trust means an individual who is beneficially interested in the trust;

"creditor", in respect of a particular individual, or of a trust of which the particular individual is a beneficiary, having received a loan or incurred a debt, means the individual, other than a trust, who made the loan or became the creditor and with whom the particular individual does not deal at arm's length;

"creditor trust", in respect of a particular individual, or of a trust of which the particular individual is a beneficiary, having received a loan or incurred a debt, means the trust that made the loan or became the creditor and to which property has, directly or indirectly by means of a trust or by any other means, been transferred by another individual, in this section referred to as the "original transferor", who is not a trust, who is resident in Canada at any time in the period during which the loan or indebtedness is outstanding and with whom the particular individual does not deal at arm's length;

"loaned property", in respect of a particular individual, or of a trust of which the particular individual is a beneficiary, having received a loan or incurred a debt, includes property that the loan or indebtedness enabled or assisted the particular individual, or the trust in which the particular individual is a beneficiary, to acquire, and property substituted for such property or for the loaned property.

316.2. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, section 316.1 does not apply to any income derived in a particular taxation year, in respect of a loan or indebtedness, where the following conditions are met:

(a) interest is charged on the loan or indebtedness at a rate equal to or greater than the lesser of the following rates:

i. the prescribed rate of interest in effect at the time the loan was made or the indebtedness was incurred, and

ii. the rate that would, having regard to all the circumstances, have been agreed on, at the time the loan was made or the indebtedness was incurred, between parties dealing with each other at arm's length;

(b) the amount of interest that is payable in respect of the particular taxation year in respect of the loan or indebtedness is paid not later than 30 days after the end of the particular taxation year; and

(c) the amount of interest that was payable in respect of each taxation year preceding the particular taxation year in respect of the loan or indebtedness was paid not later than 30 days after the end of each such taxation year.

1990, c. 59, s. 147; 1993, c. 16, s. 131.

316.3. For the purposes of section 316.1, where at any time a particular property is used to repay, in whole or in part, a loan or indebtedness that enabled or assisted an individual to acquire another property, there shall be included in computing the income from the particular property that proportion of the income or loss, as the case may be, derived after that time from the other property or from property substituted therefor that the amount so repaid is of the cost to the individual of the other property.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, nothing in this section shall affect the application of section 316.1 to any income or loss derived from the other property or from property substituted therefor.

1990, c. 59, s. 147; 1993, c. 16, s. 132.

316.4. Where, in connection with a qualified investment, within the meaning of paragraph d of section 965.29, made after 26 April 1990 by a Québec business investment company, within the meaning of paragraph f of the said section, in respect of any project, a benefit is extended in a taxation year to an individual who is or is about to become a shareholder thereof, or to a person related to the individual, by a party to the qualified investment, other than the Québec business investment company, or by a third person with an interest in the project, the amount of the benefit shall be included in computing the individual's income for the year.

However, where the individual contemplated in the first paragraph is a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or a registered retirement income fund and the benefit is extended in the year to that individual, to the annuitant, within the meaning of paragraph b of section 905.1 or paragraph d of section 961.1.5, as the case may be, under the plan or the fund, or to any other person related to the annuitant, the amount of the benefit shall be included in computing the annuitant's income for the year.

1991, c. 8, s. 3.

316.5. This chapter does not apply to any amount that is included in computing an individual's split income for a taxation year.

2001, c. 53, s. 55.

CHAPTER IV

PENSIONS

1972, c. 23.

317. A taxpayer shall include any amount received by him as a pension benefit, including

(a) the amount of any pension, supplement or allowance under the Old Age Security Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. O-9) and the amount of any similar payment under a law of a province;

(b) the amount of any benefit under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan (chapter R-9) and the amount of any similar plan within the meaning of paragraph u of section 1 of that Act;

(c) the amount of any payment out of or under a specified pension plan; and

(d) the amount of any payment out of or under a foreign retirement arrangement established under the laws of a country, except to the extent that the amount would not, if the taxpayer were resident in the country, be subject to the income taxation in the country.

However, the amounts described in the first paragraph do not include

(a) the portion of an amount received by the taxpayer out of or under an employee benefit plan that is required by section 47.1 to be included in computing the taxpayer's income, or would be required to be so included if section 47.2 were construed without reference to the words "a return of amounts contributed to the plan by him or a deceased employee of whom he is a legatee by particular title or legal representative";

(b) the portion of an amount received out of or under a retirement compensation arrangement that is required by section 313.5, where it refers to an amount provided for in paragraph a or c of section 890.9, to be included in computing the taxpayer's income;

(c) an amount received as a death benefit paid, after 9 May 1996, in accordance with section 168 of the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan or a similar provision of any similar plan within the meaning of paragraph u of section 1 of that Act; or

(d) an amount received by the taxpayer out of or under a registered pension plan as a return of all or a portion of a contribution to the plan, to the extent that the amount

i. is a payment made to the taxpayer under subsection 19 of section 147.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)) or under subparagraph iii of paragraph d of section 8502 of the Income Tax Regulations made under that Act, and

ii. is not deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year.

1972, c. 23, s. 291; 1975, c. 22, s. 58; 1978, c. 26, s. 50; 1982, c. 5, s. 70; 1984, c. 15, s. 75; 1985, c. 25, s. 56; 1989, c. 77, s. 30; 1993, c. 16, s. 133; 1997, c. 14, s. 59; 2000, c. 5, s. 293; 2001, c. 53, s. 56; 2013, c. 10, s. 25; 2015, c. 21, s. 160.

317.1. A taxpayer shall not include, by virtue of section 317, an amount that he may not, by reason of subsection 21 of section 146 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), include in computing his income for the purposes of that Act.

1995, c. 49, s. 78.

317.2. An amount referred to in subparagraph c of the second paragraph of section 317 shall be included in computing the income of the succession of the contributor in respect of whom it is paid, for the taxation year in which it is paid, whether or not all or part of the amount was paid to a taxpayer other than the succession.

1997, c. 14, s. 60; 1998, c. 16, s. 251.

317.3. If an amount in respect of a foreign retirement arrangement is, as a result of a transaction, an event or a circumstance, considered to be distributed to an individual under the income tax laws of the country in which the arrangement is established, the amount is, for the purposes of subparagraph d of the first paragraph of section 317, deemed to be received by the individual as a payment out of the arrangement in the taxation year that includes the time of the transaction, event or circumstance.

2009, c. 5, s. 114.

318. Where a taxpayer receives a payment under a retirement plan to which he has contributed the investment income of which has already been exempted from taxation under the Income War Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1927, chapter 97) by reason of an election of the trustee or corporation administering such plan, he may include in computing his income only the amount remaining after subtracting from the payment the greater of the following two proportions of the said payment:

(a) that the aggregate of the amounts paid by him under the plan during the period of such exemption is to the aggregate of all the amounts paid by him under the plan, and

(b) that the aggregate of the amounts so paid by him under the plan during the period of exemption with simple interest at 3% per annum computed from the end of the year of the payment of each sum so paid to the beginning of the payment of the pension benefit is to the aggregate of all the amounts paid by him under the plan with simple interest computed at the same rate and in the same manner.

1972, c. 23, s. 292; 1991, c. 25, s. 176; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

319. Where the payment contemplated in section 318 has been received for a period for which the taxpayer has contributed only partially, the said section is applicable only to that part of the payment which may reasonably be regarded as having been received in respect of the part of the period for which he has contributed under the plan and the remainder must be included in computing his income for the year without any deduction.

320. A taxpayer who, between 15 August 1944 and 31 December 1945, made a contribution exceeding $300 under a registered retirement plan in respect of services rendered while he was not a contributor must include in computing his income the payment he receives under such plan after deducting the proportion of it that his contribution less $300 is of the aggregate of the amounts paid under such plan.

1972, c. 23, s. 294; 1973, c. 17, s. 34; 1991, c. 25, s. 176.

321. A person who receives a payment under a plan contemplated in section 318 or 320 pursuant to the death of the taxpayer must include in computing his income for the year only that part of such payment which would have been included under this chapter in computing the income of such taxpayer if he had received such amount under the plan.

1972, c. 23, s. 295.

CHAPTER V

GOVERNMENT ANNUITIES AND LIKE ANNUITIES

1972, c. 23.

322. (1) In determining the amount that shall be included in respect of payments he receives in a taxation year under contracts entered into before 26 May 1932 with the Government of Canada or under annuity contracts like those provided in the Government Annuities Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1970, chapter G-6), entered into before such date with the government of a province or a corporation incorporated or licensed to carry on an annuities business in Canada, the taxpayer may deduct from the aggregate of the amounts he has received the lesser of:

(a) $5,000; and

(b) the aggregate of the amounts that would have been received if such contracts had remained in force on the conditions existing immediately before 25 June 1940, without the exercise of any option or contractual right to increase the amount of the annuity by the payment of an additional sum or premium unless such additional sum or premium had been paid before such date.

(2) The taxpayer may also deduct the lesser of $1,200 and the aggregate contemplated in paragraph b of subsection 1 if the contracts were entered into after 25 May 1932 and before 25 June 1940.

1972, c. 23, s. 296; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 14, s. 61.

323. If the taxpayer is entitled to both deductions provided for in section 322, he shall not make a deduction under subsection 2 of section 322 if the amount deductible under subsection 1 of section 322 is $1,200 or more, but he may, if such deduction is less than $1,200, make a deduction computed as though subsection 2 of section 322 applied to all the contracts entered into before 25 June 1940.

1972, c. 23, s. 297.

324. The capital element of a payment of annuities, for the purposes of paragraph f of section 336, is computed in respect of what remains after deducting from the aggregate of the payments of annuities to which this chapter applies for a taxation year the deductions provided for by sections 322 and 323.

1972, c. 23, s. 298; 1998, c. 16, s. 251.

325. Where spouses have each received annuity payments in respect of which they may make a deduction under this chapter, the amount deductible may be computed as if their annuities belonged to a single person; it may be deducted by either of them or apportioned between them in such manner as may be agreed by them or, in case of disagreement, as the Minister may determine.

1972, c. 23, s. 299.

326. This chapter does not apply to an amount received out of or under a registered pension plan.

1972, c. 23, s. 300; 1991, c. 25, s. 64.

327. For the purposes of this chapter, an annuity is deemed to have been increased after 24 June 1940 if, since, the amount which is payable under the contract has been increased whether by higher periodic payments, by increasing the number of payments or otherwise.

1972, c. 23, s. 301.

1972, c. 23, s. 302; 1973, c. 18, s. 7; 1975, c. 22, s. 60; 1980, c. 13, s. 23; 1982, c. 5, s. 71; 1986, c. 19, s. 59.

329.1. (Repealed).

1982, c. 5, s. 71; 1986, c. 19, s. 59.

330. A taxpayer must include in computing his income for a taxation year:

(a) the amount by which the portion of the proceeds from the disposition by the taxpayer of a foreign resource property that became receivable in the year exceeds the total of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition and that was not otherwise deductible for the purposes of this Part, and

ii. where the property is a foreign resource property in relation to a country, the amount designated by the taxpayer in respect of the disposition in prescribed form filed with the taxpayer's fiscal return under this Part for the year;

(b) the amount deducted pursuant to sections 357 and 358, as they apply in respect of a disposition made before 13 November 1981, in computing the taxpayer's income for the preceding taxation year;

(c) the amount by which the amount described in section 388 exceeds the total of

i. the portion of the taxpayer's foreign exploration and development expenses incurred before the time referred to in section 388, that was not deductible or was not deducted, as the case may be, in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, and

ii. the amount designated by the taxpayer in prescribed form filed with the taxpayer's fiscal return under this Part for the year, not exceeding the portion of the amount described in section 388 for which the consideration given by the taxpayer was services rendered or property, other than a foreign resource property, transferred by the taxpayer, the original cost of which to the taxpayer having been primarily specified foreign exploration and development expenses in relation to a country, within the meaning of section 372.2, or foreign resource expenses in relation to a country;

(d) the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts deducted under section 399 in computing his cumulative Canadian exploration expenses at the end of the year exceeds the total of the aggregate of all amounts included under section 398 in computing his cumulative Canadian exploration expenses at the end of the year and the aggregate determined under subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 418.31.1 in respect of the taxpayer for the year;

(e) the amount by which the total of the aggregate of all amounts deducted under section 412 in computing his cumulative Canadian development expenses at the end of the year and the amount designated by him for the year for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) under subsection 14.2 of section 66 thereof exceeds the total of the aggregate of all amounts included under section 411 in computing his cumulative Canadian development expenses at the end of the year and the aggregate determined under subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 418.31.1 in respect of the taxpayer for the year;

(e.1) the amount by which the aggregate of the amounts deducted under section 418.1.4 in computing the taxpayer's cumulative foreign resource expense at the end of the year in relation to a country exceeds the total of

i. the aggregate of the amounts included under section 418.1.3 in computing the taxpayer's cumulative foreign resource expense at the end of the year in relation to that country, and

ii. the aggregate determined for the year under paragraph a of section 418.32.2 in respect of the taxpayer and that country;

(f) any amount contemplated in paragraph b of section 419.3; and

(g) any amount contemplated in section 419.4.

1975, c. 22, s. 61; 1985, c. 25, s. 57; 1986, c. 19, s. 60; 1987, c. 67, s. 78; 1993, c. 16, s. 134; 2004, c. 8, s. 59; 2023, c. 19, s. 23.

330.1. The share of a member of a partnership of the amount that would, but for subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 330 and paragraph d of section 600, be included under that paragraph a, in relation to the disposition of a foreign resource property, in computing the partnership's income for a fiscal period of the partnership, is deemed to be the proceeds from the disposition by the member of the foreign resource property that became receivable by the member at the end of that fiscal period.

332.1. A taxpayer shall include in computing his income for a taxation year, the aggregate of

(a) the amount obtained by applying the stated percentage to 33 1/3% of each amount that is described in section 332.1.1 and in respect of which the consideration given by him was a property, other than a share, depreciable property of a prescribed class or a Canadian resource property, or services the cost of which may reasonably be regarded as having been an expenditure that was added in computing the earned depletion base of the taxpayer or of a predecessor corporation where the taxpayer is a successor corporation to the predecessor;

(b) the amount obtained by applying the stated percentage to 33 1/3% of each amount determined under section 332.2 in respect of a disposition of depreciable property of a prescribed class, other than a disposition of such property that had been used by the taxpayer to any person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, of the taxpayer after 11 December 1979 and in the year, the capital cost of which was added in computing the earned depletion base of the taxpayer or of a person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length or in computing the earned depletion base of a predecessor corporation where the taxpayer is a successor corporation to the predecessor;

(c) 33 1/3% of each amount determined under section 332.2 in respect of a disposition of depreciable property of a prescribed class that is bituminous sands equipment, other than a disposition of such property that had been used by the taxpayer to any person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, of the taxpayer in the year but after 11 December 1979 and before 1 January 1990, the capital cost of which was added in computing the supplementary depletion base of the taxpayer or of a person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length or in computing the supplementary depletion base of a predecessor corporation where the taxpayer is a successor corporation to the predecessor;

(d) 50% of each amount determined under section 332.2 in respect of a disposition of depreciable property of a prescribed class that is enhanced recovery equipment, other than a disposition of such property that had been used by the taxpayer to any person with whom the taxpayer was not dealing at arm's length, of the taxpayer in the year but after 11 December 1979 and before 1 January 1990, the capital cost of which was added in computing the supplementary depletion base of the taxpayer or of a person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length or in computing the supplementary depletion base of a predecessor corporation where the taxpayer is a successor corporation to the predecessor;

(e) 66 2/3% of each amount that became receivable by him in the year but after 11 December 1979 and before 1 January 1990 and in respect of which the consideration given by the taxpayer was a property, other than a share or a Canadian resource property, or services the cost of which may reasonably be regarded as having been an expenditure in connection with an oil or gas well in respect of which an amount was included in computing the taxpayer's exploration base or in computing the exploration base of a predecessor corporation where the taxpayer is a successor corporation to the predecessor;

(f) the amount obtained by applying the stated percentage to 33 1/3% of each amount that became receivable by him in the year but after 19 April 1983 and in respect of which the consideration given by him was a property, other than a share, depreciable property of a prescribed class or a Canadian resource property, or services the cost of which may reasonably be regarded as having been an expenditure that was added in computing the resource exploration base of the taxpayer or of a specified predecessor of the taxpayer;

(g) the amount obtained by applying the stated percentage to 33 1/3% of each amount that became receivable by him in the year but after 31 December 1986 and in respect of which the consideration given by him was a property, other than a share, depreciable property of a prescribed class or a Canadian resource property, or services the cost of which may reasonably be regarded as having been an expenditure that was added in computing the oil and gas exploration base of the taxpayer or of a specified predecessor of the taxpayer.

1982, c. 5, s. 72; 1985, c. 25, s. 58; 1986, c. 15, s. 63; 1986, c. 19, s. 62; 1988, c. 18, s. 18; 1989, c. 77, s. 31; 1990, c. 59, s. 148; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 14, s. 62.

332.1.1. For the purposes of paragraph a of section 332.1, an amount contemplated therein in respect of a taxpayer for a taxation year is

(a) an amount that became receivable by the taxpayer in the year but after 31 December 1983 other than an amount that would have been a Canadian oil and gas exploration expense if it had been an expense incurred by him at the time it became receivable;

(b) an amount that became receivable by the taxpayer in the year but after 31 December 1983, that would have been a Canadian oil and gas exploration expense described in paragraph b or b.1 of section 395 in respect of a qualified tertiary oil recovery project if it had been an expense incurred by him at the time it became receivable; or

(c) an amount equal to 30% of an amount that became receivable by the taxpayer in the year but during the calendar year 1984 that would have been a Canadian oil and gas exploration expense, other than an expense described in paragraph b of section 395 in respect of a qualified tertiary oil recovery project, incurred in respect of non-conventional lands if it had been an expense incurred by him at the time it became receivable.

1986, c. 15, s. 64.

332.2. For the purposes of paragraph b, c or d of section 332.1, the amount in respect of a disposition of a property referred to therein is equal to the lesser of the capital cost of the property to the taxpayer, the person with whom he was not dealing at arm's length or the predecessor, as the case may be, computed without reference to section 180 or 182, and the proceeds of disposition of the property.

1982, c. 5, s. 72; 1985, c. 25, s. 58.

332.3. For the purposes of sections 332.1 and 332.2 and this section,

(a) (paragraph repealed);

(b) (paragraph repealed);

(b.1*)* "stated percentage" means

i. in respect of an amount described in paragraph a, f or g of section 332.1 that became receivable by a taxpayer,

(1) 100% where the amount became receivable before 1 July 1988,

(2) 50% where the amount became receivable after 30 June 1988 but before 1 January 1990, and

(3) 0% where the amount became receivable after 31 December 1989; and

ii. in respect of the disposition described in paragraph b of section 332.1 of a depreciable property of a taxpayer,

(1) 100% where the property was disposed of before 1 July 1988,

(2) 50% where the property was disposed of after 30 June 1988 but before 1 January 1990; and

(3) 0% where the property was disposed of after 31 December 1989;

(c) "specified predecessor" of a taxpayer means a person who is a predecessor of the taxpayer or of a person who is a specified predecessor of the taxpayer;

(d) "successor corporation" means a corporation that has, after 7 November 1969, acquired, in any manner whatever, except pursuant to an amalgamation that is described in subsection 4 of section 544 or a winding-up to which the rules in sections 556 to 564.1 and 565 apply, from another person, in this section and in sections 332.1 and 332.2 referred to as the "predecessor corporation", all or substantially all of the Canadian resource properties of the predecessor corporation in circumstances in which section 418.16, any of sections 418.18 to 418.21 or section 88.4 of the Act respecting the application of the Taxation Act (chapter I-4), to the extent that that section refers to subsection 25 of section 29 of the Income Tax Application Rules (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 2, 5th Supplement), applies to that corporation.

332.4. Notwithstanding paragraph b.1 of section 332.3, the stated percentage in respect of a particular amount that became receivable by a taxpayer within 60 days after 31 December 1989 and in respect of which the consideration given by him was a property or services shall be 50% where the person to whom the consideration was given is a corporation that, on or before 31 December 1989, had issued, or had undertaken to issue, a flow-through share and that renounces under section 359.8, effective on 31 December 1989, an amount in respect of Canadian exploration expenses that includes an expenditure in respect of that particular amount.

1990, c. 59, s. 150; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

333. In this chapter, the expression "proceeds of disposition" has the meaning assigned by section 251.

Similarly, the expressions "exploration base", "resource exploration base", "oil and gas exploration base", "supplementary depletion", "earned depletion", "Canadian oil and gas exploration expense", "bituminous sands equipment", "enhanced recovery equipment", "qualified tertiary oil recovery project", and "non-conventional lands" have, for the purposes of this chapter, the meaning assigned to them by regulation.

1975, c. 22, s. 64; 1982, c. 5, s. 73; 1985, c. 25, s. 59; 1986, c. 15, s. 65; 1988, c. 18, s. 19; 2003, c. 2, s. 108.

333.1. If in a particular taxation year proceeds of disposition, described in subparagraph iv of subparagraph f of the first paragraph of section 93, of any Canadian resource property are deemed, under section 280, to have become receivable by a taxpayer and the taxpayer makes a valid election under section 59.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 in relation to those proceeds, the taxpayer shall deduct in computing the taxpayer's income for the year an amount equal to the least of

(a) the aggregate of all such proceeds so becoming receivable by him in the year, to the extent that they have been included in the amount referred to in subparagraph i of paragraph b of section 412 or 418.6 in respect of the taxpayer;

(b) the amount required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year by virtue of paragraph e of section 330;

(c) the taxpayer's income for the year computed without reference to this section or to sections 333.2 and 333.3;

(d) the aggregate of the amount allowed as a deduction in computing the taxpayer's income for the year for the purposes of the Income Tax Act under paragraph a of section 59.1 of that Act in relation to that election and, if the amount that is so allowed as a deduction is equal to the maximum amount that the taxpayer may claim as a deduction in that computation under that paragraph in relation to that election, the amount that the taxpayer designates in the taxpayer's fiscal return filed under this Part for the year.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under section 59.1 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

1978, c. 26, s. 51; 1980, c. 13, s. 26; 1982, c. 5, s. 74; 1993, c. 16, s. 135; 2001, c. 53, s. 260; 2009, c. 5, s. 115.

333.2. A taxpayer shall include, in computing the taxpayer's income for the taxation year in respect of which the taxpayer made the election referred to in the first paragraph of section 333.1, the amount by which the amount deducted under that section exceeds the aggregate of Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses and Canadian oil and gas property expenses that the taxpayer incurred in the taxpayer's 10 taxation years that follow the year and that the taxpayer either designated before 20 December 2006 in accordance with this section, or designates after 19 December 2006 in accordance with subparagraph ii of paragraph b of section 59.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), except that, for the purposes of this paragraph, the expenses so designated after 19 December 2006 are to be adjusted, if applicable, in a manner that is satisfactory to the Minister to take into account the difference between the amount allowed as a deduction in computing the taxpayer's income for the year for the purposes of that Act under paragraph a of section 59.1 of that Act and the amount deducted under section 333.1.

Despite sections 1010 to 1011, the Minister shall make a reassessment to redetermine the tax, interest and penalties to be paid by the taxpayer under this Part as is required in respect of any taxation year to give effect to the inclusion referred to in the first paragraph.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to a designation made under subparagraph ii of paragraph b of section 59.1 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to a designation made under this section before 20 December 2006.

1978, c. 26, s. 51; 1982, c. 5, s. 75; 2009, c. 5, s. 116.

333.3. Canadian exploration expenses, Canadian development expenses and Canadian oil and gas property expenses incurred by a taxpayer in a taxation year and referred to in the first paragraph of section 333.2 are deemed not to be such expenses, except for the purposes of sections 386, 387, 391, 392 and 392.1 and for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's earned depletion base within the meaning of the regulations made under section 360.

1978, c. 26, s. 51; 1982, c. 5, s. 76; 2009, c. 5, s. 116.

CHAPTER VII

RESTRICTIVE COVENANTS

2009, c. 5, s. 117.

333.4. In this chapter,

"eligible corporation", of a taxpayer, means a taxable Canadian corporation of which the taxpayer holds, directly or indirectly, shares of the capital stock;

"eligible individual", in respect of a vendor, at any time means an individual (other than a trust) who is related to the vendor and who is 18 years of age or over at that time;

"eligible interest", of a taxpayer, means capital property of the taxpayer that is

(a) a partnership interest in a partnership that carries on a business;

(b) a share of the capital stock of a corporation that carries on a business; or

(c) a share of the capital stock of a corporation 90% or more of the fair market value of which is attributable to eligible interests in another corporation;

"goodwill amount", of a taxpayer, means an amount that the taxpayer has received or may become entitled to receive and that would be required, but for this chapter, to be included in the proceeds of disposition of a property included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1), or an amount to which section 93.18 applies, in respect of a business carried on by the taxpayer through an establishment located in Canada;

"restrictive covenant", of a taxpayer, means an agreement entered into, an undertaking made, or a waiver of an advantage or right by the taxpayer, whether legally enforceable or not, that affects, or may affect, in any way whatever, the acquisition or provision of property or services by the taxpayer or by another taxpayer that does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer, other than an agreement or undertaking

(a) that disposes of the taxpayer's property; or

(b) that is in satisfaction of an obligation described in section 298.1 that is not a disposition, unless the obligation being satisfied is in respect of a right to property or services that the taxpayer acquired for less than its fair market value;

"taxpayer" includes a partnership.

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2015, c. 21, s. 161; 2019, c. 14, s. 115.

333.5. A taxpayer shall include, in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a restrictive covenant of the taxpayer that is received or receivable in the year by the taxpayer or by a taxpayer with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, other than an amount that has been included in computing the taxpayer's income under this section for a preceding taxation year or the taxpayer's eligible corporation's income under this section for the year or a preceding taxation year.

If the first paragraph applies to include, in computing a taxpayer's income, an amount received or receivable by another taxpayer, the amount must not be included in computing the other taxpayer's income.

2009, c. 5, s. 117.

333.6. Section 333.5 does not apply to an amount received or receivable by a particular taxpayer in a taxation year in respect of a restrictive covenant granted by the particular taxpayer to another taxpayer (in this section and section 333.7 referred to as the "purchaser") with whom the particular taxpayer deals at arm's length, determined without reference to paragraph b of section 20, if

(a) the amount has been included in computing the particular taxpayer's income for the year under sections 32 to 47.17 or would have been so included in computing the particular taxpayer's income if the amount had been received in the year;

(b) the amount would, but for this chapter, be required to be included in the proceeds of disposition of a property included in Class 14.1 of Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1), or is an amount to which section 93.18 applies, in respect of the business to which the restrictive covenant relates, and the particular taxpayer makes a valid election under paragraph b of subsection 3 of section 56.4 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)) after 19 December 2006 to have that paragraph b apply in respect of the restrictive covenant; or

(c) subject to section 333.11, the amount directly relates to the particular taxpayer's disposition of property that is, at the time of the disposition, an eligible interest in the partnership or corporation that carries on the business to which the restrictive covenant relates, or that is at that time an eligible interest under paragraph c of the definition of "eligible interest" in section 333.4 if the other corporation referred to in that paragraph c carries on the business to which the restrictive covenant relates, and

i. the disposition is to the purchaser or to a person related to the purchaser,

ii. the amount is consideration for an undertaking by the particular taxpayer not to provide, directly or indirectly, property or services in competition with the property or services provided or to be provided by the purchaser or by a person related to the purchaser,

iii. the restrictive covenant may reasonably be considered to have been granted to maintain or preserve the value of the eligible interest disposed of to the purchaser,

iv. if the restrictive covenant is granted after 17 July 2005, section 506 does not apply to the disposition,

v. the amount is added to the particular taxpayer's proceeds of disposition, within the meaning assigned by section 251, for the purpose of applying this Part to the disposition of the particular taxpayer's eligible interest, and

vi. the particular taxpayer and the purchaser make a valid election under subparagraph vi of paragraph c of subsection 3 of section 56.4 of the Income Tax Act;

vii. (paragraph replaced).

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 3 of section 56.4 of the Income Tax Act or in relation to an election made under this section before 20 December 2006.

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2015, c. 21, s. 162; 2019, c. 14, s. 116.

333.7. An amount paid or payable by a purchaser for a restrictive covenant is

(a) if the amount is required because of sections 32 to 47.17 to be included in computing the income of an employee of the purchaser, to be considered to be wages paid or payable by the purchaser to the employee;

(b) if an election has been made under subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 333.6 in respect of the amount, to be considered to be incurred by the purchaser on account of capital for the purpose of determining the cost of the property or for the purposes of section 93.15, as the case may be, and not to be an amount paid or payable for the purposes of the other provisions of this Part; and

(c) if an election has been made under subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 333.6, in respect of the amount and the amount relates to the purchaser's acquisition of property that is, immediately after the acquisition, an eligible interest of the purchaser, to be included in computing the cost to the purchaser of that eligible interest and considered not to be an amount paid or payable for the purposes of the other provisions of this Part.

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2019, c. 14, s. 117.

333.8. Section 421 does not apply to deem consideration to be an amount received or receivable by an individual for a restrictive covenant granted by the individual if

(a) the restrictive covenant is granted by the individual to another taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "purchaser") with whom the individual deals at arm's length;

(b) the restrictive covenant directly relates to the acquisition from one or more other persons (in this section and section 333.13 referred to as the "vendors") by the purchaser of a right in the individual's employer, in a corporation related to that employer or in a business carried on by that employer;

(c) the individual deals at arm's length with the employer and with the vendors;

(d) the restrictive covenant is an undertaking by the individual not to provide, directly or indirectly, property or services in competition with property or services provided or to be provided by the purchaser or by a person related to the purchaser in the course of carrying on the business to which the restrictive covenant relates;

(e) no proceeds are received or receivable by the individual for granting the restrictive covenant; and

(f) the amount that can reasonably be regarded as being the consideration for the restrictive covenant is received or receivable only by the vendors.

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2015, c. 21, s. 163; 2020, c. 16, s. 56.

333.9. Subject to section 333.12, section 421 does not apply to deem consideration to be an amount received or receivable by a taxpayer for a restrictive covenant granted by the taxpayer if

(a) the restrictive covenant is granted by the taxpayer (in this section and section 333.10 referred to as the "vendor") to

i. another taxpayer (in this section referred to as the "purchaser") with whom the vendor deals at arm's length, determined without reference to paragraph b of section 20 at the time of the grant of the restrictive covenant, or

ii. another person who is an eligible individual in respect of the vendor at the time of the grant of the restrictive covenant;

(b) where subparagraph i of subparagraph a applies, the restrictive covenant is an undertaking of the vendor not to provide, directly or indirectly, property or services in competition with the property or services provided or to be provided by the purchaser, or by a person related to the purchaser, in the course of carrying on the business to which the restrictive covenant relates, and

i. the amount that can reasonably be regarded as being consideration for the restrictive covenant is

(1) included by the vendor in computing a goodwill amount of the vendor, or

(2) received or receivable by a corporation that was an eligible corporation of the vendor when the restrictive covenant was granted and included by the eligible corporation in computing a goodwill amount of the eligible corporation in respect of the business to which the restrictive covenant relates, or

ii. it is reasonable to conclude that the restrictive covenant is integral to an agreement in writing,

(1) under which the vendor or the vendor's eligible corporation disposes of property (other than property to which subparagraph i or subparagraph 2 of this subparagraph ii applies) to the purchaser, or the purchaser's eligible corporation, for consideration that is received or receivable by the vendor, or the vendor's eligible corporation, as the case may be, or

(2) under which shares of the capital stock of a corporation (in this section and section 333.13 referred to as the "target corporation") are disposed of to the purchaser or to another person that is related to the purchaser and with whom the vendor deals at arm's length, determined without reference to paragraph b of section 20;

(c) where subparagraph ii of subparagraph a applies, the restrictive covenant is an undertaking of the vendor not to provide, directly or indirectly, property or services in competition with the property or services provided or to be provided by the eligible individual, or by an eligible corporation of the eligible individual, in the course of carrying on the business to which the restrictive covenant relates, the conditions of the second paragraph are met and

i. the amount that can reasonably be regarded as being consideration for the restrictive covenant is

(1) included by the vendor in computing a goodwill amount of the vendor, or

(2) received or receivable by a corporation that was an eligible corporation of the vendor when the restrictive covenant was granted and included by the eligible corporation in computing a goodwill amount of the eligible corporation in respect of the business to which the restrictive covenant relates, or

(1) under which the vendor or the vendor's eligible corporation disposes of property (other than property to which subparagraph i or subparagraph 2 of this subparagraph ii applies) to the eligible individual, or the eligible individual's eligible corporation, for consideration that is received or receivable by the vendor, or the vendor's eligible corporation, as the case may be, or

(2) under which shares of the capital stock of the vendor's eligible corporation (in this section and section 333.13 referred to as the "family corporation") are disposed of to the eligible individual or to the eligible individual's eligible corporation;

(d) no proceeds are received or receivable by the vendor for granting the restrictive covenant;

(e) section 506 does not apply in respect of the disposition of a share of the target corporation or the family corporation, as the case may be;

(f) the restrictive covenant can reasonably be regarded to have been granted to maintain or preserve the fair market value of

i. the benefit of the expenditure derived from the goodwill amount referred to in subparagraph i of subparagraph b or c and for which a joint election referred to in subparagraph g was made,

ii. the property referred to in subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b or c, or

iii. the shares referred to in subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b or c; and

(g) where applicable, a valid joint election is made under paragraph g of subsection 7 of section 56.4 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)) in respect of the restrictive covenant.

The conditions to which subparagraph c of the first paragraph refers are as follows:

(a) the vendor is resident in Canada at the time the restrictive covenant is granted and at the time of the disposition referred to in subparagraph ii of subparagraph c of the first paragraph; and

(b) the vendor does not, at any time after the grant of the restrictive covenant and whether directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, have a right in the family corporation or in the eligible corporation of the eligible individual, as the case may be.

Chapter V.2 of Title II of Book I applies in relation to an election made under subsection 7 of section 56.4 of the Income Tax Act.

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2015, c. 21, s. 164; 2020, c. 16, s. 57; 2021, c. 18, s. 34.

333.10. For the purposes of section 333.9, subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of each of subparagraphs b and c of the first paragraph of that section applies to the grant of a restrictive covenant only if

(a) the consideration that can reasonably be regarded as being in part the consideration for the restrictive covenant is received or receivable by the vendor or the vendor's eligible corporation, as the case may be, as consideration for the disposition of the property; and

(b) where all or part of the consideration can reasonably be regarded as being for a goodwill amount, section 333.5, subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 333.6 and subparagraph i of subparagraphs b and c of the first paragraph of section 333.9 apply to that consideration.

In determining whether the conditions of subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 333.9 have been met, and for the purposes of section 422, in respect of a restrictive covenant granted by a vendor, the fair market value of a property is the amount that could reasonably be regarded as being the fair market value of the property if the restrictive covenant were part of the property.

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2015, c. 21, s. 164.

333.11. Subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 333.6 does not apply to an amount that would, but for sections 333.5 to 333.14, be included in computing a taxpayer's income from a source that is an office or employment or a business or property under paragraph a of section 28.

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2015, c. 21, s. 164.

333.12. Section 333.9 does not apply in respect of a taxpayer's grant of a restrictive covenant if one of the results of not applying section 421 to the consideration received or receivable in respect of the restrictive covenant would be that paragraph a of section 28 would not apply to consideration that would, but for sections 333.5 to 333.14, be included in computing a taxpayer's income from a source that is an office or employment or a business or property.

333.13. If section 333.8 or 333.9 applies in respect of a restrictive covenant, the following rules apply:

(a) the amount referred to in paragraph f of section 333.8 is to be added in computing the amount received or receivable by the vendors as consideration for the disposition of the right referred to in paragraph b of section 333.8; and

(b) the amount that can reasonably be regarded as being in part consideration received or receivable for a restrictive covenant to which subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b or c of the first paragraph of section 333.9 applies is to be added in computing the consideration that is received or receivable by each taxpayer who disposes of shares of the target corporation, or of shares of the family corporation, as the case may be, to the extent of the portion of the consideration that is received or receivable by that taxpayer.

333.14. Section 270 does not apply to an amount received or receivable as consideration for a restrictive covenant.

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2015, c. 21, s. 164.

333.15. (Repealed).

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2015, c. 21, s. 165.

333.16. (Repealed).

2009, c. 5, s. 117; 2015, c. 21, s. 165.

TITLE VI

DEDUCTIONS IN COMPUTING INCOME

1972, c. 23.

CHAPTER I

RULES OF APPLICATION

1972, c. 23.

334. A taxpayer may deduct, in computing his income for a taxation year, the amounts provided in this Title.

1972, c. 23, s. 305.

334.1. (Repealed).

1995, c. 1, s. 36; 1997, c. 85, s. 63.

335. If an individual is, throughout all or part of a taxation year, absent from Canada but resident in Québec and Chapter IX.0.1 applies in respect of the individual for the year or that part of the year, section 358.0.1 shall be read without reference in subparagraphs 9 and 10 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph a of its second paragraph to "in Canada" and without reference in its third paragraph to ", including, if the payee is an individual referred to in subparagraph 10 of subparagraph ii of that subparagraph a, the Social Insurance Number of the latter individual", if the expenses referred to therein have been paid to a person not resident in Canada.

1977, c. 26, s. 29; 1985, c. 25, s. 60; 1986, c. 15, s. 66; 1986, c. 19, s. 64; 1991, c. 25, s. 65; 1995, c. 1, s. 37; 1997, c. 85, s. 64; 2001, c. 53, s. 57; 2003, c. 2, s. 109; 2005, c. 38, s. 69.

CHAPTER II

MISCELLANEOUS CASES

1972, c. 23.

336. The amounts referred to in section 334 include

(a) (paragraph repealed);

(a.0.1) (paragraph repealed);

(a.1) (paragraph repealed);

(b) (paragraph repealed);

(b.0.1) (paragraph repealed);

(b.1) (paragraph repealed);

(c) an amount equal to annual interest accruing within the taxation year in respect of succession duties, inheritance taxes or estate taxes;

(d) an amount described in any of paragraphs a, c, c.1 and e to e.6 of section 311 or in section 311.1 or 311.2, as the latter section read before being repealed, the amount of any pension, supplement or allowance paid under the Old Age Security Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. O-9) or the amount of any benefit paid under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan (chapter R-9) or a similar plan within the meaning of that Act, received by an individual and included in computing the individual's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, to the extent of the amount repaid by the individual in the year otherwise than because of Part VII of the Unemployment Insurance Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. U-1), Part VII of the Employment Insurance Act (S.C. 1996, c. 23), Part I.2 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) or section 8 of the Canada Recovery Benefits Act (S.C. 2020, c. 12, s. 2), except if the tax, interest and penalties that may reasonably be attributed to that amount have been remitted under section 94.0.4 of the Tax Administration Act (chapter A-6.002) or under the Regulation respecting a remission of tax relative to the Social Solidarity Program and the Basic Income Program for the taxation year 2022, enacted by Order in Council 1041-2023 (2023, G.O. 2, 1731);

(d.0.1*)* an amount paid in the year by the taxpayer to a registered pension plan or to a pooled registered pension plan if

i. the taxpayer is an individual,

ii. the amount is paid as a repayment of an amount received under the plan that was included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year and in respect of which any of the following conditions is met, or as interest in respect of such a repayment:

(1) it is reasonable to consider that the amount was paid under the plan as a consequence of an error and not as an entitlement to benefits, or

(2) it was determined, after the payment of the amount under the plan, that the taxpayer was not entitled to the amount as a consequence of a settlement of a dispute in respect of the taxpayer's employment, and

iii. no portion of the amount is deductible under paragraph c of section 70 or any of sections 922, 923 and 923.0.1 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

(d.1*)* any amount the taxpayer is required to pay on or before 30 April of the following calendar year as a benefit repayment under Part VII of the Unemployment Insurance Act or Part VII of the Employment Insurance Act, to the extent that the amount was not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for any preceding taxation year;

(d.1.0.1*)* any amount the taxpayer is required to pay on or before the taxpayer's balance-due day for the year as a benefit repayment under section 8 of the Canada Recovery Benefits Act, to the extent that the amount was not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for any preceding taxation year;

(d.1.0.2*)* any amount paid by the taxpayer, before 1 January 2023, as repayment of financial assistance received under the Programme incitatif pour la rétention des travailleurs essentiels referred to in Order in Council 456-2020 (2020, G.O. 2, 2099, French only), to the extent that the financial assistance was included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under paragraph e.2 of section 311, or as repayment of a benefit, to the extent that the amount of the benefit was included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year under any of subparagraphs i to iv of paragraph e.5.1 of section 311, except to the extent that the amount is

i. deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for any year under paragraph d, or

ii. deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for any year under paragraph d.1.0.1;

(d.1.1*)* an amount repaid by the taxpayer in the year as a consequence of the application of section 89 of the Individual and Family Assistance Act (chapter A-13.1.1), section 110 of the Act respecting income support, employment assistance and social solidarity (chapter S-32.001), section 37 of the Act respecting income security (chapter S-3.1.1) or a similar provision of a law of a province other than Québec, to the extent that the amount has been included, under section 311.1, in computing the income of another person for the year or a preceding taxation year, except if the tax, interest and penalties that may reasonably be attributed to that amount have been remitted under section 94.0.4 of the Tax Administration Act;

(d.2) an amount repaid by the taxpayer in the year pursuant to section 90 of the Individual and Family Assistance Act, section 102 of the Act respecting income support, employment assistance and social solidarity, section 35 of the Act respecting income security or a similar provision of a law of a province other than Québec, to the extent that the amount has been included, under section 311.1, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, except if the tax, interest and penalties that may reasonably be attributed to that amount have been remitted under section 94.0.4 of the Tax Administration Act;

(d.2.1) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that the taxpayer is required to pay for the year as a consequence of the application of section 1129.66.3 in relation to an amount that was included in computing the taxpayer's income because of section 904 for the year or for a preceding taxation year;

(d.3) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid in the year by the taxpayer as a repayment, under the Canada Education Savings Act (S.C. 2004, c. 26) or under a designated provincial program within the meaning of section 890.15, of an amount included because of section 904 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year;

(d.3.0.1) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid in the year as a repayment under the Apprenticeship Incentive Grant program or the Apprenticeship Completion Grant program administered by the Department of Employment and Social Development of Canada of an amount that was included in computing the taxpayer's income because of paragraph i of section 312 for the year or a preceding taxation year;

(d.3.0.2) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid in the year as a repayment of an amount that was included, because of section 313.14, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year;

(d.3.1) an amount paid in the year by the taxpayer as a repayment of an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year under paragraph k.0.1 of section 311;

(d.3.2) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid in the year as a repayment of an amount that was included because of paragraph k.0.2 of section 311 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year;

(d.4) an amount paid in the year by the taxpayer as fees or expenses incurred for the review, under section 1029.8.61.39, or the contestation, under section 1029.8.61.41, of a decision of Retraite Québec;

(e) an amount paid in the year by the taxpayer as fees or expenses incurred for preparing, presenting or proceeding with an objection, contestation or appeal relating to

i. an assessment of tax, interest or penalties under this Act, a similar Act of Canada or of a province other than Québec,

ii. an assessment of any income tax deductible by the taxpayer under sections 772.2 to 772.13 or any interest or penalty with respect thereto,

iii. an assessment or a decision under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan or a similar plan within the meaning of the said Act, iv. a decision of the Canada Employment Insurance Commission under the Employment Insurance Act or an appeal of such a decision to the Social Security Tribunal,

v. an assessment under the Act respecting the Régie de l'assurance maladie du Québec (chapter R-5), vi. a decision under the Act respecting property tax refund (chapter R-20.1), vii. a notice under the Act respecting municipal taxation (chapter F-2.1), viii. a request for payment under the Land Transfer Duties Act (chapter D-17), ix. a decision under the Shelter Allowance Program for the elderly adopted under the Act respecting the Société d'habitation du Québec (chapter S-8),

x. an assessment under Chapter III.1 of the Act respecting labour standards (chapter N-1.1), or

xi. an assessment under the Act to promote workforce skills development and recognition (chapter D-8.3);

xii. an assessment or a decision under the Act respecting parental insurance (chapter A-29.011);

(e.1) an amount equal to the amount by which the lesser of the following amounts exceeds the portion of the aggregate described in subparagraph i in respect of the taxpayer that may reasonably be considered to have been deductible under this paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year:

i. the aggregate of the judicial or extrajudicial expenses, other than those relating to a partition or settlement of property arising out of, or on the breakdown of, a marriage, paid by the taxpayer in the year or any of the seven preceding taxation years to collect or establish a right to an amount of a benefit under a pension plan, other than a benefit under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan or a similar plan, within the meaning of the said Act, in respect of the employment of the taxpayer or a deceased individual of whom the taxpayer was a dependent, legal representative or relation, or a retiring allowance of the taxpayer or a deceased individual of whom the taxpayer was a dependent, legal representative or relation, and

ii. the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a benefit or retiring allowance described in subparagraph i that is received after 31 December 1985, in respect of which judicial or extrajudicial expenses described in the said subparagraph i were paid, and that is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, or an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income under paragraph f.1 of section 312 for the year or a preceding taxation year, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted under paragraphs d, d.0.1, d.1 and d.2 of section 339 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, to the extent that the latter amount may reasonably be considered to have been deductible as a consequence of the receipt of an amount that is a benefit or retiring allowance referred to in this subparagraph;

(f) in the case of an annuity payment included under paragraph c of section 312 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, the capital element corresponding

i. to the amount determined in the manner prescribed as representing a capital return, if the annuity is of a contractual nature, and

ii. if the annuity is paid under a provision of a will or trust, to the portion of the payment not derived from the income of the succession or trust, the burden of proof being on the annuitant;

(g) in the case of an individual, an amount paid by him in the year to a person with whom he was dealing at arm's length if

i. such amount has been included in computing his income for the year or a preceding taxation year as an amount contemplated in paragraph g or h of section 312 paid to him by such person,

ii. at the time the amount was paid by such person to the individual, a condition was stipulated for the individual to fulfil,

iii. as a result of the failure of the individual to fulfil the condition, he was required to repay the amount to such person,

iv. during the period for which the amount referred to in subparagraph i was paid, the individual provided no services to such person as an employee, except occasionally, and

v. such amount was paid to the individual for the purpose of enabling him to further his education;

(h) (paragraph repealed);

(i) the aggregate of repayments made by the taxpayer in the year in respect of a policy loan, within the meaning of paragraph a.1.1 of section 966, made under a life insurance policy, not exceeding the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts required by section 968 and by reason of such policy loan made after 31 March 1978 in respect of that policy to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year exceeds the aggregate of all repayments made by the taxpayer in respect of a policy loan that were deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year;

(j) the amount of tax payable by the taxpayer for the year under Part I.2 of the Income Tax Act;

(k) an amount paid by an individual before the end of the year as interest or repayment of the principal relating to a loan granted, in respect of a program of studies, under a prescribed assistance program, to the extent that the amount has not been deducted in computing his income for a preceding taxation year and does not exceed the amount by which the amount of the loan reconciled in accordance with the assistance program exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted under this paragraph in computing his income for any such year, and provided that

i. the individual has obtained a diploma attesting to the successful completion of the program of studies and has filed a copy of it with the financial institution designated for the purposes of the assistance program before the end of the year and on or before the second anniversary of the expected completion of the studies related to the assistance program,

ii. the amount is paid after the tenth working day, within the meaning assigned by the assistance program, after the Friday of the week during which the studies related to the assistance program were completed, and

iii. the amount is paid on or before the tenth anniversary of the signature of the loan repayment agreement provided for in the assistance program;

(l) the debts owing to a taxpayer that the taxpayer establishes to have become bad debts in the year in respect of an amount included in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year because of the application of section 35.1 or 333.5.

336.0.2. In this chapter,

"child support amount" means any support amount that is not identified in the agreement or order under which it is payable as being solely for the support of a recipient who is a spouse or former spouse of the payer or who is the father or mother of a child of the payer;

"commencement day" in respect of an agreement or order has the meaning assigned by the first paragraph of section 312.3;

"support amount" means, subject to the second paragraph and except for the purposes of subparagraphs a to b of the first paragraph of section 336.0.5, an amount payable as an allowance on a periodic basis for the maintenance of the recipient, a child of the recipient or both the recipient and a child of the recipient, if the recipient has discretion as to the use of the amount, and

(a) the recipient is the spouse or former spouse of the payer, the recipient and payer are living separate and apart because of the breakdown of their marriage and the amount is payable under an order of a competent tribunal or under a written agreement; or

(b) the payer is the father or mother of a child of the recipient and the amount is payable under an order made by a competent tribunal in accordance with the laws of a province.

For the purposes of the definition of "support amount" in the first paragraph, the following rules apply:

(a) a support amount does not include an amount described in that definition that, if paid and received, would be so under a decree, order or judgment of a competent tribunal, or under a written agreement, that does not have a commencement day, and would not be required to be included in computing the income of the recipient of the amount if

i. paragraphs a to b.1 of section 312, as they applied before being struck out, applied in respect of an amount received after 31 December 1996 and were read without reference to the words "and throughout the remainder of the year", and

ii. section 312.4 were disregarded; and

(b) the portion of that definition before paragraph a shall be read without reference to the words "the recipient has discretion as to the use of the amount, and", where it applies in respect of an amount payable under a decree, order or judgment of a competent tribunal, or under a written agreement, made after 27 March 1986 and before 1 January 1988.

1998, c. 16, s. 116; 2000, c. 5, s. 88; 2005, c. 1, s. 88.

336.0.3. A taxpayer may, in computing the income of the taxpayer for a taxation year, deduct the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount determined by the formula

$$A - (B + C).$$

In the formula provided for in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a support amount paid after 31 December 1996 and before the end of the year by the taxpayer to a particular person, where the taxpayer and the particular person were living separate and apart at the time the amount was paid;

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a child support amount that became payable by the taxpayer to the particular person under an agreement or order on or after the commencement day and before the end of the year in respect of a period that began on or after the commencement day; and

(c) C is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a support amount paid by the taxpayer to the particular person after 31 December 1996 and deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year.

The first and second paragraphs do not apply in respect of an amount paid pursuant to an order or a written agreement made before 16 June 1999 where, but for the amendments made to subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 2.2.1 by section 14 of the Act to amend various legislative provisions concerning de facto spouses (1999, chapter 14), this section would not have applied in respect of that amount, except if

(a) subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 2.2.1, as amended by section 14 of the Act to amend various legislative provisions concerning de facto spouses, applies to the taxpayer and the particular person before 16 June 1999 because of the third paragraph of section 2.2.1; or

(b) the taxpayer and the particular person jointly elect to have the first and second paragraphs of this section and of section 312.4 apply after 15 June 1999 in respect of that amount by filing a document signed by the taxpayer and the particular person with the Minister on or before the taxpayer's and the particular person's filing-due date for the taxation year that includes 20 December 2001.

1998, c. 16, s. 116; 2000, c. 5, s. 89; 2001, c. 53, s. 59.

336.0.4. A taxpayer may, in computing the income of the taxpayer for a taxation year, deduct the amount by which an amount paid by the taxpayer in the year or one of the two preceding taxation years under an order of a competent tribunal as a repayment of an amount included under any of paragraphs a to b.1 of section 312, as it read for a preceding taxation year, in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year, or that should have been so included had the taxpayer not made the election provided for in section 309.1, as it read for that preceding year, or included under section 312.4 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, to the extent that the amount was not deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year, exceeded the portion of the amount in respect of which section 334.1 applied for a preceding taxation year, as that section read for that preceding year.

336.0.5. A taxpayer may, in computing income for a taxation year, deduct any amount paid by the taxpayer as judicial or extrajudicial expenses incurred for any of the following purposes, to the extent that the taxpayer has not been reimbursed, is not entitled to be reimbursed, and did not deduct the amount in computing income for a preceding taxation year:

(a) for the purpose of collecting an amount owing to the taxpayer that is a support amount as defined in the first paragraph of section 312.3;

(a.1) for the purpose of determining the original right to receive an amount that is a support amount as defined in the first paragraph of section 312.3;

(b) for the purpose of obtaining a review of the right to receive an amount that is a support amount as defined in the first paragraph of section 312.3;

(b.1) for the purpose of determining the original obligation to pay an amount that is a support amount; and

(c) for the purpose of obtaining a review of the obligation to pay an amount that is a support amount.

The first paragraph applies only if the judicial or extrajudicial expenses referred to in that paragraph were incurred by the taxpayer or, where the taxpayer is required to pay such expenses under an order of a competent court, by the taxpayer's spouse or former spouse or by the father or mother of the taxpayer's child.

1998, c. 16, s. 116; 2005, c. 1, s. 89; I.N. 2016-01-01 (NCCP); 2017, c. 29, s. 60.

336.0.6. For the purposes of section 336.0.3, where an order or agreement, or any variation thereof, provides for the payment of an amount by a taxpayer to a person or for the benefit of the person, a child in the person's custody or both the person and a child in the person's custody, the amount or any part thereof, when payable, is deemed to be payable to and receivable by that person and, when paid, is deemed to have been paid to and received by that person.

336.0.7. For the purposes of sections 336.0.2 and 336.0.3, where an order, or any variation thereof, provides for the payment of an amount by a taxpayer to a person or for the benefit of the person, a child in the person's custody or both the person and a child in the person's custody, the amount or any part thereof is paid by the Minister under the Act to facilitate the payment of support (chapter P-2.2) otherwise than out of the sums collected from the taxpayer, and in a particular taxation year the taxpayer reimburses the Minister for all or any part of that amount, the amount so reimbursed is deemed to have been payable in that year under the order and to have been paid to and received by the person in that year.

1998, c. 16, s. 116.

336.0.8. For the purposes of sections 336.0.2 and 336.0.3, if an order or agreement, or any variation of the order or agreement, provides for the payment of an amount by a taxpayer to a person or for the benefit of the person, a child in the person's custody or both the person and a child in the person's custody, a benefit is paid by the Minister of Employment and Social Solidarity under any of Chapters I, II and VI of Title II of the Individual and Family Assistance Act (chapter A-13.1.1), Chapter I of Title II of the Act respecting income support, employment assistance and social solidarity (chapter S-32.001) or Chapter II of the Act respecting income security (chapter S-3.1.1) because the taxpayer fails to pay all or part of the amount that the taxpayer is required to pay, and in a taxation year the taxpayer repays all or part of that benefit to the Minister of Employment and Social Solidarity, the amount so repaid is deemed to have been payable in that year under the order or agreement and to have been paid to and received by the person in that year.

336.1. Where an amount, other than an amount that is otherwise a support amount, became payable by a taxpayer in a taxation year under an order of a competent tribunal or under a written agreement, in respect of an expense incurred in the year or the preceding taxation year for the maintenance of a person described in the second paragraph, a child in the person's custody or both the person and a child in the person's custody and the order or agreement provides that subsection 2 of each of sections 56.1 and 60.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) apply to any amount paid or payable thereunder, the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is such an amount payable exceeds the amount determined under section 336.3 is deemed, for the purposes of this chapter, to be an amount payable by the taxpayer to and receivable by the person as an allowance on a periodic basis, and the person is deemed to have discretion as to the use of that amount.

The person to whom the first paragraph refers is

(a) the spouse or former spouse of the taxpayer; or

(b) where the amount became payable under an order made by a competent tribunal in accordance with the laws of a province, the father or mother of a child of the taxpayer.

336.2. For the purposes of section 336.1, an expense does not include an expenditure in respect of a self-contained domestic establishment in which the taxpayer mentioned in the first paragraph of that section resides or an expenditure for the acquisition of corporeal property that is not an expenditure on account of a medical or educational expense or in respect of the acquisition, improvement or maintenance of a self-contained domestic establishment in which the person described in the second paragraph of that section resides.

336.3. The amount referred to in the first paragraph of section 336.1 is equal to the amount by which

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included in the aggregate determined under that paragraph in respect of the acquisition or improvement of a self-contained domestic establishment in which the person described in the second paragraph of that section 336.1 resides, including any payment of principal or interest in respect of a loan made or indebtedness incurred to finance, in any manner whatever, such acquisition or improvement; exceeds

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount equal to 20% of the original principal amount of a loan or indebtedness described in paragraph a.

1986, c. 15, s. 68; 1990, c. 59, s. 154; 1994, c. 22, s. 145; 1998, c. 16, s. 117.

336.4. For the purposes of this chapter, where a written agreement or order of a competent tribunal made at any time in a taxation year provides that an amount paid before that time and in the year or the preceding taxation year is to be considered to have been paid and received thereunder, the following rules apply:

(a) the amount is deemed to have been paid thereunder; and

(b) the agreement or order is deemed, except for the purpose of this section, to have been made on the day on which the first such amount was paid.

However, where the agreement or order is made after 30 April 1997 and varies a child support amount payable to the recipient from the last such amount paid to the recipient before 1 May 1997, each varied amount of child support paid under the agreement or order is deemed to have been payable under an agreement or order the commencement day of which is the day on which the first payment of the varied amount is required to be made.

1986, c. 15, s. 68; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1998, c. 16, s. 117.

336.5. In this section and sections 336.6 and 336.7,

"additional investment expense" of an individual for a taxation year means the aggregate of

(a) the amount determined in respect of the individual for the year under subparagraph 2 of subparagraph iii of subparagraph a.2 of the first paragraph of section 726.6;

(b) where the year begins after 19 March 2007 and the amount determined in respect of the individual for the year by the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.7 is equal to zero, the aggregate of the individual's net capital losses for other taxation years deducted, without reference to subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 729.1, under section 729 in computing the individual's taxable income for the year;

(c) where the maximum amount that the individual could deduct under Title VI.5 of Book IV in computing the individual's taxable income for the year, if no reference were made to this paragraph, paragraphs c.1 and c.2 and subparagraphs 2 to 2.2 of subparagraph vi of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 726.6, enacted by paragraph c of the definition of "investment income", is greater than zero and equal to the amount determined in respect of the individual for the year by the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.7, and the individual deducts under that Title VI.5 in computing the individual's taxable income for the year an amount equal to the maximum amount, the aggregate of the individual's net capital losses for other taxation years deducted, without reference to subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 729.1, under section 729 in computing the individual's taxable income for the year;

(c.1) where paragraphs b and c do not apply and the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year by the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.7, if the formula were read as if "$500,000" was replaced by "$250,000", is equal to zero, the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year under subparagraph vi of subparagraph a.2 of the first paragraph of section 726.6 if the amount resulting from a designation made by a trust under section 668 were taken into account, despite the exception provided for in section 668 in respect of Title VI.5 of Book IV and if the amount determined in respect of the individual for the year under subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 726.6 were determined, for the purposes of subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 726.6, without reference to qualified farm property, eligible small business corporation shares and qualified fishing property disposed of before 19 March 2007;

(c.2) where paragraph c does not apply, where the maximum amount that the individual could deduct under Title VI.5 of Book IV in computing the individual's taxable income for the year in respect of property disposed of before 19 March 2007, if no reference were made to this paragraph and subparagraph 2.2 of subparagraph vi of subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 726.6, enacted by paragraph c of the definition of "investment income", is greater than zero and equal to the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year by the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.7, if the formula were read as if "$500,000" was replaced by "$250,000", and where the individual deducts under that Title VI.5 in computing the individual's taxable income for the year an amount at least equal to the maximum amount, the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year under subparagraph vi of subparagraph a.2 of the first paragraph of section 726.6 if the amount resulting from a designation made by a trust under section 668 were taken into account, despite the exception provided for in section 668 in respect of that Title VI.5 and if the amount determined in respect of the individual for the year under subparagraph 1 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 726.6 were determined, for the purposes of subparagraph 2 of subparagraph i of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 726.6, without reference to qualified farm property, eligible small business corporation shares and qualified fishing property disposed of before 19 March 2007; and

(d) in cases other than those provided for in paragraphs b to c.2, the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year under subparagraph vi of subparagraph a.2 of the first paragraph of section 726.6 if the amount resulting from a designation made by a trust under section 668 were taken into account, despite the exception provided for in section 668 in respect of Title VI.5 of Book IV;

"investment expense" of an individual for a taxation year means the investment expense of the individual for that year within the meaning that would be assigned to that expression by subparagraph a.2 of the first paragraph of section 726.6 if,

(a) the portion of that subparagraph a.2 before subparagraph i were read as follows:

"(a.2) "investment expense" of an individual for a taxation year means the aggregate of";

(a.1) for the purposes of subparagraph i of that subparagraph a.2, any amount deducted by the individual under paragraph a of section 141 in computing the individual's income for the year from a property were equal to zero;

(b) the amount determined under subparagraph 2 of subparagraph iii of that subparagraph a.2 were equal to zero;

(c) for the purposes of subparagraph iv of that subparagraph a.2, any amount deducted in respect of the following expenses were equal to zero:

i. expenses renounced in respect of a flow-through share that was

(1) issued as a consequence of an investment made on or before 11 March 2005 or of an application for a receipt for the preliminary prospectus or an application for an exemption from filing a prospectus made on or before that date, or

(2) acquired out of the proceeds of a public issue of securities that are interest in a partnership issued as a consequence of an investment made on or before 11 March 2005 or of an application for a receipt for the preliminary prospectus or an application for an exemption from filing a prospectus made on or before that date, and

ii. expenses described in section 336.5.1 that were not renounced in respect of a flow-through share and were incurred after 11 March 2005 by a partnership, or that were renounced in respect of a flow-through share that was

(1) issued as a consequence of an investment made after 11 March 2005 or of an application for a receipt for the preliminary prospectus or an application for an exemption from filing a prospectus made after that date, or

(2) acquired out of the proceeds of a public issue of securities that are interest in a partnership issued as a consequence of an investment made after 11 March 2005 or of an application for a receipt for the preliminary prospectus or an application for an exemption from filing a prospectus made after that date;

(d) for the purposes of subparagraph v of that subparagraph a.2, the loss from renting or leasing a property were equal to zero; and

(e) the amounts determined under subparagraphs vi and vii of that subparagraph a.2 were equal to zero;

"investment income" of an individual for a taxation year means the investment income of the individual for that year within the meaning that would be assigned to that expression by subparagraph e of the first paragraph of section 726.6 if,

(a) for the purposes of subparagraphs i and iv of that subparagraph e, an amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under section 94 in respect of a property the income from which would be income from the renting or leasing of a property were equal to zero;

(b) for the purposes of subparagraph iv of that subparagraph e, the income from the renting or leasing of a property were equal to zero;

(c) subparagraph vi of that subparagraph e were read as follows:

"vi. the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts, including the amount resulting from a designation made by a trust under section 668, despite the exception provided for in section 668 in respect of this Title, that are included under paragraph b of section 28, in respect of capital gains and capital losses, in computing the individual's income for the year, exceeds

(1) where the year begins after 19 March 2007 and the amount determined in respect of the individual for the year by the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.7 is equal to zero, an amount equal to zero,

(2) where the maximum amount that the individual could deduct under this Title in computing the individual's taxable income for the year, if no reference were made to this subparagraph 2, subparagraphs 2.1 and 2.2 and paragraphs c to c.2 of the definition of "additional investment expense" in section 336.5, is greater than zero and equal to the amount determined in respect of the individual for the year by the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.7, and the individual deducts under this Title in computing the individual's taxable income for the year an amount equal to the maximum amount, the amount deducted by the individual in computing the individual's taxable income for the year under this Title,

(2.1) where subparagraphs 1 and 2 do not apply and the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year by the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.7, if the formula were read as if "$500,000" was replaced by "$250,000", is equal to zero, the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year under subparagraph i of subparagraph b if the amount resulting from a designation made by a trust under section 668 were taken into account, despite the exception provided for in section 668 in respect of this Title and if, for the purposes of subparagraph 2 of that subparagraph i, no reference were made to qualified farm property, eligible small business corporation shares and qualified fishing property disposed of before 19 March 2007,

(2.2) where subparagraph 2 does not apply, where the maximum amount that the individual could deduct under this Title in computing the individual's taxable income for the year in respect of property disposed of before 19 March 2007, if no reference were made to this subparagraph 2.2 and to paragraph c.2 of the definition of "additional investment expense" in section 336.5, is greater than zero and equal to the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year by the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 726.7, if the formula were read as if "$500,000" was replaced by "$250,000", and where the individual deducts under this Title in computing the individual's taxable income for the year an amount at least equal to the maximum amount, the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year under subparagraph i of subparagraph b if the amount resulting from a designation made by a trust under section 668 were taken into account, despite the exception provided for in section 668 in respect of this Title and if, for the purposes of subparagraph 2 of that subparagraph i, no reference were made to qualified farm property, eligible small business corporation shares and qualified fishing property disposed of before 19 March 2007, and

(3) in any other case, the amount that would be determined in respect of the individual for the year under subparagraph i of subparagraph b if the amount resulting from a designation made by a trust under section 668 were taken into account, despite the exception provided for in section 668 in respect of this Title.";

"total investment expense" of an individual for a taxation year means the aggregate of the individual's investment expense for the year and the individual's additional investment expense for the year;

"unused portion of the total investment expense" of an individual for a taxation year means

(a) in the case of a taxation year subsequent to the taxation year 2003, the aggregate of the amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under section 313.10 and the amount included in computing the individual's taxable income for the year under section 737.0.1; and

(b) in any other case, an amount equal to zero.

2005, c. 38, s. 71; 2007, c. 12, s. 52; 2009, c. 5, s. 120; 2009, c. 15, s. 79; 2011, c. 1, s. 29; 2015, c. 24, s. 58.

336.5.1. The expenses to which subparagraph ii of paragraph c of the definition of "investment expense" in section 336.5 refers are the following:

(a) Canadian exploration expenses that would be described in paragraph a.1 or c.1 of section 395 if the reference in those paragraphs to "Canada", wherever it appears, were a reference to "Québec";

(a.1*)* Canadian exploration expenses that would be described in paragraph c.3 of section 395 if, for the purposes of sections 395.2 and 395.3, the reference in paragraph c.1 of section 395 to "Canada" were a reference to "Québec";

(a.2*)* Canadian exploration expenses that would be described in paragraph c.4 or c.5 of section 395 if the reference in paragraph c.1 of that section to "Canada" were a reference to "Québec";

(b) Canadian exploration expenses that would be described in paragraph d of section 395 if the reference in that paragraph to "expenses described in paragraphs a to b.1 and c to c.2" were replaced by a reference to "expenses that would be described in paragraphs a.1 and c.1 if the reference in those paragraphs to "Canada", wherever it appears, were a reference to "Québec"";

(c) Canadian renewable and conservation expenses, within the meaning of section 399.7, to the extent that the expenses were incurred in respect of work carried out in Québec as part of a project relating to a business carried on in Québec;

(d) Canadian development expenses that would be described in any of paragraphs a, a.1 and b.0.1 to b.1 of section 408 if the reference in those paragraphs to "Canada", wherever it appears, were a reference to "Québec";

(e) Canadian development expenses that would be described in paragraph d of section 408 if the reference in that paragraph to "any expense described in paragraphs a to c" were replaced by a reference to "any expense that would be described in paragraphs a, a.1 and b.0.1 to b.1 if the reference in those paragraphs to "Canada", wherever it appears, were a reference to "Québec""; and

(f) expenses incurred in Québec that, because of section 726.4.12, are not expenses referred to in subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 726.4.10.

336.6. An individual, other than a trust that is not a personal trust, may deduct in computing the individual's income for a particular taxation year the unused portions of the total investment expense of the individual for the taxation years that precede the particular year and those for the three taxation years that follow the particular year, up to the amount by which the amount of the individual's investment income for the particular year exceeds the individual's total investment expense for the particular year.

However, for the purpose of computing the individual's income for the taxation year in which the individual died and for the preceding taxation year, the first paragraph is to be read as if "for the taxation years that precede the particular year and those for the three taxation years that follow the particular year, up to the amount by which the amount of the individual's investment income for the particular year exceeds the individual's total investment expense for the particular year" was replaced by "for all of the individual's taxation years".

2005, c. 38, s. 71.

336.7. No amount is deductible under section 336.6 in respect of an unused portion of the total investment expense for a taxation year until the unused portions of the total investment expense for the preceding taxation years have been deducted.

In addition, an unused portion of the total investment expense may be deducted for a taxation year under section 336.6 only if it exceeds the aggregate of the amounts deducted in its respect for the preceding taxation years under that section.

2005, c. 38, s. 71.

CHAPTER II.1

SPLITTING RETIREMENT INCOME

2009, c. 5, s. 121.

336.8. In this chapter,

"eligible retirement income" of an individual for a taxation year means the total of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included in computing the individual's income for the year and that is described in section 752.0.8, or that would be so described if section 752.0.10 were read without reference to its paragraph f; and

(b) the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a payment made in the year to the individual out of or under a retirement compensation arrangement that provides benefits that supplement the benefits provided under a registered pension plan (other than an individual pension plan for the purposes of Part LXXXIII of the Income Tax Regulations made under the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1, (5th Suppl.)), and in respect of a life annuity attributable to periods of employment for which benefits are also provided to the individual under the registered pension plan, and

ii. the amount by which the defined benefit limit (as defined by subsection 1 of section 8500 of the Income Tax Regulations made under the Income Tax Act) for the year multiplied by 35 exceeds the amount determined under paragraph a;

(c) the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts received by the individual in the year on account of

(1) a retirement income security benefit paid under Part 2 of the Veterans Well-being Act (S.C. 2005, c. 21), or

(2) an income replacement benefit paid under Part 2 of the Veterans Well-being Act, if the amount is determined under subsection 1 of section 19.1, paragraph b of subsection 1 of section 23 or subsection 1 of section 26.1 of that Act (as modified, where applicable, under Part 5 of that Act), and

ii. the amount by which the defined benefit limit (as defined by subsection 1 of section 8500 of the Income Tax Regulations made under the Income Tax Act) for the year multiplied by 35 exceeds the aggregate of the amounts determined under paragraphs a and b.

"eligible spouse" of an individual for a taxation year means the person who is the individual's eligible spouse for the year within the meaning of sections 776.41.1 to 776.41.4;

"joint election" for a taxation year means an election made jointly for the year in the prescribed form by a transferor and the transferee who is the transferor's eligible spouse for the year, and filed with the Minister with both the transferor's and the transferee's fiscal returns for the year on or before their respective filing-due dates for the year;

"split-retirement income amount" in respect of a transferor and a transferee for a taxation year means the amount elected by the transferor and the transferee in a joint election for the year not exceeding 50% of the transferor's eligible retirement income for the year;

"transferee" for a taxation year means an individual who

(a) is resident in Canada at the end of the year; and

(b) is a transferor's eligible spouse for the year;

"transferor" for a taxation year means an individual who

(a) receives eligible retirement income for the year;

(b) is resident in Canada at the end of the year; and

(c) has reached 65 years of age before the end of the year.

For the purposes of section 336.9 and the definitions of "transferee" and "transferor" in the first paragraph, the taxation year of an individual that is the year in which the individual dies or ceases to be resident in Canada is deemed to end immediately before the individual's death or at the end of the last day on which the individual was resident in Canada.

2009, c. 5, s. 121; 2012, c. 8, s. 47; 2015, c. 21, s. 167; 2019, c. 14, s. 119; 2020, c. 16, s. 60.

336.9. For the purpose of applying this chapter, for a taxation year, to a transferor and to the transferee who is the transferor's eligible spouse for the year, if either of them is resident in Canada outside Québec at the end of that year, section 336.8 is to be read

(a) as if the definitions of "joint election" and "split-retirement income amount" in the first paragraph were replaced by the following definitions:

""joint election" for a taxation year means a valid election made jointly for the year by a transferor and the transferee who is the transferor's eligible spouse for the year, for the purposes of section 60.03 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), in accordance with the definition of "joint election" in subsection 1 of that section;

"split-retirement income amount" in respect of a transferor and a transferee for a taxation year means the amount elected by the transferor and the transferee in a joint election for the year not exceeding the amount determined by the formula

0.5A × B/C;"; and

(b) as if the following paragraph was added after the second paragraph:

"In the definition of "split-retirement income amount" in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the transferor's eligible retirement income for the taxation year;

(b) B is the number of months in the transferor's taxation year during which the transferor was the transferee's spouse; and

(c) C is the number of months in the transferor's taxation year."

The individual who is resident in Québec at the end of the year shall send a copy of the joint election with the fiscal return the individual is required to file for the year under this Part.

If, for a taxation year, a transferor makes an election described in the definition of "joint election" in subsection 1 of section 60.03 of the Income Tax Act with an individual other than the transferor's eligible spouse for the year and either of them is resident in Canada outside Québec at the end of that year, that other individual is, for the purposes of the first paragraph and of section 336.8, deemed to be the transferor's eligible spouse for the year.

This chapter does not apply, for a taxation year, to the eligible spouse of a transferor, if both of them are resident in Québec at the end of the year, and if the presumption in the third paragraph applies to another individual with whom the transferor made the election referred to in that paragraph for the year.

For the purposes of this Part, an election described in the definition of "joint election" in the first paragraph of section 336.8, enacted by the first paragraph, is deemed to be made under this chapter.

2009, c. 5, s. 121.

336.10. For the purposes of section 336.8, a person is deemed not to be the eligible spouse of an individual for a taxation year if the person is exempt from tax for the year under section 982 or 983 or under any of subparagraphs a to d and f of the first paragraph of section 96 of the Tax Administration Act (chapter A-6.002).

2009, c. 5, s. 121; 2010, c. 31, s. 175.

336.11. A taxpayer who is a transferor for a taxation year may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income for that year, any amount that is a split-retirement income amount for the year in respect of the taxpayer.

However, a taxpayer who dies in a taxation year may deduct an amount under the first paragraph in computing the taxpayer's income for the year only in the taxpayer's fiscal return that is required to be filed for the year under this Part, otherwise than because of an election made by the taxpayer's legal representative in accordance with the second paragraph of section 429 or section 681 or 1003.

2009, c. 5, s. 121.

336.12. For the purposes of subparagraph ii of subparagraphs a and b of the first paragraph of section 752.0.7.4, the following rules apply if a transferor and a transferee make a joint election for a taxation year:

(a) the amount described in the third paragraph of section 752.0.7.4 in respect of the transferor for the year is deemed to be equal to the result obtained by subtracting from that amount otherwise determined the portion of that amount that is the proportion that the split-retirement income amount in respect of the transferor for the year is of the eligible retirement income of the transferor for the year; and

(b) the amount described in the third paragraph of section 752.0.7.4 in respect of the transferee for the year is deemed to be equal to the result obtained by adding to that amount otherwise determined the amount subtracted in accordance with paragraph a for the year.

2009, c. 5, s. 121; 2019, c. 14, s. 120; 2024, c. 11, s. 51.

336.13. A joint election is invalid if the Minister establishes that a transferor or a transferee has knowingly or under circumstances amounting to gross negligence made a false declaration in the joint election.

However, the first paragraph does not apply in respect of an election described in the definition of "joint election" in the first paragraph of section 336.8, enacted by the first paragraph of section 336.9.

CHAPTER IV

CONTRIBUTIONS, PREMIUMS AND CERTAIN TRANSFERS

1972, c. 23.

339. A taxpayer may also deduct:

(a) (paragraph repealed);

(b) any amount that is deductible under Title IV or IV.4 of Book VII or section 965.0.16.1 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

(c) (paragraph repealed);

(c.1*)* any amount that is deductible under Title V.1 of Book VII in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year;

(d) the amount that, by virtue of paragraph j of section 60 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), is allowed as a deduction for the year in computing his income for the purposes of the said Act;

(d.0.1*)* for his taxation year 1988, such particular part of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount received by him before 28 March 1988 that can reasonably be considered to be a payment in respect of an actuarial surplus under a defined benefit provision, within the meaning of section 965.0.1, of a registered pension plan and that is included in computing his income for the year under section 317, other than any portion of the amount deducted by him under section 339.5 in computing his income for the year,

i. as is designated by the taxpayer in his fiscal return for the year under this Part, and

ii. as does not exceed the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount, to the extent that it was not deducted in computing his income for a preceding taxation year, paid by him in the year or within 60 days after the end of the year

(1) as a contribution to or under a registered pension plan for his benefit, other than the portion thereof deductible under paragraph d or d.1, paragraph c of section 70 or section 72.1 in computing his income for the year, or

(2) as a premium under a registered retirement savings plan under which he is the annuitant, within the meaning of paragraph b of section 905.1, other than the portion thereof that has been designated for the purposes of paragraph d, d.1 or f;

(d.0.2*)* an amount equal to the lesser of

i. the aggregate of the following amounts, other than the portion of that aggregate that is deductible under paragraph c of section 70 or paragraph d.0.3 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year:

(1) all contributions made in the year by the taxpayer to a registered pension plan in respect of eligible service of the taxpayer before 1 January 1990 under the plan, where the taxpayer was obliged under the terms of an agreement in writing entered into before 28 March 1988 to make the contributions, and

(2) the amounts paid in the year by the taxpayer to a registered pension plan as a repayment under a prescribed statutory provision of an amount received from the plan that was included under section 309 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year ending before 1 January 1990, where the taxpayer was obliged as a consequence of a written election made before 28 March 1988 to make the repayment, or as interest in respect of the repayment; and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid out of or under a registered pension plan as part of a series of periodic payments and included under section 309 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, other than the portion of that aggregate that can reasonably be considered to have been designated by the taxpayer for the purposes of paragraph j.2 of section 60 of the Income Tax Act;

(d.0.3*)* an amount equal to the lesser of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid in the year or a preceding taxation year by the taxpayer to a registered pension plan that was not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year and that was paid as a repayment under a prescribed statutory provision of an amount received from the plan that was included under section 309 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year ending before 1 January 1990, or as interest in respect of the repayment, and

ii. the amount by which $5,500 exceeds the amount deducted under paragraph c of section 70 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

(d.0.4*)* the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid in the year by the taxpayer to a registered pension plan as a repayment under a prescribed statutory provision of an amount received from the plan that was included under section 309 in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year ending after 31 December 1989, and that can reasonably be considered not to have been designated by the taxpayer for the purposes of paragraph j.2 of section 60 of the Income Tax Act, or as interest in respect of the repayment, except such portion of the aggregate that was deductible under paragraph c of section 70 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

(d.1) the amount that, by virtue of paragraph j.1 of section 60 of the Income Tax Act, is allowed as a deduction for the year in computing his income for the purposes of the said Act;

(d.2) the amount that, by virtue of paragraph j.2 of section 60 of the Income Tax Act, is allowed as a deduction for the year in computing his income for the purposes of the said Act;

(e) (paragraph repealed);

(f) the amount that, by virtue of paragraph l of section 60 of the Income Tax Act, is allowed as a deduction for the year in computing his income for the purposes of the said Act;

(f.1) the amount allowed as a deduction for the year in computing the taxpayer's income for the purposes of the Income Tax Act under paragraph m of section 60 of that Act as payments to a registered disability savings plan;

(g) (paragraph repealed);

(h) any amount deductible under section 890.12 in computing his income for the year;

(i) (paragraph repealed);

(i.1) the amount by which the amount equal to the product obtained by multiplying the amount payable by the taxpayer for the year as a premium on the taxpayer's business income under the Act respecting parental insurance (chapter A-29.011) by the proportion that the premium rate referred to in subparagraph 1 of the first paragraph of section 6 of that Act is of the premium rate referred to in subparagraph 3 of that paragraph, is exceeded by the amount payable by the taxpayer for the year as a premium on the taxpayer's business income under that Act, other than an amount, in respect of that amount payable by the taxpayer for the year, in relation to a business of the taxpayer, as that premium, if all of the taxpayer's income from that business is not required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or is deductible in computing the taxpayer's taxable income for the year under any of sections 725, 737.16, 737.18.10 and 737.22.0.10; and

(j) subject to section 339.0.1, the aggregate of

i. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is 50% of the amount payable by the taxpayer for the year on account of the base contribution in respect of self-employed earnings under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan (chapter R-9) or on account of a similar contribution under any similar plan within the meaning of paragraph u of section 1 of that Act,

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount payable by the taxpayer for the year on account of the first or second additional contribution in respect of self-employed earnings under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan or on account of a similar contribution under any similar plan within the meaning of paragraph u of section 1 of that Act, and

iii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount payable by the taxpayer for the year on account of the employee's first or second additional contribution under the Act respecting the Québec Pension Plan or on account of a similar contribution under any similar plan within the meaning of paragraph u of section 1 of that Act.

339.0.1. A taxpayer shall not include the following amounts in the aggregate described in paragraph j of section 339 for a taxation year:

(a) an amount payable by the taxpayer for the year in relation to a business of the taxpayer, on account of a contribution referred to in subparagraph i or ii of that paragraph j, if all of the taxpayer's income for the year from that business is not required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or is deductible in computing the taxpayer's taxable income for the year under any of sections 725, 737.16 and 737.22.0.10; and

(b) an amount payable by the taxpayer for the year in relation to an office or employment of the taxpayer, on account of a contribution referred to in subparagraph iii of that paragraph j, if all of the taxpayer's income for the year from that office or employment is not required to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or is deductible in computing the taxpayer's taxable income for the year under any of sections 725, 737.16, 737.21, 737.22.0.0.3, 737.22.0.0.7, 737.22.0.3, 737.22.0.4.7, 737.22.0.7 and 737.22.0.10.

ADDITIONAL VOLUNTARY CONTRIBUTIONS

1991, c. 25, s. 69.

339.5. A taxpayer may deduct in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year an amount equal to the aggregate of the following amounts:

(a) if the taxation year ends before 1 January 1991, the aggregate of all amounts each of which is that portion of an amount paid to the taxpayer before 1 January 1991 and included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year by reason of section 310, to the extent that that section refers to Title IV of Book VII, paragraph k of section 311 or section 317, that may reasonably be considered as a refund of additional voluntary contributions made by the taxpayer before 9 October 1986 to a registered pension plan for the taxpayer's benefit in respect of services rendered by the taxpayer before the year in which the contributions were made, to the extent that the contributions were not deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for any taxation year; and

(b) the least of

i. $3,500,

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount included after 31 December 1986 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year by reason of section 310, to the extent that that section refers to Title IV or V.1 of Book VII, paragraph c.2 of section 312 or section 317, and

iii. the balance of the annuitized voluntary contributions of the taxpayer at the end of the year.

1991, c. 25, s. 69; 2010, c. 5, s. 38.

339.6. For the purposes of section 339.5, the balance of the annuitized voluntary contributions of the taxpayer at the end of a taxation year is equal to the amount by which

(a) such part of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an additional voluntary contribution made by the taxpayer to a registered pension plan before 9 October 1986 in respect of services rendered by him before the year in which the contribution was made, to the extent that the contribution was not deducted in computing his income for any taxation year, as may reasonably be considered as having been used before 9 October 1986 to acquire or provide an annuity for the taxpayer's benefit under a registered pension plan or registered retirement savings plan, or as having been transferred before 9 October 1986 to a registered retirement income fund under which the taxpayer was the annuitant, within the meaning of paragraph d of section 961.1.5, at the time of the transfer, exceeds

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

i. an amount deducted in computing his income for a preceding taxation year under paragraph b of section 339.5, or

ii. an amount deducted in computing his income for the year or a preceding taxation year under paragraph a of section 339.5, to the extent that the amount can reasonably be considered to be in respect of a refund of additional voluntary contributions included in determining the aggregate under paragraph a.

CHAPTER VI

INCOME-AVERAGING ANNUITIES

1972, c. 23.

342. An individual resident in Canada may deduct in computing his income for a year, an amount which he pays in the year or within 60 days following the end of the year for the acquisition of an income-averaging annuity for himself, under a contract with a person licensed or otherwise authorized by the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada or in a province an annuities business or to offer trustee services there, to the extent that such amount has not already been deducted the preceding year.

1972, c. 23, s. 311; 1972, c. 26, s. 44.

343. To be entitled to the deduction provided in section 342, the individual must acquire the income-averaging annuity by

(a) a single payment described in the second paragraph and made under the terms of a contract

i. which entitles him to receive, during a period beginning not later than ten months after the date of such payment, either an annuity for life or such annuity with a guaranteed term for a number of years not exceeding the lesser of 15 and the difference between 85 and his age at the time the annuity commences to be paid to him, or an annuity for such guaranteed term; and

ii. which shall not provide for payments other than the single payment by the individual and the equal annuity payments which must be paid to him annually or at more frequent periodic intervals; or

(b) a single payment made in respect of his taxation year 1981, other than a single payment contemplated in subparagraph a according to the terms of a contract

i. providing that all the payments to the individual under the contract must be made before 1 January 1983; and

ii. providing no other payment than the single payment by the individual and the payments described in subparagraph i.

The single payment contemplated in subparagraph a of the first paragraph is a single payment made

(a) before 13 November 1981; or

(b) after 12 November 1981 in accordance with an agreement in writing entered into before 13 November 1981 to make such a payment in respect of his taxation year 1981, or pursuant to an arrangement in writing made before that date to have funds withheld before 1 January 1982 from any of the individual's remuneration described in paragraph a of section 344 and earned or received before the latter date and to be paid by or on behalf of the individual.

1972, c. 23, s. 312; 1974, c. 18, s. 19; 1984, c. 15, s. 81.

344. The amount which an individual may deduct under section 342 shall not exceed:

(a) the aggregate of:

i. the amounts contemplated in section 345 less any deduction allowable for the year under paragraphs d, e and f of section 339; and

ii. the excess of the amount determined for the year under paragraph b of section 28 over the aggregate of his allowable business investment losses for the year;

iii. the excess of the amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under section 330 or 331, as the latter section applies in respect of a disposition made before 31 December 1984, over the aggregate of the amounts deducted in that computation under sections 333.1 and 362 to 418.12, section 88.4 of the Act respecting the application of the Taxation Act (chapter I-4) and sections 357 and 358, as they apply in respect of a disposition made before 13 November 1981;

iv. his income for the year from the production of literary, dramatic, musical or artistic work; and

v. his income for the year from his activities as an athlete, a musician or a public entertainer such as a theatre, motion picture, radio or television artist; less:

(b) the amounts which the individual is to receive within the 12 months beginning on the date when the first payment is to be paid to him in respect of each income-averaging annuity.

1972, c. 23, s. 313; 1973, c. 18, s. 10; 1975, c. 22, s. 65; 1978, c. 26, s. 54; 1980, c. 13, s. 28; 1982, c. 5, s. 79; 1998, c. 16, s. 251; 2023, c. 19, s. 26.

345. The amounts mentioned in subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 344 are the following:

(a) a single payment which the individual receives in the year:

i. under a pension plan, upon the death, withdrawal or retirement of an employee or former employee, upon the winding up of the plan in full satisfaction of all rights of the participant in the plan or, when an amendment to the plan confers on him the right to receive such payment, although he continues to participate in it;

ii. upon his retirement as an employee in recognition of long service, if such payment is not contemplated by subparagraph i of paragraph a;

iii. pursuant to an employees profit sharing plan in full satisfaction of all his rights in or under the plan, to the extent that this payment is required to be included in computing his income for the year in which the payment was received; or

iv. pursuant to a deferred profit sharing plan upon the death, withdrawal or retirement of an employee or former employee, to the extent that this payment is required to be included in computing his income for the year in which the payment was received;

(b) a payment made to an individual in the year of his retirement or in the following year, in consideration of loss of office or employment, if such payment is made by an employer to the individual as an employee or former employee;

(c) a payment made to the individual as a death benefit, if such payment is made in the year of death or within one year after that year;

(d) an amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph l of section 311 and sections 93 to 110.1, 186, 187, 196 or 197, 684 or 955;

(e) an amount included in computing the individual's income under section 929, but only to the extent that such amount is a refund of premiums, under a registered retirement savings plan, where the individual receives such amount on or after the death of the person who was, immediately before his death, the annuitant thereunder;

(f) the benefit which the individual is deemed to have received under Division VI of Chapter II of Title II;

(g) the excess over $500 of an amount received by the individual in the year as a prize for achievement in a field of endeavour which he ordinarily carries on;

(h) a payment made in the year to an individual under paragraph b of subsection 2 of section 51 of the Judges Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter J-1);

(i) a payment that the individual receives in the year, under an order or decision of a competent court, as salary or wages owing by his employer or former employer, if part of that payment is received in respect of a previous year;

(j) an amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph c of section 46 of the Act respecting the application of the Taxation Act (chapter I-4), but only where the individual has not claimed a deduction in that computation under paragraph a of the said section 46; and

(k) where the individual ceased to be a member of a partnership in the year or the preceding year and where, in computing his income therefrom for that preceding year, he made the election provided for in paragraph c of section 215, the amount included in computing his income for the year under paragraph a of section 28, to the extent that, having regard to all the circumstances, including the proportion in which the members of the partnership have agreed to share the profits of the partnership, such amount may reasonably be considered to be his share of the work in progress of the partnership at the time he ceased to be a member thereof if, during the remainder of the year in which he ceased to be a member thereof and in the following year, he did not become employed in the business carried on by the partnership, carry on a business that is a profession or become a member of another partnership carrying on a business that is a profession.

1972, c. 23, s. 314; 1973, c. 18, s. 11; 1975, c. 21, s. 11; 1977, c. 26, s. 31; 1980, c. 13, s. 29; 1982, c. 5, s. 80; 1988, c. 18, s. 22; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2001, c. 53, s. 260; 2003, c. 2, s. 110.

346. Where, at a particular time, an income-averaging annuity ceases to qualify as such otherwise than by virtue of the surrender, cancellation, redemption, sale or disposition of such contract, the individual is deemed to have received at that time as proceeds of disposition of the contract an amount equal to its fair market value at that time, and to have acquired immediately thereafter a contract other than an income-averaging annuity at a cost corresponding to that fair market value.

Any payment under an income-averaging annuity contract to which a deceased individual was entitled under the contract before he died and that is made under that contract after his death is deemed to be a payment made under such a contract.

1972, c. 23, s. 315; 1977, c. 26, s. 32.

CHAPTER VI.0.1

INCOME-AVERAGING ANNUITIES RESPECTING INCOME FROM ARTISTIC ACTIVITIES

2005, c. 23, s. 50.

346.0.1. An individual who is, in a taxation year, a recognized artist may deduct, in computing income for the year, an amount that the individual pays in the year or within 60 days after the end of the year to acquire an income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities from a person described in the fourth paragraph, to the extent that that amount has not been deducted for the preceding year.

However, the amount that an individual may deduct for a taxation year under the first paragraph may not exceed an amount equal to the amount obtained by subtracting, from the portion of the individual's income for the year that may reasonably be considered to be attributable to artistic activities in respect of which the individual is a recognized artist, the aggregate of $25,000 and the amount that the individual may deduct for the year under section 726.26.

In this section, "recognized artist" means an individual who is an artist within the meaning of the Act respecting the professional status of artists in the visual arts, film, the recording arts, literature, arts and crafts and the performing arts (chapter S-32.1).

A person to whom the first paragraph refers is a person who is licensed or otherwise authorized by the laws of Québec or Canada to carry on an annuities business in Québec or offer trustee services in Québec, and who is authorized by the Minister, in accordance with section 346.0.3, to offer an income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities for the purposes of this chapter.

346.0.2. No individual may deduct an amount under section 346.0.1 unless the contract under which the individual acquires an income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities is consistent with the standard contract previously approved by the Minister and provides for stipulations consistent with the following provisions:

(a) the income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities is acquired in consideration for a single payment;

(b) the income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities is payable, at least once a year or at more frequent periodic intervals, in equal payments sufficient to ensure its full payment over a period not exceeding seven years from the date on which the first payment is made, which payment must be made not later than ten months after the date on which the single payment referred to in paragraph a is made;

(c) the individual is entitled to request, at any time, the full or partial commutation of the income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities;

(d) the income-averaging annuity payments respecting income from artistic activities may only be made to the individual or, after the individual's death, to a person designated by the individual under the contract, the individual's succession or any of the beneficiaries of the individual's succession, as the case may be;

(e) except in case of death, the rights of the individual as annuitant may not be disposed of otherwise than by the redemption or cancellation of the income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities by the debtor; and

(f) the rights of the individual as annuitant may not be given or transferred as security in any manner whatsoever.

2005, c. 23, s. 50.

346.0.3. For the purposes of the fourth paragraph of section 346.0.1, the Minister may authorize a person to offer an income-averaging annuity respecting income from artistic activities if

(a) the person first submitted to the Minister for approval a standard contract containing stipulations consistent with the provisions mentioned in paragraphs a to f of section 346.0.2; and

(b) the person undertakes with the Minister that any annuity contract the person enters into with an individual to enable the individual to benefit from the deduction under section 346.0.1 be consistent with that standard contract.

2005, c. 23, s. 50.

346.0.4. If an individual dies and an amount the individual was entitled to receive before dying under an income-averaging annuity contract respecting income from artistic activities is paid after the individual's death under that contract, that amount is deemed to be an amount paid under such a contract.

2005, c. 23, s. 50.

CHAPTER VI.1

DEBT FORGIVENESS

1996, c. 39, s. 106.

346.1. There may be deducted in computing the income for a taxation year of an individual, other than a trust, resident in Canada throughout the year such amount as the individual claims not exceeding the amount determined by the formula

$$A + B - 0.2 (C - $40{,}000).$$

For the purposes of the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of the application of sections 485 to 485.18 to an obligation payable by the individual, or a partnership of which the individual was a member, was included under section 485.13 in computing the income of the individual for the year or the income of the partnership for a fiscal period that ends in the year, to the extent that, where the amount was included in computing income of a partnership, it relates to the individual's share of that income, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts deducted because of paragraph a of section 485.15 in computing the individual's income for the year;

(b) B is the amount included under section 313.7 in computing the individual's income for the year; and

(c) C is the greater of $40,000 and the individual's income for the year, determined without reference to this section, section 313.7, paragraph j of section 336, section 485.13 and paragraph a of section 485.15.

1996, c. 39, s. 106; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 251.

346.2. Subject to section 346.3, there shall be deducted in computing the income for a taxation year of a corporation that is not exempt from tax under this Part on its taxable income, the lesser of

(a) the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of the application of sections 485 to 485.18 to a commercial obligation, within the meaning assigned by section 485, issued by the corporation, or a partnership of which the corporation was a member, was included under section 485.13 in computing the income of the corporation for the year or the income of the partnership for a fiscal period that ends in the year, to the extent that the amount, where it was included in computing income of a partnership, relates to the corporation's share of that income, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts deducted because of paragraph a of section 485.15, in computing the corporation's income for the year; and

(b) the amount determined by the formula

A − 2 (B − C − D − E).

For the purposes of the formula in subparagraph b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount determined under subparagraph a of the first paragraph in respect of the corporation for the year;

(b) B is the aggregate of

i. the fair market value of the assets of the corporation at the end of the year,

ii. the amounts paid before the end of the year on account of the corporation's tax payable under this Part or any of Parts III.11, IV, IV.1, VI, VI.1 and VII for the year or on account of a tax payable by the corporation for the year, under any of Parts I, I.3, II, VI and XIV of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)) or under any similar part of an Act of a province other than Québec, and

iii. all amounts paid by the corporation in the 12-month period preceding the end of the year to a person with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length

(1) as a dividend, other than a stock dividend,

(2) on a reduction of paid-up capital in respect of any class of shares of its capital stock,

(3) on a redemption, acquisition or cancellation of its shares, or

(4) as a distribution or appropriation in any manner whatever to or for the benefit of the shareholders, to the extent that the distribution or appropriation cannot reasonably be considered to have resulted in a reduction in the amount otherwise determined under subparagraph c in respect of the corporation for the year;

(c) C is the total liabilities of the corporation at the end of the year determined in accordance with the rules set out in the third paragraph and without reference to any tax payable by the corporation for the year under this Part and Parts III.11, IV, IV.1, VI, VI.1 and VII or to a tax payable by the corporation for the year under any of Parts I, I.3, II, VI and XIV of the Income Tax Act or under any similar part of an Act of a province other than Québec,

(d) D is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the principal amount at the end of the year of a distress preferred share, within the meaning assigned by section 485, issued by the corporation; and

(e) E is 50% of the amount by which the amount that would be the corporation's income for the year if that amount were determined without reference to this section and sections 346.3 and 346.4 exceeds the amount determined under subparagraph a of the first paragraph in respect of the corporation for the year.

For the purposes of subparagraph c of the second paragraph, except as otherwise provided therein, the total liabilities of a corporation shall

(a) where the corporation is not an insurance corporation, a federal credit union or a bank to which subparagraph b or c applies and the balance sheet as of the end of the year was prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and was presented to the shareholders of the corporation, be considered to be the total liabilities shown on that balance sheet;

(b) where the corporation is a bank, a federal credit union or an insurance corporation that is required to report to the Superintendent of Financial Institutions of Canada and the balance sheet as of the end of the year was accepted by the Superintendent, be considered to be the total liabilities shown on that balance sheet;

(c) where the corporation is an insurance corporation that is required to report to the superintendent of insurance or other similar officer or authority of the province under whose laws the corporation is incorporated, or the Autorité des marchés financiers, and the balance sheet as of the end of the year was accepted by that officer or authority, be considered to be the total liabilities shown on that balance sheet; and

(d) in any other case, be considered to be the amount that would be shown as total liabilities of the corporation at the end of the year on a balance sheet prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

Subparagraph c of the second paragraph and the third paragraph apply, subject to section 7.12.

1996, c. 39, s. 106; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1997, c. 14, s. 64; 2000, c. 5, s. 90; 2002, c. 45, s. 520; 2004, c. 37, s. 90; 2013, c. 10, s. 27.

346.3. Section 346.2 does not apply in respect of a corporation for a taxation year where property was transferred in the 12-month period preceding the end of the year or the corporation became indebted in that period and it can reasonably be considered that one of the reasons for the transfer or the indebtedness was to increase the amount that the corporation would, but for this section, be entitled to deduct under that section 346.2.

1996, c. 39, s. 106; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

346.4. There may be deducted as a reserve in computing the income for a taxation year of a taxpayer that is a corporation or trust resident in Canada throughout the year or a person not resident in Canada who carried on business through a fixed place of business in Canada at the end of the year such amount as the taxpayer claims not exceeding the least of

(a) the amount determined by the formula

A − B;

(b) the aggregate of

i. 4/5 of the amount that would be determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph in respect of the taxpayer for the year if that value did not take into account amounts included or deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for any preceding taxation year,

ii. 3/5 of the amount that would be determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph in respect of the taxpayer for the year if that value did not take into account amounts included or deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year other than the last preceding taxation year,

iii. 2/5 of the amount that would be determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph in respect of the taxpayer for the year if that value did not take into account amounts included or deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year, other than the second last preceding taxation year, and

iv. 1/5 of the amount that would be determined under subparagraph a of the second paragraph in respect of the taxpayer for the year if that value did not take into account amounts included or deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or any preceding taxation year, other than the third last preceding taxation year; and

(c) where the taxpayer is a corporation that commences to wind up in the year, otherwise than in circumstances to which the rules in sections 556 to 564.1 and 565 apply, zero.

For the purposes of the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount that, because of the application of sections 485 to 485.18 to a commercial obligation, within the meaning assigned by section 485, issued by the taxpayer, or a partnership of which the taxpayer was a member, was included under section 485.13 in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year or a preceding taxation year or of the partnership for a fiscal period that ends in that year or preceding year, to the extent that, where the amount was included in computing income of a partnership, it relates to the taxpayer's share of that income, exceeds the aggregate of

i. all amounts deducted under paragraph a of section 485.15 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year, and

ii. all amounts deducted under section 346.2 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year; and

(b) B is the amount by which the amount determined under subparagraph a in respect of the taxpayer for the year exceeds the aggregate of

i. the amount that would be determined under subparagraph a in respect of the taxpayer for the year if that value did not take into account amounts included or deducted in computing the taxpayer's income for any preceding taxation year, and

ii. the amount included under section 313.8 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

1996, c. 39, s. 106; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

CHAPTER VII

MOVING EXPENSES

1972, c. 23.

347. (Repealed).

1972, c. 23, s. 316; 1986, c. 15, s. 71; 1994, c. 22, s. 350; 2001, c. 53, s. 60.

348. An individual may deduct in computing the individual's income for a taxation year amounts paid by the individual as moving expenses incurred in respect of an eligible relocation, to the extent that

(a) they were not paid on the individual's behalf because of, or in the course of, the individual's office or employment;

(b) they were not deductible because of this chapter in computing the individual's income for the preceding taxation year;

(c) the aggregate of those amounts does not exceed

i. where the eligible relocation occurs to enable the individual to carry on a business or to be employed at a new work location, the aggregate of the individual's income for the year from the individual's employment at the new work location or from carrying on the business at the new work location and the amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph e.6 of section 311 in respect of the individual's employment at the new work location, and

ii. where the eligible relocation occurs to enable the individual to be a student in full-time attendance enrolled in a program at a post-secondary level at a location of a university, college or other educational institution, the aggregate of all amounts included in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph h of section 312; and

(d) any reimbursement or allowance received by the individual in respect of those expenses is included in computing the individual's income.

1972, c. 23, s. 317; 1972, c. 26, s. 45; 1979, c. 18, s. 27; 1986, c. 15, s. 72; 1986, c. 19, s. 66; 1994, c. 22, s. 350; 2001, c. 53, s. 61; 2002, c. 40, s. 34; 2010, c. 5, s. 39.

349. An individual may deduct in computing the individual's income for a taxation year, under section 348, an amount that the individual would be entitled to deduct under section 348 if paragraphs a and b.1 of the definition of "eligible relocation" in section 349.1 were read as follows:

"(a) the relocation occurs to enable the individual to be a student in full-time attendance enrolled in a program at a post-secondary level at a location of a university, college or other educational institution, that institution being in this chapter referred to as "the new work location";";

"(b.1) except if the individual is absent from Canada but resident in Québec, either or both the old residence and the new residence are in Canada; and".

1972, c. 23, s. 318; 1994, c. 22, s. 350; 1997, c. 14, s. 65; 2001, c. 53, s. 61; 2015, c. 21, s. 168.

349.1. In this chapter, "eligible relocation" means a relocation of an individual where

(a) the relocation occurs to enable the individual to carry on a business or to be employed at a location that is in Canada, except if the individual is absent from Canada but resident in Québec, or to be a student in full-time attendance enrolled in a program at a post-secondary level at a location of a university, college or other educational institution, that location and that institution being in this chapter referred to as "the new work location";

(b) before the relocation, the individual ordinarily resided at a residence (in this chapter referred to as "the old residence") and, after the relocation, the individual ordinarily resided at a residence (in this chapter referred to as "the new residence");

(b.1) except if the individual is absent from Canada but resident in Québec, both the old residence and the new residence are in Canada; and

(c) the distance between the old residence and the new work location is not less than 40 kilometres greater than the distance between the new residence and the new work location.

2001, c. 53, s. 62; 2015, c. 21, s. 169.

350. For the purposes of section 348, expenses incurred by an individual as moving expenses are

(a) travel costs, including a reasonable amount for meals and lodging, in the course of moving the individual and other members of the individual's household;

(b) the cost to the individual of transporting or storing household effects in the course of moving;

(c) the cost of meals and lodging near the individual's old residence or new residence for the individual and other members of the individual's household for a period not exceeding 15 days;

(d) the cost to the individual of cancelling the lease of the individual's old residence;

(e) the selling costs of the individual's old residence;

(f) where the old residence is sold by the individual or the individual's spouse as a result of the move, the legal costs incurred for the acquisition of the individual's new residence that are required for that acquisition and any tax, fee or duty, other than any goods and services tax or value-added tax, imposed on the transfer of the right of ownership to, or registration of rights arising out of the acquisition of, the new residence;

(g) interest, property taxes, insurance premiums and the cost of heating and utilities in respect of the old residence, to the extent of the lesser of $5,000 and the total of such expenses of the individual for the period

i. throughout which the old residence is neither ordinarily occupied by the individual or by any other person who ordinarily resided with the individual at the old residence immediately before the move nor rented by the individual to any other person, and

ii. in which reasonable efforts are made to sell the old residence; and

(h) the cost of revising legal documents to reflect the address of the individual's new residence, of replacing drivers' licenses and personal vehicle permits, excluding any cost for vehicle insurance, and of connecting or disconnecting utilities.

CHAPTER VII.1

INDIVIDUALS RESIDING IN REMOTE AREAS

2003, c. 9, s. 27.

350.0.1. In this chapter,

"amount on account of employer-provided travel benefits" of a taxpayer means, in respect of a trip made by the taxpayer or an eligible family member of the taxpayer, the amount that is the aggregate of

(a) the value of the assistance provided to the taxpayer in respect of the taxpayer's employment in respect of travel expenses for the trip; and

(b) the amount received by the taxpayer in respect of the taxpayer's employment in respect of travel expenses for the trip;

"eligible family member" of a taxpayer, at any time, means a member of the taxpayer's household who is at that time

(a) the taxpayer's spouse;

(b) a child of the taxpayer under the age of 18; or

(c) an individual who is

i. related to the taxpayer, and

ii. wholly dependent for support on the taxpayer, the taxpayer's spouse, or both of them, and, except in the case of the taxpayer's father, mother, grand-father or grand-mother, so dependent by reason of mental or physical infirmity;

"standard amount" applicable in respect of an individual for a taxation year means, subject to section 350.3.3, $1,200;

"trip cost" has the meaning assigned by Chapter IV of Title XXI of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1).

2023, c. 2, s. 8.

350.1. A taxpayer who is an individual and who, throughout a period (in this chapter referred to as the "qualifying period") of not less than six consecutive months commencing or ending in a taxation year, has resided in one or more particular areas each of which was a prescribed northern zone or prescribed intermediate zone for the year may, if the taxpayer encloses the prescribed form containing prescribed information with the fiscal return the taxpayer is required to file for the year under section 1000, deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year, the amount determined in respect of the taxpayer under section 350.2.

2003, c. 9, s. 27; 2023, c. 2, s. 9.

350.2. The amount to which section 350.1 refers is equal to the aggregate of

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount determined, in respect of a particular period of the year, by the formula

A × B; and

(b) the lesser of

i. 20% of the taxpayer's income for the year, computed without reference to this chapter, and

ii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is equal to the amount obtained by applying the specified percentage for the year for the particular area in which the taxpayer resided to the aggregate of

(1) $11.00 multiplied by the number of days in the year included in the qualifying period in which the taxpayer resided in the particular area, and

(2) $11.00 multiplied by the number of days in the year included in that portion of the qualifying period throughout which the taxpayer maintained and resided in a self-contained domestic establishment in the particular area, except any day taken into account for the purpose of computing an amount deducted under this subparagraph b by another person who resided on that day in the establishment.

In the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the specified percentage for the year for the particular area in which the taxpayer resided during the particular period; and

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the trip cost to the taxpayer in respect of a trip that begins during the particular period.

For the purposes of the first and second paragraphs, the specified percentage for a taxation year for a particular area is

(a) 100%, where the area is a prescribed northern zone for the year for the purposes of section 350.1; and

(b) 50%, where the area is a prescribed intermediate zone for the year for the purposes of section 350.1.

2003, c. 9, s. 27; 2009, c. 15, s. 80; 2017, c. 29, s. 61; 2023, c. 2, s. 10.

350.3. The aggregate of the amounts determined for a taxation year under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 350.2 in respect of all the taxpayers in relation to an individual shall not be in respect of more than two trips made by the individual that begin in the year, other than trips to obtain medical services that are not available in the locality in which the taxpayer resided.

2003, c. 9, s. 27; 2023, c. 2, s. 11.

350.3.1. For the purposes of the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 350.2 in respect of a taxpayer for a taxation year in relation to a particular area, an amount may only be included in determining the value of B in that formula if

(a) the amount is not otherwise deducted in computing an individual's income for a taxation year, unless it is deducted in computing an employer's income in accordance with sections 80 to 82 and included in computing an employee's income;

(b) the amount is not taken into account in determining an amount deducted under section 752.0.11 for a taxation year;

(c) the amount is in respect of trips made by the taxpayer or an eligible family member of the taxpayer that begin during the part of the year in which the taxpayer resided in the particular area; and

(d) neither the taxpayer nor an eligible family member of the taxpayer is at any time entitled to a reimbursement or any form of assistance (other than a reimbursement or assistance included in computing the income of the taxpayer or the eligible family member) in respect of trips to which paragraph c applies.

2023, c. 2, s. 12.

350.3.2. Where all the amounts determined under subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 350.2R4 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1) in respect of trips made by an individual that begin in a taxation year are nil, the aggregate of the amounts determined for the year for B in the formula in subparagraph a of the first paragraph of section 350.2 in respect of all the taxpayers in relation to the individual must not exceed the standard amount applicable in respect of the individual for the year.

2023, c. 2, s. 12.

350.3.3. Where, under section 350.2R4 of the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1), an amount on account of employer-provided travel benefits of a taxpayer was claimed by the taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of a trip made by an individual, the standard amount applicable in respect of the individual for the year is deemed to be nil.

2023, c. 2, s. 12.

350.4. The amount determined under subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 350.2 in respect of a taxpayer for a taxation year in relation to a particular area shall not exceed the amount by which the aggregate of the amounts otherwise determined under that subparagraph ii for the year in relation to that particular area exceeds the value of expenses, or an allowance in respect of expenses incurred by the taxpayer, for the taxpayer's board and lodging in the particular area, other than at a work site described in subparagraph d.1 of the first paragraph of section 421.2, that

(a) would, but for subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 42, be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year; and

(b) may reasonably be attributable to that portion of the qualifying period that is in the year and during which the taxpayer maintained a self-contained domestic establishment as principal place of residence in an area other than a prescribed northern zone or a prescribed intermediate zone for the year for the purposes of section 350.1.

For the purpose of determining whether the condition set out in subparagraph a of the first paragraph is satisfied, no account shall be taken of paragraph g of section 39.

2003, c. 9, s. 27; 2005, c. 1, s. 91; 2023, c. 2, s. 13.

350.5. Where on any particular day a taxpayer resides in more than one particular area referred to in section 350.2, for the purposes of that section, the taxpayer is deemed to reside in only one such area on that day.

2003, c. 9, s. 27; 2023, c. 2, s. 13.

350.6. Where a taxpayer is, at any time in a taxation year, a foreign researcher within the meaning of section 737.19, a foreign researcher on a postdoctoral internship within the meaning of section 737.22.0.0.1, a foreign expert within the meaning of section 737.22.0.0.5, a foreign specialist within the meaning of section 737.22.0.1 or 737.22.0.4.1 or a foreign professor within the meaning of section 737.22.0.5, the following rules apply for the purpose of computing the amount that the taxpayer may deduct under section 350.1 for the year:

(a) the taxpayer may not include, in the aggregate referred to in subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 350.2 in relation to a particular period in the year, an amount related to a trip beginning in the part of the particular period that is included in the taxpayer's research activity period, the taxpayer's eligible activity period or the taxpayer's specialized activity period, in relation to an employment, within the meaning of any of sections 737.19, 737.22.0.0.1, 737.22.0.0.5, 737.22.0.1, 737.22.0.4.1 and 737.22.0.5, as the case may be; and

(b) for the purposes of subparagraphs 1 and 2 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph of section 350.2, the number of days in the year included in the qualifying period in which the taxpayer resided in the particular region does not include a day included in the taxpayer's research activity period, the taxpayer's eligible activity period or the taxpayer's specialized activity period, in relation to an employment, within the meaning of any of sections 737.19, 737.22.0.0.1, 737.22.0.0.5, 737.22.0.1, 737.22.0.4.1 and 737.22.0.5, as the case may be.

Where section 737.22.0.10 or 737.22.0.13 applies to a taxpayer for a taxation year, the taxpayer may not deduct, in computing income for the year, an amount under section 350.1.

DEDUCTION FOR GOODS AND SERVICES TO SUPPORT A DISABLED PERSON

1991, c. 25, s. 72; 2005, c. 38, s. 73; 2006, c. 36, s. 38.

358.0.1. An individual who files with the individual's fiscal return under this Part for a taxation year, other than a return filed under the second paragraph of section 429 or any of sections 681, 782 and 1003, a prescribed form containing the prescribed information may deduct in computing the individual's income for the year the lesser of

(a) the amount determined by the formula

A - B; and

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

i. an amount included under any of sections 32 to 58.3 in computing the individual's income for the year from an office or employment,

ii. the individual's income for the year from a business carried on either alone or as a partner actively engaged in the business,

iii. an amount included under any of paragraphs e.2 to e.6 of section 311 or paragraph g or h of section 312 in computing the individual's income for the year, or

iv. the amount determined under the third paragraph, where the individual is attending a secondary school or taking a course offered by an educational institution referred to in section 358.0.2, as a student enrolled in an educational program;

(c) (subparagraph repealed).

In the formula in the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount paid by the individual in the year and that i. was paid to enable the individual to perform the duties of an office or employment, to carry on a business either alone or as a partner actively engaged in the business, to carry on research or any similar work in respect of which the individual received a grant, or to attend a secondary school or take a course offered by an educational institution referred to in section 358.0.2, as a student enrolled in an educational program,

ii. was paid

(1) where the individual has a speech or hearing impairment, for the cost of sign-language interpretation services or real time captioning services and to a person engaged in the business of providing such services,

(2) where the individual is deaf or mute, for the cost of a teletypewriter or similar device, including a telephone ringing indicator, prescribed by a practitioner, to enable the individual to make and receive telephone calls,

(3) where the individual is blind, for the cost of a device or equipment, including synthetic speech systems, Braille printers, and large-print on-screen devices, prescribed by a practitioner, and designed to be used by blind individuals in the operation of a computer,

(4) where the individual is blind, for the cost of an optical scanner or similar device, prescribed by a practitioner, and designed to be used by blind individuals to enable them to read print,

(5) where the individual is mute, for the cost of an electronic speech synthesizer, prescribed by a practitioner, and designed to be used by mute individuals to enable them to communicate by use of a portable keyboard,

(6) where the individual has an impairment in mental or physical functions, for the cost of note-taking services and to a person engaged in the business of providing such services, if the individual has been certified in writing by a practitioner to be a person who, because of that impairment, requires those services,

(7) where the individual has an impairment in physical functions, for the cost of voice recognition software, if the individual has been certified in writing by a practitioner to be a person who, because of that impairment, requires that software,

(8) where the individual has a learning disability or an impairment in mental functions, for the cost of tutoring services that are rendered to, and supplementary to the primary education of, the individual and to a person ordinarily engaged in the business of providing such services to persons who are not related to the person, if the individual has been certified in writing by a practitioner to be a person who, because of that disability or impairment, requires those services,

(9) where the individual has a perceptual disability, for the cost of talking textbooks used by the individual in connection with the individual's enrolment at a secondary school in Canada or at an educational institution described in section 358.0.2, if the individual has been certified in writing by a practitioner to be a person who, because of that disability, requires those textbooks,

(10) where the individual has an impairment in mental or physical functions, for the cost of attendant care services provided in Canada and to a person who is neither the individual's spouse nor under 18 years of age, if the individual is a taxpayer in respect of whom subparagraphs a to c of the first paragraph of section 752.0.14 apply for the year, or if the individual has been certified in writing by a practitioner to be a person who is, and is likely to be indefinitely, dependent on others for personal needs and care and who as a result requires a full-time attendant,

(11) where the individual has a severe and prolonged impairment in mental or physical functions, for the cost of job coaching services, excluding job placement or career counselling services, and to a person engaged in the business of providing such services if the individual has been certified in writing by a practitioner to be a person who, because of that impairment, requires those services,

(12) where the individual is blind or has a severe learning disability, for the cost of reading services and to a person engaged in the business of providing such services, if the individual has been certified in writing by a practitioner to be a person who, because of that impairment or disability, requires those services,

(13) where the individual is blind and profoundly deaf, for the cost of deaf-blind intervening services and to a person engaged in the business of providing such services,

(14) where the individual has a speech impairment, for the cost of a device that is a Bliss symbol board, or a similar device, that is prescribed by a practitioner to help the individual communicate by selecting the symbols or spelling out words,

(15) where the individual is blind, for the cost of a device that is a Braille note-taker, prescribed by a practitioner, to allow the individual to take notes, with the help of a keyboard, that the device can read back to the individual, or print or display in Braille,

(16) where the individual has a severe and prolonged impairment in physical functions that markedly restricts the individual's ability to use his or her arms or hands, for the cost of a device that is a page turner prescribed by a practitioner to help the individual to turn the pages of a book or other bound document, and

(17) where the individual is blind, or has a severe learning disability, for the cost of a device or software that is prescribed by a practitioner and designed to enable the individual to read print, and

iii. is not included in computing a deduction under sections 752.0.11 to 752.0.13.0.1 for any taxpayer and for any taxation year; and

(b) B is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of a reimbursement or any other form of assistance, other than a prescribed amount or an amount that is included in computing a taxpayer's income and that is not deductible in computing the taxpayer's taxable income, that any taxpayer is or was entitled to receive in respect of an amount described in subparagraph a.

The amount to which subparagraph iv of subparagraph b of the first paragraph refers is the least of

(a) $15,000;

(b) the product obtained by multiplying $375 by the number of weeks in the year during which the individual attends the secondary school or takes a course offered by the educational institution; and

(c) the amount by which the individual's income for the year, determined without reference to this section, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount determined under any of subparagraphs i to iii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph in respect of the individual for the year.

However, the payment of an amount described in subparagraph a of the second paragraph may be included in computing a deduction under the first paragraph only if proof of payment of the amount is given by filing with the Minister one or more receipts issued by the payee, including, if the payee is an individual referred to in subparagraph 10 of subparagraph ii of that subparagraph a, the Social Insurance Number of the latter individual.

1991, c. 25, s. 72; 1993, c. 16, s. 140; 1993, c. 64, s. 32; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1997, c. 14, s. 66; 1997, c. 31, s. 46; 2000, c. 5, s. 92; 2001, c. 51, s. 38; 2003, c. 2, s. 112; 2005, c. 38, s. 74; 2006, c. 36, s. 39; 2009, c. 5, s. 127; 2010, c. 5, s. 40; 2021, c. 18, s. 36.

358.0.1.1. For the purpose of applying this chapter to an individual for the taxation year 2020 or 2021, section 358.0.1 is to be read

(a) as if "c, c.1 and" were inserted after "under any of paragraphs" in subparagraph iii of subparagraph b of the first paragraph; and

(b) without reference to subparagraph i of subparagraph a of the second paragraph if, at any time in the year, the individual was entitled to an amount referred to in any of paragraphs c, c.1 and e.2 to e.6 of section 311, in respect of that year.

2021, c. 36, s. 64.

358.0.2. The educational institution to which section 358.0.1 refers is

(a) an educational institution in Canada that is

i. a university, college or other educational institution designated by the Lieutenant Governor in Council of a province under the Canada Student Loans Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. S-23), designated by an appropriate authority under the Canada Student Financial Assistance Act (S.C. 1994, c. 28), or designated by the Minister of Education, Recreation and Sports or the Minister of Higher Education, Research, Science and Technology for the purposes of the Act respecting financial assistance for education expenses (chapter A-13.3), or

ii. recognized by the Minister to be an educational institution providing courses, other than courses designed for university credit, that furnish a person with skills for, or improve a person's skills in, an occupation;

(b) a university outside Canada at which the individual was enrolled in a course leading to a degree, for a period of at least three consecutive weeks; or

(c) an educational institution in the United States that is a university, college or other institution providing post-secondary education, if the individual resided in Canada throughout the year near the boundary between Canada and the United States, and commuted between the individual's residence and that educational institution.

2003, c. 2, s. 113; 2005, c. 28, s. 195; 2005, c. 38, s. 75; 2012, c. 8, s. 48; 2013, c. 28, s. 139.

CHAPTER IX.0.2

DEDUCTION TO WORKERS

2005, c. 38, s. 76.

358.0.3. An individual, other than a trust, may deduct in computing the individual's income for a taxation year the lesser of $1,000 and 6% of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is any of the following amounts, other than an amount described in the second paragraph:

(a) an amount included under any of sections 32 to 58.3 in computing the individual's income for the year from an office or employment;

(b) the amount by which the individual's income for the year from any business the individual carries on either alone or as a partner actively engaged in the business exceeds the aggregate of the individual's losses for the year from such businesses;

(c) an amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph e.2 or e.6 of section 311; or

(d) an amount included in computing the individual's income for the year under paragraph h of section 312.

The amount to which the first paragraph refers is

(a) an amount included in computing the individual's income for the year from an office or employment held by the individual as an elected member of a municipal council, a member of the council or executive committee of a metropolitan community, regional county municipality or other similar body established under an Act of Québec, a member of a municipal utilities commission or corporation or any other similar body administering such utilities, a member of a school service centre's board of directors or a member of a public or separate school board or any other similar body administering a school district;

(b) an amount included in computing the individual's income for the year from an office held by the individual as a member of the National Assembly, the House of Commons of Canada, the Senate or the legislature of another province;

(b.1) an amount included in computing the individual's income for the year from a previous office or employment, if each of the amounts that make up the income is the value of a benefit received or enjoyed by the individual in the year because of that office or employment; or

(c) if the individual is an Indian, within the meaning assigned to that expression by section 725.0.1, the amount the individual included in computing the individual's income for the year and that is described in paragraph e of section 725.

CHAPTER IX.0.3

INDEMNITIES RELATING TO CLINICAL TRIALS

2011, c. 1, s. 31.

358.0.4. An individual, other than a trust, may deduct, in computing the individual's income for a taxation year, the lesser of $1,500 and the aggregate of all amounts each of which is

(a) the amount of an indemnity described in the second paragraph and included under any of sections 32 to 58.3 in computing the individual's income for the year from an office or employment; or

(b) the amount of an indemnity described in the second paragraph and included in computing the individual's income for the year from a business.

The indemnity to which subparagraphs a and b of the first paragraph refer means an indemnity paid to an individual who participates as a clinical trial subject in such a trial carried on by another person or partnership in accordance with the standards set by the Food and Drug Regulations (C.R.C., c. 870) made under the Food and Drugs Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. F-27).

CHAPTER X

DEVELOPMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES

1972, c. 23.

DIVISION I

GENERAL RULES

359. In this chapter,

(a) "outlay" or "expense" made or incurred by a taxpayer before a particular time does not include any amount paid or payable for services to be rendered after that time or any amount paid or payable as rent for a period after that time, but includes an amount designated by the taxpayer at that time, under paragraph b of section 622 or 628, as that paragraph read before being struck out, as a cost in respect of property that is a Canadian resource property or a foreign resource property;

(b) "mining business" means an activity described in subparagraph a or a.1 of the first paragraph of section 363 with respect to minerals or in any of subparagraphs b to e, f.1 and g of the first paragraph of that section, and a transaction concerning a property described in any of paragraphs a to g of section 370 that may reasonably be related to minerals;

(c) "oil business" means an activity described in subparagraph a or a.1 of the first paragraph of section 363, except with respect to minerals, or in subparagraph f of the first paragraph of that section, and a transaction concerning a property described in any of paragraphs a to g of section 370 that may reasonably be related to petroleum or natural gas and that is not described in paragraph b;

(c.0.1*)* "assistance" means any amount, other than a prescribed amount, received or receivable at any time from a person or government, municipality or other public authority whether such amount is by way of a grant, subsidy, rebate, forgivable loan, deduction from royalty or tax, rebate of royalty or tax, investment allowance or any other form of assistance or benefit;

(c.1*)* "proceeds of disposition" has the meaning assigned by section 251;

(d) (paragraph repealed).

1975, c. 22, s. 68; 1982, c. 5, s. 82; 1984, c. 15, s. 84; 1985, c. 25, s. 65; 1986, c. 19, s. 67; 1987, c. 67, s. 79; 1988, c. 18, s. 26; 1993, c. 16, s. 141; 1995, c. 49, s. 80; 1998, c. 16, s. 118; 1999, c. 83, s. 53; 2001, c. 53, s. 260; 2003, c. 2, s. 114; 2012, c. 8, s. 49; 2013, c. 10, s. 29.

DIVISION I.1

FLOW-THROUGH SHARES

1988, c. 18, s. 27.

359.1. In this chapter, "flow-through share" means a share (other than a prescribed share) of the capital stock of a development corporation or a right (other than a prescribed right) to acquire such a share that is issued to a person under an agreement in writing entered into between the person and the development corporation under which the corporation, for consideration that does not include property to be exchanged or transferred by the person under the agreement in circumstances to which Division XIII of Chapter IV of Title IV or any of Chapters IV, V and VI of Title IX applies, agrees

(a) to incur, in the period that begins on the day the agreement was entered into and ends 24 months after the end of the month that includes that day, Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses in an amount not less than the consideration for which the share or right is to be issued; and

(b) to renounce, before 1 March of the first calendar year that begins after the period referred to in subparagraph a, in prescribed form to the person in respect of the share or right, an amount in respect of the Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses so incurred by it not exceeding the consideration received by the corporation for the share or right.

In this chapter, "selling instrument" in respect of flow-through shares means a prospectus, registration statement, offering memorandum, term sheet or other similar document that describes the terms of the offer, including the price and number of shares, pursuant to which a corporation offers to issue flow-through shares.

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1993, c. 16, s. 142; 1995, c. 49, s. 81; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 119; 2002, c. 40, s. 35; 2004, c. 21, s. 76; 2005, c. 23, s. 51; 2015, c. 24, s. 60.

359.1.1. For the purposes of this division, a renunciation made by a corporation under section 359.2, 359.2.1 or 359.4 in respect of a share is effective on the date on which the renunciation is made by the corporation or on an earlier date set out in the form prescribed for the purposes of section 359.12.

1995, c. 49, s. 82; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 120.

359.2. Where a person gave consideration under an agreement to a corporation for the issue of a flow-through share of the corporation and, in the period that begins on the day the agreement was entered into and ends 24 months after the end of the month that includes that day, the corporation incurred Canadian exploration expenses (other than expenses deemed to be Canadian exploration expenses of the corporation under the first paragraph of section 399.3), the corporation may, after it complies with section 359.10 in respect of the share and before 1 March of the first calendar year that begins after that period, renounce to the person in respect of the share the amount by which the part of those expenses incurred by it on or before the effective date of the renunciation, which part is in this section referred to as the "specified expenses", exceeds the aggregate of

(a) the assistance that the corporation has received, is entitled to receive, or may reasonably expect to receive at any time, and that can reasonably be related to the specified expenses or to Canadian exploration activities to which the specified expenses relate, other than assistance that can reasonably be related to expenses referred to in any of subparagraphs b to b.2;

(b) all specified expenses that are prescribed Canadian exploration and development overhead expenses of the corporation;

(b.1) all specified expenses each of which is a cost of, or for the use of, seismic data

i. that had been acquired, otherwise than as a consequence of performing work that resulted in the creation of the data, by any other person before the cost was incurred,

ii. in respect of which a right to use had been acquired by any other person before the cost was incurred, or

iii. all or substantially all of which resulted from work performed more than one year before the cost was incurred;

(b.2) if the agreement is entered into after 31 March 2023, all specified expenses that are not described in subparagraph b or b.1 and that would be Canadian exploration expenses if

i. section 395 were read without reference to its paragraph c.2, and

ii. the definition of "mineral resource" in section 1 were read as follows:

""mineral resource" means a coal deposit, a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit;"; and

(c) the aggregate of amounts that are renounced by the corporation on or before the date on which the renunciation is made by any other renunciation under this section in respect of those expenses.

Notwithstanding the first paragraph, the amount that may be renounced by the corporation must not in any case exceed

(a) the amount by which the consideration for the share exceeds the aggregate of other amounts renounced under this section or section 359.2.1 or 359.4 by the corporation in respect of the share on or before the day on which the renunciation is made; or

(b) the amount by which the cumulative Canadian exploration expense of the corporation on the effective date of the renunciation computed before taking into account any amounts renounced by the corporation under this section on the date on which the renunciation is made, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts renounced by the corporation under this section in respect of any other share on the date on which the renunciation is made, and effective on or before the effective date of the renunciation.

359.2.0.1. For the purpose of applying sections 359.2 and 359.4 in respect of an agreement entered into after 28 February 2018 and before 1 January 2021, the first paragraph of those sections is to be read as if "24 months" were replaced by "36 months".

2021, c. 36, s. 65.

359.2.1. Where a person gave consideration under an agreement to a corporation for the issue of a flow-through share of the corporation, the corporation's paid-up capital amount at the time the consideration was given was not more than $15,000,000, and during the period beginning on the particular day the agreement was entered into and ending on the earlier of 31 December 2018 and the day that is 24 months after the end of the month that included that particular day, the corporation incurred Canadian development expenses that are described in paragraph a or a.1 of section 408 or that would be described in paragraph d of that section if the words "expenses described in paragraphs a to c" in that paragraph were read as "expenses described in paragraph a or a.1" and that are not expenses deemed to have been incurred after 31 December 2018 under section 359.8, the corporation may, after it complies with section 359.10 in respect of the share and before 1 March of the first calendar year that begins after that period, renounce to the person in respect of the share the amount by which the part of those expenses incurred by it on or before the effective date of the renunciation, which part is in this section referred to as the "specified expenses", exceeds the aggregate of

(a) the assistance that the corporation has received, is entitled to receive, or may reasonably expect to receive at any time, and that can reasonably be related to the specified expenses or Canadian development activities to which the specified expenses relate, other than assistance that can reasonably be related to expenses referred to in paragraph b;

(b) all specified expenses that are prescribed Canadian exploration and development overhead expenses of the corporation;

(c) all amounts that are renounced by the corporation on or before the day on which the renunciation is made by any other renunciation under this section or section 359.4 in respect of those expenses.

1995, c. 49, s. 84; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 122; 2020, c. 16, s. 61.

359.2.2. A corporation is deemed not to have renounced any particular amount under section 359.2.1 in respect of a share where

(a) the particular amount exceeds the amount by which the consideration for the share exceeds the aggregate of other amounts renounced under section 359.2, 359.2.1 or 359.4 by the corporation in respect of the share on or before the day on which the renunciation is made;

(b) the particular amount exceeds the amount by which the cumulative Canadian development expense of the corporation on the effective date of the renunciation, computed before taking into account any amounts renounced under section 359.2.1 by the corporation on the day on which the renunciation is made, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts renounced by the corporation under this section in respect of any other share on the day on which the renunciation is made, and effective on or before the effective date of the renunciation; or

(c) the particular amount relates to Canadian development expenses incurred by the corporation in a calendar year and the total amounts renounced, on or before the day on which the renunciation is made, under section 359.2.1 in respect of Canadian development expenses incurred by the corporation in that calendar year or by another corporation associated with the corporation at the time the other corporation incurred such expenses exceeds $1,000,000.

1995, c. 49, s. 84; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 123.

359.2.3. For the purposes of section 359.2.1, a corporation's paid-up capital amount at any time is the aggregate of

(a) its paid-up capital determined for its last taxation year that ended more than 30 days before that time; and

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the paid-up capital of another corporation associated at that time with the corporation, determined for the other corporation's last taxation year that ended more than 30 days before that time.

1998, c. 16, s. 124.

359.2.4. For the purpose of determining the paid-up capital amount at a particular time under section 359.2.3 of any corporation and for the purposes of this section, a corporation that was created as a consequence of an amalgamation or merger of other corporations, each of which is in this section referred to as a "predecessor corporation", and that does not have a taxation year that ended more than 30 days before the particular time, is deemed to have paid-up capital for a taxation year that ended more than 30 days before the particular time equal to the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the paid-up capital of a predecessor corporation for its last taxation year that ended more than 30 days before the particular time.

359.2.5. For the purpose of determining the paid-up capital amount at a particular time under section 359.2.3 of a corporation and for the purposes of section 359.2.4, a particular corporation's paid-up capital for a taxation year is its paid-up capital that would be determined for the year in accordance with Title I of Book III of Part IV if no reference were made to section 1138.2.6 and to the portion of the amount that the corporation may deduct under section 1138 that is attributable to shares of the capital stock of, or indebtedness of, another corporation that

(a) was not associated with the particular corporation at the particular time; and

(b) was associated with the particular corporation at the end of the particular corporation's last taxation year that ended more than 30 days before that time.

1998, c. 16, s. 124; 2009, c. 15, s. 82.

359.3. Subject to sections 359.11 to 359.12.0.1, where a corporation renounces an amount to a person under section 359.2 or 359.2.1, the following rules apply:

(a) the Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses to which the amount relates are deemed to be Canadian exploration expenses incurred in that amount by the person on the effective date of the renunciation; and

(b) the Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses to which the amount relates are, except in respect of that renunciation, deemed on and after the effective date of the renunciation never to have been Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses incurred by the corporation.

359.4. Where a person gave consideration under an agreement to a corporation for the issue of a flow-through share of the corporation and, in the period that begins on the day the agreement was entered into and ends 24 months after the end of the month that includes that day, the corporation incurred Canadian development expenses, the corporation may, after it complies with section 359.10 in respect of the share and before 1 March of the first calendar year that begins after the period, renounce to the person in respect of the share an amount equal to the amount by which the part of those expenses incurred by it on or before the effective date of the renunciation, which part is in this section referred to as the "specified expenses", exceeds the aggregate of

(a) the assistance that the corporation has received, is entitled to receive, or may reasonably expect to receive at any time, and that can reasonably be related to the specified expenses or to Canadian development activities to which the specified expenses relate, other than assistance that can reasonably be related to expenses referred to in any of subparagraphs b to b.2;

(b) all specified expenses that are prescribed Canadian exploration and development overhead expenses of the corporation;

(b.1*)* all specified expenses that are described in paragraph c of section 408 or that are described in paragraph d of that section because of the reference in the latter paragraph to paragraph c of section 408;

(b.2*)* if the agreement is entered into after 31 March 2023, all specified expenses that are not described in subparagraph b or b.1 and that would be Canadian development expenses if the definition of "mineral resource" in section 1 were read as follows:

""mineral resource" means a coal deposit, a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit;"; and

(c) the aggregate of amounts that are renounced by the corporation on or before the date on which the renunciation is made by any other renunciation under this section or section 359.2.1 in respect of those expenses.

Notwithstanding the first paragraph, the amount that may be renounced by the corporation must not in any case exceed

(a) the amount by which the consideration for the share exceeds the aggregate of other amounts renounced in respect of the share by the corporation under this section or section 359.2 or 359.2.1 on or before the day on which the renunciation is made; or

(b) the amount by which the cumulative Canadian development expense of the corporation on the effective date of the renunciation computed before taking into account any amounts renounced by the corporation under this section on the date on which the renunciation is made, exceeds the aggregate of all amounts renounced by the corporation under this section in respect of any other share on the date on which the renunciation is made, and effective on or before the effective date of the renunciation.

359.5. Subject to sections 359.11 to 359.12.0.1, where a corporation renounces an amount to a person under section 359.4, the following rules apply:

(a) the Canadian development expenses to which the amount relates are deemed to be Canadian development expenses incurred in that amount by the person on the effective date of the renunciation;

(b) the Canadian development expenses to which the amount relates are, except for the purposes of that renunciation, deemed on and after the effective date of the renunciation never to have been Canadian development expenses incurred by the corporation.

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1993, c. 16, s. 144; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

359.6. (Repealed).

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1995, c. 49, s. 87; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 126.

359.7. (Repealed).

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1993, c. 16, s. 145; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 126.

359.8. Where a corporation that issues a flow-through share to a person under an agreement incurs, in a particular calendar year, Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses, the corporation is, for the purposes of section 359.2 or for the purposes of section 359.2.1 and paragraph b of section 359.2.2, as the case may be, deemed to have incurred the expenses on the last day of the preceding calendar year, provided that

(a) the expenses

i. are described in any of paragraphs a, b.1, c and c.2 of section 395 or paragraph a or a.1 of section 408,

ii. would be described in paragraph d of section 395 if the reference in that paragraph to paragraphs a to b.1 and c to c.5 were read as a reference to paragraphs a, b.1, c and c.2 of that section, or

iii. would be described in paragraph d of section 408 if the reference therein to paragraphs a to c were read as a reference to paragraphs a and a.1 of that section;

(a.1*)* the agreement was entered into in the preceding calendar year;

(b) the person paid the consideration for the share in money before the end of the preceding calendar year;

(c) the corporation and the person deal with each other at arm's length throughout the particular calendar year; and

(d) in one of the first three months of the particular calendar year, the corporation renounces an amount in respect of the expenses to the person in respect of the share in accordance with section 359.2 or 359.2.1, as the case may be, and the effective date of the renunciation is the last day of the preceding calendar year.

359.8.1. A corporation that issues a flow-through share to a person under an agreement and incurs, under the agreement and in a particular calendar year, expenses (in this section referred to as "Québec exploration expenses") that relate to a renunciation in respect of which an amount would be included in the aggregate described in subparagraph a of the second paragraph of section 1129.60 for the purpose of computing the tax that it would be required, but for this section, to pay for a month included in the preceding calendar year under section 1129.60, is, for the purposes of either section 359.2 or section 359.2.1 and paragraph b of section 359.2.2, deemed to have incurred the expenses on the last day of the calendar year that precedes the preceding calendar year, if

(a) section 359.8 applied in respect of the Québec exploration expenses that the corporation incurred under the agreement in the preceding calendar year and that relate to the renunciation;

(b) the agreement stipulates that the Québec exploration expenses were to be incurred in the preceding calendar year; and

(c) the Minister is of the opinion that the Québec exploration expenses that were to be incurred under the agreement in the preceding calendar year could not be incurred because of circumstances beyond the corporation's control.

The first paragraph does not apply in respect of an agreement entered into after 31 December 2018 and before 1 January 2021.

2009, c. 5, s. 128; 2021, c. 36, s. 66.

359.9. A corporation is deemed

(a) not to have renounced under any of sections 359.2, 359.2.1 and 359.4 any expenses that are deemed to have been incurred by it because of a renunciation under this chapter by another corporation that is not related to it;

(b) not to have renounced under section 359.2.1 to a corporation, trust or partnership any Canadian development expenses if, in respect of the renunciation, it has a prohibited relationship with the corporation, trust or partnership and if the expenses are not expenses renounced to another corporation that renounces under section 359.2 any Canadian exploration expense deemed to have been incurred by it because of the renunciation under section 359.2.1;

(c) not to have renounced under section 359.2.1 any Canadian development expenses deemed to have been incurred by it because of a renunciation under section 359.4; and

(d) not to have renounced under section 359.2 to a corporation, trust or partnership any Canadian exploration expenses that are deemed to have been incurred by it because of a renunciation under section 359.2.1 if, in respect of the renunciation under section 359.2, it has a prohibited relationship with the corporation, trust or partnership and if the expenses are not expenses ultimately renounced by another corporation under section 359.2 to an individual, other than a trust, or to a corporation, trust or partnership with which that other corporation does not have, in respect of that ultimate renunciation, a prohibited relationship.

359.9.1. For the purposes of section 359.9, where a corporation, in paragraph b referred to as the "shareholder corporation", trust or partnership gave consideration under a particular agreement for the issue of a flow-through share of a particular corporation, the particular corporation has, in respect of a renunciation under section 359.2 or 359.2.1 in respect of the share, a prohibited relationship

(a) with the trust if, at any time after the particular agreement was entered into and before the share is issued to the trust, the particular corporation or any corporation related to it is beneficially interested in the trust;

(b) with the shareholder corporation if, immediately before the particular agreement was entered into, the shareholder corporation was related to the particular corporation; or

(c) with the partnership if any part of the amount renounced would, but for the second paragraph of section 359.12, be included, because of paragraph d of section 395, in the Canadian exploration expense of

i. the particular corporation, or

ii. any other corporation that, at any time after the particular agreement was entered into and before that part of the amount renounced would, but for this paragraph, be incurred, would, if flow-through shares issued by the particular corporation under agreements entered into at the same time as or after the time the particular agreement was entered into were disregarded, be related to the particular corporation.

1995, c. 49, s. 90; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 129.

359.10. A corporation that agrees to issue or prepares a selling instrument in respect of flow-through shares shall file with the Minister a prescribed form together with the amount of $200 and a copy of the selling instrument or agreement to issue the shares on or before the last day of the month following the earlier of

(a) the month in which the agreement to issue the shares is entered into, and

(b) the month in which the selling instrument is first delivered to a potential investor.

The Minister shall assign an identification number to the prescribed form and notify the corporation of the number.

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1992, c. 31, s. 1; 1996, c. 39, s. 107; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

359.11. Where, in a fiscal period of a partnership, an expense is incurred by the partnership as a consequence of a renunciation of an amount under section 359.2, 359.2.1 or 359.4, the partnership shall, before the end of the third month following the end of the fiscal period, file with the Minister the prescribed form identifying the share of the expense attributable to each member of the partnership at the end of that fiscal period.

Where the form required to be filed under the first paragraph is not so filed, except for the purposes of the first paragraph the partnership is deemed not to have incurred the expense referred to in that paragraph.

359.11.1. Where a partnership receives or becomes entitled to receive assistance as a mandatary of its members or former members at a particular time in respect of any Canadian exploration expense or Canadian development expense that is or, but for paragraph b of sections 359.3 and 359.5, would be incurred by a corporation, the following rules apply:

(a) where the entitlement of any such member or former member to any part of such assistance is known by the partnership as of the end of the partnership's first fiscal period ending after the particular time and that part of such assistance was not required to be reported under paragraph b in respect of a calendar year ending before the end of that fiscal period, the partnership shall, on or before the last day of the third month following the end of that fiscal period, file with the Minister a prescribed form indicating the share of that part of such assistance paid to each such member or former member before the end of that fiscal period or to which each such member or former member is entitled at the end of that fiscal period;

(b) where the entitlement of any such member or former member to any part of such assistance is known by the partnership at the end of a calendar year that ends after the particular time and that part of such assistance was not required to be reported under paragraph a in respect of a fiscal period ending on or before the end of that calendar year, or under this paragraph in respect of a preceding calendar year, the partnership shall, on or before the last day of the third month following the end of that calendar year, file with the Minister a prescribed form indicating the share of that part of such assistance paid to each such member or former member before the end of that fiscal period or to which each such member or former member is entitled at the end of that calendar year;

(c) where the prescribed form required to be filed under paragraph a or b is not so filed, the part of such expense relating to the assistance required to be reported in the prescribed form is deemed not to have been incurred by the partnership.

1993, c. 16, s. 147; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 131.

359.12. Where a corporation renounces an amount in respect of Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses under section 359.2, 359.2.1 or 359.4, the corporation shall file the prescribed form in respect of the renunciation with the Minister before the end of the first month following the month in which the renunciation is made.

Where the form required to be filed under the first paragraph is not so filed, sections 359.3 and 359.5 do not apply in respect of the amount referred to in the first paragraph that the corporation has renounced.

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1993, c. 16, s. 148; 1995, c. 49, s. 92; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 132.

359.12.0.1. Where a corporation receives or becomes entitled to receive assistance as a mandatary in respect of any Canadian exploration expense or Canadian development expense that is or, but for paragraph b of sections 359.3 and 359.5, would be incurred by the corporation, the corporation shall, before the end of the first month following the particular month in which it first becomes known to the corporation that a person who holds a flow-through share of the corporation is entitled to a share of any part of the assistance, file with the Minister the prescribed form identifying the share of that part of the assistance to which each of those persons is entitled at the end of the particular month.

Where the form required to be filed under the first paragraph is not so filed, except for the purpose of the first paragraph the corporation is deemed not to have incurred the expense referred to in the first paragraph to which the assistance relates.

1993, c. 16, s. 149; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 132.

359.12.1. A corporation or partnership may file with the Minister a document referred to in any of sections 359.10 to 359.12.0.1 after the particular day on or before which the document is required to be filed under the applicable section, if

(a) the document is filed on or before the day that is 90 days after the particular day, or after that day where, in the opinion of the Minister, the circumstances are such that it would be just and equitable to permit the document to be filed, and

(b) the corporation or partnership, as the case may be, pays to the Minister at the time of filing the penalty prescribed in section 359.12.2 in respect of the late filing.

The document filed in accordance with the first paragraph is deemed, except for the purposes of this section and section 359.12.2, to have been filed with the Minister on the day on or before which it was required to be filed under any of sections 359.10 to 359.12.0.1, as the case may be.

1990, c. 59, s. 158; 1993, c. 16, s. 150; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

359.12.1.1. Where a corporation purports to renounce an amount under section 359.2, 359.2.1 or 359.4 after the period in which the corporation was entitled to renounce the amount, the amount is deemed, except for the purposes of this section and sections 359.12 and 359.12.2, to have been renounced at the end of the period if

(a) the corporation renounces the amount on or before the day that is 90 days after the end of that period, or after the day that is 90 days after the end of that period where, in the opinion of the Minister, the circumstances are such that it would be just and equitable that the amount be renounced; and

(b) the corporation pays to the Minister the penalty payable under section 359.12.2 in respect of the renunciation on or before the day that is 90 days after the day of the renunciation.

1995, c. 49, s. 93; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 133.

359.12.2. For the purposes of sections 359.12.1 and 359.12.1.1, the penalty in respect of the late filing of a document referred to in any of sections 359.10 to 359.12.0.1, or in respect of a renunciation referred to in section 359.12.1.1, is equal to the lesser of $15,000 and

(a) where the penalty is in respect of the late filing of a document referred to in section 359.10, 359.11 or 359.12, the greater of $100 and 0.25% of the maximum amount in respect of the Canadian exploration expenses and Canadian development expenses renounced or attributed or to be renounced or attributed as set out in the document;

(b) where the penalty is in respect of the late filing of a document referred to in section 359.11.1 or 359.12.0.1, the greater of $100 and 0.25% of the assistance reported in the document;

(c) where the penalty is in respect of a renunciation referred to in section 359.12.1.1, the greater of $100 and 0.25% of the amount of the renunciation.

1990, c. 59, s. 158; 1993, c. 16, s. 150; 1995, c. 49, s. 94; 1998, c. 16, s. 134.

359.13. A corporation may renounce an amount under section 359.2, 359.2.1 or 359.4 in respect of Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian development expenses incurred by it only to the extent that, but for the renunciation, it would be entitled to a deduction in respect of the expenses in computing its income.

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1995, c. 49, s. 95; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 135.

359.14. (Repealed).

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1993, c. 16, s. 151; 1995, c. 49, s. 96; 1995, c. 63, s. 261; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 136.

359.15. Where the amount that a corporation purports to renounce to a person under section 359.2, 359.2.1 or 359.4 exceeds the amount that it can renounce to the person under that section, the following rules apply:

(a) the corporation shall file a statement with the Minister in prescribed form where

i. the Minister sends a notice in writing to the corporation demanding the statement, or

ii. the excess arose as a consequence of a renunciation purported to be made in a calendar year under section 359.2 or 359.2.1 because of the application of section 359.8, if the corporation knew or ought to have known of all or part of the excess,

(1) if section 359.8.1 applies in respect of expenses that were incurred in the calendar year that follows that in which the purported renunciation was made and that relate to the renunciation, at the end of that subsequent calendar year, and

(2) in any other case, at the end of the calendar year;

(b) where subparagraph i of subparagraph a applies, the statement shall be filed not later than 30 days after the Minister sends a notice referred to therein;

(c) if subparagraph ii of subparagraph a applies, the statement must be filed,

i. if section 359.8.1 applies in respect of expenses that were incurred in the calendar year that follows that in which the purported renunciation was made and that relate to the renunciation, before 1 March of the year that follows that subsequent calendar year, and

ii. in any other case, before 1 March of the calendar year that follows that in which the purported renunciation was made by the corporation; and

(d) except for the purposes of Part III.14, any amount that is purported to have been so renounced to any person is deemed, after the statement is filed with the Minister, to have always been reduced by the portion of the excess identified in the statement in respect of that purported renunciation.

Where a corporation fails in the statement referred to in the first paragraph to apply the excess fully to reduce one or more purported renunciations, the Minister may at any time reduce the total amount purported to be renounced by the corporation to one or more persons by the amount of the unapplied excess.

In the case referred to in the second paragraph, except for the purposes of Part III.14, the amount purported to have been renounced by the corporation to a person is deemed, after the time referred to therein, to have always been reduced by the portion of the unapplied excess allocated by the Minister in respect of that person.

359.15.1. For the purpose of applying section 359.15 in respect of an agreement entered into after 31 December 2018 and before 1 January 2021 by a corporation for the issue of a flow-through share of the corporation, the first paragraph of that section is to be read as if "at the end of the calendar year" in subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of subparagraph a were replaced by "at the end of the calendar year that follows that in which the purported renunciation was made" and as if "before 1 March of the calendar year" in subparagraph ii of subparagraph c were replaced by "before 1 March of the second calendar year".

2021, c. 36, s. 67.

359.16. For the purposes of paragraph c.0.1 of section 359, the first paragraph of section 359.1 and sections 359.2 to 359.15, 359.18, 359.19 and 419.0.1, a partnership is deemed to be a person and its taxation year is deemed to be its fiscal period.

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1993, c. 16, s. 152; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 138; 2015, c. 24, s. 63.

359.17. For the purposes of paragraph c of section 359.8, a partnership and a corporation are deemed, at all times in a calendar year,

(a) not to deal with each other at arm's length, if

i. an expense is deemed under section 359.3 to be incurred by the partnership,

ii. the expense would, but for paragraph b of section 359.3, be incurred in the calendar year by the corporation, and

iii. a share of the expense is included because of paragraph d of section 395 in the Canadian exploration expense of the corporation or of a member of the partnership with whom the corporation does not deal at arm's length at any time in the calendar year; and

(b) to deal with each other at arm's length, in any other case.

1988, c. 18, s. 27; 1993, c. 16, s. 152; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 139; 2005, c. 1, s. 93.

359.18. For the purposes of this division, section 181, paragraphs c to g of section 330, sections 333.1 to 333.3, 359 and 362 to 418.36, Division V, sections 600.1 and 600.2, subparagraph iv of subparagraph a.2 of the first paragraph of section 726.6 and subparagraph b of the second paragraph of section 1129.60 or 1129.60.1, where a person's share of an outlay or expense made or incurred by a partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership is referred to in respect of the person under paragraph d of any of sections 372, 395 and 408, under paragraph e of section 418.1.1, or under paragraph b of section 418.2, the portion of the outlay or expense so referred to is deemed, except for the purpose of applying sections 372, 372.1, 395 to 397, 408 to 410, 418.1.1, 418.1.2 and 418.2 to 418.4 in respect of the person, to have been made or incurred by the person at the end of that fiscal period.

359.19. A corporation is not entitled to renounce under section 359.2, 359.2.1 or 359.4 to a person a specified amount where the corporation would not be entitled to so renounce the specified amount if the words "end of that fiscal period" in section 359.18 were read as "time the outlay or expense is made or incurred by the partnership" and the words "on the effective date of the renunciation" in paragraph a of each of sections 359.3 and 359.5 were read as "at the earliest time that any part of such expense is incurred by the corporation".

For the purposes of the first paragraph, a specified amount in respect of a corporation is an amount that represents all or part of

(a) the corporation's share of the outlay or expense made or incurred by a partnership of which the corporation is a member or former member; or

(b) an amount renounced to the corporation under section 359.2, 359.2.1 or 359.4.

1993, c. 16, s. 153; 1995, c. 49, s. 98; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 141.

DIVISION II

DEPLETION, AND EXPLORATION AND DEVELOPMENT EXPENSES

1975, c. 22, s. 68.

360. A taxpayer may deduct, in computing his income for a taxation year, the amount determined by regulation as an allowance in respect of a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas, oil or gas well, mineral resource or timber limit, or in respect of

(a) the processing of ore, other than iron ore or tar sands, from a mineral resource to any stage that is not beyond the prime metal stage or its equivalent;

(b) the processing of iron ore from a mineral resource to any stage that is not beyond the pellet stage or its equivalent;

(c) the processing of tar sands from a mineral resource to any stage that is not beyond the crude oil stage or its equivalent.

Such regulation may allow an amount for only a part of or for all of the natural accumulations of petroleum or natural gas, oil or gas wells or mineral resources in which the taxpayer has a right, or of the ore processing operations referred to in the first paragraph and carried on by the taxpayer, and the Government may prescribe a formula to determine such amount.

1972, c. 23, s. 327; 1973, c. 18, s. 12; 1986, c. 19, s. 68; 1987, c. 67, s. 80; 1996, c. 39, s. 273; 2020, c. 16, s. 62.

361. Where a deduction is permitted under section 360 in respect of a coal mine operated by a lessee, he may agree with his lessor as to what portion of the amount each may deduct, and, if they cannot agree, the Minister may determine that portion.

1972, c. 23, s. 328.

362. A development corporation may deduct, in computing its income for a taxation year, the aggregate of the Canadian exploration and development expenses it incurs before the end of the taxation year, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing its income for a previous taxation year, up to the amount which would be its income if no deduction were allowed under this section or section 360, 361 or 400, less the deductions allowed for the year under sections 738 to 749.

1972, c. 23, s. 329; 1973, c. 17, s. 37; 1973, c. 18, s. 13; 1975, c. 22, s. 69; 1978, c. 26, s. 57; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

363. A development corporation is, for the purposes of this chapter, a corporation whose principal business is any of, or a combination of,

(a) the production, refining or marketing of petroleum, petroleum products or natural gas,

(a.1) exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas,

(b) mining or exploring for minerals,

(c) the processing of mineral ores for the purpose of recovering metals or minerals from the ores,

(d) the processing or marketing of metals or minerals that were recovered from mineral ores and that include metals or minerals recovered from mineral ores processed by the corporation,

(e) the fabrication of metals,

(f) the operation of a pipeline for the transmission of oil or gas,

(f.1) the production or marketing of calcium chloride, sodium chloride, gypsum, kaolin or potash,

(g) the manufacturing of products, where the manufacturing involves the processing of calcium chloride, sodium chloride, gypsum, kaolin or potash,

(h) the generation or distribution of energy, or the production of fuel, using property described in Class 43.1 or 43.2 in Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act (chapter I-3, r. 1); and

(i) the development of projects for which it is reasonable to expect that at least 50% of the capital cost of the depreciable property to be used in each project is the capital cost of property described in Class 43.1 or 43.2 in Schedule B to the Regulation respecting the Taxation Act.

A development corporation is also, for the purposes of this chapter, a corporation all or substantially all of the assets of which are shares of the capital stock or indebtedness of one or more development corporations that are related to the corporation otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20.

1972, c. 23, s. 330; 1975, c. 22, s. 70; 1989, c. 77, s. 35; 1995, c. 49, s. 99; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 142; 2000, c. 39, s. 23; 2001, c. 7, s. 43; 2010, c. 5, s. 42; 2011, c. 34, s. 29.

364. For the purposes of this chapter, Canadian exploration and development expenses are the expenses incurred before 7 May 1974 in the case of an oil business and before 1 April 1975 in the case of a mining business which are:

(a) exploration or drilling expenses, including the costs of general geological or geophysical studies, incurred after 1971 for exploration or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in Canada;

(b) prospecting, exploration or development expenses incurred after 1971 in searching for minerals in Canada;

(c) the cost of any Canadian resource property acquired by the taxpayer after 1971;

(d) the share of the taxpayer in Canadian exploration and development expenses incurred after 1971 by an association, partnership or syndicate, during one of their fiscal periods, in which he was a member or partner at the end of the fiscal period;

(e) the expenses incurred after 1971 by the taxpayer pursuant to an agreement with a corporation under which he so incurs such expenses solely as consideration for shares of the capital stock of the corporation or an interest or right in those shares, to the extent that those expenses are incurred as the cost of activities connected with the expenses contemplated in paragraph a or b or as the cost of acquisition of property contemplated in paragraph c; and

(f) any annual payment made by the taxpayer for the preservation of a Canadian resource property.

1972, c. 23, s. 331; 1973, c. 17, s. 38; 1975, c. 22, s. 71; 1986, c. 19, s. 69; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 94.

365. However, Canadian exploration and development expenses shall not include, for the purposes of this chapter:

(a) any consideration given for any share, interest or right relating to it, except as provided in paragraph e of section 364; or

(b) any expenses contemplated in paragraph e of section 364 and incurred by another taxpayer, to the extent that the obligation of that other taxpayer to incur such expenses constituted for him, under the said paragraph, Canadian exploration and development expenses.

1972, c. 23, s. 332; 1973, c. 17, s. 39.

366. For the purposes of this chapter, drilling or exploration expenses include the expenses incurred for drilling or converting a well for the disposal of waste liquids from a petroleum or natural gas well or for injection of water or gas to assist in the recovery of petroleum or natural gas from another well. They also include expenses incurred in drilling for water or gas for injection into a petroleum or natural gas formation.

1972, c. 23, s. 333; 1975, c. 22, s. 72.

367. A corporation not contemplated in paragraph a or b of section 363, whose principal activity is production or marketing of sodium chloride or potash or whose activity includes manufacturing products the manufacturing of which involves processing of these substances may deduct, in computing its income, the exploration or drilling expenses which it incurs before 7 May 1974 in searching for halite or sylvite.

1972, c. 23, s. 334; 1975, c. 22, s. 73; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

368. A taxpayer other than a development corporation may deduct in computing his income for a taxation year the aggregate of the Canadian exploration and development expenses he incurs, to the extent that they were not deducted in computing his income for a previous taxation year.

1972, c. 23, s. 335; 1986, c. 19, s. 70; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

369. (Replaced).

370. In this chapter, a Canadian resource property of a taxpayer is any property of the taxpayer which is

(a) any right, licence or privilege to explore for, drill for or take petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons in Canada;

(b) any right, licence or privilege to prospect, explore, drill or mine for minerals in a mineral resource in Canada, other than a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit, or to store underground petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons in Canada;

(c) any oil or gas well in Canada or any immovable property in Canada the value of which depends primarily upon its petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbon content (not including any depreciable property);

(d) any right to a rental or royalty computed by reference to the amount or value of production from an oil or gas well in Canada, or from a natural accumulation of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbon in Canada, if the payer of the rental or royalty has a right in the well or accumulation, as the case may be, and 90% or more of the rental or royalty is payable out of, or from the proceeds of, the production from the well or accumulation;

(d.1) any right to a rental or royalty computed by reference to the amount or value of production from a mineral resource in Canada, other than a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit, if the payer of the rental or royalty has a right in the mineral resource and 90% or more of the rental or royalty is payable out of, or from the proceeds of, the production from the mineral resource;

(e) any immovable property in Canada (not including any depreciable property) the value of which depends primarily upon its mineral resource content, other than where the mineral resource is a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit;

(f) any right in or to any property described in any of paragraphs a to d.1, other than such a right that the taxpayer has because the taxpayer is a beneficiary under a trust or a member of a partnership; or

(g) a real right in an immovable property described in paragraph e, other than such a right that the taxpayer has because the taxpayer is a beneficiary under a trust or a member of a partnership.

1972, c. 23, s. 337; 1975, c. 22, s. 75; 1980, c. 13, s. 30; 1982, c. 5, s. 84; 1986, c. 19, s. 71; 1987, c. 67, s. 81; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 2004, c. 8, s. 62; 2005, c. 1, s. 94; 2012, c. 8, s. 50; 2020, c. 16, s. 63.

371. A taxpayer who is resident in Canada throughout a taxation year may deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income for that year, the lesser of

(a) the amount by which the aggregate of all amounts by which the amount determined under this paragraph in respect of the taxpayer is required, because of section 485.8, to be reduced at or before the end of the year is exceeded by the aggregate of the foreign exploration and development expenses, to the extent that they were not deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for a previous taxation year, incurred by the taxpayer

i. before the end of the year,

ii. at a time at which the taxpayer was resident in Canada, and

iii. where the taxpayer became resident in Canada before the end of the year, after the last time, before the end of the year, that the taxpayer became resident in Canada; and

(b) the amount computed under section 374.

1972, c. 23, s. 338; 1975, c. 22, s. 76; 1996, c. 39, s. 108; 2004, c. 8, s. 63.

372. In this chapter, the foreign exploration and development expenses of a taxpayer means

(a) any exploration or drilling expense, including any general geological or geophysical expense, incurred by the taxpayer on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas outside Canada;

(b) any expense incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of determining the existence, location, extent or quality of a mineral resource outside Canada, including any expense incurred in the course of prospecting, carrying out geological, geophysical or geochemical surveys, drilling, trenching, digging test pits or preliminary sampling;

(c) the cost to the taxpayer of any foreign resource property acquired by the taxpayer;

(d) subject to section 418.37, the taxpayer's share of the foreign exploration and development expenses incurred by a partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership, where the taxpayer was a member of the partnership at the end of that fiscal period; and

(e) any annual payment made by the taxpayer for the preservation of a foreign resource property.

1972, c. 23, s. 339; 1975, c. 22, s. 77; 1980, c. 13, s. 31; 1990, c. 59, s. 159; 2004, c. 8, s. 64.

372.1. A taxpayer's foreign exploration and development expenses do not however include

(a) any amount included at any time in the capital cost to the taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class;

(b) an expenditure incurred at any time after the commencement of production from a foreign resource property of the taxpayer in order to evaluate the feasibility of a method of recovery of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from the portion of a natural reservoir to which the foreign resource property relates;

(c) an expenditure, other than a drilling expense, incurred at any time after the commencement of production from a foreign resource property of the taxpayer in order to assist in the recovery of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from the portion of a natural reservoir to which the foreign resource property relates;

(d) an expenditure incurred at any time relating to the injection of any substance to assist in the recovery of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural reservoir;

(e) an expenditure that is the cost, or any part of the cost, to the taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class that was acquired after 21 December 2000;

(f) foreign resource expenses in relation to a country; or

(g) an expenditure incurred after 27 February 2000, unless the expenditure was incurred

i. pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer before 28 February 2000,

ii. for the purpose of enabling the taxpayer to acquire foreign resource property,

iii. for the purpose of enhancing the value of foreign resource property that the taxpayer owned at the time the expenditure was incurred or that the taxpayer had a reasonable expectation of owning after that time, or

iv. for the purpose of assisting in evaluating whether a foreign resource property is to be acquired by the taxpayer.

1998, c. 16, s. 143; 2004, c. 8, s. 65.

372.2. In this chapter, the specified foreign exploration and development expense of a taxpayer in relation to a country other than Canada means the following expenses that are foreign exploration and development expenses of the taxpayer:

(a) any exploration or drilling expense, including any general geological or geophysical expense, incurred by the taxpayer on or in respect of exploring or drilling for petroleum or natural gas in that country;

(b) any expense incurred by the taxpayer after 21 December 2000, otherwise than pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before 22 December 2000, for the purpose of determining the existence, location, extent or quality of a mineral resource in that country, including any expense incurred in the course of prospecting, carrying out geological, geophysical or geochemical surveys, drilling, trenching, digging test pits or preliminary samplings;

(c) any prospecting, exploration or development expense incurred by the taxpayer before 22 December 2000, or after 21 December 2000 pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before 22 December 2000, in searching for minerals in that country;

(d) the cost to the taxpayer of any of the taxpayer's foreign resource properties in relation to that country;

(e) any annual payment made by the taxpayer in a taxation year of the taxpayer for the preservation of a foreign resource property in relation to that country;

(f) an amount deemed by section 181 or 182 to be a foreign exploration and development expense incurred by the taxpayer, to the extent that it can reasonably be considered to relate to an amount that, without reference to this paragraph and paragraph g, would be a specified foreign exploration and development expense in relation to that country; and

(g) subject to section 418.37, the taxpayer's share of the specified foreign exploration and development expenses of a partnership incurred in a fiscal period of the partnership in relation to that country, where the taxpayer was a member of the partnership at the end of that fiscal period.

2004, c. 8, s. 66.

373. In this chapter, a foreign resource property means a property that would be referred to in section 370, if

(a) in the case of a foreign resource property in relation to a country, the references in that section to "Canadian resource property of a taxpayer" in the portion before paragraph a and "in Canada" wherever it appears in paragraphs a to e were read as references to "foreign resource property of a taxpayer in relation to a country" and "in that country", respectively; and

(b) in any other case, the references in that section to "Canadian" in the portion before paragraph a and "in Canada" wherever it appears in paragraphs a to e were read as references to "foreign" and "outside Canada", respectively.

1972, c. 23, s. 340; 2004, c. 8, s. 67.

374. The amount to which paragraph b of section 371 refers is the greater of

(a) the amount claimed by the taxpayer not exceeding 10% of the amount determined under paragraph a of section 371 in respect of the taxpayer for the year; and

(b) the total of

i. that part of the taxpayer's income for the year, determined without reference to sections 371 and 418.1.10, that can reasonably be attributed to the production of petroleum or natural gas from a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas outside Canada or from oil or gas wells outside Canada, or to the production of minerals from mines outside Canada,

ii. the taxpayer's income for the year from royalties in respect of a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas outside Canada, an oil or gas well outside Canada or a mine outside Canada, determined without reference to sections 371 and 418.1.10, and

iii. the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount, in respect of a foreign resource property that has been disposed of by the taxpayer, equal to the amount by which the amount included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year by reason of paragraph a of section 330 in respect of that disposition exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is that portion of an amount deducted under section 418.17 in computing the taxpayer's income for the year that can reasonably be considered to be in respect of the foreign resource property, but cannot reasonably be considered to have reduced the amount otherwise determined under subparagraph i or ii in respect of the taxpayer for the year.

1972, c. 23, s. 341; 1973, c. 17, s. 41; 1973, c. 18, s. 15; 1975, c. 22, s. 78; 1977, c. 26, s. 35; 1978, c. 26, s. 59; 1986, c. 19, s. 72; 1987, c. 67, s. 82; 1996, c. 39, s. 109; 2004, c. 8, s. 67.

374.1. The portion of an amount deducted under section 371 in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year that can reasonably be considered to be in respect of specified foreign exploration and development expenses of the taxpayer in relation to a country is considered as being attributable to a source in that country.

2004, c. 8, s. 68.

374.2. For the purposes of section 374.1, where a taxpayer has incurred specified foreign exploration and development expenses in relation to two or more countries, an allocation to each of those countries for a taxation year shall be determined in a manner that is

(a) reasonable having regard to all the circumstances, including the level and timing of

i. the taxpayer's specified foreign exploration and development expenses in relation to that country, and

ii. the profits or gains to which those expenses relate; and

(b) not inconsistent with the allocation made under section 374.1 for the preceding taxation year.

2004, c. 8, s. 68.

374.3. Where at any time in a taxation year an individual becomes or ceases to be resident in Canada, the following rules apply:

(a) sections 371 and 374 apply to the individual as if the year were the period or periods in the year throughout which the individual was resident in Canada; and

(b) for the purposes of sections 371 and 374, section 393.1 does not apply to the individual for the year.

2004, c. 8, s. 68.

375. Sections 330 to 333, 368, 371, 374, 395 to 418.12 and 418.16 to 418.36 do not apply in computing the income for a taxation year of a taxpayer, other than a development corporation, if the business of such taxpayer includes trading or dealing in rights, licences or privileges to explore for, drill for or take minerals, petroleum, natural gas or other related hydrocarbons.

384. Where control of a corporation has been acquired after 31 March 1977 but before 13 November 1981 by a person or persons who did not control the corporation at the time it last ceased to carry on a qualified business, the following rules apply:

(a) the amount by which the Canadian exploration and development expenses or the foreign exploration and development expenses, as the case may be, incurred by the corporation before the time it ceased to carry on active business exceeds the aggregate of all amounts otherwise deductible respectively in respect of such expenses in computing its income for the taxation years ending before control was acquired, is deemed to have been deductible under sections 362 to 394 in computing its income for the taxation years ending before control was so acquired;

(b) the amount by which the cumulative Canadian exploration expenses, cumulative Canadian development expenses or cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expenses, as the case may be, at the time it ceased to carry on active business exceeds the aggregate of all amounts otherwise deducted under Division III, IV or IV.1, as the case may be, in computing its income for the taxation years ending after the time it ceased to carry on active business and before control was so acquired, is deemed to have been deducted under the said divisions, respectively, in computing its income for the taxation years ending before control was so acquired.

384.3. For the purposes of sections 384 and 418.26 to 418.29, where a corporation acquires control of another corporation between 12 November 1981 and 1 January 1983 by reason of the acquisition of shares of the other corporation pursuant to an agreement in writing concluded on or before 12 November 1981, it is deemed to have acquired control of it not later than 12 November 1981.

384.4. For the purposes of sections 371 to 374, 408 to 416 and 418.1 to 418.12, except as those sections apply for the purposes of sections 418.15 to 418.36, where, at a particular time, a taxpayer is subject to a loss restriction event, where, within the 12-month period that ended immediately before that time, the taxpayer, a partnership of which the taxpayer was a majority-interest partner or a trust of which the taxpayer was a majority-interest beneficiary, within the meaning of section 21.0.1, acquired a Canadian resource property or a foreign resource property, and where, immediately before the 12-month period began, the taxpayer was not a development corporation or the partnership or trust, if it were a corporation, would not be a development corporation,

(a) the property is deemed, subject to subparagraph b, to have been acquired by the taxpayer, partnership or trust at the particular time and not to have been acquired by it before that time; and

(b) where the property was disposed of by the taxpayer, partnership or trust before the particular time and was not reacquired by it before that time, the property is deemed to have been acquired by it immediately before the property was disposed of.

However, the first paragraph does not apply in the case of an acquisition of property that was owned by the taxpayer, partnership or trust or by a person that would, but for the definition of "controlled" in section 21.0.1, have been affiliated with the taxpayer throughout the period that began immediately before the 12-month period referred to in the first paragraph and ended at the time the property was acquired by the taxpayer, partnership or trust.

384.5. For the purposes of section 384.4, where the taxpayer referred to in that section was formed or created in the 12-month period referred to in the first paragraph of that section, the taxpayer is deemed to have been

(a) in existence throughout the period that began immediately before that 12-month period and ended immediately after it was formed or created; and

(b) affiliated, throughout the period referred to in paragraph a, with every person with whom it was affiliated, otherwise than because of a right referred to in paragraph b of section 20, throughout the period that began when it was formed or created and ended immediately before the time at which the taxpayer was subject to the loss restriction event referred to in that section.

1989, c. 77, s. 39; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2000, c. 5, s. 95; 2017, c. 1, s. 118.

385. A taxpayer must deduct, in computing Canadian exploration and development expenses, any amount paid to him, before 7 May 1974 in the case of an oil business or before 1 April 1975 in the case of a mining business, as a subsidy, grant or assistance under an Act of Canada, to the extent provided by regulation.

He may however include any amount he pays after 1971 but before 7 May 1974 in the case of an oil business or before 1 April 1975 in the case a mining business, under such an Act of Canada, except interest.

1972, c. 23, s. 352; 1972, c. 26, s. 48; 1975, c. 22, s. 87.

386. Except as expressly otherwise provided in this Part, in computing a taxpayer's cumulative Canadian exploration expenses, there shall be deducted under paragraph b of section 399 the amount which, at a particular time in a taxation year, becomes receivable by the taxpayer as a result of a transaction made after 6 May 1974 in the case of an oil business, after 31 March 1975 in the case of a mining business or after 5 December 1996 in all other cases, in consideration of services rendered or property ceded by the taxpayer, if the original cost of those services or that property may reasonably be regarded as having been, for the taxpayer, primarily Canadian exploration expenses or Canadian exploration and development expenses, or as if it would have been such expenses if they had been incurred by the taxpayer after 1971 and before 7 May 1974 or before 1 April 1975, as the case may be.

387. Except as expressly otherwise provided in this Part, a taxpayer, in computing his cumulative Canadian development expenses, shall deduct under paragraph c of section 412 the amount which, at a particular time in a taxation year, becomes receivable by him in the cases described in section 386, if the original cost of the services or property contemplated therein may reasonably be regarded as having been, for him, primarily Canadian development expenses.

1975, c. 22, s. 88.

388. A taxpayer shall, in computing the taxpayer's foreign exploration and development expenses, deduct the amount that, at a particular time in a taxation year and as a result of a transaction that occurs after 6 May 1974, becomes receivable by the taxpayer as consideration for services rendered or property transferred by the taxpayer, if the original cost of the services or property can reasonably be regarded as having been primarily foreign exploration and development expenses of the taxpayer, or would have been so regarded if they had been incurred by the taxpayer after 1971 and section 372.1 were read without reference to paragraph f thereof.

1975, c. 22, s. 88; 2004, c. 8, s. 69.

389. The foreign exploration and development expenses of a taxpayer are deemed to be nil at the time referred to in section 388 where an amount is included in computing his income by virtue of paragraph c of section 330.

1975, c. 22, s. 88.

390. Sections 386 and 387 do not apply to a share or a Canadian resource property or to any right related thereto and section 388 does not apply to any foreign resource property.

1975, c. 22, s. 88; 1986, c. 19, s. 79.

390.1. Where an amount described in section 388 becomes receivable by a taxpayer at a particular time, there shall at that particular time be included in computing the amount determined under paragraph c of section 418.1.4 in respect of the taxpayer and a country the amount designated under subparagraph ii of paragraph c of section 330 by the taxpayer in respect of that amount and that country.

2004, c. 8, s. 70.

390.2. Where an amount described in section 388 becomes receivable by a partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership, the share of a member of the partnership of that amount is deemed, for the purposes of paragraph c of section 330 and sections 388 and 390.1, to be an amount that became receivable by the member at the end of that fiscal period, that is described in section 388 in respect of the member and that has the same attributes for the member as it did for the partnership.

2004, c. 8, s. 70.

391. A taxpayer, in computing his cumulative Canadian exploration expenses, shall deduct under paragraph b of section 399 the amount that, at a particular time after 6 May 1974, becomes receivable by him from a person with whom he has made an agreement to unitize an oil or gas field in Canada in respect of Canadian exploration expenses, or Canadian exploration and development expenses or expenses that would have been such expenses if they had been incurred by him after 1971 and before 7 May 1974, incurred by the taxpayer in respect of the whole or any part of that field.

Furthermore, the person having to pay that amount shall, in computing his Canadian exploration expenses, include that amount at that time under paragraph b of section 395.

1975, c. 22, s. 88.

392. A taxpayer, in computing his cumulative Canadian development expenses, shall deduct under paragraph c of section 412 the amount that, at a particular time after 6 May 1974, becomes receivable by him from a person with whom he has made an agreement to unitize an oil or gas field in Canada in respect of Canadian development expenses incurred by the taxpayer in respect of the whole or any part of that field.

Furthermore, the person having to pay that amount shall, in computing his Canadian development expenses, include that amount at that time under paragraph a of section 408.

1975, c. 22, s. 88.

392.1. A taxpayer shall, in computing his cumulative Canadian oil and gas property expense, deduct under paragraph c of section 418.6 the amount which, at a particular time, becomes receivable by him from a person with whom he has entered into an agreement to unitize an oil or gas field in Canada in respect of Canadian oil and gas property expense incurred by the taxpayer in respect of that field or any part thereof.

Furthermore, the person who must pay such amount shall, in computing his Canadian oil and gas property expense, include it at that time under paragraph a of section 418.2.

1982, c. 5, s. 88.

392.2. Where a corporation designates an amount for a taxation year for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) under subsection 14.1 of section 66 of the said Act, the amount designated shall be deducted in computing its cumulative Canadian exploration expenses at any time after the end of the year.

1987, c. 67, s. 87; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

392.3. Where a corporation designates an amount for a taxation year for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) under subsection 14.2 of section 66 of the said Act, the amount designated shall be deducted in computing its cumulative Canadian development expenses at any time after the end of the year.

1987, c. 67, s. 87; 1997, c. 3, s. 71.

393. The taxpayer who has incurred expenses or made outlays in respect of which a deduction is allowed by more than one provision of this chapter, may deduct them only once, and under the provision he elects.

1972, c. 23, s. 353; 1975, c. 22, s. 89; 1993, c. 16, s. 155.

393.1. Where a taxpayer has a taxation year that is less than 51 weeks, the amount determined for the year under any of the following provisions or first under subparagraph c of the first paragraph of section 418.20, shall not exceed the proportion of the amount otherwise determined under that provision or first under that subparagraph c, as the case may be, that the number of days in the year is of 365:

(a) paragraph a of section 374;

(b) subparagraphs c and d of the first paragraph of section 413;

(c) paragraph b of section 418.1.9, without reference to the aggregate last referred to in that paragraph;

(d) subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 418.1.10;

(e) subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 418.1.10;

DIVISION III

CANADIAN EXPLORATION EXPENSES

1975, c. 22, s. 90.

395. For the purposes of this chapter, "Canadian exploration expense" of a taxpayer means any expense incurred after 6 May 1974 in the case of an oil business, after 31 March 1975 in the case of a mining business or after 5 December 1996 in all other cases, to such extent as that expense is, as the case may be,

(a) any expense incurred by the taxpayer (other than an expense incurred in drilling or completing an oil or gas well or in building a temporary access road to, or preparing a site in respect of, any such well) for the purpose of determining the existence, location, extent or quality of an accumulation of petroleum or natural gas (other than a mineral resource) in Canada, including

i. a geological, geophysical or geochemical expense, or

ii. an expense for environmental studies or community consultations (including studies or consultations that are undertaken to obtain a right, licence or privilege for the purpose of determining the existence, location, extent or quality of an accumulation of petroleum or natural gas in Canada);

*(a.1)* any expense, including clearing , removing overburden and stripping, sinking a well and constructing an adit or other underground entry, incurred by him after 31 March 1985 for the purpose of bringing a natural accumulation of petroleum or natural gas, other than a mineral resource, in Canada into production other than an expense incurred in drilling or completing an oil or gas well or in building a temporary access road to, or preparing a site in respect of any such well and incurred prior to the commencement of the production, other than the production from an oil or gas well, in reasonable commercial quantities from such accumulation;

(b) any expense incurred before 1 April 1987, in drilling or completing an oil or gas well in Canada, or in building a temporary access road to, or preparing a site in respect of, any such well, incurred by him in the year or in any previous year, and included by him in computing his Canadian development expenses for a previous taxation year, if the drilling of the well is completed within six months after the end of the year and

i. it is determined that the well is the first well capable of production in commercial quantities from an accumulation of petroleum or natural gas not previously known to exist, other than a mineral resource, or

ii. it is reasonable to expect that the well cannot come into production in commercial quantities within 12 months of its completion;

*(b.1)* any expense incurred by him after 31 March 1987 and in a taxation year of the taxpayer, in drilling or completing an oil or gas well in Canada, or in building a temporary access road to, or preparing a site in respect of, any such well if

i. the drilling or completing of the well resulted in the discovery of a natural underground reservoir containing petroleum or natural gas, where

(1) before the time of the discovery, no person or partnership had discovered that the reservoir contained either petroleum or natural gas;

(2) the discovery occurred at any time before six months after the end of the year; and

(3) the expense is incurred before 1 January 2019, excluding an expense that is deemed to have been incurred on 31 December 2018 under section 359.8, or before 1 January 2021 in connection with an obligation in writing entered into by the taxpayer before 22 March 2017, including an obligation towards a government under the terms of a license or permit, excluding an expense that is deemed to have been incurred on 31 December 2020 under section 359.8;

ii. the well is abandoned in the year or within six months after the end of the year without ever having produced otherwise than for specified purposes;

iii. the period of 24 months commencing on the day of completion of the drilling of the well ends in the year, the expense was incurred within that period and in the year and the well has not within that period produced otherwise than for specified purposes; or

iv. the certificate referred to in subparagraph iv of paragraph d of the definition of "Canadian exploration expenses" in subsection 6 of section 66.1 of the Income Tax Act (R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Suppl.)), in respect of a well has been filed with the Minister, in respect of the well, on or before the day that is six months after the end of the taxation year of the taxpayer in which the drilling of the well was commenced;

*(b.2)* any expense deemed under section 399.3 to be a Canadian exploration expense incurred by him;

(c) any expense incurred by the taxpayer (other than an expense incurred in drilling or completing an oil or gas well or in building a temporary access road to, or preparing a site in respect of, any such well) for the purpose of determining the existence, location, extent or quality of a mineral resource in Canada including any expense incurred in the course of prospecting, carrying out geological, geophysical or geochemical surveys, drilling and trenching or digging test pits or preliminary sampling and any expense for environmental studies or community consultations (including, despite subparagraph i, studies or consultations that are undertaken to obtain a right, licence or privilege for the purpose of determining the existence, location, extent or quality of such a mineral resource), but not including

i. any Canadian development expense, and

ii. any expense that may reasonably be related to a mine in the mineral resource that has come into production in reasonable commercial quantities or to an actual or potential extension of such a mine;

(c.1*)* any expense incurred by the taxpayer after 16 November 1978 and before 21 March 2013 for the purpose of bringing a new mine in a mineral resource in Canada, other than a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit, into production in reasonable commercial quantities, including any expense for clearing, removing overburden and stripping, sinking a mine shaft and constructing an adit or other underground entry, to the extent that the expense was incurred prior to the commencement of production from the new mine in reasonable commercial quantities;

(c.2*)* any Canadian renewable and conservation expense incurred by the taxpayer;

(c.3*)* any expense incurred by the taxpayer after 21 March 2011 that is an eligible oil sands mine development expense or a specified oil sands mine development expense;

(c.4*)* any expense that would be described in paragraph c.1 if that paragraph were read as if "21 March 2013" were replaced by "1 January 2017" and that is incurred by the taxpayer

i. in accordance with an agreement in writing entered into by the taxpayer before 21 March 2013, or

ii. as part of the development of a new mine, if

(1) construction work in relation to the new mine, other than work that involves obtaining permits or regulatory approvals, conducting environmental assessments, community consultations or impact benefit studies, and similar activities, was started by, or on behalf of, the taxpayer before 21 March 2013, or

(2) engineering and design work for the construction of the new mine, as evidenced in writing, other than work that involves obtaining permits or regulatory approvals, conducting environmental assessments, community consultations or impact benefit studies, and similar activities, was started by, or on behalf of, the taxpayer before 21 March 2013;

(c.5*)* the portion of any expense not described in paragraph c.4 that would be described in paragraph c.1 if that paragraph c.1 were read as if "21 March 2013" were replaced by "1 January 2018" and that is

i. 100% of the expense if it is incurred before 1 January 2015,

ii. 80% of the expense if it is incurred in the calendar year 2015,

iii. 60% of the expense if it is incurred in the calendar year 2016, and

iv. 30% of the expense if it is incurred in the calendar year 2017;

(d) subject to section 418.37, the taxpayer's share of the expenses described in paragraphs a to b.1 and c to c.5 and incurred by a partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership, if at the end of the period the taxpayer is a member of the partnership; or

(e) an expense described in paragraphs a to c.1 incurred by him pursuant to an agreement in writing with a corporation entered into before 1 January 1987, under which he incurs that expense solely as consideration for a share, except a prescribed share, of the capital stock of that corporation issued to him or any right in or to such a share.

1975, c. 22, s. 90; 1980, c. 13, s. 35; 1982, c. 5, s. 89; 1984, c. 15, s. 88; 1986, c. 15, s. 80; 1986, c. 19, s. 80; 1987, c. 67, s. 88; 1988, c. 18, s. 28; 1990, c. 59, s. 161; 1992, c. 1, s. 33; 1995, c. 49, s. 100; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 145; 2004, c. 8, s. 72; 2012, c. 8, s. 51; 2013, c. 10, s. 31; 2015, c. 24, s. 64; 2017, c. 29, s. 62; 2020, c. 16, s. 64.

395.1. For the purposes of subparagraph iv of paragraph b.1 of section 395, a certificate in respect of an oil or gas well issued by the Minister of Natural Resources of Canada is deemed never to have been issued and never to have been filed with the Minister if it is deemed, under subsection 10 of section 66.1 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), never to have been so issued and never to have been filed with the Minister of Revenue of Canada.

1990, c. 59, s. 162; 1996, c. 39, s. 110; 2000, c. 5, s. 293.

395.2. For the purposes of paragraph c.3 of section 395, "eligible oil sands mine development expense" means the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the product obtained by multiplying, by the percentage specified in the second paragraph, an expense (other than an expense that is a specified oil sands mine development expense described in section 395.3) that is incurred by a taxpayer after 21 March 2011 but on or before 31 December 2015 and that would be described in paragraph c.1 of section 395 if that paragraph were read without reference to "and before 21 March 2013" and ", other than a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit,".

The percentage to which the first paragraph refers, in relation to an expense, is

(a) 100% if the expense is incurred on or before 31 December 2012;

(b) 80% if the expense is incurred in the calendar year 2013;

(c) 60% if the expense is incurred in the calendar year 2014; and

(d) 30% if the expense is incurred in the calendar year 2015.

2012, c. 8, s. 52; 2015, c. 24, s. 65.

395.3. For the purposes of paragraph c.3 of section 395, "specified oil sands mine development expense" means an expense that is incurred by a taxpayer after 21 March 2011 but on or before 31 December 2014 to achieve completion of a specified oil sands mine development project of the taxpayer and that would be described in paragraph c.1 of section 395 if that paragraph were read without reference to "and before 21 March 2013" and ", other than a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit,".

For the purposes of this section,

"bitumen mine development project", of a taxpayer, means a project the taxpayer undertakes for the sole purpose of developing a new mine to extract and process tar sands from a mineral resource of the taxpayer to produce bitumen or a similar product;

"bitumen upgrading development project", of a taxpayer, means a project the taxpayer undertakes for the sole purpose of constructing an upgrading facility to process bitumen or a similar feedstock (all or substantially all of which is from a mineral resource of the taxpayer) from a new mine to the crude oil stage or its equivalent;

"completion", of a specified oil sands mine development project, means the first attainment of a level of average output, attributable to the project and measured over a 60-day period, equal to at least 60% of the planned level of average daily output (as determined in paragraph b of the definition of "specified oil sands mine development project");

"designated asset", in respect of an oil sands mine development project of a taxpayer, means a property that is a building, a structure, machinery or equipment and is, or is an integral and substantial part of,

(a) in the case of a bitumen mine development project,

i. a crusher,

ii. a froth treatment plant,

iii. a primary separation unit,

iv. a steam generation plant,

v. a cogeneration plant, or

vi. a water treatment plant; or

(b) in the case of a bitumen upgrading development project,

i. a gasifier unit,

ii. a vacuum distillation unit,

iii. a hydrocracker unit,

iv. a hydrotreater unit,

v. a hydroprocessor unit, or

vi. a coker;

"oil sands mine development project", of a taxpayer, means a bitumen mine development project or a bitumen upgrading development project;

"preliminary work activity", in respect of a taxpayer's oil sands mine development project, means any activity that is preliminary to the acquisition, construction, fabrication or installation by or on behalf of the taxpayer of designated assets in respect of the project including, in particular, the following activities:

(a) obtaining permits or regulatory approvals;

(b) performing design or engineering work;

(c) conducting feasibility studies;

(d) conducting environmental assessments; and

(e) entering into contracts;

"specified oil sands mine development project", of a taxpayer, means an oil sands mine development project (not including any preliminary work activity) in respect of which

(a) one or more designated assets was, before 22 March 2011, acquired by the taxpayer or in the process of being constructed, fabricated or installed, by or on behalf of the taxpayer; and

(b) the planned level of average daily output (where that output is bitumen or a similar product in the case of a bitumen mine development project, or synthetic crude oil or a similar product in the case of a bitumen upgrading development project) that can reasonably be expected, is the lesser of

i. the level that was the demonstrated intention of the taxpayer on 21 March 2011 to produce from the oil sands mine development project, and

ii. the maximum level of output associated with the design capacity, on 21 March 2011, of the designated assets referred to in paragraph a.

2012, c. 8, s. 52; 2015, c. 24, s. 66.

396. A taxpayer's Canadian exploration expenses do not however include

(a) any consideration given by the taxpayer for any share or any right in or to a share, except as provided by paragraph e of section 395;

(b) any expense described in paragraph e of section 395 and incurred by any other taxpayer to the extent that the expense is a Canadian exploration expense of that other taxpayer by virtue of that paragraph, a Canadian development expense of that other taxpayer by virtue of paragraph e of section 408 or a Canadian oil and gas property expense of that other taxpayer by virtue of paragraph c of section 418.2;

(c) any amount, other than a Canadian renewable and conservation expense, included at any time in the capital cost to the taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class;

(c.1) an expense that is the cost, or any part of the cost, to the taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class that was acquired after 31 December 1987;

(c.2) any expense, incurred in respect of a mineral resource before a new mine in the mineral resource comes into production in reasonable commercial quantity, that results in income earned, or that may reasonably be expected to result in income earned, before the new mine comes into production in reasonable commercial quantity, except to the extent that the aggregate of all such expenses exceeds the aggregate of those incomes if

i. the expense is otherwise described in paragraph c of section 395 and incurred, in respect of the resource, in prospecting, drilling, trenching, digging test pits or preliminary sampling, or

ii. the expense is otherwise described in paragraph c.1 of section 395;

(d) an expenditure incurred at any time after the commencement of production from a Canadian resource property of the taxpayer in order to evaluate the feasibility of a method of recovery of, or to assist in the recovery of, petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from the portion of a natural reservoir to which the Canadian resource property relates;

(e) an expenditure incurred at any time relating to the injection of any substance to assist in the recovery of petroleum, natural gas or related hydrocarbons from a natural reservoir; or

(f) the taxpayer's share of any consideration, expense, cost or expenditure referred to in any of paragraphs a to e given or incurred, as the case may be, by a partnership.

1975, c. 22, s. 90; 1982, c. 5, s. 90; 1998, c. 16, s. 146; 2004, c. 8, s. 73; 2005, c. 1, s. 95; 2012, c. 8, s. 53; 2020, c. 16, s. 189.

397. Where a taxpayer has received or is entitled to receive after 25 May 1976 any assistance in respect of or related to his Canadian exploration expenses, the expenses contemplated in paragraphs a to e of section 395 shall not be reduced by the amount of such assistance.

1977, c. 26, s. 37; 1988, c. 18, s. 29.

398. In this chapter, cumulative Canadian exploration expenses of a taxpayer, at any time, means the amount by which the aggregate described in section 399 is exceeded by the aggregate of:

(a) the Canadian exploration expenses incurred by the taxpayer before that time;

(b) all amounts included in computing the taxpayer's income under paragraph d of section 330 for a taxation year ending before that time;

(b.1) all amounts determined under paragraph a of section 418.31.1 in respect of the taxpayer for a taxation year ending before that time;

(c) all amounts, except interest, paid by him after 6 May 1974 in the case of an oil business, or after 31 March 1975 in the case of a mining business, and before that time as a reimbursement of a subsidy, grant or assistance received before 25 May 1976 under a prescribed Act in respect of Canadian exploration and development expenses or Canadian exploration expenses;

(d) all amounts described in paragraph b of section 399 that, according to the evidence submitted by him, have become a bad debt before such time; and

(e) such part of an amount described in paragraph e of section 399 as has been repaid by him before that time pursuant to a legal obligation to repay all or any part of that amount.

1975, c. 22, s. 90; 1977, c. 26, s. 38; 1978, c. 26, s. 67; 1982, c. 5, s. 91; 1991, c. 25, s. 73; 1993, c. 16, s. 156; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 2004, c. 8, s. 74; 2015, c. 24, s. 67.

399. The amounts required to be deducted in computing the cumulative Canadian exploration expenses of a taxpayer at the time referred to in section 398 are the aggregate of:

(a) all amounts deducted, or required to be deducted, in computing his income for a taxation year ending before that time in respect of such expenses;

(b) all amounts that become receivable by him before that time that are required to be deducted in computing such expenses under this paragraph by virtue of section 386 or 391;

(c) all amounts paid to him after 6 May 1974 in the case of an oil business, or after 31 March 1975 in the case of a mining business, and before 25 May 1976 as a subsidy, grant or assistance received under an Act, in respect of Canadian exploration and development expenses or Canadian exploration expenses, to the extent provided by the regulations;

(d) all amounts received by the taxpayer before such time in respect of a debt referred to in paragraph d of section 398;

(e) all amounts of assistance that he has received or is entitled to receive in respect of any Canadian exploration expense incurred after 31 December 1980 or that can reasonably be related to Canadian exploration activities after that date, to the extent that the assistance has not reduced his Canadian exploration expense by virtue of the third paragraph of section 399.3;

(e.1) all amounts by which his cumulative Canadian exploration expense is required, because of section 485.8, to be reduced at or before that time;

(f) all amounts that are required to be deducted before that time under section 392.2 in computing his cumulative Canadian exploration expenses;

(g) that portion of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the taxpayer under subsection 5 or 6 of section 127 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) for a taxation year ending before that time that may reasonably be attributed to an expenditure made in a preceding taxation year that is a qualified Canadian exploration expenditure, within the meaning of subsection 9 of section 127 of that Act, as it read for that preceding taxation year, or a pre-production mining expenditure, within the meaning of that subsection 9; and

(h) all amounts that are required to be deducted before that time under paragraph b of section 418.31 in computing his cumulative Canadian exploration expenses.

1975, c. 22, s. 90; 1977, c. 26, s. 39; 1982, c. 5, s. 92; 1987, c. 67, s. 89; 1988, c. 18, s. 30; 1989, c. 77, s. 41; 1990, c. 59, s. 163; 1995, c. 49, s. 101; 1996, c. 39, s. 111; 1997, c. 31, s. 47; 2005, c. 1, s. 96.

399.1. For the purposes of paragraph e of section 399, where, pursuant to a designation by a trust, an amount is required, under subsection 7 of section 127 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement), to be added in computing the investment tax credit, within the meaning of subsection 9 of section 127 of the said Act, of a taxpayer at the end of his taxation year, the portion thereof that can reasonably be considered to relate to an expenditure that, for a taxation year, is a qualified Canadian exploration expenditure, within the meaning of subsection 9 of section 127 of that Act, as it read for that year, of the trust is deemed to have been received by the trust at the end of its taxation year in respect of which the designation was made as assistance from a government in respect of that expenditure.

1988, c. 18, s. 31; 1997, c. 31, s. 48.

399.2. (Repealed).

1988, c. 18, s. 31; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 147.

399.3. Where at any time in a taxpayer's taxation year, one of the events described in the second paragraph occurs in respect of an oil or gas well of the taxpayer, the excess amount determined under the third paragraph is, for the purposes of this Part, deemed to be a Canadian exploration expense referred to in paragraph b.2 of section 395 incurred by the taxpayer at that time.

The events to which the first paragraph refers are the following:

(a) the drilling or completing of an oil or gas well resulted in the discovery of a natural underground reservoir containing petroleum or natural gas and, before the time of the discovery, no person or partnership had discovered that the reservoir contained either petroleum or natural gas;

(b) the period of 24 months commencing on the day of completion of the drilling of the oil or gas well ends and the well has not, within that period, produced otherwise than for specified purposes; or

(c) the oil or gas well is abandoned without ever having produced otherwise than for specified purposes.

The excess amount to which the first paragraph refers is the amount by which the aggregate of the following amounts exceeds any assistance that the taxpayer or a partnership of which the taxpayer is a member has received or is entitled to receive in respect of the expenses referred to in any of subparagraphs a, b and c:

(a) all Canadian development expenses, other than restricted expenses, described in subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 408 in respect of the well that are deemed under section 359.5 or sections 417 and 418, as they read in respect of those expenses, to have been incurred by the taxpayer in the year or a preceding taxation year;

(b) all Canadian development expenses, other than restricted expenses, described in subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 408 in respect of the well that are required under the second paragraph of section 392 to be included by the taxpayer in the amount referred to in paragraph a of section 408 for the year or a preceding taxation year; and

(c) all Canadian development expenses, other than expenses referred to in paragraph a or b and restricted expenses, described in subparagraph ii of paragraph a of section 408 incurred by the taxpayer in respect of the well in a taxation year preceding the year.

1988, c. 18, s. 31; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 148; 2001, c. 53, s. 64; 2004, c. 8, s. 75.

399.4. (Repealed).

399.5. (Repealed).

1988, c. 18, s. 31; 1989, c. 77, s. 42.

399.6. For the purposes of this chapter, the expression "restricted expense" of a taxpayer means an expense

(a) incurred by him before 1 April 1987;

(b) that is deemed under section 418 to have been incurred by him, or included by him in the amount referred to in paragraph a of section 408 by virtue of the second paragraph of section 392, to the extent that the expense was originally incurred before 1 April 1987;

(c) that was renounced by him under section 359.2.1 or 359.4 or section 417, as it read in respect of the renunciation;

(d) in respect of which an amount referred to in section 392 becomes receivable by him;

(e) deemed to be a Canadian exploration expense of the taxpayer or any other taxpayer by virtue of section 399.3; or

(f) where the taxpayer is a corporation, that was incurred by the corporation before the time control of the corporation was last acquired by a person or persons.

1988, c. 18, s. 31; 1995, c. 49, s. 102; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 1998, c. 16, s. 149.

399.7. In this chapter,

"Canadian renewable and conservation expense" has the meaning assigned by the regulations;

"specified purpose" means

(a) the operation of an oil or gas well for the sole purpose of testing the well or the well head and related equipment, in accordance with generally accepted engineering practices;

(b) the burning of natural gas and related hydrocarbons to protect the environment; and

(c) any prescribed purpose.

For the purpose of determining whether an outlay or expense in respect of a prescribed energy conservation property meets the prescribed criteria in respect of Canadian renewable and conservation expenses, the Technical Guide to Canadian Renewable and Conservation Expenses, as amended from time to time and published by the Department of Natural Resources of Canada, applies conclusively with respect to engineering and scientific matters.

1988, c. 18, s. 31; 1995, c. 49, s. 236; 1998, c. 16, s. 150; 2015, c. 36, s. 20.

400. A development corporation, other than a corporation that would not be a development corporation if the first paragraph of section 363 were read without reference to subparagraphs h and i thereof, may, in computing its income for a taxation year, deduct any amount not exceeding the lesser of

(a) the aggregate of

i. the amount by which its cumulative Canadian exploration expenses at the end of the year exceed the amount, designated by it for the year for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) under subsection 14.1 of section 66 of that Act, and

ii. the amount by which the aggregate determined under subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 418.31.1 in respect of the corporation for the year exceeds the amount that would be determined in respect of the corporation for the year under paragraph d of section 330 if the aggregate last referred to in that paragraph d were not taken into account; and

(b) the amount by which the amount that would be its income for the year if no deduction, other than a prescribed deduction, were allowed under this section and sections 360 and 361 exceeds the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted by the corporation under sections 738 to 749 in computing its taxable income for the year.

401. A taxpayer not contemplated in section 400 may deduct, in computing the income of the taxpayer for a taxation year, an amount not exceeding the aggregate of

(a) the amount by which the taxpayer's cumulative Canadian exploration expense at the end of the year exceeds the amount designated by the taxpayer for the year for the purposes of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement) under subsection 14.1 of section 66 of the said Act, and

(b) the amount by which the aggregate determined under subparagraph i of paragraph a of section 418.31.1 in respect of the taxpayer for the year exceeds the amount that would be determined in respect of the taxpayer for the year under paragraph d of section 330 if the aggregate last referred to in the said paragraph d were not taken into account.

DIVISION IV

CANADIAN DEVELOPMENT EXPENSES

1975, c. 22, s. 90.

408. For the purposes of this chapter, "Canadian development expense of a taxpayer" means any cost or expense incurred after 6 May 1974 in the case of an oil business, or after 31 March 1975 in the case of a mining business, to the extent that such cost or expense constitutes

(a) an expense incurred by him in:

i. drilling or converting a well in Canada for the disposal of waste liquids from an oil or gas well;

ii. drilling or completing an oil or gas well in Canada, building a temporary access road to the well or preparing a site in respect of the well, to the extent that the expense was not a Canadian exploration expense of the taxpayer in the taxation year during which it was incurred;

iii. drilling or converting a well in Canada for the injection of water, gas or any other substance to assist in the recovery of petroleum or natural gas from another well;

iv. drilling for water or gas in Canada for injection into a petroleum or natural gas formation; or

v. drilling or converting a well in Canada for the purposes of monitoring fluid levels, pressure changes or other phenomena in an accumulation of petroleum or natural gas;

(a.1) an expense incurred by him after 16 November 1978, in respect of an oil or gas well in Canada after the commencement of production from the well, to drill the well, to maintain or increase its production or to put it back into operation;

(b) an expense incurred by him before 17 November 1978 to bring a mineral resource in Canada into production, including clearing, removing overburden and stripping, sinking a mine shaft and constructing an adit or other underground entry, to the extent that the expense was incurred prior to the commencement of production from the mine in reasonable commercial quantities;

(b.0.1) any expense, or portion of any expense, that is not a Canadian exploration expense, incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of bringing a new mine in a mineral resource in Canada that is a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit into production and incurred before the new mine comes into production in reasonable commercial quantities, including an expense for clearing the land, removing overburden and stripping, or building an entry ramp;

(b.0.2) any expense, or portion of any expense, that is not a Canadian exploration expense, incurred by the taxpayer after 20 March 2013 for the purpose of bringing a new mine in a mineral resource in Canada, other than a bituminous sands deposit or an oil shale deposit, into production in reasonable commercial quantities, including an expense for clearing, removing overburden and stripping, sinking a mine shaft and constructing an adit or other underground entry, to the extent that the expense was incurred prior to the commencement of production from the new mine in reasonable commercial quantities;

(b.1) any expense incurred by him after 31 December 1987, other than an amount included in the capital cost of a depreciable property,

i. in sinking or excavating a mine shaft, main haulage way or similar underground work designed for continuing use, for a mine in a mineral resource in Canada built or excavated after the mine came into production, or

ii. in extending any such shaft, haulage way or work;

(c) despite section 144, the cost to the taxpayer of a property described in any of paragraphs b, d.1 and e of section 370 or of a right in or to such a property, other than a right that the taxpayer has because the taxpayer is a beneficiary under a trust or a member of a partnership, including any payment for the preservation of a taxpayer's rights in respect of such a property or such a right, but excluding, except for the application of this paragraph to a taxation year that begins after 31 December 2007,

i. any payment made to a person referred to in section 90 for the preservation of a taxpayer's rights in respect of a Canadian resource property, and

ii. any payment to which subsection 1 of section 144 applies by reason of paragraph b of that subsection 1;

(d) subject to section 418.37, his share of any expense described in paragraphs a to c incurred by a partnership in a fiscal period thereof, if at the end of that fiscal period he was a member thereof, unless the taxpayer elects in respect of the share in prescribed form and manner on or before the day that is six months after the taxpayer's taxation year in which that period ends; or

(e) any cost or expense described in paragraphs a to c incurred by him pursuant to an agreement in writing with a corporation entered into before 1 January 1987, under which agreement he so incurs such cost or expense solely as consideration for a share, except a prescribed share, of the capital stock of that corporation issued to him or any right in or to such a share.

1975, c. 22, s. 90; 1977, c. 26, s. 41; 1978, c. 26, s. 71; 1980, c. 13, s. 40; 1982, c. 5, s. 96; 1984, c. 15, s. 89; 1985, c. 25, s. 76; 1986, c. 19, s. 83; 1988, c. 18, s. 35; 1990, c. 59, s. 164; 1994, c. 22, s. 153; 1997, c. 3, s. 71; 2005, c. 1, s. 97; 2012, c. 8, s. 54; 2015, c. 24, s. 69; 2020, c. 16, s. 65.

409. A taxpayer's Canadian development expenses do not however include

(a) any consideration given by the taxpayer for any share or any right in or to a share, except as provided by paragraph e of section 408;

(b) any expense described in paragraph e of section 408 and incurred by another taxpayer to the extent that the expense is a Canadian development expense of that other taxpayer by virtue of that paragraph, a Canadian exploration expense of that other taxpayer by virtue of paragraph e of section 395 or a Canadian oil and gas property expense of that other taxpayer by virtue of paragraph c of section 418.2;

(c) any amount included at any time in the capital cost to the taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class;

(c.1) an expense that is the cost, or any part of the cost, to the taxpayer of any depreciable property of a prescribed class that was acquired after 31 December 1987; or
